Lowly Bruins Third

Red Wings' Power Play Best With Habs Holding 2nd Spot

MONTREAL (CP)—It seems that Detroit Red Wings—and not Montreal Canadiens, as many people thought—have the most devastating power play in the National Hockey League.

The NHL let loose today a brand new flock of statistics dealing with the offensive and defensive records of each club when playing, respectively, with a manpower advantage and undermanned. The figures include games of last Dec. 28.

The league's release follows a lot of recent talk about proposals to change the penalty rule so that a penalty would expire when the opposition scores a goal.

Of the 75 goals the Red Wings had scored, 23 of them—or 44 per cent—came when the Wings had a manpower advantage. Canadiens had rolled up 103 goals, 24 which 37, or 36 per cent, came while the opposition was shorthanded.

Third best power-play team is the lowly Boston Bruins, who have scored 28 goals while capitalizing on penalties, a percentage of 27. Holding manpower advantage, New York Rangers have scored 29 of their 94 goals, 21 per cent; Toronto Maple Leafs 24 of 92 for 19 per cent, and Chicago Black Hawks only 12 of 84 for 14 per cent.

Conversely, of course, the Hawks had the best goaling advantage when at even strength with the opposition.

In 33 games Detroit had a one-man advantage 150 times and made good 30 times for 21 goals. The Wings had a two-man advantage 10 times but could score on only two occasions for two goals. Canadiens had a one-man advantage 156 times in 36 games. They clicked 28 times for 21 goals. Eight times they held a two-man advantage, capitalizing three times for five goals.

36 Half-Hour Dramas Being Prepared on U.S. Civil War

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — With the blessing of Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver, chairman of the board of NBC, producer Ed Byron, is filming 36 half-hour dramas on the American Civil War.

Byron also proposed to film at least four 90-minute spectaculars based on the conflict. The series entitles "The Eagle and the Rose" probably won't appear on NBC-TV stations until next fall.

The separate dramas with their themes of adventure, combat, crime, romance, courage and intrigue against the background of war will be seen through the eyes of an imparital observer—a reporter for a London newspaper. Patrick O'Neal plays the role of the reporter who moves through both Union and Confederate camps.

The major characters of history—generals and politicians—will be minor characters. And the minor characters who fight and endure all wars will be the major characters.

NOT ON LOCATION

Actual Civil War battlefields cannot serve as locations for the color filming of the series. There are too many monuments poling into view.

The most similar locations have been found—of all places—in New Jersey and Connecticut.

Terry Sawchuk Said 'Too Old' For Army Draft

DETROIT (AP)—Terry Sawchuk, Boston Bruins goalie, Monday was told by his selective service board he has been classified as "too old" for the draft under the present law.

Sawchuk, veteran National Hockey League goalie, remained in Detroit after his team was beaten by the Red Wings Sunday. He said he understood from his mother that he had received a notice from the draft board, but at first thought it was his Individual notice.

Sawchuk was told upon a check at his Detroit board that he was classified 5-A, which means that at 26 he is not eligible for the draft.

Italy Beats German Puckists

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—Italy's Olympic hockey team, loaded with Canadian-born talent, Monday night beat Germany's Bad Tolz 6-3 in an exhibition game.

Helping man the German team, third in the national rankings are three of Germany's Olympic puck stars.

Half of Italy's goals were fired in by the Canadians, who now have applied for passports because of Italian parentage.

The Canadian goal scorers were Bernardo Tomei of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Giovanni Furlani and Carlo Montemurro.

Devore Signs As Eagles' Coach

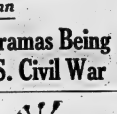
Devore announced Sunday night that he had rejected the job of replacing Jim Trimble—fired after a disappointing 1955 season. Monday, Bell—chairman of the executive committee—flew to Dayton to confer with Devore.



Bell reportedly told Devore he was sadly needed to bring the Eagles back to their former position of prominence in the professional loop. Bell's argument must have been good for Devore had insisted previously that he was set on retiring. But he had a going thing there, that he wanted to continue with.

Details of Devore's contract were not disclosed immediately but he reportedly was offered between $15,000 and $18,000 a year with a three-year pact.

SIGN DODGER CONTRACTS

BROOKLYN (AP)—Don Wilson and Glen Cimoli, two rookie outfielders from Montreal of the International League, Monday signed their 1956 Brooklyn Dodger contracts. Wilson received a $5,000 bonus pitcher who will be finishing the second part of his two-year contract, the latest signings raise the Dodger total to nine.

All a good bridge player needs is a chance. Leave him any kind of a loop hole even for a grand and you will get see him for dust. As in the deal shown here:

South refused to let his north partner play it in six no-trump and went to seven hearts that west doubled. Hoping to defeat it more than one trick, west decided to play a winning game.

So, instead of leading club ace or diamond king, west started out with an opening lead of club a singleton spade. This gave declarer the breathing space he needed and he took advantage of it.

Dummy took the first trick with the spade queen and south ran two tricks to take what west had of them. Three more spades were cashed, landing in south with the spade jack.

Another south trump was led and all hands were down to only three tricks apiece. All the declarer had left by this time were his three queens, one in each suit outside of spades.

The three cards that west now clung to were his club ace and the king with queen of diamonds. Meaning, dummy was forced down to his king of clubs and the ace with jack of diamonds.

If you lay these remaining cards out on a table you will easily see how the rest of the play operates. It is a good way to see what happens when a player is squeezed; and how he is squeezed.

Right here south leads his last trump and west must let go of a card before dummy decides. If west gives up a diamond, dummy tires club king. This gives dummy the last two tricks with ace and jack.

The only alternative for west is to cough up his club ace. If so, dummy discards his diamond jack and has the last two tricks with the diamond ace and club king. There is by no means any escape about it.

With other plays eventless, a squeeze can be relentless.

James Stewart Now Top Man At Movie Box Offices

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The new top man at the movie box offices is James Stewart, and Hollywood is agreed that it's time. It's what happened to a nicer guy.

How does he feel about being No. 1?

"I'm very, very happy about it," he said. "It was a surprise, but I did think if I was ever going to make it, this year would be the time, had some pretty good money-makers out.

"The Glenn Miller Story" was released partly in 1955. Then I had a couple back-to-back—"Rear Window' and 'Strategic Air Command.' And 'The Man From Laramie' was being released toward the end of the year."

OCCUPATIONAL DISEASE

But he said the No. 1 spot would not change his thinking about movies. He remarked:

"I'm not going to say 'Where do I go from here?' It seems to me that's an occupational disease in this town. Some actors think they're 'ruined if a new picture doesn't win five Oscars. You can't worry about topping yourself all the time.

"I just have to keep hunting for the right kind of picture to do. And the search gets harder as I go along. I read mountains of scripts to find just one."

What does he look for?

"I don't think you can have a successful movie unless you realize the importance of acting in it. You've got to have a rooting interest in characters. And you've got to get an emotional experience from what happens on the screen."

WORLD PLAY HEAVY

Does this mean he would never play a heavy on the screen?

"Not necessarily. You can still be a heavy and have the audience pulling for you. Arthur Kennedy was a villain in 'The Man From Laramie,' but the audience was sure rooted for him. I might do one if the villainy were an off-and-on affair or some kind of a trick."

Chances are that you'll never see him as a heavy, however. Audiences are accustomed to having him play the hero. His only departure was when he enacted the murderer in "The Thin Man."

Veteran Trainer George Stockwell Leaves Bones, Splinters for Office

By BOB SMYLIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—George Aspinal Stockwell, who has trained more Grey Cup football championship teams than any other Canadian, has laid aside his player.

George has been promoted to Argos' office manager, club official Monday announced his discontinuance of his age and his health.

"He's not been too well the last year," said Argo vice-president Joe Wright Jr. "And he's getting along in years so ole for the training job."

George would not divulge his age. "At my age, it's the only thing I can call my own," he said. He did say he was a veteran of the First World War, has raised nine children and has eight grandchildren, so a guess at the mid-50s wouldn't be too far wrong.

Slight, greying George has been Argo trainer since 1928. And, except for time out for military service during the Second World War, he's been there chief bone-and-splinter man for the team.

He trained Argos' Grey Cup championship teams of 1933, '37, '38, '47, '50 and '52. His hands have treated and taped more than 1,000 Argo players in his career, and he has spent as much time sympathizing with players' troubles as he did soothing their aches and pains.

Under George, the Argo training room has grown from one trainer to a head trainer, two assistants and a rubbing table to a battery of trainers' job has become one of the most highly-skilled in sports.

"Today we have the best and latest in scientific equipment, like a whirlpool bath, a short-wave treatment machine, an infra-red machine and an ultra-violet machine, all designed to do particular jobs of healing."

STARTED AFTER WAR

George started training after he returned from infantry service in the First World War.

He was assistant to the late Percy Ryan, one-time trainer of the New York Americans of the National Hockey League, when Ryan was with the Qwen Sound Greys of the Ontario Hockey Association.

From Owen Sound, he moved to Toronto and trained the Maitland lacrosse team. St. George's baseball club and the Newmarket hockey club. In 1938 he joined Argos and has trained the baseball and rowing clubs.

He trained such rowing greats as Bobby Pearce, Joe Wright, John Coulson, Jack Flavelle and Herb Mallender, three of the football Argonauts as a full-time job.

"The best part of the game he ever watched was the Toronto-Winnipeg Grey Cup final in 1948 when Argos won a single point on the last play of the game to down Argos a 10-9 victory and the cup.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) Summer took complete command here today. Rio de Janeiro sizzled in 104 deg. Benches were crowded. Lifeguards were kept on the run. They hauled 30 people from the water. Two persons died of the heat.

EDITOR DIES

VANCOUVER (CP)—J. V. Kelly, 70, former managing editor of the Vancouver Province, died Sunday. He was a waterfront reporter for the Province for 39 years, retiring in 1947. Before coming to Vancouver in 1916 he was a reporter on the Calgary Herald for 10 years.

Mangrum Sweeps Los Angeles Open Tourney

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lloyd Mangrum, his 36th account locketed by 36,000 with his fourth victory in a Los Angeles open golf tournament, has served warning to his brother professionals that he is back in sound physical shape and aiming at further conquests.

Mangrum made it a start-to-finish triumph, shooting 68-70-71-69 straight 6s, then a 68 and a one-over-par 280 was good enough to stand up at the windup Monday of the $30,000 event.

The cash total, Open champion plans to play in Bing Crosby's big clambake Phebble Beach next weekend. Then he'll play Phoenix, Tucson and the Texas Open.

Lloyd's 11-shot, 72-hole total of 272, breaking by one stroke his tournament record here set in 1936 by Jimmy Thomson at a comparable Griffith Park municipal course.

PLAYED CONSERVATIVELY

Mangrum admitted he played the last nine holes a little conservatively. He held a five-stroke lead over Tommy Bolt and Jerry Barber beginning the round and five over Bolt and six over Barber after the first hole.

Barber wound up with a 70 for 278 and Bolt, with two straight bad strokes straight par 71 rounds, at 278. The one-stroke difference was worth $2,000. Barber collected $3,200 second prize, Tommy $2,200.

This was Mangrum's first major fall tournament since he suffered a painful rib separation in the Masters last April.

The rundown behind the top three: Cary Middlecoff and Ted Kroll and $1,600; Dutch Harrison and John Barnum, the Ojai kid at 281, 400 apiece, and Gardiner Dickinson, 71, and Jim Ferrier, 70, for 282 and $1,000 each.

Al Balding of Toronto, among the leaders in the early rounds, finished in a three-way tie in 30th spot to win $193.33 prize money. He had a last round 72 for a 288 total.

HEADED BALL LEAGUE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Charles Melbourne Anderson, 49, superintendent of safety mechanical department of the North American Company Company, Welland plant, for 18 years, died Saturday at nearby Chippawa. Born in Bruce county, Mr. Anderson was one of the executive of the Greater Niagara Baseball Association and president of the Welland Valley League in Chippawa. Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Sidney Parton of Port Colborne.

'Secret Weapon' For Ski Events May Be Junked

WENGEN, Switzerland (AP)—France's new "secret weapon" for ski events in the winter Olympics seems headed for the scrap heap.

The "secret weapon" consists of specially-made skis with flexible metal rods running lengthwise. These permit adjusting of tension for different snow conditions.

The widely publicized new skis have failed to produce any startling improvement in French skiing. Even if it did, there is gossip here among coaches of other teams that the International Ski Federation might rule it out as an illegal "gadget" if the French attempt to use it in Olympic competition.

It's Snowing In Cortina

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—It started to snow here Monday night and you could count almost as many smiles as snowflakes.

It wasn't snowing hard—just a few flakes drifting lazily downward but every flake seemed a blessing to this almost snowless winter Olympic village where the sun has shone brightly for 24 straight days. It had been cloudy all day, and people in Cortina heard reports from nearby towns that it was snowing merrily.

"We're jinxed," moaned one Alpine officer whose troops were spending the day trucking snow to the cross-country site. "Why, it's snowing up at Misurina, 15 kilometres (9 3-8 miles) away. I hear the trails in the Alps are blocked. But it won't come here."

Olympic committee officials, who had been hardly able to mask their worry over the bare patches on ski runs, crossed their fingers when they heard reports of the snow. They said a good fall would be needed to provide enough base for the downhill and slalom ski events.

PRINCELY SKIER

VADUZ, Lichtenstein (Reuters) Prince Max von Hohenlohe of Lichtenstein will head the team being sent by the 59-square-mile principality to the winter Olympic games in Cortina d'Ampezzo, starting Jan. 26.

The prince is a member of the six-man ski team which will carry the Lichtenstein colors in the Alpine events.

For Wednesday, January 11, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Somewhat mixed influences suggest the avoidance of extremes in all activities, plans. Judge wisely and do your best, but do not overtax yourself.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — This day's vibrations promise either too exciting nor too dull a time. It's really up to you and the demands of your position. Familiar matters, daily chores should run smoothly.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Take the best of this helpful day! But don't strain to the point of fatigue. Opportunities are available but you may have to seek them out. Keep your sense of humor, test your ideas and you will win.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Relative restless worry and irritating bickering. Concentrate on your job or whatever your special interests. A reasonably good to splendid day if you manage it smartly.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — There should be many sound offerings now, so start early and calmly, but don't force issues. There may be some small obstacles but these can be overcome by toughness and cheerful determination.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Rays promise fine results for earnest efforts. Advances can be made in building, electronics, engineering, machine and tool work, also in artistic fields, decorating.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Benefits, achievements possible now. "Be accurate and painstaking but don't overdo. All worthwhile endeavors, many new interests gain.

October 24 to November 23 — (Scorpio) — Merely wishing and promising yourself that you'll get ahead won't produce. You have got to start and continue with consideration before you achieve. Any tendency to put off is a handicap.

November 24 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Be accurate, prompt and don't waste time with unessentials or useless details. Study the right, sure route and get on it smartly. Efficiency pays fine dividends.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Need advice to Career and Leo today. If clever and careful, you won't miss opportunities; neither will you shelve proper daring and initiative — all needed for your achievement now.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Taking too much time to accomplish an undertaking is as unprofitable as rushing and making errors. Find, and maintain, the right tempo.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — You need not take a back seat for anyone now. Whatever your schedule, you can make a go of it.

You born today are sturdy, dependable and on the intellectual side. But try to avoid stubbornness and gloominess — both Capricorn failings. Know that much can be gained and things made easier if you go along cheerfully with others occasionally. Use your organizing talents in domestic matters, too.

Newsprint Firms Face Deadline In Ultimatum

QUEBEC (CP) — Deadline expires today for Quebec newsprint manufacturers who face provincial government control unless they export Quebec newspaper publishers from recent price increases announced in October.

Premier Duplessis is scheduled to notify the provincial legislature that he will move second reading of a bill that would set up a newsprint control board with the job of regulating production, distribution and sale of newsprint in the province.

Newsprint control in Quebec is the top item on the agenda of the legislature as it meets after a three-week Christmas recess. The recent session started Nov. 18.

Unless the newsprint manufacturers, operating 55 mills in all, make a last-minute peace with Mr. Duplessis the draft legislation will be put through.

COMES AS CLIMAG

Today's move comes as a climax to a controversy between Mr. Duplessis and the newsprint manufacturers which spilled from public platforms and in prepared statements.

It started when the companies announced newsprint price increases ranging from $3 to $5 a ton, increases which have since been levelled at $4 a ton.

Newsprint now sells for $130 a ton delivered in New York and about $120 in Canada. Quebec publishers under a 1952 agreement had been paying less after arranging for their own deliveries.

Soon after the increases were announced Mr. Duplessis urged the companies to exempt Quebec newspapers from the rises. He said newspaper publishers, as organs of public information, were copyright exempt. Similar moves are developed by the companies under government leases.

Music and Drama Critics Called In to Assist

TORONTO (CP) — Maple Leaf Gardens, home of the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs, has called in the city's music and drama critics to ask their suggestions for improving the Gardens as a locale for cultural productions.

Frequent criticism of the arena's acoustics, line of sight and other characteristics has been heard before Christmas by prima ballerina Margot Fonteyn of the Sadler's Wells Ballet, visited in the city and the building is not suitable for such events but there are some things its dimensions preclude a happy relationship between the dancers and the audience, it was suggested. Seating room of 12,586 at the Gardens and a 9,000 for such events.

Gardens manager Henry Bolton said Monday:

"We were disturbed . . . when a report came out that the Toronto Symphony Orchestra could not be heard and so on. Now we can perhaps iron out a few details and problems today that will be of help to all of us."

Liberal Party Support Down Says PC Pres.

TORONTO (CP)—George Hees said Monday night that public opinion polls show political support for the Liberal party is steadily declined since last June while that of the Conservative Conservatives has increased.

The president of the national Progressive Conservative Association said the polls among the voters show that 32 per cent favored the Conservative today, compared with 25 per cent last June. Only 46 per cent would back the Liberals, compared with 51 per cent last June.

Mr. Hees spoke at a dinner meeting for Toronto Broadview, said at a public meeting the reasons for the change are not difficult to find there was the government's "arrogance and quest for power" and then its "unplanned and unrestricted" immigration policy. There was its "refusal to assist the provinces with power development and its failure to build up the stocks of western wheat.

The statements were included in the text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

Fear of A-Bomb Taking Place Of Fear of Hell

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most Rev. W. F. Barfoot, Archbishop of Rupert's Land and Anglican Primate of all Canada, said Monday fear of the atomic bomb may be taking the place of the traditional fear of hell and turning more people to religion.

He told the Ministerial Association of greater Winnipeg that change may be one factor responsible for the increased interest in religion apparent today.

"I suspect that our present situation is largely due to the fact that man is trying Christianity because he has tried everything else and failed," he said.

But he warned that the new leaders placed dangers in the path of the church. The church, he said, must be cautious in using mass methods of evangelism and must not become "obsessed with the present."

"There's nothing wrong with taking advantage of the situation—only a fool wouldn't."

But there was a tendency "to adopt Christian doctrine to suit the atomic age . . . to adapt eternal truth to a contemporary situation." It was better to present the gospel as it had always been presented in the past.

Given Finance Post

J. GORDON McMILLEN, whose appointment as acting financial comptroller of the Ontario Department of Highways has been announced by Deputy Minister M. A. Nixon. Mr. McMillen succeeds J. L. The first six years were spent in the Provincial Treasurer's Department, and the other 24 with the Department of Lands and Forests where, before transfer to the Department of Highways, he was chief of the accounts division.

"Didn't I tell you she had power?"

Little Benny's Notebook

Mr. and Mrs. Pickette and Ronnell came for a Sunday afternoon visit yesterday. Ronnell being just my age but more dum, and everybody sat around talking unconfortable for a while, and then pop and Mr. Pickette got on their hind legs and went out a while to walk around and smoke cigars, and ma and Mrs. Pickette stayed in the living room to drink tea and talk, and I took Ronnell up to my room to show him my Christmas presents and listen to him brag about his and the Pickette went home in time for us to have our dinner.

Which we did, ma saying to pop, Well, William, how did it go, I mean did you and Mr. Pickette have a nice serious talk?

I'd hardly call it exactly serious, pop said. As a matter of fact I don't recall discussing anything more elevating than the relative life expectancy of razor blades, and the advantages of getting up early to sleep over 6 or seven. But I suppose you and Mrs. Pickette managed to settle more important problems in our absence, he said.

Well no, frankly, ma said. Our conversation was limited to the length of skerts, and the shortness of the days at this time of year, and the scarcity of servants even if you could afford them. It does seem a shame that grown up adults cant find more improving topicks and subjects, she said, and I said, Well O, ma, me and Ronnell talked serious about universal peace.

Goodness, me said, and I said, Sure, all about how the different countries are going to bild planetary islands to float around the air loaded with H bombs, so oh boy, nobody better not start a war for long, good night everybody.

Yee gods eat your dinner, pop said.

ATTACHE NOT WANTED

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Afghanistan's government has declared the Pakistani military attache in Kabul persona non grata and asked his withdrawal. The Afghan action, announced by Kabul radio, was believed in retaliation for the Pakistan government's expulsion last week of the Afghan consul at Quetta.

Conducts Traffic Court by Mail At Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—You've heard of correspondence schools. This city has a correspondence court.

"It may not be sanctioned by legislation," he said, "but we have been doing it for two years and it works well."

Here's how it works:

Any motorist summoned to court for a traffic-law violation, who feels he has a valid defence but fears loss of wages by attending court, may send his testimony by letter. The written defence is read in court and, if considered conclusive by the magistrate, the charge is dismissed.

In some cases the magistrate may postpone his decision and direct that the defendant appear in court a week or two later to give evidence in person. Magistrate Hopkins said in most instances the defendants were able to make arrangements to attend the later hearings. He said such written testimony could not effectively substitute evidence but it guided magistrates in disposing of minor infractions.

Parliament Opens With Ceremony

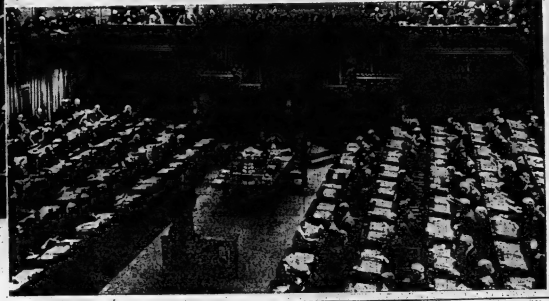
Major C. R. Lamoreux, Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, followed by Lt. Colonel W. J. Franklin, Sergeant-at-Arms, leads the procession of members of the House of Commons through Confederation Hall on the way to the Senate Chamber to hear the Governor General's Speech from the Throne.



Before Judges of the Supreme Court, and galleries crowded with Senators, high officers of state and foreign diplomats, the Governor General reads the Throne Speech outlining in both English and French the government program. Shortly afterwards (below) in the House of Commons, Mrs. Ann Shipley, of Kirkland Lake, Ont., M.P. for Temiskaming, became the first woman in Parliamentary history to launch a Throne Speech debate. Mrs. Shipley, an expert on Canada's mining industry, is one of four women members of the Commons.

Interest today is focussed on the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, where the Right Honourable Vincent Massey opened the third session of Canada's twenty-second Parliament. Today's opening followed in the tradition set since Canada's first assembly met in 1867—ceremonies that have been preserved and re-enacted to this day as a reminder of the dignity and rights of Parliament. In response to the Governor General's summons, members of the House of Commons are shown assembled at the Bar of the Senate to hear the reading of the Throne Speech.

MARITIME FLOOD

Heat was turned on again in a portion of Summerside RCAF station, where 1,000 persons—airmen and families—shivered since Saturday. The rest of the station's homes will be unheated until Wednesday, hoped to restore a telephone link. The Island Telephone Company to Charlottetown today.

DAMAGE ENORMOUS

"Millions of dollars" was as far as anyone would go in estimating property loss in the three provinces from floods and sleet. Shediac's Mayor J. E. Leblanc estimated it near $1,000,000 in his town alone.

The New Brunswick electric power commission, counting 3,000 broken poles, figured its loss at $300,000 in the Moncton, Shediac and Port Elgin area of southeastern New Brunswick.

At Sherbrooke, N.S., the St. Mary's river dropped enough to let some of 100 flooded-out residents start cleaning mud and debris out of their homes.

More than 10 houses and cottages were washed away. Two crashed into a bridge, wrecking it.

Parts of the Annapolis valley along the Annapolis and Cornwallis rivers were still under water. Railroad service in the area was suspended for the third day.

There were scattered reports of food and water shortages. Some communities were advised to boil drinking water.

Lorne Maher, who drove to Halifax from Summerside, brought the first eye-witness account of conditions there.

"when I left," he said, "there was no electric power at the air station or in the town. And they don't expect there will be power for about two weeks. Poles are down all over the district. In fact, there were only five poles still standing over an 18-mile area."

Peter Fisher of Sackville, N.B., gave the first picture of isolated Amherst: "Streets in Amherst are in a shambles due to falling trees and branches which brought down power lines. The fire alarm system has been out of action since Saturday."

In the northern Cape Breton mountains landslides were a new danger. One road near Baddeck was blocked when 3,000 yards of thaw-loosened mud gave way. Other slides were feared.

5 OTTAWA CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

1,000 Homeless In Nova Scotia As Damage Soars

Flooded Rivers Spread Ever-Growing Destruction

Florida Hit By Icy Winds, Loss Is Heavy

Tourists kept their luxury hotels; residents bundled up and sought any type of heating unit on the market.

The teeth-chattering cold that has hung on since Sunday reached to Cuba, where temperatures in the 50s were reported.

Damage to tender growing vegetables in Florida was estimated by the millions of dollars, but citrus fruit crops apparently escaped major loss.

Miami's high Tuesday was 67 degrees. A low of 42 was reported Tuesday morning. If the area does not warm up before Sunday, as predicted, it will be Miami's longest spell since 1918.

BELL HEATING UNITS

The sale of portable heating units continues at a record pace, and dealers selling permanent heating fixtures report they are far behind on installations.

Overworked electrical heating equipment caused blown fuses in power transformers during peak hours Tuesday. Dealers in fuel oils and bottled gas reported unprecedented demands.

Prices of fresh vegetables soared throughout the country on anticipation of the Florida losses. Estimates were reported to have reached $12 a bushel in New York.

The storm did whether tricks to the northeastern states as well. Warm, moist air poured over the area and westward into the Great Lakes region and Ohio valley. There was a mixture of rain, drizzle, light rain and some freezing rain. Floods continued to threaten some New England areas.

HALIFAX (CP) — More than 1,000 were homeless today as flooding Nova Scotia rivers spilled on to the sea with ever-growing destruction. P. E. I. was also dismounted hourly. It was in the tens of millions after a week of melting snow, rain, sleet and gales.

Floodwaters dropped a little in the province's central and eastern counties. But they continued to rise alarmingly in the southern shore.

Another 300 persons fled their homes Tuesday after a three-inch rainfall sent waters higher still, bursting a dyke at Canning.

Near freezing temperatures chilled all the Maritimes except the south coasts of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Cold added to the misery of thousands still in unheated homes in the sleet-splattered belt near the Nova Scotia-New Brunswick boundary and in western Prince Edward Island.

RAIN AND SNOW

More sleet fell in northern New Brunswick. Falling temperatures brought snow after another Tuesday in other parts of the three provinces.

Halifax weather office held scant hope of gradual improvement. Cause of all the trouble, a giant Atlantic storm, was in the vicinity of Bermuda for almost a week, showing signs of weakening.

Gales up to 80 miles an hour that snapped lines and disrupted on the greatest seat to smash the coast in a decade, began to diminish.

Reports of bursting dams followed one after another Tuesday. Scores of families packed a few belongings and left by boat a mile or more of water hit their homes.

SHERBROOKE HOLDS

The dam that raised the greatest concern was at Sherbrooke. Sherbrooke lake dam, a 300-foot rock and earth embankment 40 miles up the LaHave river from Bridgewater on Nova Scotia's south shore was still intact despite a definite weakened section.

Six to a hand persons downstream waited uneasily for word. Police stayed on the alert for a possible order to evacuate.

More highway bridges went out, more highways and railroad lines were flooded or washed out. At one time Tuesday only one main highway remained open between here and Halifax. Two other routes were reopened by nightfall.

Schools were closed in many towns and villages. Yarmouth at the provincial western tip was cut off without bus or train service. Only public transportation out of town was by the ferry Bluenose to Bar Harbor, Me.

FLIGHT CANCELLED

Only trains out of Halifax were on the CNR main track to New Brunswick. Service was cancelled on three other lines.

Further inside in the area devastated by sleet last weekend, things improved slowly. Summerside, P.E.I., got a telephone line back open to Charlottetown after four days. It was for emergency service.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: — Fair weather in southern Ontario was still mild and unseasonable Tuesday. Trial of the man, Fernie Calvert, 54, of Toronto, for the murder today.

It was testified Tuesday that the gold cams from "cleaning up" the abandoned Barry Hollinger mine near Boston Creek in northern Ontario. His testimony followed that of a mining engineer who said their visit to the mine uncovered no equipment capable of producing the gold cams.

Calverley said he worked for more than a month at the mine in partnership with a brother and another man. He said quality of the gold—an assayer said it was 99 per cent pure—was achieved by using the makeshift furnace and parts of a truck for the ore thrower.

The gold was processed into "buttons," he said, and buried in a sack until he left the area. He brought the buttons to Toronto and kept them in his hotel room. They were seized after an RCMP investigation last August.

Crown witnesses RCMP Cpl. George Pacquette and Donald Brown, Manitoba government assayer, said they obtained only a quantity of low-grade bullion on their visit to the mine. Brown said the bullion at the mine crop-ery could refine the high-grade buttons.

PLANES COMBING AMAZON JUNGLE FOR MISSIONARIES

Five Believed Seized By Savage Indians

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—Planes combed the Amazon jungle today for five American Protestant missionaries believed seized by savage Indians. Air force reports of a body lying near their plane's stripped skeleton aroused fear for their lives.

A United States Army helicopter was flown from the Panama canal zone today to take part in the hunt for the men, missing in a remote jungle region of northeastern Ecuador within the zone's U. S. Air Force rescue squadron also joined in the growing search.

The five men flew this small Piper Cub into the bush area last week to do mission work among primitive Indian tribes. They were identified as Nat Saint, Huntingdon Valley, Pa.; Edward McCully, Milwaukee, Wis.; Peter Fleming, Seattle, Wash.; James Elliot, Portland, Ore., and Roger Youderian of Billings, Mont.

SAW THEIR PLANE

After the mission party radioed that it had encountered a group of savage Auca Indians. That was the last heard from them.

Soon after the hunt began, a Quito radio station relayed a message from a U. S. search plane that it had sighted a Piper Cub stripped of its fabric, alongside it a body pierced with an Indian lance.

However, air force headquarters for the canal zone said the report from the search pilot placed the body about 300 or 400 yards from the plane without any mention of a lance.

The air force emphasized that this report made no identification of the body, either as that of a white man or an Indian.

Blame Leaking Gas For Rochester Fire

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Investigators say gas leaking into a cellar from a broken main caused an explosion and fire which demolished one dwelling and damaged two others in a residential area here Tuesday.

The blast and fire caused minor injuries to a woman and four firefighters. Damage to the three homes was estimated by fire authorities at $50,000.

A Rochester Gas and Electric Corp. official said the gas had leaked into one house from a broken main in front of the homes. Cause of the break was not determined.

Unrelenting Peace Search Earns Award for Churchill

By STANLEY GODFREY

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill today received the Benjamin Franklin Award as the man who has done most to promote international understanding since the Second World War.

Joseph S. Clark, former mayor of Philadelphia, handed the 80-year-old former prime minister the gigantic silver medal and a book of Franklin's letters in connection with the award in a modest ceremony at the home Franklin occupied when he was agent here for the American colonies.

The two men sat in deep armchairs round a little table in what was the drawing room of the Franklin house. A crystal chandelier sparkled over the table and a full-size oil painting of Franklin's wife looked down on the room as the two men joked and chatted together.

In a circle around the room, a short distance from Trafalgar Square, sat members of the select Royal Society and heads of academic bodies.

Churchill, wearing a black jacket, striped pants and polka-dot tie, grinned as Clark presented the medal designed by the American sculptor, Sir Jacob Epstein. Clark told Churchill:

"We come here today, sir, to honor you for what you have done to bring the free world together, for your sense of history, for your magnanimity in victory, but most of all for your unremitting search during the last 10 years for peace on earth and goodwill towards man."

Churchill rose slowly to his feet, put on a pair of half-moon glasses and told Clark: "I think it is a charming idea for the city of Philadelphia to award the Benjamin Franklin medal to an English representative.

"I shall always cherish the medal for sentimental reasons—but also as a work of art, worthy of Jacob Epstein's skill and fame.

"I shall cherish it too, because I am half American myself—by blood anyway."

Churchill spoke of the Philadelphian's great work for Anglo-American friendship when Franklin was agent for the colonies and lived in London from 1757 to 1775. He said the spirit Franklin worked so hard to build up still lives.

"I earnestly hope that we have reached the end of misunderstanding, and that we shall move forward steadily and bravely towards a world, which, though full of difficulties, is not without hope, and will not be without hope so long as British and America stand together.

The award was made by the city of Philadelphia to commemorate the 250th anniversary of Franklin's birth Jan. 17.

It went to one man and one woman.

It will be a source of gratification to you sir, that the companion-award has been awarded to Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, wife of your companion in arms in the days when the days when the storm gathered, late among on its hinge and freedom triumphed," Clark told Churchill.

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal member of Parliament urges that the government consider recognition of the Communist government in China.

Elmore Philpott, member for Vancouver South, has placed a resolution on the Commons order paper which says that "in the opinion of this House, the government should consider the advisability of recognizing the present government of China, and taking all other steps to promote trade between Canada and Asia."

Mr. Philpott's resolution is about halfway down the list of resolutions proposed for Commons consideration and may not be called for debate for some time.

The most recent statement on recognition of Red China by a member of the government was made last month by External Affairs Minister Pearson in an article in the American weekly magazine. He said:

"We should recognize the fact that the People's government does not China Kai-shek, is in control of continental China and likely to remain so; that there are basic problems to be settled in the Far East which cannot be settled without the participation and agreement of that government.

"We can negotiate with Peiping when necessary and desirable without implying approval of that regime or without weakening our opposition to communism."

P.M. Eden Calls Key Ministers For Conference

LONDON (Reuters)—The critical situation in the Middle East, where Britain is urgently flying in 2,000 paratroop reinforcements, headed the cabinet's agenda at a meeting today, informed sources said.

Prime Minister Eden has called his key ministers to review Britain's policy there and the strategic area in the face of Russia's drive for influence throughout the Arab world.

The Russian offensive will be the major topic for discussion between the prime minister and President Eisenhower's top adviser, Secretary of State Dulles, flew to Washington today for consultations paving the way for the Eisenhower - Eden meeting.

Diplomatic quarters here believe Mr. Eden will carry a message to Washington to current U. S. criticism of British policy in the Middle East.

MRS. ANN SHIPLEY MAKES HISTORY IN PARLIAMENT

Will Be First Woman To Launch Debate

By ALAN DONELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. Ann Shipley makes history today by becoming the first woman Commons member to present the formal motion which launches the House's throne speech debate.

The afternoon speech by the 58-year-old Liberal member for Timiskaming will be the first to contain the text of Parliament's first speech from the throne, read by Governor-General Massey in the Senate Tuesday as he opened the session.

New measures dealing with the West's grain problem, unemployment and women's wages highlighted the throne speech which outlined the government's main legislative program.

On the housing front, the speech said the government will propose increasing the amount of government-guaranteed loans for home improvements and amending the National Housing Act to increase slum-clearance aid.

TO RAISE WAGES

The first is expected to involve raising the ceiling on home improvement loans that now receive from $2,500. The slum-clearance terms of the NHA would be changed to permit building of commercial enterprises on land cleared of slum buildings. At present this land can be used only for new housing, city beautification or recreational facilities.

Of immediate interest to Mrs. Shipley and other women, however, is the throne speech announcement of a government plan to increase the gap between receive equal pay with men for equal work.

Mrs. Shipley opens the throne speech debate this afternoon with a speech that will be formally-worded motion that an address be adopted to thank the governor-general for the speech he read. It will be seconded by Dolor Lafond, Liberal member for Bellechasse who won a Commons seat in a Sept. 26 by-election.

The motion paves the way for a general debate, limited this year to 10 days, in which the opposition can and assuredly will present motions of non-confidence in the government.

No woman has ever before been chosen to present the throne speech motion. Mrs. Shipley had already been active in public and political life before her 1953 election to the Commons. Before her marriage she was reeve of Teck township, which includes the rich Ontario mining communities of Kirkland Lake. She also has taken a prominent part in mining organizations.

The throne speech listed more than a score of major and minor legislative measures.

The speech did not state there will be any legislation on a general-provincial fiscal arrangement. It said, however, that a federal-provincial meeting has been presented to the provinces, to begin next year when existing tax rental agreements expire.

Police Ask Public to Imagine Pipe In Mouth of Drawings of Suspect

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The abductor of Susan Cadieux may have been a pipe smoker, police said today.

Chief Earl Knight has asked citizens to restudy published sketches of the suspect and picture him with a pipe in his mouth.

"Information is very vague" the chief declared. "We added the pipe to the sketched face may ring a bell with someone."

Chief Knight admitted that the toughest problem in the case was the identification of the suspect. "We haven't much to go on," he said. "We're hoping someone can help."

The $2,000 reward fund posted by citizens outraged by the death of the five-year-old child appeared to be the strongest weapon in the hands of police.

There has been no tangible lead in the case since Susan's body was found at 10:10 a. m. Saturday. She had been abducted from St. Mary's churchyard shortly after 8 p. m. Friday, criminally assaulted sometime during the evening or early morning and left to die behind a hedgerow.

Pocket-sized photographs of the suspect have been given to every to the entire city police force. Additional copies were also distributed to police agencies in all major Canadian cities and most smaller towns and cities in this part of Ontario.

The telephone tips which followed publication of the sketch still were being run down by the police and a mountain of reports were piling up but none seemed sufficient to "break" the case.

The 15,000 strong Catholic Women's League of the Diocese of London announced today it will draft a resolution calling for a change in provincial and federal sex crime laws to be presented to the CWL convention.

Mother And Son Escape Flames; Father At Work

Neighbor Saves Boy, 5, 'Wandering About' in Smoke

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The lives of five children were snuffed out today in an early-morning fire which gutted a frame home in the capital's west end.

The dead were Margaret, 7; Barbara Jean, 4; Garry, 3; Sharon, 17 months, and Wayne, six months, children of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Read of 102 Northwestern avenue. Two bodies were recovered in bedstairs rooms and three downstairs.

The mother, Lois, 37, and Frank, 5, escaped and were taken to hospital for treatment. Frank remained more hours in the home while Mrs. Read is being treated for shock.

The father, 39, a truck driver for an oil company, was at work when the fire broke out in the 15-year-old two-storey home. More than two hours after the blaze police and fire department officials still tried to locate him.

BATHER SPEECHLESS

When they did he was brought to the scene. Shocked by the tragedy, he stood speechless and looked at the blackened ruin of his home where only three hours or so earlier he had left his family and gone to work. He was later taken to hospital to see his wife.

The body of Wayne was found in the fire-twisted remains of his crib-riage in the downstairs dining room of the home. The bodies of five of the other children, including Barbara Jean, were also found downstairs, one in the dining room and another in the hall only a few steps from the safety of the front door.

The bodies of the other two victims were found huddled in a single bed in an upstairs room. Police said apparently one of the children had climbed with the others in bed-ing to escape the spreading flames.

FIRE TOLL 28

The fire brought raised to 28 the number of persons who have died in fires in the Ottawa district since January 1.

Fire department officials are examining the burned out home to determine the cause of the blaze, starting for a time in the frame home, remained standing.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started in the living room. The home was heated by a hot air furnace and there was an electric range in the kitchen.

A fire official said the basement had not been searched for the reason the furnace was intact and apparently was not the cause. However, he said investigators are examining a hole they found burned through the kitchen floor which may have been starting point of the blaze.

Mrs. Read awoke to find the kitchen and basement stairway on fire. She yelled at her husband to get out and then ran to her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Pepin.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—A masked terrorist today shot and fatally wounded a Turkish Cypriot police sergeant who had been honored by Queen Elizabeth only 12 days ago.

Reserved Parking Signs Taken Down

Belleville's Chief Magistrate no longer rates any valid auto parking on a public street.

Last week on the direction of Mayor John Both signs were erected by the public works department reserving parking space on Market street next the city hall for the exclusive use of the mayor.

This week the signs disappeared and the space is again in use for public parking.

City Engineer Charles Mott stated that Mayor Forrester had directed that the signs reserving the parking space be taken down.

CAUSES HUGE DAMAGE

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A rapidly spreading fire at a Todd shipyards pier threatened Houston ship channel traffic Tuesday and caused damages estimated at $3,000,000. The fire damaged the 1,000-foot pier to a $2,000,000 drydock, which was then 75 per cent finished, and burned down the channel. The drydock was destroyed.

Tax Dollars' Division Outlined By Mayor Forrester at Civic Day Luncheon of Kiwanis Club

A five-mill increase is due for schools this year to meet debenture payments on new building and increased operating costs, Mayor Jane Forrester told a service club luncheon here yesterday.

"One-third of the city's tax dollar (30 mills) went for various school board requisitions during the past year," the mayor said.

Mayor Forrester was continuing her busy round of speech-making began Monday, at the Kiwanis Club weekly luncheon. Yesterday she switched from giving the public the gist of problems facing council this year, to acquaint them with a break-down of city expenditures during the past year.

Following is a rundown of items revealed in the talk:

The bulk of the city's tax dollar is "uncontrollable" as it goes into "non-controllable" commitments approved by previous councils.

In all there are seven parts of the tax dollar (33 mills of a total of 71 mills) in fall outs in various boards and commissions and on debenture payments, to which the city is committed by past municipal governments.

Included here are: Police department five mills; two mills to county council; two mills to county health administration, county home debenture and the juvenile court.

Local improvement debentures, fire insurance, bank interest and other miscellaneous items, one and one-half mills.

Debenture payments, excluding schools, utilities, hospital, arena and swimming pool, and including new equipment for the fire brigade, sewers and certain street re-surfacing, five mills.

Schools, 30 mills.

BREAKDOWN LISTED

The remaining 18 mills of the 71 mills, which are controlled in some measure by council, can also be broken down approximately. As large degree, since they cover salaries, wages and equipment.

Mayor Forrester listed the following breakdown in this category:

Approximately two-thirds of the executive and finance budget disappears in salaries at city hall where about 15 people average a yearly salary of $2,900 each.

Board of Works receives $285,000 of which $150,000 is taken by labor, the remainder being used for services and equipment.

Fire department receives $150,000, with $130,000 going on salaries.

Street lights cost $18,000 a year. Some $12,000 is spent on school guards. Garbage collection amounts to $40,000, (two mills) with the additional expenses of maintaining the dump, purchasing fill and servicing equipment.

Planning, Industrial and publicity committee, $5,000. Building and business maintenance account for two mills.

"You may be interested to know that we are still paying $13,680 a year in debenture payments on the old gas works which ceased operation 19 years ago. Power commitments commenced in 1930 and continue until 1980," the mayor said.

The mayor was thanked by Ald. John S. Stock and thanked by Ald. Corbyn.

MAINTENANCE COSTS HIGH

Alderman Ben Safe, chairman of public works and one of the councillors present at the luncheon, was critical of the fact that city engineers had to be employed for upkeep of some of three and one-half miles of pavement in the city, designed to carry normal highways.

"The city has had to spend a vast amount of money these particular stretches of pavement in shape last year.

Noting his department's budget (the highest of all city departments) Ald. Safe pointed out that sewers and sidewalks necessitating upkeep increases are not receiving an increase in the budget.

This year too, he hoped work would commence on a new whole city at once, but we should make a start this year," he said.

He also hoped to have some money placed in the budget to replace faulty sidewalks in Parkwood Heights.

Pickerel Catches At All-Time High in Bay

Commercial fishermen in the Bay of Quinte area of Lake Ontario are busily engaged in the taking of carp and pickerel, the only important commercial species that are available during mid-winter, according to Lands and Forests Department officials.

Ice has hampered commercial fishing operations in Lake Ontario proper, and has compelled gillnetters to haul up their nets, at least for the present.

Hoopnet fishermen report that their catches are small, but not unusual for this time of year.

From Glenora to Indian Point gillnetters report that the catches of pickerel are at an all-time high.

A great deal of sport fishing, both during the past summer among tourist anglers and commercial fishermen alike as to the possibility of poor fishing for pickerel in 1956 due to a heavy depletion of pickerel in the Bay of Quinte during July and August, 1955.

It appears now that an exceptionally large population was existent during the summer of 1955, and was apparently not too greatly affected by the die-off.

Fishermen attribute the exceptionally large population of pickerel to the protection given the spawning fish when on their annual run into the rivers each spring.

Mr. Stan Hagerman left yesterday by plane for London, England. Mr. Hagerman, who is managing director of Uni-Gun Lubricating Equipment Ltd., a subsidiary of Stewart-Warner Corporation of Chicago in London, has been in Belleville for a short holiday.

Mrs. Hagerman and Miss Ellen Hagerman have spent the month for London to join him.

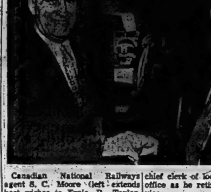
An extensive expansion program including much new construction will be undertaken immediately by the Uni-Gun Company under the direction of Mr. Hagerman.

Faraday Mine Has Received Uranium Contract

Faraday Uranium Mines announced yesterday that negotiations have been completed for the sale to Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd., of uranium concentrates to the value of $29,754,800. This confirms the rumors that were common on Bay Street on Monday that the company would get its contract soon for approximately $30,000,000.

In anticipation of a contract Faraday has been speeding up its work program at its Bancroft area property. During the last week in December a contract for a three-compartment shaft to a depth of 1,850 feet below the adit level was let to Dravo of Canada Ltd. Actual sinking is scheduled to start January 15 and the shaft should be completed in five and a half months.

This will be the first shaft-sinking job in this country for Dravo since it was established in Canada two years ago. The parent company, a U.S. heavy construction engineering organization, has sunk some 60,000 feet of shafts in the United States.



Mill design being executed by Kilborn Engineering Co., envisages a plant of 750 tons a day capacity. The layout calls for full use of the favorable topographic features of the shaft location. Crusher buildings will be stepped down the hillside with the mill foot erected on level ground near the foot of the hill.

Last year Faraday completed 27,493 feet of surface and 21,250 feet of underground diamond drilling. In developing the various ore zones from three adits, two of which are connected underground, and in sinking a development shaft to the 1,000 foot level, the company did 7,845 feet of lateral work and 1,470 feet of raising.

Both the Mining Act, which holds controlling interest in Faraday, is one of Canada's more active mining and financing companies. It holds several mining properties in its own account and has interests in many companies with properties in nine of Canada's 10 provinces and the two territories.

Bayan W. Newkirk, president of Newkirk Mining Corp. is also president of Faraday. A. W. Johnston, engineer and geologist, a vice-president and managing director of Faraday.

Retires from Service

chief clerk of local C.N.R. freight office as he retires from the service.

Chief Clerk, CNR Freight Office, Retires After 44 Year's Service

Railway freight has been a lifetime interest for Ernie R. Taylor, 213 Foster Ave. but now with his associations with the Canadian National Railways at an end he feels time may lag a bit for him in the future.

Monday afternoon on the eve of his 65th birthday, Ernie retired as chief clerk of the Belleville C.N.R. freight office after 44 years service here, at Peterborough and Lake View field, where he commenced his railway career back in 1912.

Office associates arranged quite a retirement party for Ernie and shortly before quitting time close to 35 fellow workers and railway officials gathered to extend best wishes.

He was presented with a lazy-boy rocker on behalf of the agent and staff and received a purse of money from the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees. Former associates at Peterborough called long distance to extend best wishes.

AGENT IS M.C.

C.N.R. agent S. C. Moore acted as master of ceremonies for the brief program at the freight office. Speakers briefly were Knight Tompkins, shed foreman; J. Allin, C.P.R. agent; Harper McBrath, chief clerk of the yard office; W. Stock, chief clerk, C.P.R.; Newton Bowerman, chief clerk at the C.N.R. superintendent's office; Art. McConnell, Campbellford agent; Bill Belay, Ed. Flindall, and Bill Parry, president of the local branch Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

Following the speech making John Townsend led in singing "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow."

Born at Otonabee on the Peterborough district back in 1891, Mr. Taylor started with the C. N. R. freight service at Lakefield in 1912. From there he went to Peterborough where he was in the freight department for 19 years, coming to Belleville in 1931 as chief clerk.

A widower, Mr. Taylor has two sons who have chosen railroad careers. Robert is a brakeman and William is in the C.N.R. stores department. Both live at home. A daughter, Mrs. Earl Grills, lives at R.R. 6 Belleville.

Charge Husband With Murder

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—Arrested minutes after he posted $10,000 bond for his ex-wife Wednesday, James Alexander, 48, was charged with the murder of his second wife, Barbara, whose body was chipped from a concrete tomb in the basement of the Alexander home 37 days ago.

Police seized the former high school teacher in district court after he signed bond for Mrs. Rose Alexander, 42.

Officers ended an 18-month search for Barbara Dec. 5 when they dug her remains from the basement. Rose testified at a coroner's inquest that Barbara, 27, died accidentally in July, 1953, when she tripped and fell into an excavation at the home, toppling a pile of bricks onto her. Rose said she returned to the home two days later and found Barbara dead, and thereafter shared Alexander's residence at his bidding.

Alexander and Rose were divorced in 1950. The Alexander and Barbara, who had lived with the couple for some weeks before the divorce, then were married.

Surplus of Hogs Will Continue Until Early May

TORONTO (CP)—Charles McInnis, president of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association predicted today a present surplus of hogs will continue until May.

Mr. McInnis, in a report to his board of directors, said that although current consumption increased substantially during 1955, a surplus of between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 pounds is in prospect for the first six months of this year.

He said per capita consumption increased last year because of lower prices and a selling campaign by Canadian chain stores.

The price for grade A hogs at Toronto stockyards has dropped by a hundredweight to $23 since last October.

How Discloses Details of Plan To Pay Storage

OTTAWA (CP)—The government plans to have the treasury bear the cost of storage charges on oat wheat held by the wheat board in excess of 178,000,000 bushels. Payments are to be based on holdings at the start of the current crop year, Aug. 1, 1955.

Trade Minister Howe disclosed this today as he initiated parliamentary machinery on the storage payment proposal and legislation dealing with federal guarantees on bank loans for farm-held grain.

Unwillingness to Recognize Reds' Achievements Perilous

OTTAWA (CP) — I. Norman Smith, associate editor of the Ottawa Evening Journal, said today an unwillingness by Canadians to accept the facts of Russian achievement is a "national failing of great potential danger."

He told a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club that a two-way Iron Curtain is preventing Canadians seeing or admitting the progress being made by Soviet Russia and communism.

During his recent trip to Russia, southeast Asia and the Antipodes, he had sensed the excitement of change, "the dynamic of something at work." However, Canadians generally appeared not to care that this was taking place.

"Caring less and less about more and more is becoming the banner of our individual freedom," he said.

ODDS AGAINST US

"But in the meantime, the processes of history are being fired, subtly, relentlessly and efficiently aided by the forces of Communism and the odds are against us. The time could come when even if we cared more it couldn't matter less."

Mr. Smith said he despised communism with "heart, soul and mind" and realized that Soviet Russia and Soviet communism aimed to rule the world. But in judging communism Canada "appeared to have advanced to the point where she would believe only what she wanted to believe. Because Russian ways were deplored Russian achievements were belittled.

Against the dark facts—purges, prisons and oppression—should be placed Russian accomplishments in atomic energy, agriculture, weapons and armies. He wondered how much warning was required that Russia is mighty and flourishing.

He welcomed the government's plan to ask Parliament to increase the Colombo plan contribution by $8,000,000 annually, but said the boost was not enough. As a usual allocation of $24,500,000 was too small whether as a compassionate grant or a defence against communism.

NOT DOING ENOUGH

The proposed increase in the plan, he said, means that each Canadian's share will rise to $2.20 from $1.70.

". . . Don't let anyone tell you that we now are doing our bit," he said. Canada's contribution to the plan was virtually all this country is doing in an area which External Affairs Minister Pearson says may be history's most important crucible.

The statements were included in the text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

Is Remanded For Sentence

MARMORA (Special) — Gerald Veley, 28, of Marmora township, today was remanded for sentence by Magistrate R. C. Jackson after he pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Marmora Feed Mill here.

Likely to Find Fiery Cross on Front Lawn

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says in a dispatch from Jordan, Ont., former William Backshall of Merritton has been threatened with violence following a suspended sentence on a charge of indecent assault.

Backshall was placed on probation for two years when he appeared Monday in connection with the indecent assault of two young girls on Christmas Eve.

Jordan is 10 miles west of St. Catharines.

The story quotes district farmer Frank Davis as saying that Backshall will find "a fiery cross on his front lawn." Backshall was not quoted in the story.

W. B. Common, director of public prosecutions in Ontario, has been ordered by Attorney-General Roberts to investigate the case and Backshall's sentence.

Montreal Man Kills His Wife Then Himself

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal man stabbed and killed his attractive 35-year-old wife early today and then turned the knife on himself, police said.

They said Jean Bonnier, 49, died of a wound to the abdomen after slashing the throat of his wife, Fleurisanne, and inflicting wounds on her back following a violent quarrel in their Des Erables street home in the northeast part of the city.

Police, called by Bonnier's parents who live in the same house, said both were dead when they arrived.

Police said Bonnier first attacked his wife with a rolling pin then grabbed an eight-inch knife after she called for help.

The quarrel apparently began because Mrs. Bonnier came home late, they said.

Indian Found Unfit to Stand Trial for Murder

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Edward Waucaush, 32-year-old Indian from the Muncey reserve, today was found unfit to stand trial for murder in the pig-pen slaying of a Melbourne farmer last Dec. 4.

The verdict was returned after a London psychiatrist, Dr. W. A. Tillman testified Waucaush suffers from hallucinations and illusions and that he considers him mentally ill.

Waucaush was charged with killing farmer Daniel Mullins whose half-eaten body was found in a pig pen on his farm at Melbourne, 20 miles west of here.

Mullins' mother was shot in the head but is recovering.

RECOMMENDS CONFINEMENT

A grand jury Tuesday returned a true bill on the murder indictment and Waucaush went on trial today.

Dr. Tillmann described the Indian as a paranoid-schizophrenic. He said that in his opinion, Waucaush should be confined to a mental institution.

Throughout the hearing, Waucaush, dressed in an open-neck grey pullover and slacks, sat contentedly stared at the floor or buries his head in his arms.

The jury consisted of 11 men, including six farmers, and one woman.

Appeal Sentence Of Child Beater Says Roberts

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Roberts said today a 60-day sentence imposed Monday on Edgar Figuary for child beating will be appealed on grounds that it is too lenient.

He said, however, he does not intend to appeal the sentence in a second child-assault case in which Mrs. Margaret Daniels, 35, was fined $100 or 30 days. A child boarded in Mrs. Daniel's home was found dead of asphyxiation, his body covered with bruises.

"It is the opinion of the department that the Daniel sentence while light, is not one which it would be proper for a higher court would increase," the attorney-general said.

Figuary, 23, was sentenced Dec. 29 for beating Joey Levigne, 4, the son of the woman with whom he was living.

Brampton Man Dies of Injuries After Assault

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Found unconscious Dec. 31 in the middle of a street, Robert Taylor, 77, a trucker, died in Toronto General Hospital today. He never regained consciousness after being assaulted.

Lloyd Barton has been charged with assaulting Taylor. The offence is alleged to have taken place after Taylor's truck and another driven by Carl Fischer, 27, were involved in a minor accident. Fischer was charged with failing to remain at the scene. Barton is held in custody.

Chief Constable Frank Keats said today he is conferring with crown counsel to see if further charges may be laid against Barton.

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Richard Golloher, 36, was sentenced Tuesday to 18 months in reformatory for his part in a Dec. 31 armed robbery of Thomas and Stanley Grattan, farmers in nearby Dummer township.

Golloher pleaded guilty.

Ross Aldred and Roy McLean of Oshawa were committed for trial at the June assizes. They were jointly charged with Golloher with robbery of two guns.

SCHOOL BULLETINS

Radio stations carried bulletins announcing what schools would be closed, warning against fallen electric lines.

The CNR got a train telegraph service flashed between Truro and Moncton after four days' help from ham radio operators in other maritime communications.

Joggins, colliery town near Amherst, was without power. Its coal mines flooded after electric pumps were stopped by wire breaks Saturday.

In the flood area more factories, sheds, flooded, more than a million were washed away.

Along the coast the surf pounded higher and higher. The first ocean freighter to make Halifax in three days arrived windy up to 80 miles an hour at sea. Her speed had been cut to two knots by tremendous seas.

Washerwoman Surrenders To Lady Eden

CHEQUERS, England (Reuters) — Mrs. Maud Butt's weekly washing, which fluttered defiantly under the irate eye of the prime minister's wife, will hang no more.

At least, not in full view of Chequers, official country residence of Sir Anthony Eden.

Mrs. Butt, a local farmhand's wife, has capitulated to an urgent request from Lady Eden. Henceforth, her wash will dry far from the windows of the ministerial mansion.

Earlier, Mrs. Butt had refused to budge.

MOTHER AND SON

Mr. Pepin said he was preparing breakfast when Mrs. Read knocked on the kitchen door and screamed that her house was on fire.

"My wife called the fire department and I ran with Mrs. Read to the burning house. I opened the front door and there was nobody there.

"I couldn't see anything for the smoke. I went in and groped around and somehow or other found Frank wandering about. I grabbed him and dashed back outside. After that there was nothing else we could do. the fire was so fierce.

"The mother and I just stood outside in our bare feet and watched the house burn."

LOOKS LIKE A DULL SESSION

First glance at reports of the Speech from the Throne at Tuesday's opening of Parliament suggests that it will be a dull session, unless the Opposition stirs up some controversy.

When the most important legislation proposed is a bill to provide equal pay for the same work done by men and women, one can be pardoned for considering that the government has little of a startling nature on the planning boards. Just how much equal pay legislation there will be aroused from the fact that we already have such legislation in Ontario. In theory it is impressive. In practice it cuts remarkably little ice. For one thing, comparatively few men and women are employed at identical jobs. Their tasks may be similar, but not the same, and mere similarity will not suffice to permit the operation of equal pay laws. In those cases where men and women do work at identical jobs, unions more often than not have already succeeded in establishing the principle of equal pay.

Federal legislation will apply only to women employed in industries under federal jurisdiction, such as railways, communications, shipping and interprovincial operations. Ottawa estimates that 73,000 women in these industries will be directly affected, but that does not mean that all these women, or indeed any considerable proportion of them, are employed in the same kind of work as are men. Another 60,000 women in the federal civil service will be covered. Here the effects of the legislation may be more important.

It should be noted that, while this legislation will be welcomed by women, it ought also to benefit men, particularly in any future periods of unemployment. It will mean that they will not be in danger of being underbid by women for any jobs which are available.

Plans to guarantee banks in the western farmers and to have the government bear the cost of storage and interest charges on grain, above the normal carryover held by the wheat board since Aug. 1, 1955, will certainly be welcomed by western farmers. The exception is the last likely to be mixed. It may be that action of this kind is necessary, for the sake of the nation's economy, but it will also be expensive.

RABBITS ON THE RINK

A complaint of this nature, alas, is seldom taken seriously. People treat it as lightly as they do the tirades about the bedlam created by the milkmen clanging on the sofa cushion on New Year's morning. One does not, however, have to be suffering from the same degree of supersensitivity as the backster to have very real grounds for complaints about rabbits, these mild January days.

A backyard rink, while it may be a little bit of heaven for the neighborhood youngsters, involves a certain amount of stern physical labor on the part of somebody and there is, of course, no question about whom this somebody will be when the many other occupants of the attached dwelling are feminine. Ice-making is a chore which can have its enjoyable moments. It is pleasant to stand out in the evening gloom and watch the hose water snorvelling; however, is another matter. It can be parcelled out amongst the users of the rink under normal circumstances, but when the snow is heavy it demands stouter muscles than those which the skaters possess. The only way to handle this heavy, wet snow is to get it off the rink at once, before the weather turns cold and it freezes. This can be accomplished with considerable ease but few real problems, providing it has not been tramped.

Let a cottontail scamper across that snow during the night and his feet remain — even after the snow has thawed, then frozen. It will take nights of flooding to restore the surface to its former smoothness. Rabbits are cursed as the worst plague on earth—until the probing shovel finds the spot where the dog chased the rabbit. Do dogs really come that big? Those paws have left mountains in the Everest. Perhaps sleigh-riding would be a more appropriate backyard sport.

CANADA HAS REALLY ARRIVED

Canada has really arrived.

For the past couple of years, we have been proudly taking every passing mention of Canada and her growth made by United States publications.

Now, however, the New York Times has rung a change on the theme.

In a special section devoted to business expansion in the western hemisphere, it emphasizes the "sensational rise" of Latin America. The best simile it can devise is to compare South America's boom to "the spectacular rise of Canadian industry."

When our expansion becomes the yardstick by which the progress of other countries is measured, we have no further need for bolstering our ego by watching for every chance reference in the press of our great neighbor.

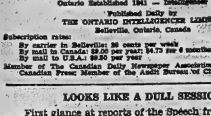
THE MAGICAL DOCTOR



Comes a crying toddler to me
And she springs into my lap
And she sobs out all the story
Of her terrible mishap.
Then I listen, all attention,
To the hurt she has to tell,
How she bumped her head, and then?
Kiss the spot and make it well.

Oh, make the dandy doctor;
Little bruises I can heal,
I have cured more aches and sorrows
Than I ever can reveal.
I can set her face to smiling
And her anguish quick dispel,
When she murmurs: "I am hurted,
Grandpa, tiss and make it well."

In the big world that's before her
There the greater aches she'll know;
There are nights that she'll spend weeping
When her heart is torn with woe;
And I pray that she'll come running
As she does today to tell
All her troubles to her Grandpa,
For his kiss to make them well.

World Leans On Old Men

(Milwaukee Journal)

The world just doesn't seem to be able to get along without its old men.

It might be expected that the atomic age would be dominated by new generation into world leadership.

But that has not happened. Nor is there any indication that it is going to happen soon. The old men are holding on.

Winston Churchill, for example, gave up his job as prime minister of Great Britain last April 5 because of his advanced age.

But, as he celebrated his 81st birthday, reports came from London that his Conservative party had asked him to take a much more active part in leadership to strengthen Prime Minister Anthony Eden in debate and counsel.

Then there was Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the federal republic of west Germany. Adenauer was 80 January 5. But with Germany rearming, and Russia trying to weaken his government, western leaders decided at the thought that anything might happen to Adenauer.

There is President Sygman Rhee of South Korea, Rhee admits to being 80 years old. A lot of Koreans believe he has forgotten a few years.

Nevertheless, dispatches from Korea say that Rhee has decided to run again, for a third four-year term, when the presidential election is held next July or August.

President Juho Passikivi of Finland was 85 years old November 27. His fellow Finns hold him in such high regard that they are talking of drafting him to run again for the post of April 3 before the election to be held next February.

King Haakon VII of Norway should not be forgotten, either, though he is not a leader in the political sense. Haakon was 83 last year. He has been in power 50 years, ever since Norway separated itself from Swedan in 1905. He is still under treatment for a heart ailed hip he suffered in a fall last June, but he is going strong.

Today's Alligators Timid

An old bull alligator, 12 feet long and weighing 600 pounds, certainly doesn't appear timid.

His two foot jaws, each bristling with teeth, give him a black armored mien and bulging butt a mild mien. His cold, greenish-grey eyes glint only balefully. He looks as if he could take off a man's leg at a single stroke.

And so he could, had he the perfectly to match his strength and weaponed ferocity. But, alas, the cousin, the Nile crocodile, which likes to attack and make a meal of a human being.

But Nature has left ferocity—at least the kind directed toward man—out of the makeup of today's alligator. No man would have a chance against one of these big fellows if pulled under water. But the alligator, unlike the Nile crocodile, does not attack people. So, in the wild state, he is probably the least dangerous to alligators and must be avoided. So, in the wild state, he has made a good deal the best of his ability.

But even when the alligator is in the seeming security of his underground den, man, hungry for his valuable hide, has a way of luring his lair to drag him forth to death.

Florida is trying to save the alligator, but only a few years ago a discovery by G. B. Barlow, who reported 80,000 alligator skins received on the docks, was bitter news to man's persecution that few alligators these days have a chance to grow up. Ten thousands killed yearly for their hides, the largest percentage of which is seven feet.

There was a time when things were different. One William Bartram says that, in the eighteenth, Florida 175 years ago that his description of their number, size and behavior sounded spurious. Here is his account:

"Their noise kept me awake the greater part of the night, and as I passed the banks I observed them to tremble and keep a good lookout. Suddenly a huge alligator rushed out of the water with a tremendous roar, came up and darted under my boat with such violence as to throw me right on my lee quarter with open jaws . . . I laid sounds about his ears with my oar, which put him off, and, after plunging and darting about awhile, he made off in a straight line, seemingly with the rapidity of lightning.

"They have been 20 feet in length; their body is as large as a horse. Their eyes are two bowls of fire, and their jaws together, it causes a noise like that made by forcing a heavy plank with violence upon the ground."

Making allowance for Bartram's excitement at finding himself assailed by such a formidable appearing monster—and good biologists assume that he was—there can be set that today's humble alligator is a different creature from his ancestral days. Even the book-keep alligators now—a 14 footer is extraordinary. Today no one, even the secret haunts of the alligator has to beat off one of the reptiles with a club; indeed, it is a task to find one of a length of 10 feet, excepting, of course, those raised on alligator farms.

The big, bull alligator has an impressive appearance and it is easy to feel that a creature so bulky must have taken a long time to grow up. Keepers of alligator farms have not hesitated to perpetrate the hoax. Not long ago a Florida farm had its alligators segregated by size and placed in pens, one of one group were said to be a century old, and yet another was supposedly 50 years old. Both reptiles had seemingly found in Florida an ideal spot to live and to have had been unable to discover the fountain of perpetual youth.

Actually, alligators, say, of big cousin, the Nile crocodile, which likes to attack and make a meal of a human being.

But Nature has left ferocity—at least the kind directed toward man—out of the makeup of today's alligator. No man would have a chance against one of these big fellows if pulled under water. Take the road from my house lives a small black dog which has a habit of barking at little wire-haired fox terriers. Each time the small dog saves its face by mounting its front steps and sending a challenging bark over its shoulder the wheezing citizen, as though to say: "See? I drove him away."

Face-saving is common to all living things—dogs, roosters, bullies, especially those living beings who get to bark, crow, bellow, including, of course, men, while, black, yellow, brown.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Of all the curiosities of the white race which call themselves the Caucasian and other oriental nationalities, the Russians are the most unique and among the top ten. For if there is anybody who goes about face-saving it is the Russian. Indeed, he is the British, the Americans, the Italians, the Germans, the Russians, the Italians and so on through the gamut of all the various nationalities of the world. The orientals recognize face-saving as a basic characteristic of human nature, and make open and frank allowance for it in all dealings.

But we Anglo-Saxons feel ashamed of and amused derision on face-saving. In the matter of courts of law, waste more time, words and effort on trying to save our faces than on trying to save our souls. The nearest we allow ourselves to come to accepting one another's face-saving is to dub one another

CHARCOAL AND DIAMONDS

Charcoal and diamonds are composed of practically the same material. The difference between them is due to the different external forces which the material has have had. These elements under the one set of circumstances become Charcoal; under another set of circumstances become diamonds.

We all have heard the story of the man who, seeing a prisoner being led to execution, said "There but for the grace of God, go I." In the matter of every man's character battle with crime. We read of things people do and shudder to think that there are we, but for God based persons in the world.

Because we are so like the worst, we should be merciful and understanding. Because, no matter how bad we are, we are brother to the best, we should have hope and faith in God. We are a step aside be tween the iniquity of our lives and the glory of the millions. We are all basically alike. A circumstance, an heredity tendency, a wrong turning somewhere has changed a person very much like ourselves into a much-wanted criminal. The priest, minister, or rabbi who consoles the condemned prisoner says by his attitude that, if God, have been the prisoner himself.

Let us have mercy. "Judge not, that ye not be judged." We don't know enough to judge.

Don't Monkey With Acetanilid

When Tippy was a colt a d.f. that with aches, pain, anxiety, fatigue, chill, fever or fear of impending illness stepped into the nearest aceton, soda fountain, lunch room or drugstore and called for an effervescent drink of acetanilid. Of course not under that name.

Today the d.f. carries his acetanilid in pocket or purse, of course never under that name. It masquerades under a host of more familiar, easy to remember names. One can buy any of these acetanilid mixtures in such forms as one's sense of discomfort or unrest dictates. In this form and as it kills people only its pain-killing property is dinned in the ears of the d.f. who eats it like candy or like a baby eats strychnine in "candy" pills.

A d.f. pays little heed to warnings about the danger involved in taking acetanilid (also acetanilin, which has virtually the same effects), because the d.f. is unaware of the headache, neuralgia, "cold," flu or rheumatism remedies which contains acetanilid or phenacetin in all the label reveals is that the stuff contains "physic-acetanilid" or "acetophenetidin"; and anyway the salesman will assure him that the medicine is "perfectly harmless".

All I can say in a health column is that characteristic attacks of acute or chronic (habituation) acetanilid (phenylacetamide) or phenacetin (acetophenetidin) poisoning is cyanosis.

Cyanosis is the medical term for bluishness of the blood. One with cyanosis has blue lips, blue nails and strikingly pale or ashen gray skin, parts of which are normally of a very appealing livid or leaden. The cyanosis is due to destruction of red corpuscles in the blood and conversion of the Hemoglobin (iron-containing coloring matter which carries oxygen) into methemoglobin which does not release oxygen.

In view of the fact that acetanilid, phenacetin and several other less familiar coaltar or aniline derivatives have no curative effect whatever, I suggest to anyone who must resort to a drug for temporary relief of aches or pain, that aspirin, is not nearly so dangerous a drug to take without medical care.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE MAGIC OF BELLS

Bells have always intrigued me and I find it difficult to pass an interesting bell without stopping to add to my collection. Edgar A. Guest has a poem in which he called "The Bells." As you read the poem you almost hear the tingle of the bells he writes about.

John Buchan, the English writer, wrote: "There is no music so dominant as bells. Their voice occupies sky as well as earth, and they speak with the assurance of a master. Once you have heard them, their main business is to feed the imagination." Lafcadio Hearn wrote a novel called Bells and was the most famous one, "The Soul of the Great Bell," is found in his early book, "Chinese Ghosts." Bells have been immortalized by the Longfellow, Cowper, Moore, Tennyson, Lowell and a host of others.

Burton, in his famous great poem "Kasidah," kept referring to "the tinkling of the Camel's bell" and have an old cow bell that was made by hand a long time ago. Its tone is as familiar and beautiful as anything to me because it was in the valleys of Michigan in my early years that I heard it. I have many bells then, too, but they now only tell a story of the past. On the farm the dinner Bell sounds mighty good.

The story of Bells is a long one and comprises a multitude of airs from tiny ones to those of the great cathedrals. Each has a story to them all. The ox teams that struck out for the Cariboo region in Nova Scotia always had a small bell on their yoke, and it was an interesting sight.

There were the bells of the churches in the small towns that bring back nostalgic memories—especially to me for I used to ring one myself! Then there were, in Ireland, the "Bells of Shandon that sounds so grand on the waters of the river Lee."

Wagon Rider's Price too High

(Fits in Montreal Gazette)

A man we know is considering acting on his wife's urgings to go on the wagon for the coming year.

He has been approached by her to agree to his suggestion as to a suitable reward. He claims he's been just waiting for a leap year to advance his price, and we can't mean an additional few billion for him.

His proposition is that on New Year's Day, if he is still on the wagon, she pay him one cent, doubling the amount each day he remains on it for the 366 days of the year. At first suggestion she appeared to be highly pleased, he says, when a mathematically minded friend started to work out the compensation involved.

It was reasonable up to the tenth day or so, then started to sky-rocket. When she found that on January 31, in addition to the sums already paid over, she'd have to give her husband $10,485.76, and keep doubling every day for the balance of the year, including February 29, she quit. At last report her husband wasn't going on the wagon either.

Note Puzzled Teacher

(Paris, France, Noir et Blanc)

The Taxi collector in a semi-idyllic town overrun by a letter recently which greatly mystified him.

"This is to notify you," the correspondent wrote, "that I have improved my financial standing and consequently intend to pay more taxes than previously. I even want to remit a larger payment than the amount I owe, and I shall write after examining my next income declaration."

Either a prankster or a psychopath, the tax collector concluded. The latter would never be carried out for the record showed that the writer had been a model of body, sane of mind, and entirely earnest. The tax collector decided to wait and see, and he went to office and expound orally the reasons which prompted his action.

"It's this way," the taxpayer explained after all that was done for them, whence my decision to pay more taxes."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

New Home for Princess Ranier Stands on Rock Facing Sea

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) The palace of Prince Rainier III stands on a high rock facing the Mediterranean.

There the handsome 33-year-old prince and his bride-to-be, Grace Kelly, can survey a tiny princely realm with a legendary built around spinning roulette wheels, but looking forward to a future built on more secure business foundations.

The country offers relative freedom from taxation and cares in a balmy, romantic atmosphere. A post-war influx of corporations has created a housing shortage.

Prince Rainier, a modern ruler with a penchant for sport cars and yachting, is No. 30 in the line of the Grimaldi family that has ruled Monaco's 370 acres for about 700 years. The family's origins were in Genoa.

Through the 26-year-old actress the Monacans fervently hope the dynasty will be perpetuated with a male heir.

OLD AND NEW

Her palace home-to - be was started as a fortress in 1215. Its big four towers are a reminder of its historic purpose. They contrast with the peppermint stick red and white striped awnings on the palace windows. Red and white are Monaco's national colors.

Successive princes down through the centuries have transformed, beautified and modernized the palace. But to most people it is the gambling casino and not the palace that they think of when they hear the word Monte Carlo.

For this development they can thank a forbear of Rainier—Prince Charles III. He was a man who loved to travel. During his journeys he visited German cities where gambling was a big attraction.

Prince Charles calculated the income that the local rulers must be taking from the casinos, and asked himself: "Why not for Monaco?

Charles then summoned Francois Blanc, who had been operating the Bad Homburg casino. Blanc helped organize the Sea Bathers and Foreigners' Club of Monaco Inc. in 1861. Still in operation, this corporation owns several big hotels—and the gambling concession until 1975.

BUILT ROADS

Blanc used part of the corporation's capital to build roads and make it easier to get to Monaco.

The warm Mediterranean sunshine, the flower-covered countryside and the urge to gamble on the part of the wandering high society of the day did the rest.

Profits poured into the treasury of Monaco at such a rate that Prince Charles abolished all direct taxes in 1869.

In 1871 the casino counted 126,-000 visitors and by 1910 it was crawling with a half million.

Stories of gambling successes—and failures marked by suicides—became a part of the Monte Carlo legend.

In the days just before the First World War an actress known as the beautiful Otero won eight billion gold francs (then $2,000,000) in a single night.

Sir Basil Zaharoff, the munitions titan, became a principal shareholder in the corporation.

But in late years the casino has not prospered as well. Nearby French cities on the riviera have opened their own casinos, ending the Monaco monopoly.

Back in the 1920s the Monaco treasury could count on casino profits covering most of the local budget. Today it only takes care of a bare 10 per cent of the Million-franc ($2,857,140) budget.

GREAT ATTRACTION

There are still no direct taxes on anyone who has lived and worked here for five years, and this is a great attraction.

Administrative offices of many corporations are being set up in Monaco. Since the war some 200 new ones have been registered. Office and housing space are at a premium. Work was started on an 18-floor apartment building, but it stopped when the bank supplying the money failed.

The prince hopes that the advantages offered by Monaco will attract more business—and make the country prosper. Tourist attractions are also being pushed.

Citizens of Monaco are not liable to military service. But fewer than 4,000 out of the 20,000 population are subjects of Prince Rainier. The rest are Frenchmen and other nationalities.

The only way to acquire citizenship is to be born in Monaco and have two ancestors in direct line who have been born in Monaco, or be nationalized by decree of the prince.

Under terms of a 1918 treaty with France if the prince dies without issue, the principality would become a French protectorate—subject to French taxes.

So all the Monacans are hoping for an early marriage—and a family as soon as possible.

Deepsea Operators Voice Views Before Commission

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's deep-sea vessel operators put their views today before the royal commission on coastal shipping as it closed public hearings in its long inquiry.

Major submission of the final day will be made by the Canadian Shipowners' Association, whose members own vessels on Canadian and British registry engaged in ocean trade.

Diverging views on how to deal with the coastal trade in the light of the forthcoming opening of the St. Lawrence seaway were heard by the commission Tuesday from shipping and ship-building spokesmen. The trade involves haulage between Canadian ports.

The Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association urged that:

1. The coasting trade be reserved now to ships of Canadian registry. At present, ships built and owned anywhere in the Commonwealth may enter it freely.

2. From next year, new vessels entering the coastal trade be restricted to those built in Canada.

The association said wages in Canadian shipyards were 262 per cent of those in the United Kingdom. Though the Canadian yards were just as efficient, they could not overtake the wage handicap.

The Shipping Federation of Canada, whose members include operators of British vessels plying Canadian waters, attacked the idea of restrictions on U.K. vessels in the coastal trade.

Revenue from cargoes moving between Canadian ports, the federation said, could help operators of British vessels reduce charges on Canadian export cargoes carried by them.

"If the coastal trade is restricted to Canadian ships," said federation counsel Paul Brisset, "British ships could only be induced to enter the lakes for export cargoes in proportion to the import cargoes they bring in or as the result of higher rates."

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Miami Daily News announced Tuesday that it will build a new publishing plant and office building costing more than $3,000,000 on a site between the Miami river and N. W. Seventh street.

Weddings

WILLCOCKS — VADER

Before a lovely background of tall standards of chrysanthemums, maidenhair ferns, and pine boughs, a lovely wedding was solemnized by the Reverend Stanley Snowden, on Saturday, December 10, at 13.30 in St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, when Leanne Averil, Vader, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Balfour F. Vader, became the bride of Kenneth D'Arcy Hunter Willcocks, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Charles Willcocks, of Reigate, Surrey, England.

The wedding music comprised, "O Perfect Love," rendered previous to the ceremony, and "I Love You Truly," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly arrayed in white, bridal satin, fashioned on princess lines, having a "V"-shaped, dropped shoulder yoke, outlined with tiny seed pearls and long, lily-pointed sleeves with godets of Chantilly lace. The floor-length skirt swept into a chapel train. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was caught to bandeau of tulle and Chantilly lace edged with tiny seed pearls, and she carried an exotic bouquet of red Bettertime roses which tapered into red, rosette roses, mingled with mallow leaves tied with a white satin bow. A single strand of pearls and matching earrings completed her ensemble.

Mrs. R. Garth Sine, of Belleville, was matron of honor, and the Misses Marlene Vader, of Kingston, and Lois Anderson, of Bancroft, were bridesmaids. All attendants were gowned alike in torso-waisted, floor-length avocado green faille taffeta, with matching elbow length mitts. They wore bandeaux of gold feathers, and carried exotic bouquets of yellowcrest chrysanthemums, and feathered, white carnations softened with yellow mallow tuts, and tied with yellow chenille ribbon. They wore single strands of pearls with matching earrings.

Mr. Gerald A. Blackburn, of Ottawa, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Howard R. Armstrong, of Belleville, and Mr. Bruce Glendinning, of Stirling, acted as ushers.

The reception was held in the church hall, where the bride's mother, wearing dusk blue crepe and lace, with navy and white accessories, with corsage of red roses received the guests.

For the wedding trip by motor to New York City, via Niagara Falls, the bride chose an all - wool boucle knitted suit of Capri blue, topped by a grey Persian lamb coat, with white, blue and black accessories, and corsage of red Bettertime roses. They will reside in Belleville.

Cablegrams of best wishes from the bridegroom's parents in England were received wishing the young couple much happiness. His parents also celebrated the event with close relatives in Reigate, England.

The bridegroom is the commanding officer of the 27th Technical Squadron (militia) Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, Belleville.

Going shopping?

If you intend to go shopping seriously, this is a time for bargains and mark-downs that offer extraordinary opportunities.

The hope chest is a very real factor in the lives of many young women. It is something handed down from antiquity through the ages. There has always been a special niche in the hope chest for bedding. There is also always a need for bedding in the home after the hope chest has become just a nostalgic memory.

Every January following the Yuletide gift buying, bedding is prominently displayed on sale, and January 1956 is no exception. If it is a hope chest or the established home, do not miss the bedding to choose from in our shops. It is generally known, of course, but it will bear repetition to remind shoppers that when you are buying sheets, the size marked on sheets "Made in Canada" is the size after finishing, while the size marked on sheets "Made in U.S.A." is the size before finishing.

You may be in need of blankets, and if you are, there is for your selection a wonderful offering of mark-downs in the finest brand names. If you are interested in a lay-away plan, you will be able to take advantage of this attractive plan advertised in the Bellville stores.

There is good news on the zipper front for all of us who have troubles with catching zippers. A new zipper is on the market. It is for skirt and dress plackets and it releases caught fabrics in a jiffy. What a help that will be!

Something new in stockings, too. We'll soon be buying them by the book. There will be stockings of different weights and gauges necessary for rough and tumble wear, after which the stockings designed for the simple and thrifty buying of nylons. It seems too, that there is a movement to change from the confusing description of deniers and gauges. Most of us do not understand these terms, and it really is sensible to describe hosiery in terms of the use to which they are put.

'Standard' would be the heaviest, everyday weight; 'afternoon or dress' would be medium or fairly sheer; and 'evening' would indicate the gossamer sheer for parties and glamor. Sounds sensible, doesn't it?

All weights would be included in your hosiery book. An added attraction of the book is the saving of the storage problem. With this package, there is no reason to leave stockings loose in a drawer where they so often catch, snag, and run.

In the food line, eggs are reduced in price as we write. Beef and pork are the most economical buys just now with pork at the lowest price it has been in months. Our own Ontario lamb is usually pretty well finished in January but frozen Australian and New Zealand lamb will be available. Lamb freezes very well so that you need have no fears as to quality and flavor. Veal is really out of season, and we can get has an unseasonal price.

Monday night last when I returned from my radio program with Les Lourard, "Trading Post & Party Line," I remarked to my family, "there seemed to be something strange about Belleville tonight. I wonder if it was just my imagination." Then yesterday morning when I was driving into CJBQ the 'why' of Monday night's strangeness suddenly dawned on me.

There, in a shaft by the side of the road, was one of the loneliest of sights imaginable. An approaching car had its headlights on in the dreary dullness of yesterday morning. Mercifully, out of the corner of my eye, I caught a bright gleaming reflection. The headlights of the other car must have made the flash which lasted only so long as it takes one car to meet another and pass on the highway. I stopped and backed carefully until the reason for the brief flash came into view.

There in the ditch was a discarded Christmas tree; bedraggled, forlorn, and lonely. It was a naked thing without its ornaments, and its nakedness was more vivid because to the crown its star still clung. The lights of the car which had gone on out of sight in the east had shone on the Star of the East and came the flash as of a short circuit. Then I knew why Belleville had seemed strange on Monday night. The colored lights had gone and there was a sort of emptiness creating a vacuum I failed to understand.

The lonely tree which, such a short time ago was proud and adorned, seemed to be a warning and the Star of the East a symbol. The tree maybe represents the reality that time does pass on like cars on a highway, while the star is the courageous hope that what Christmas was in the spirit of "goodwill to men" should continue on towards the horizon of the future. The bright lights are gone, but let's keep the star from just being a flash like a short circuit not to be repaired until next December.

I am going to think, no matter how naive it may sound, that the little incident is a salute to the star to which our wagons should be hitched.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

YOU CAN'T TURN BACK THE CLOCK OF TIME!

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am a widow 74 years old but young in mind. I have many interests and a few hobbies in which I am told I excel. Also, I am a student of a certain science, and have a class of adults to whom I give instruction in it.

I am not telling you all this to boast, but just to give you an idea of what I am like.

My problem is that some months ago my health broke down and became very forgetful. I never had a very good memory, but now I a really handicapped by my forgetfulness. I forget my cooking, leave the stove lit burning, forget to turn off a light at night, and so forth. I have a time clock, but if I go out of the room where I have started one job, and then start another in another room, I can't hear the timer.

Can you give me a formula that might help me improve my memory? — Mrs. Z.S.

Dear Mrs. E.S.:

It is very understandable that when a person of your age is as "young in mind" as you are and alert as you are, it is hard for her to realize that, in spite of that mental state, signs of youth, signs of aging still, inevitably, must creep up. And forgetfulness is one of the earliest and most common signs that one is not, as the saying goes, "growing as fast as one used to."

So, just as it's impossible to turn back the hands of the clock of Time, it's impossible to do very much about these signs of aging. All that can really be done, is to accept the inevitable as grace fully as possible, and find new ways of coping with it.

This means, in your present problem, that you must realize that forgetfulness—a lagging memory—is a natural part of your 74-year -old pattern; that you can't put a stop to it, but you can, in some measure, outwit it.

For example, many people who as they grow older, find themselves increasingly forgetful, write down the things they want to remember and carry the list around with them, consulting it from time to often. Why don't you try this? As for the "time clock" you mention. If it is one of the small kind, which not carry it with you as you go from room to room, instead of leaving it behind where you can't hear it when it rings?

Perhaps your local stationery store carries a certain type of memo pad that has the words "Don't Forget!" in red across the top of each page. If so, get some of these pads and use them for your list of things to be remembered. Also, make a special list of every thing you should do before going to bed — turn off lights, see that the stove is off, lock doors and windows, and so forth — and keep this list where it can help seeing it when you're about to do it a day.

If you use such reminders constantly, you may soon find that in time the things you don't want to forget will become fixed in that memory of yours so that you remember them automatically.

So—don't worry about your aging memory, or hunt for a method of restoring it to a youthful one. It just can't be done. Accept the fact cheerfully, and give it some such props to lean on as I have suggested. I think you'll find they really work!

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE.

POST-HOLIDAY LETDOWN? GIVE YOURSELF A LIFT!

A bath tray, complete with groom aids, will make tub time a complete beauty treatment.

Tired after all the holiday parties? Suffering from January letdown? Then start right now giving yourself a boost in morale, a lift in spirits and physical reactions. It can be done, you know—with some quick tricks not only designed to fit into your time and budget, but to make for pleasant living generally.

Consider your bath, for instance. Bath time can be just a cleansing process or it can be a luxurious experience; a chore to be accomplished as quickly as possible, or a joyous, relaxing, moralelifting activity. You be the smart woman and enjoy these 15 to 20 minutes devoted each day to the bath. Select a time when you are free from the summons of the doorbell, telephone or the call of children. Take these few minutes each day to rest tired nerves, loosen taut muscles, banish care and worry from your mind.

Bodily fatigue and emotional upset can always be eased by a long, hot soak in the tub. Use your favorite bath salts, and soap yourself slowly. Drink a glass of water before getting into the tub; this aids perspiration. You will feel your muscles unkinking and your mind letting go of the night little worries. Replenish the hot water by letting the faucet run once or twice.

Look for clever accessories to make the bath more comfortable: a bathspray brush that attaches to the faucet, a sponge rubber headrest, bath mitts, long-handled sponges with a pocket for soap, shower curtains with buffalo patterns to hold washcloths and soap. And by all means, have a bath tray complete with groaning aids. A plain board that fits across the tub and can be fastened at either end will do the job. Put your creams and lotions on it before getting into the water and, as a real luxuriate in the restful, perfumed suds, use them all. You'll only have to sit by the process of applying them leisurely. Body creams will act more efficiently as your warm, damp skin laps them up greedily.

If you're a career girl and have to content yourself with a quick shower in the morning, make it a habit to take your relaxing bath in the evening. You'll be well repaid by having a happier outlook on life—mentally, physically and spiritually. What's more, you'll look lovelier.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

"MOTHERS" WEAR GLOVES IN RECEIVING-LINE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My son's wedding and reception are to be very large and formal, and the bride's mother and I are to wear formal afternoon dresses, suede-length. The bride's mother has asked me to stand with her in the receiving-line. My son insists that I should wear my gloves all during the receiving. Should I?—Groom's Mother

Yes, Gloves are a must for "the mothers" to wear in the formal receiving-line. However, if you have any doubt whatever about this, get in touch with the bride's mother and ask what her wish is.

FORMAL CARD FOR NEW ADDRESS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I would like your advice about the correct wording of a formal engraved card announcing my new address. It is extremely important to me because I am head of a large company in this metropolitan city. However, I want the card to be strictly a social item, nothing of business. I am unmarried woman, in my late-forties, have lived for many years in a rented apartment, and have now purchased my apartment in a cooperative building. I will be receiving there the middle of March.

For the correct size of your card I suggest 4¾ inches wide and 3½ inches deep. The cards should be plain white, preferably not plate marked; and heavy stock of fine quality. For the lettering I suggest Shaded Antique. Now comes the most popular lettering, and deservedly so, for it has a charming grace and dignity.

For the form, I suggest:

Miss Katherine Hill
announces that after March 15th, 1956
her address will be 770 Park Avenue
New York 21

INVITATION TO SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

This morning my husband and I received an At Home card from a couple who formerly were neighbors of ours but have moved and been especially close friends. We assume the couple are celebrating their Silver Wedding Anniversary, as the card was printed in silver lettering. The 1956 are at the top of the card. It is to be held on Sunday afternoon in late January, and my husband and I will not be able to attend. They live quite a distance, particularly as I judge, you have no interest or inclination to send one. You should, however, write a "regret" to this invitation, even if there is no request for a reply. And it would be gracious for you also to write an appropriate note of congratulations and good wishes.

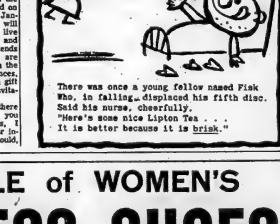
Up-to-Date Upsidedown Cake

By Mary Moore

It is the spongy batter and the combination of flavours that persuades me to open up the cupboards for an upsidedown cake that we served for dessert.

Tomorrow I will give you the method of roasting a beef tenderloin which was the feature attraction at Peter's dinner party for his fraternity brothers. But this dessert can be a good basic recipe from which you can concoct plenty of variations, and deserves some space. While the fruit possibilities are interesting it is the batter that I want you to notice—and clip and file.

UPSIDEDOWN CAKE
(With variations)



Since this cake has to be baked there is no point in starting this cake in a frying-pan—like some of the recipes suggest. Use an 8-inch square pan or a deep 8-inch pan. Into it put the syrup-fruit layer: Orange: One-half cup butter or margarine, 1-2 cup brown sugar, membranelless sections of 3 large oranges, about 10 halved maraschino cherries, 1-3 to 1 cup moist cocoanut, about 10 whole pecans or blanched almonds, grated rind from 1 orange. Over low heat melt the butter in the baking dish. Do not over heat it. Sprinkle the brown sugar evenly over it. Arrange the orange section in 3 straight rows, leaving space between the rows for the alternate halves of cherries and the nuts. Sprinkle the cocoanut evenly over all, then the grated orange rind. Pour evenly over this layer the Batter: Beat 2 eggs until they are very light, then gradually beat in 2-3 cup sugar until both are very light. Mix together 6 tablespoons fruit juice or water and 1 teaspoon vanilla and add to egg-sugar mix. Sift together 1 cup sifted cake or all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1-4 teaspoon salt, and beat into egg mix. Bake at 375 deg. For 40 to 45 minutes, time depends on depth of cake pan. If you use a 8-inch deep pan it may take an hour. Try the batter at centre by piercing with a fork—this will not hurt the appearance of the finished cake, for it is turned upsidedown anyway. This long baking is necessary for the fruit layer prevents the heat getting through to the batter. When the cake is baked immediately turn upside down on a large serving plate. Allow pan to remain over cake for a few minutes so that syrup will run over cake instead of sticking to pan. Serve warm with pouring cream.

Variations: Instead of orange sections use (1) pineapple rings or cut side down peach halves, putting whole cherries in centre of either, and using the nuts between spaces. (3) alternating halves of soaked prunes and dried apricots may be arranged in rows, instead of orange sections.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mrs. Edith Thompson, 31, testified Monday her husband spent so much time and money on his five cars that he didn't get around to finishing their unfinished house.

She said Dr. Charles Thompson, 36, a dentist, owned a 1932 Willys, a 1934 Packard, a 1935 Maxwell, a 1953 Morgan and a Pinard custom sports car.

The court awarded Mrs. Thompson a divorce, title to the unfinished house, $200 a month alimony and support for their two children plus the 1932 Willys.

Kiwanis L. A. Elects Officers

Amidst the cheerful background of a freshly decorated club room, with the gay trimmings of the children's Christmas party, the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary held its annual meeting last Thursday evening.

President Kate Cook called the unusually large number of members to order. New Year greetings were extended to all by the president. Mrs. A. Haig, the mother of Elsie Punchard, was welcomed as well as the new members Ruby McConnell, and Gwen Brain.

The secretary, Ella Trepanier, read the regular minutes and gave her annual report. Reading of annual reports by all officers and convebers ensued.

CLUB'S ACTIVITIES

The following is a summary of the club's activities during the year: Helped many needy families with food and clothing; drove crippled members of the Belle Haven Club to and from entertainments; donated $10 to the Quinte Welfare Bureau; conducted and financed Hobbycraft for the classes; sent three specials to Hospital Coffee Shop for November and December; a few service which will be continued throughout the year; assisted the Kiwanis Club finance the Center's improvement project; in April and December conducted parties for the sewing classes; entertained the Quinte Secondary School Keyette Club; donated $5 to the Children' Aid Society; assisted the Red Cross with knitting and sewing; packed and distributed five baskets at Christmas with food and toys; sent money to three patients at the Sanatorium.

The Tea and dances sponsored throughout the year were well attended.

After tying the ends of all 1955's business, president Kate Cook gave her annual report. She thanked the members, committees and officers for their cheerful support, loyalty and co-operation, the latter group she presented each with a rose.

PRESENTATIONS

Past President, Patty Emerson, presented the outgoing president, Kate Cook, with a gift on behalf of the members as a token of deep appreciation for her untiring efforts and leadership.

Chris Logan was presented as the new president and as Patty Emerson relayed to her the duties of this office the gavel was pressed into her hand and a rose pinned on her shoulder. Then in turn, each new officer was presented by a past president and given a rose.

The new president took the chair. After thanking the members for the office bestowed upon her she asked for continued interest in the club by repeated goodly attendance. She recommended a few changes in the regular routine; one that the membership fee be raised to cover stationery and mailing expenses as well as prizes. All of her recommendations were heartily received. She then proceeded with her plan for the year's organization.

NEW OFFICERS

The new officers and committees are as follows: president: Chris Logan; secretary: Naomi Wilson; treasurer: Ella Trepanier; news editor: Elsie Punchard; directors: Dorothy Argue, Alice Burkett, Helena Duffy, Ann Finkle, Ella Trepanier, Fern House, and Elsie Punchard; entertainment: Fern House, and Doreen Stovin; house committee: Eva Dustin, and Lydia Tripp; special refreshments: Helena Duffy, and Win Quincey; monthly refreshments; Dorothy Argue, and Janet Eaton; press: Naomi Wilson; visiting: Rita Lloyd; Red Cross: Patty Emerson, Peggy Drysdale; hobbycraft: Alice Burkett, Josephine Domenico, Ethel Lee, Mrs. A. Haig; pianists: Mildred Stanton and Beaks Franklin.

Although the entire evening was spent with old and new business, it was relaxing and pleasant.

After dismissal, Dorothy Argue and her assistants served refreshments as the members conversed holiday notes and news.

The year's first event will be a "Dessert Bridge," in February in the Center. Carm Mott Convener.

Woman Still Active at 90

QUEBEC (CP)—A woman older than Confederation, member of a distinguished Quebec family, celebrated her 90th birthday Monday and set out a forthright formula for longevity.

"Take life as it comes, never spare yourself and have a lot of friends," said Mrs. P. B. Dumoulin, born Jan. 9, 1866, into the province's prominent Taschereau family.

Her father was one of the first judges of the Supreme Court of Canada, her brother was a premier of the province and her uncle a lieutenant-governor.

"What impresses me most about life today?" she asked the sprightly, petite woman, still active at 90. "The transformation in our way of living."

Without stressing criticism of the modern tempo, Mrs. Dumoulin said she feels that one had a better time—and at less cost—in the old days.

"But everything is commercialized today, and one sees it clearly in the absence of the art of letters," she added in a birthday interview.

No Gimmicks On McCardell Casual Dress

NEW YORK (AP) — More than any contemporary designer, breezy Claire McCardell has become identified with the casual look, beloved by women who hate to look dressed up.

She is the high priestess of understatement, of the carefully careless effect, of the easy slouch and the stringless figure. The 1956 version of the McCardell stringbean dress shown on the opening day of New York's fashion press week is merely a straight, unbelted, unfitted tube of harlequin checked wool jersey, with no trimmings, no collar, no buttons, no gimmicks.

This is the triumph to date of understatement. Its only concession to design being two narrow slit pockets, one just above the right breast, the other on the left hip. She shows it with a severe white pillbox hat, white gloves and a gold chain necklace. On the girl with the McCardell figure it is effective. But ladies of ample curves should beware.

Miss McCardell shows a series of bathing suits in stretch nylon, stars a suit in multicolor swing stripes and a slim full-length coat, matching narrow skirt and scarlet blouse.

Cecil Chapman introduces the "neo-classic" silhouette, a sheath with back bulk. In most cases the back is bloused to the hipline where it is caught in a band and released in a floating back panel.

Color Prevades Scarlet, Gold Senate Chamber

By CAROLYN WILLETT,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Feminine eyes widened Tuesday at the traditional pomp and ceremony of Parliament's opening Tuesday to business modest at hand — sizing up what other women were wearing for the occasion.

Not that the gentlemen's ceremonial dress wasn't spectacular.

And color was added in the guests' sections as wives of dignitaries — displaying fashions in dress, hats and furs—took their places in the glittering ceremony.

VICE-REGAL BOX

As usual, curious eyes wandered to the vice-regal box in a gallery overlooking the Senate chamber.

Mrs. Lionel Massey, wife of Mr. Massey's secretary - son, was among its occupants, wearing a black crepe dress designed with a slim skirt and high neckline and accentuated with bugle beads in a shell design.

From their high perches in the public gallery women who walked their gold braid, seven judges of the Supreme Court of Canada their scarlet and ermine, and some dip- lomats their striking, sashed uniforms.

Women's Institute

The December meeting of Carmel Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Clare Horton. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Gow- thorpe, 18 members answered the roll call choosing names of the gift exchange.

Mrs. Gowthorpe reported having candy and oranges for the children at the Christmas concert.

Mrs. Carl Thompson reported Agriculture and Canadian Indust- ries and told of new antibiotics which keep meat fresh. Meat can be killed 500 miles away and trucked safely to market with this treatment.

Mrs. J. Rodbery reported on health, telling how to guard against food poisoning. Keep food hot until using. Cool foods quick- ly before placing in refrigerator, cover left-over meat and store in coldest part of refrigerator. Do not take a chance on serving food that is contaminated.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Gowthorpe and Mrs. Urch. They opened with the singing of two carols, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear" and "Joy to the World."

Mrs. Percy Reynolds gave a reading, "Christmas Magic" and Mrs. Urch read the story: "Coon in, Joey", also a poem, "The Pleasant Season" by Mrs. Horton.

Two contests were coducted by Mrs. Gowthorpe and Mrs. Urch which were enjoyed by all.

After the closing gifts were drawn which were varied and useful. Refreshments were served and a social time spent.

Club Activities

The December meeting of Spencers Mission Band was held in the form of a party on Thurs- day at the home of their leader, Mrs. Archie Greatrix, with an at- tendance of six members said six visitors.

The meeting was called to or- der by the president, Jane Thom- son.

Mrs. Harry Thomson read a story, followed by a recitation by Peggy Thomson.

Owing to the absence of the sec- retary Donna Ray, the minutes of the meeting were omitted.

Keith Greatrix read a story of two little children who at first were not able to have a Christmas tree, and then on Christmas eve a neighbor brought them one. Jane Thomson followed with a solo, "The Bible Tells Me So".

The Story of Christmas Gifts was read by the members in parts: Solo by Margaret Chumbley— "Away In A Manger,—Story, "The Happiest Angel," by Mrs. Chumbley.

Collection $1.00

Refreshments were served and a friendly time enjoyed by all.

Much credit is due Mrs. Great- rix for her 24 years of faithful leadership with Spencer Mission Band.

Happy Event Marked by 'At Home'

A very happy event was celebrated on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Champaign, Twig Road, it being the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary.

Many friends called during the afternoon and evening to extend congratulations and best wishes and enjoy a friendly cup of tea with the bride and bridegroom.

Among the many gifts of flowers they received was a beautiful bouquet of roses from the Avondale Neighbors' Aid from the community, where they have resided for nearly 50 years, they were presented with three lovely lamps—a tri-lite floor lamp; a table lamp, a radio lamp.

Numerous cards, letters and telegrams were also received; of special interest was a telegram from her Majesty the Queen; a letter from Prime Minister St. Laurent and an engraved scroll from the Provincial Government, which was presented by Mr. E. Sandercock, and Mr. K. Bird.

Another kindly gesture, which was much appreciated, was a letter from the School Children, conveying good wishes. Warm felicitations were also received from the parish priest, The Very Reverend Dean Garvin.

On Sunday, and Mrs. Champaign were guests of honor at a family dinner party, which included Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Reid; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Champaign, and children, Donna and Ralph; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Champaign; Mrs. George Bronson and Miss A. MacRae.

Two Extremes In New Fashions For Spring

NEW YORK (AP)—Ladies will look ladylike this spring, whether in slim daytime sheath dresses that fit them like the paper on the wall, or in floating clouds of chiffon after dark.

There are two extremes in the new fashions for spring, as shown this week to some 200 visiting fashion editors. One is the straight, narrow, understated column silhouette. The other is the strictly feminine, often full-skirted, always fluttering cocktail or evening gown.

Norman, designing for Samuel Winston, revives a gentle and nostalgic fashion in her pleated chiffon short formal dresses. An outstanding example is a dress of gossamer-thin black silk chiffon, its full skirt using yards and yards of tiny pleats, its bodice smoothly fitted with neckline scooped to the back, with a waist-length cape of the same pleated chiffon tied at the neck with narrow silk shoestrings.

Karen Stark, designing for Harvey Berin, also shows a beautiful and feminine collection accenting slim lines for daytime, full skirts or party wear.

'Mouse-Traps, Missions' Topic At W.M.S.

The first meeting of St. Andrews W.M.S. for the New Year was held on January 10th Mrs. Weir presiding.

The annual meeting of Kingston Presbyterial will be held in Trenton on January 16th and a bus will be chartered for members' convenience.

A beautiful solo, "Think on Me" sung by Mrs. Barrie, a member of the choir, was much enjoyed.

The Rev. W. H. MacLean brought a message entitled, "Mouse-traps and Missions," text being, "Go ye teach all nations and lo I am with you all the days."

He spoke in appreciation of women's work in the church and was thanked by Mrs. Weir.

The worship period, conducted by Mrs. Weir, Mrs. Wallwidge and Mrs. Adams had as their theme, "What is the Mission of the Church?"

The coming Valentine Tea was mentioned and all asked to help make it a success.

A social hour followed.

Glamorous Cardigan

By TRACY ADRIAN

Designed for party fun is this little evening sweater that is a pretty choice for doings after five and for week ends in the country.

The cardigan is made of fuzzy-fur-type yarn, old-fashioned and collared with Renaissance richness—a flattering ruff of braid petals stuffed with sequins. Seed pearls are scattered over the front and the buttons are baroque pearls.

Allan Jarvis Describes Work Of National Gallery to W.C. Club

Last evening at St. Andrew's Church hall the Women's Canadian Club was privileged to have as its guest speaker, Allan Jarvis, director of the National Art Gallery of Canada, at Ottawa.

Mr. Jarvis, who is a sculptor of note, as well as author and artist, introduced by the president of the club, Mrs. D. L. MacKinnon, brought to his audience, in a most informal and interesting manner, under the topic "Is Art Necessary — A Canadian View," a general survey of the wealth and beauty in paintings, sculpture, engravings and prints which are housed in the Royal Victoria Museum, comprising the old masters, and leading up to the modern trend in art.

It is as necessary to have the great standard of past art in order to educate the younger generation, as it is to have the works of Shakespeare, and other great writers of past centuries, so collections must be co-herent which necessitates much discrimination in the purchasing of pictures, as these must be of the best, and not by second grade artists.

MUST PRICED

Works of art have become astronomically high in past years due to their scarcity since every country has placed an export ban on the taking to other countries of precious works of art, thus losing one of the great attractions for tourists. Many American collectors have depleted countries of their gems of art, but since 1929 there has been the export ban.

The collection at Ottawa is one of the finest in the world, and should be shared by the people of Canada. This may be accomplished by means of "Travelling Art Exhibits," but not every picture is allowed out of the Gallery. Some are most fragile and cannot be shipped around from place to place. Those that are permitted to travel are handled by specified curators of the National Gallery; no one else is allowed to pack or unpack them. Those that were loaned to the Winnipeg Exhibition were most carefully handled by the National Gallery curators from the beginning of their trip till their return.

NEEDS OF AN ART GALLERY

There is a shortage of suitable show places across Canada. An art gallery must be fireproof; be guarded 24 hours of every day; have a trained staff to handle art when loaned, and even guarded by radar.

"Much of the activity of an art gallery is not seen," said Mr. Jarvis, "it is like an iceberg in that respect; much goes on behind the scenes; the showing of Canadian art to the Canadian public which shows western artists what the eastern artists are doing; the buying of art from other countries; the large scale educational film strips; the cataloguing of each picture; the industrial side in which the custom designs are improved; the exchange of exhibits; the BBC and radio talks.

CANADIAN ART

In speaking of Canadian art, Mr. Jarvis stated that it should be judged as rigorously as other countries, that is by the highest of the world's standards. The two outstanding names in modern art, or the group of seven, were those of Tom Thompson and Alex Jackson. Thompson's pictures are well known.

In India, Ceylon and Pakistan, Canadian art has had a tremendous impact, as it depicts the thought and scope of Canadian artists.

In showing modern art, which as Mr. Jarvis later explained in the short question period, it is best to begin with the earlier art of this type, gradually leading up to the later artists. This art is rather the impression of color, and design, made upon the artist, rather than a pictorial piece, much like a section of a music score which hits the ear, and is then transferred to to sensations of the heart. The artthe sensations of the heart. The artscene or object makes, rather than the object itself.

At the bi - annual exhibition in Venice, the Meca of the Intelligentsia of the art world, artists attend to see the latest in art, so Canada must send new objective paintings.

In closing, Mr. Jarvis said, "the National Gallery belongs to Canada; it depends on public opinion; the public's vigilant interest, and criticism for its high standard."

Mr. Jarvis was thanked by the president for his fine and educational talk.

Following the close of the meeting, tea was served.

Hostesses for the evening, Mrs. A. Bongard, Mrs. C. Muclow and Mrs. J. Miles served refreshments.

Draft Agreement For Pipeline Not Tabled

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition leader George Drew received a non-committal reply Tuesday when he asked the government to table the Commons draft agreements dealing with federal participation in construction of a natural gas pipeline through northern Ontario.

Mr. Drew, noting a reference to the project in the throne speech, asked Prime Minister St. Laurent to table today copies of draft agreements involved in the undertaking.

Mr. St. Laurent told Mr. Drew he would find out whether the draft agreements can be tabled.

The throne speech confirmed a previous federal announcement of financial assistance for the difficult northern Ontario section of the $330,000,000 line from Alberta to the East.

The federal and Ontario governments would build the $128,000,000 northern section between the Manitoba border and Kapuskasing and lease it through a crown company to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd.

ASKED WIDOW'S SHARE

RIVERHEAD, N. Y. (AP)—A judge Monday dismissed the suit of a woman claiming to have been the secret wife of the late millionaire William K. Vanderbilt, and called her story a set of "fantastic fabrications." 'Substantial World Deficit' In Newsprint Supply Seen For Years by U.S. Experts

WASHINGTON (CP)—The commerce department Tuesday estimated U.S. newsprint consumption will hit an annual pace of 9,250,000 tons in 1965, compared with an estimated requirement this year of 6,200,000 tons.

It also foresaw "a substantial world deficit in newsprint and an apparent substantial deficit for United States publishers for some years to come." There was little knowledge as to how the anticipated deficit would be overcome.

Relating newsprint needs to population and disposable personal income, the department said: It based its 1965 forecast on the assumption of a U.S. population in that year of 190,000,000 and disposable personal income of $380,000,000,000.

The department's view was shared by Donald Shook, deputy director of its forest products division, before a congressional subcommittee which has been keeping a continuing vigil on newsprint demand and supplies.

CANADIAN IMPORTS

Shook said the 1965 requirement of 9,800,000 tons, made up of 6,700,000 tons for consumption and 100,000 tons for industrial stockpiling, will be met by imports of 3,800,000 tons from Canada, 125,000 tons from overseas and 1,410,000 from U.S. domestic production. This still would leave a deficit of 65,000 tons.

"Any increase in newsprint demand over these levels would, of course, seriously aggravate the supply-demand picture as it would in effect, bring supply below the consumption level," Shook replied.

"Further, if actual supplies were not to reach the levels estimated for this year, we would again have a shortage of newsprint for actual consumption and alone for rebuilding of inventories."

ASSOCIATION FORECAST

Shook said the Newsprint Association of Canada has estimated that 5,300,000 tons will be available for export by the U.S. this year.

Representative Arthur G. Klein (Dem. N.Y.), committee chairman, asked Shook whether there was any chance that Canadian newsprint mills would go on a 24-hour-a-day production basis, as was being done by some U.S. mills.

Shook said he understood laws in some Canadian provinces prevented the mills from going on a 24-hour operation. He predicted output in U.S. mills will increase 400,000 tons this year to reach a 1,900,000-ton production date.

Accused Said By Phsychiatrist To Be Insane

BRAMPTON (CP) — Carpenter Robert Martin of Malvern, charged with murder in the Nov. 24 shooting of Police Sgt. Ernest Bray, described Tuesday as insane by a testifying psychiatrist.

Dr. John Ferguson, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at Hamilton, was asked by defence counsel John White how a layman would describe 49-year-old Martin's condition.

"Insane," replied Dr. Senn.

He was testifying at the special hearing called to rule on a defence motion that Martin is mentally unfit to stand trial and to enter a plea earlier returned a true bill.

Dr. Ryhon, 37-year-old native of Melbourne, Australia, was shot to death in his office at the weekly treatment conception centre for rehabilitation centre in nearby Malton, Brampton 10 miles north of Toronto.

A second psychiatrist called by the defence, Dr. Arthur Doyle of Toronto, said Martin is a paranoid schizophrenic—"a man who has delusions and false beliefs!" He had suffered for the past from acute persecution complex.

Martin, Dr. Doyle said, had been admitted to the Ontario Hospital for the Criminally Insane at Penetanguishene in 1947 after attacking a Hamilton lawyer. He was released from the hospital in 1949.

Dr. Doyle said he found him able to felt patients and staff at the rehabilitation centre. He was never under treatment for a broken elbow, followed by about "complaining, insulting and sneering at him."

The hearing continues today. The jury is expected to get a guilty or proclaim Martin unfit to plead.

PROTECTORS RELP

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP)—Football players who wear rubber mouth protectors almost never suffer dental injuries; those who wear three masks receive a few but nearly 12 per cent of those who play without protection can expect damaged teeth.

Two Acts Will Receive Almost Total Revision

OTTAWA (CP)—Two bulky federal acts will receive almost total revision at the new session of Parliament.

They are the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act and the Dominion Succession Duty Act which have been under review for nearly a year.

The throne speech read at Tuesday's opening of Parliament gave no details of the revisions. However, officials of the justice and revenue departments said the main purpose is to bring the acts up to date and simplify their administration.

The throne speech also hints, without giving details, a number of other statutes are which amendments will be proposed. They include the Canadian Wheat Board Act, the Canada Elections Act, Citizenship Act, Navigable Waters Protection Act, Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act and Prairie Farm Assistance Act.

The change in the Citizenship Act is reported to deal with a few specific problems involving Canadians living abroad, especially service men.

SMALL LENDING

Lending activities of the government's Industrial Development Bank are to be extended.

The government gave no details, but it is understood the bank for the first time will be able to provide loans for oil and gas pipelines. It also will be able to lend to small town businesses and industries.

Activities of small loans companies are to be brought under tighter federal control.

An amendment to the Small Loans Act, forecast in the throne speech, would extend federal control over interest rates to loans between $500 and $1,000.

The Small Loans Act at present sets a maximum interest rate of two per cent a month on loans up to $500. The official indicated this rate may be lowered. However, he said the matter still is being studied by cabinet.

MAY AID INDIANS

Changes in the Indian Act are expected to involve giving assistance to Canada's 150,000 Indians and perhaps their liquor rights.

Observers here saw the changes as setting the stage for elections next month when representatives of Indian reservation bands across Canada meet here with federal officials.

The Indians urged that they be given the right to buy beer and liquor on their reservations. Government-backed loans for the purchase of Indian chattels to obtain bank loans also were sought.

RESUME TRAFFIC

GHOST RIVER, Ont. (CP)—The CNR's maiden running through the snow - covered badland of the Canadian Prairies for a decade early Tuesday night when ill declared ears of an east-bound Super Continental train were lifted back on the tracks and moved out on the way. More than 30 passengers escaped with only a shaking up in the Monday derailment.

Adjudicator Not Impressed with Presentation

VANCOUVER (CP)—The University of British Columbia's Players' Club alumni "somehow missed" Tuesday night in their presentation of "Lilion", said adjudicator Pamela Stirling of London.

The performance lacked "a simple, earthy quality," Miss Stirling said in auditorium of 300 at the Avon theatre here as the B.C. regional drama festival opened.

Miss Stirling said the alumni, who last year won top honors at the Dominion Drama Festival with Arthur Miller's "The Crucible", must "somehow get back" Lilion, the carousel operator, as very difficult to stage.

Main Legislative Guns Will Be Concentrated on Farm Front

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has left no doubt that in the new session of Parliament it will concentrate its main legislative guns on Canada's farm-relief front.

Major proposals announced in the throne speech Tuesday are designed to aid western grain producers and perhaps to take some of the wind out of opposition attacks on federal marketing policies.

Topping the list is one that will make the biggest dent in the treasury, the decision of the government to boost Canadian taxpayers generally link up with producers to pay the costs of storing what is hoped will be a huge stockpile of wheat.

This is in addition to the provision of federal guarantees for bank loans on farm-held grain, an increase in the size of mortgage loans introduced can be made by the Canadian farm loan board, and amendment and renewal of the Farm Improvement Loans Act.

But while making concessions to farmers, the government at the same time made clear it considers private problems are not for bumper harvests and not from marketing policies.

Although it agreed in the throne speech that some parts of the economy have not shared in the good times of 1955, it argued that wheat sales for the last five years were at record levels. It made no reference to the fact that exports in the past year have declined from the previous peak years.

In its unprecedented storage program the government will absorb storage and interest charges on wheat held by the Canadian wheat board "over and above its normal carryover levels."

It did not spell out what it considers a normal carryover, but it is merely that it will apply to the current crop year and will prevent farm income from being depressed by "abnormal" carrying stocks.

However, previous indications were that the bill may be heavy about $30,000,000 this year, covering perhaps more than 200,000,000 bushels in country and terminal elevators. The legislation will not affect the farm-held grain.

That's where the bank loans come in. The first piece of legislation

MONKEY BUSINESS OF WRONG KIND

Mr. Fred Zeehandelaar, who specializes in shipping wild animals to zoos throughout North America, is quite sure Toronto is making a monkey out of him. He sent a chimpanzee and two orang-outangs to the city zoo when they were ordered, or perhaps authorized is the word. The animals were delivered on Nov. 16 but through Mr. Zeehandelaar has sent invoices and telegrams from his New York office, he still has not been paid his $4,350 fee. The reason is that the city's growing pains have left the responsibility for payment somewhere between Metro Toronto and the City of Toronto. If that's confusing to you, think of how Mr. Zeehandelaar views it.

RUSSIANS WEEP

MOSCOW (AP) — An overflow crowd of sobbing weeps, cheers and stood up and applauded for 6½ minutes Tuesday night at Moscow's opening performance of "Porgy and Bess." It was another warm Soviet reception for the touring American troupe that gave its first performance in Russia at Leningrad on Dec. 28.

Bringing Up Baby

Mom Celebrated by Mrs. Dan Cuddy (Mother of 5)

Recommended as possible New Year's resolution: Whenever my baby is concerned, I shall try to let the happy side of my heart show. I shall learn to curb frowns and cultivate smiles. I shall try my best to bring forth the sunshine of a let's-get-it-over-with attitude) to every baby task. I shall take as little effort to make baby thrive... make you sure glad to be alive.

No cause for alarm if baby's appetite tapers off when he's near a year old. In proportion he's not growing as much, slight decrease in intake (plus a natural variation in the daily diet for food) is to be expected. Letting baby eat, instead of making him eat, during this negative mealtime planning will often soon lead to a rebirth of appetite. Most important, baby will take food when he's hungry enough.

Tip for a Teether. If baby's finding teething on the troublesome side, he'll get real comfort from Gerber Teething Biscuits. That's because they're smooth-surfaced for soothing relief...extra-hard for excellent biting satisfaction. Made of enriched cereal, pleasantly flavored, they're specially shaped for easy grasping. Individually wrapped in cellophane so you can pop 'em in pocket or purse for visiting purposes.

Clothing cue. Best bets in baby wrappers are those which open fore or aft. Gerber Garments are the little things pulled over their little heads.

Mealtime surprise. Lipsmacking is almost certain when you serve baby Gerber Fruit Dessert. For this is a happily balanced blend of sun-ripened apricots, mild pineapple bits and delicate orange juice—skillfully textured with a touch of tapioca. Just about the ideal dessert imaginable. Strained or Junior. Gerber Products Co., Fort Erie, Ontario, Canada.

LAUGHS Even at Teething Time

Baby's Own Tablets have long been a reliable standby for mothers for over 50 years. Especially helpful during teething, they correct sour stomach, relieve constipation, and sometimes relieve simple diarrhoea. Concentrated in action, they're mild and never habit forming or upsetting. Sold by druggists everywhere. Ask for Baby's Own Tablets today.

Little Benny's Notebook

I'm still thinking and hoping about a new trycicel with all the diffrent improvements, and after dinner I said to pop, G, you ought to use the way the new bikes go up hills. You dont hardly have to push any harder than when you just go strait, I said.

The last time I had a bike I couldn't ride it uphill at all, pop said, I had to get off and push it up, and it made my legs and back so strong that I didn't have any trubble getting on my school rowing team. Maybe you'll be just as lucky, he said, and I said, Aw G, pop, the luckiest I want to be is to get a Twinplex Super Streamliner.

I think my last bike was called a Cleveland Roadster, pop said. It was a beauty, I remember every little detail of it. It had handlebars and peddles and a little bell that you pushed with your thumb, be-ing-a-ling-a-ling, and I said, Jimminy roosters, the Twinplex Super Streamliner has cromd fenders and drum brakes and bilbih born right in the frame.

Yes, I hear they're doing remarkable things with bycickles nowadays, pop said. I understand they're working on one now with push button steering and ejector seat. Maybe we'd better wait till agenst.

They start terning that one out, and then you'll really have something, he said, and I said, Aw heck, pop, I want a Twinplex Super Streamliner.

Then I'll make you a proposition, pop said. Every 30 dollers you save up I'll match with another fifty, and so on till we have enough, he said.

Montreal Firm May Help Build Lock for Seaway

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A three-company combination of contractors from New York City and Montreal Tuesday submitted the apparent low bid of $20,172,431 for the first major U.S. construction project on the St. Lawrence seaway, the Robinson bay lock.

The bid was submitted by Morrison Knudson, Co., Inc., of New York; Walsh Construction Co. of New York, and Perini Quebec, Inc., of Montreal. It was one of six bids submitted to the Buffalo district, U.S. Corps of Engineers, construction agent for the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp.

The project, scheduled for completion by May 15, 1958, will be one of the two major locks on the Long Sault canal, the 10-mile-long channel south of the Long Sault rapids that will be the biggest man-made ditch on the seaway.

The Robinson bay lock will be the upstream lock. It will be located about three miles northeast of Massena. It will be of concrete gravity type construction, 860 feet long and 80 feet wide, and will have a 43-foot lift.

DISSOLVES HOUSE

ATHENS (Reuters)—King Paul Tuesday night signed a decree dissolving the Greek Parliament 10 months before the expiry of its normal four-year term. The king disclosed his action in an interview with George Papandreou, the Liberal leader, who said afterward: "The king told me elections will be held on Feb. 19."

10 FAMILIES HOMELESS

The loss was estimated at more than $80,000.

River Valley W.I. Suggests Better Public School Facilities

STIRLING — Mrs. J. Kane was welcomers to the valley.

hostess for the January meeting of River Valley W.I. on Thursday. There were 25 members and one visitor in attendance. Mrs. R. Small opened the meeting after which Mrs. T. Hanna gave her report and presented the financial picture to date.

The roll call, "Betterment for our rural school." The members who have children attending school were anxious to have a better heating system, additional playground space with a good fence around it, ing all four sides, a couch in case of illness and a home and school association. Other ideas were a new kitchen and a basement, as the school at River Valley serves the community as a hall for all social events. The Institute women are ever ready to assist the trustees with any worthwhile project of school betterment.

There were three directors and assistants in attendance at the meeting and the president is anxious to have a better representation as the tasks they are imposed, key people to report back to absent members.

The wedding picture of Miss Anne P. Lewis and Prof. McEwen was displayed and admired and mention made of Miss Helen McKercher, newly appointed to the Toronto office as Director of Home Economics, Extension Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The idea of an occasional social evening was discussed. The euchre party scheduled for Friday 13 was called off, however parties will be held on 20 and 27.

The entertainment committee for February will be Mrs. R. Philp and Mrs. J. L. Donohoe.

Plans were made for a party for Mrs. Sarah Hanna on Jan. 26 to help her celebrate her 96th birthday anniversary."

Mrs. T. Hanna has replenished the first aid kit at the school house and purchased two decks of new playing cards.

A letter of thanks was read from "The Green Nursing Home" for grapes received at Christmas. Several other notes of appreciation were read.

Mrs. G. Hessman displayed the reference boxes for "the girls' club members" which had been made by "The Riverside Construction Company". A letter of thanks to be forwarded to Messrs J. Bush and E. Rosebush for their material assistance.

PROGRAM

The program was based on community activities and public relations and was arranged by Mrs. G. Bush and Mrs. G. Brooks. Mrs. G. Hessman and Mrs. R. Usman were in charge of assembly singing. Mrs. H. Morrow read "To the Unknown Future", of the coming 365 days. Mrs. S. Iven read an article of interest from "The Countryswoman" giving a vivid picture of what other Institutes are doing. Mrs. P. Conley contributed a piano solo. Mrs. R. Philp gave a description of the new A.C.W.W. film strip which is now available entitled "Getting To Know You". This gives pictures of the triennial conference held in Toronto and an outline of activities at Denman College in England.

Mrs. G. Brooks gave a paper on the motto "No one can walk backwards into the future". She closed with a challenge to shut the door of the old year and face the future with courage and loyalty.

Mrs. J. L. Donohoe read a humorous poem, Mrs. G. Bush gave a most interesting and informative paper on "Our Community and What It is."

She gave a descriptive picture of River Valley community, its people, school, churches, shopping centres and stressed how the automobile has enlarged the community.

The W.I. sponsors card parties and various social gatherings and this absorbs the young people's.

A word of appreciation was expressed to the boys' quartet and their pianist, the girls' club and their two leaders, as all their activities are helpful.

The W.I. members were urged to do more visiting in each other's homes and to especially visit all the school meetings and this showed their interest. The question "What about a woman on the school board?" provided food for thought.

The community spirit should be a powerful influence for good and should set various ideals. One should remember that the best part of the past should be carried over into the future as a guide point for future endeavors.

The topic closed with an appropriate poem "Are You An Active Member Or Do You Just Belong?"

The president prepared a "name contest" and four groups hunted up the names. All the names were of people who reside in "the River Valley community" or who are Institute members outside the bounds.

Everyone was reminded to bring her wedding picture to the February meeting based on historical research and current events.

Mrs. G. Heasman voiced thanks for hospitality, program and refreshments.

The hostess and lunch committee served refreshments consisting of sandwiches and tarts.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles
Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids
Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.
In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.
Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.
And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!
In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And in many cases sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.
All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.
This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Goyer Nets Two In Bilts Win Over Flyers

GUELPH (CP) — Ron Howell scored two goals and set up a third as Guelph Biltmores defeated Barrie Flyers 4-2 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Tuesday night. The win tied Guelph with Toronto Marlboros for fourth place.

Most of the game's action was packed into the final frame. There was no score in the first and each team counted once in the second.

Gerry Goyer also had two goals for the Bilts; Jim Josephson and John Chasterwald counted for the last-place Flyers. Guelph outshot Barrie 39 to 24 and served four of the nine minor penalties.

Play was loose in the first two periods with plenty of near misses about the goal mouths. The Bilts jumped into a 3-1 lead early in the final period when they netted twice within five seconds.

As Goes Winger So Goes St. Mike's Majors

TORONTO (CP) — The hockey fortunes of St. Michael's College Majors of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league often seem to conform closely to those of deft wingman Frank Mahovlich.

When the high-scoring 19-year-old from Schumacher, Ont., was put out with a knee injury during the 1954-55 season Majors dropped out of contention.

The six-foot winger returned last fall and Majors scooted to the top of the league. They lost their first place in December but until last Friday were running a few games off pace.

Then, in a game against Guelph Biltmores, Frank skated into a tingling body check. He fell hard, twisting his leg and tearing a ligament in the same knee he injured last year.

TOOK IT ON CHIN

The following afternoon St. Mikes minus Mahovlich, took it on the chin 8-3 in a game with Hamilton. College officials now are wondering how long Majors will be able to stay near the top, without their star winger.

Doctors said the injury may sideline the shifty forward for the rest of the season.

Frank's value to Majors lies in his goal-scoring ability. In 27 games this year he has potted 23 goals and 25 assists for a total of 48 points.

Last year, in his first season in junior A hockey, he scored 15 goals and 11 assists in 25 games. The year before that, his first at St. Mike's, he shone brightly with the college Buzzers in junior B hockey.

Frank, described by teachers as a first-class student, is in Grade 11 with two more years of high school and two more seasons of junior hockey if he wants them.

Teeps' Player Widens Lead

TORONTO (CP)—Ab McDonald of St. Catharines Teepees widened his scoring lead to three points last week in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

Statistics released Tuesday by the league show McDonald scored five goals in three games last week.

Scoring leaders:	G	A	Pts.
McDonald, St. C.	33	21	54
Balnik, Kitchener	16	35	51
Bradley, Kitchener	29	22	51

Pelton, St. Catharines	20	26	46
Farkas, Guelph	16	23	39
Gribbons, Kitchener	16	22	38

Canucks Chop Junior Habs 5-1

QUEBEC (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks Tuesday night chopped Montreal Canadiens 5-1 in a Laurier junior hockey series game, cutting Montreal's lead to six points in the challenge-trophy series.

Kenny Gribbons put Kitchener into the lead in the first period. Bob Bouchet scored Montreal's only goal in the second, and the Ontario lads crushed the opposition with four tallies in the third. Bob Duncan, Sonny Larose, Walt Bradley and Willie O'Dee were the scorers.

It was the second defeat for Canadiens since the beginning of the series, both at the hands of the Kitchener-Waterloo team.

Canadiens have a total of 24 points in the series standings compared to 18 for second-place Kitchener-Waterloo, which, however, has three games in hand. The same two teams meet in Montreal Thursday.

No Cheaters For 'Scooter'

NEW YORK (AP) — No more cheaters for the Scooter.

"No, sir," little Phil Rizzuto said today, "I visited my eye doctor yesterday and he told me that my eyes were stronger than at any time in recent years."

The veteran New York Yankee shortstop said his sight was even better than normal.

"Therefore," he added, "I don't need them, not even for reading. So I won't wear them in spring training."

Rizzuto, who is 37 and the oldest Yank of them all, was startled a part-time operator last season when he donned the specs.

After having his eyes examined, Rizzuto breezed into the Yank office and signed his 1956 contract. He is the first member of the American League champions to come to terms.

The figures weren't announced but estimates ranged from $25,000 to $30,000. He took a healthy cut, he admitted.

Perez Defends Flyweight Title

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Pascual Perez, who has had his 25-fight career, defends his world flyweight championship tonight against Leo Espinosa of the Philippines in the first world title bout ever held in Buenos Aires.

The 29-year-old Perez, who first gained fame by winning the Olympic flyweight title as an amateur in 1948 at London, knocked out his first 17 professional opponents and has been held to only one draw for a 24-0-1 record.

Espinosa, 25, has lost only four of 44 starts.

Quebec League

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The top teams fattened their figures in Quebec Hockey League Tuesday night at the expense of their more humble colleagues.

The top-dog Shawinigan Falls hit Trois-Rivieres, last place team, for a 5-3 win, with the prexious line of Gilles Dube, Jean-Paul Denis and Erwin Grosar clicking for three goals in the second period.

In the only other QHL game, second-place Montreal Royals outplayed Quebec Aces 3-1.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

IT CAN BE DONE!

Bebbe someone tipped off Danny Cox's win-happy TPT's last last night that the "brains" of the senior "B" crowd (and she stays that way) would be looking over their third period antics. And tossed in for good measure in the packed press box were OHA president Frank Buckland and his trusty right bower vice prezzy Lorne Cook of Kingston.

In addition, and which must have caused one Wren Blair, and Whitby Dunlops impressario, to flutter amazed eyebrows, were 1,110 paid pewsters who proved that hockey fandom is not dead in this village, by a damsite, senior "A" to the contrary.

As Grandpa said after the tussle at Raikbon. "Ah, 'twas a glorious victory. And from a feudal point of view that 15-7 shellacking could not have happened to a nicer bunch of scurs. Now if Marse Ken Johnson had opened his pores like that in those 1954-55 playoffs . . . ?

From the record and the brief visits we had of the game the TPT's day deeply into the bag and scraped up the last smidgin of goal-scoring potential. They were in the mood and in front of them were their arch enemies from Roddenville albeit they were minus the services of Les Douglas and Tappy Tompsett. Hell, we have been short handed through sickness and injuries the greater part of the season but no sympathetic figurative Greeks bearing gifts of tear-drops wept on our shoulders.

And in the close confines of the press box, a voice that sounded extremely as though it had been strained through official tonsils murmured, "What do they want with senior "A" when they get hockey like this?"

The Teeps unleashed their 12-goal fury from the opening tick-off. They slammed home three while Tony Parisi tooth-picked a lone puck out of his webbed igloo. And while 2,200 tonsils quivered in the warmish air, they loosened a r goal avalanche in the second frame and added a quartet in the third. Who cared about scorer's cramp?

NO LIGHTNING — LITTLE THUNDER

The senior "B" stature fire and dust its columnar bleats and managerial yaks have ceased — for the time being.

The expected argumentative thunder at the group meetings did not materialize. There was an aura of peace on earth goodwill towards managers pervading the coolish room. Perhaps the presence of OHA president Frank Buckland cast premature fear on what was supposed to be troubled waters.

Fiery Wren Blair, Whitby Dunlops manager, who originated the idea of the group changing its status to Senior "A", was as polite as a pre-election politician albeit he presented his arguments in a concise quiet manner.

Perhaps the unexpected jell he received when Brockville, a team he relied on heavily to swing the vote his way, cast its lot with the negatives, tempered his feelings, and made the handwriting on the wall plainly apparent. He voiced his disappointment with a no uncertain "it's shocking to hear."

The only things of a concrete nature the controversy has produced thus far are the group's firm stand to remain senior "B"—and a lot of useful provincial publicity.

Blair stated that he would apply for senior rating for the Dunlops. As he said, he gave the group the opportunity to change status with his club.

Blair's letter threat to disband the Dunlops if refused "A" status apparently was intended as an unexpected scare to stir the heads of the group. He never mentioned disbandment but when faced with the possibility of "no hockey" if refused "A" rating, he seconded a Belleville motion that he be permitted to return to the eastern senior "B" group. The motion was cold-shouldered by the rest of the clubs with Cornwall, Blair's strongest ally making no move.

Blair's threat seconded the motion himself but later stated he would not travel so far east as Kingston but rather would join a near-Toronto senior "B" group. This from the man who stated earlier in the meeting that he would get nothing but topflight hockey for the good folk of Oshawa and Whitby. No action was taken on the addition.

If Blair does get senior "A" rating and he needs 75 per cent approval of the western Ontario clubs, he cannot say he was not warned of things to come. President Buckland took care of that. He mentioned expenses and the fact that expenses pointing out that senior "A" player bills were much higher than senior "B". He mentioned the 1954-1957 interlocking schedule arranged between southern and northern Ontario "A" leagues. He stressed the CAHA program moves to hoist club entries, protests, certificates, transfers and other items by which it expected to raise $25,000 for the Olympic team.

And he mentioned the folding of the Niagara Falls senior "A" club which cost one sponsor price of a seven-room dwelling.

There was an ominous note the group's cold reception of the Belleville motion to allow Blair back into the senior "B" fold if he fails to get "A" rating. After all Peterborough still likely be back in the hockey picture and it is possible the senior "B" clubs down thisaway are not worried over a Whitby entry next year. Peterborough was represented by a club member who said he did not think the Petes would consider "A" rating.

Blair's threat "not to travel as far east as Kingston" if back in the senior "B" fold next year won't carry much weight. If he wants to enter a near-Toronto group it is definite the teams in the eastern set-up will bar his way. With Peterborough back in the group next year, a neat five-club group could be arranged and senior "B" hockey would be back on the same enjoyable ground it has enjoyed since inception in the district.

High-Ranking Officials Face Charges of Boxing Boycott; Say Conspiracy Started 1952

CLEVELAND (AP)—Two boxing guilds and three of their officers were under indictment today, charged with boycotting and otherwise violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

One of the defendants named in the indictment, returned Tuesday by a federal grand jury here, says his group did not boycott anyone and worked for the good of fighters because "the promoters were making all the money from television."

The denial was made by Albert W. Del Monte of Cleveland, president of the Boxing Guild of Ohio.

Named with Del Monte and the Ohio guild in the seven-page indictment were the International Boxing Guild of New York City, Charles Johnston of New York, general president of the IBG, and William Daly of Englewood, N.J., IBG general treasurer.

The IBG is an association of local boxing managers' guilds. Its membership includes managers of virtually all boxers participating in major bouts in the U.S.

MANY CHARGES

Charges listed in the indictment included:

Boycotting of boxing shows when fighters managed by non-guild managers were signed. Also, boycotting matches to match their fighters with those managed by non-guild managers; fixing minimum prices at which they would allow their fighters to appear in televised boxing shows; boycotting of shows involving a fighter who appeared in a telecast studio bout.

The trial will be held here but no date has been set. Maximum penalty on conviction would be a year in jail and a $50,000 fine for the individuals and a $50,000 fine for the guilds.

The indictment charged the defendants and other IBG members started their alleged conspiracy in 1952, the year the IBG was formed.

CHARGES TV CANCELLED

It also charged that guild activities had caused cancellation of a studio boxing shows televised by station WEWS here from January to April to October last year.

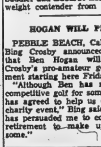
Del Monte said the Ohio guild had picketed WEWS and denied that his group tried to stop boxers who appeared on television or fought elsewhere. He said the guild objected to the studio bouts because "the promoters were making all the money."

"When Jim Norris started in Madison Square Garden," he added, "they were giving fighters 15 per centage of the gate and about $250 from TV money. The promoters were getting from $17,000 to $18,000 from TV.

GUARANTEED TAKE

"We formed the guild and now any main event fighter on TV on Wednesday or Friday night is guaranteed $4,000 and on Monday night he gets about $2,500.

"When these promoters came here and wanted to promote these studio bouts they were getting $1,700 a show from the sponsor and paying only $1,000 to get the whole card."



Johnston, in San Francisco, said "I don't know anything about it; I'll have to wait until I get back east and get the facts."

HOGAN WILL PLAY

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Bing Crosby announced Tuesday that Ben Hogan will play in Crosby's pro-amateur golf tournament starting here Friday.

"Although Ben has not played competitive golf for some time, he has agreed to help us out on the charity event," Bing said. "And he has persuaded me to come out of retirement to make up a foursome."

Ancient Car Sent Hannigan To Maple Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gord Hannigan is still in big-league hockey because his car once had a baby radiator and a flat tire.

But for the two incidents he might be in Edmonton selling ice cream. Instead, he's back in the National Hockey League with Toronto Maple Leafs.

The leaky rad and punctured tube turned up last September. The 26-year-old Hannigan was in training camp with Pittsburgh Hornets, Leafs American League farm club.

Hannigan, who was demoted and promoted so often he could have made the trip from Toronto to Pittsburgh blindfolded, felt if he could stick in the minors he would rather spend his time in the Western League than in the Eastern circuit.

WANTED STAY WEST

"I wanted to play hockey in the Western League to be near my ice cream business," Hannigan said Tuesday. He operates the business in Edmonton with his brother, Don.

"When Leafs insisted I go to Pittsburgh, I was ready to put the old blades away for good.

"Then, as I was about to pull up stakes and light out for Edmonton. But before I had gone 10 miles the old car started to steam and I discovered my radiator was leaking. I returned to camp, got my clothes back in the room, figuring to stay until the car was fixed. When I went to get the car to head, I found I had a flat tire.

"Right then and then I figured the good Lord wanted me to play hockey in Pittsburgh. . . . Once I made up my mind to stay with Hornets I was happy for the first time in a few seasons."

CALLED HIM BACK

Hannigan, a native of Schumacher, Ont., was recalled with Pittsburgh that Leafs, in dire need of help, called him up a couple of weeks ago. Hannigan, normally a left winger, was sent to right wing on the power play that attack has been the strongest part of Toronto's game lately.

"Gord is a chap who isn't afraid to rush into the corner for loose pucks or rush in front out of the play. He is going to be a big help in our drive for the playoffs."

Leafs are in fourth place in the league race with 31 points, one ahead of Chicago and 2½ over Boston. Montreal, New York and Detroit hold the first three positions in that order.

Clancy gave his boy a holiday from practice today because they won't see action until Saturday, in the only game for the Toronto Montreal Canadiens meet Rangers at New York.

FONTANA LOSES, WINS

BOMBAY, India (Reuters)—Doc Fontana of Toronto and M. V. G. Apparad were eliminated Tuesday from the men's doubles of the western India lawn tennis championships. Earlier Fontana won a second-round singles match 6-3, 6-3 against G. Sicka of India.

Holes in Goals

National Snipers Find Range Take Game From Goalkeepers

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—The snipers have finally found the range in the National Hockey League.

Two weeks of free-wheeling activity by NHL marksmen have taken the game away from the goaltenders, who had promised to dominate it to a degree unprecedented since the 60-minute schedule went into effect six years ago.

On Dec. 28, the night Toronto's Harry Lumley shut out Montreal Canadiens 4-0, the league seemed to be headed for the first 70-game season in its history in which fewer than 1,000 goals were scored.

With the season past the halfway mark, the six NHL teams had scored 487 goals and were threatening to erase the previous 70-game low of 1,006, set three years ago. There had been 27 shutouts as compared to last year's full-season total of 36. .

THINGS HAVE CHANGED

But things have changed drastically. In the 18 games played since Lumley's whitewash the red light has blinked 102 times—an average of 3.4 goals a game for each team as compared to 2.3 at the start of the scoring spree. To date, 14 of the season was raised to 2.5, the same as the mark for the full 1954-55 schedule.

Translated into terms of a 70-game schedule, a 3.4 output matches the scoring average of the 1935-36 Detroit Red Wings whose 236 goals stand as the NHL record.

Every team has shared in the 15-game scoring bonanza. The Canadiens shoved in 17 goals in four games for a whopping 4.3 average. The second-place New York Rangers are scheduled to leave for Europe within a week for an Olympic championship, did not use five of their top stars — Ken Laufman, Jack McFadden, Red Kelly, Gerry Theberge and Howie Lee. They used five rookies up from their senior B farm club, the Kimira Polar Kings.

Bulldogs Blank Dutchies 6-0 To Break Tie

WINDSOR (CP)—Windsor Bulldogs trounced league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 6-0 Tuesday night in an Ontario Hockey Association match. A contest before a crowd of 2,912.

The win broke a second-place tie between Bulldogs and Stratford Indians and narrowed Dutchmen's lead to 12 points. Dutchmen, who gers and third-place Detroit averaged four goals even—30 in five games for the Rangers and 24 in as for the Wings. Toronto at 3.3, Chicago Black Hawks at 2.7 and Boston Bruins at 2.4 all improved on their season's averages.

TPTs Hand Goodyears 12-7 Thumping; Senior B Group Retains Status Quo

Representatives Veto Whitby Move By Three Votes to Two; Dunlops to Apply For Rating

By GEO H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Whitby Dunlops bid to change the status of the Eastern Ontario senior "B" group to senior "A" in the 1956-57 season was defeated at a special meeting of group representatives here last night.

Belleville, Kingston and Brockville voted against the move with Whitby and Cornwall sanctioning it. A Peterborough representative said he doubted if his club would consider the change.

Wren Blair, Whitby manager who sponsored the suggested change of status quo, said he would enter his club's application for senior "A" rating to the OHA this month. He did not mention the threat "to disband" if turned down by the group or the OHA, quoted by him in a letter to Brockville, Cornwall and Kingston.

Belleville moved that in the event that Whitby's application was turned down by the OHA or western senior "A" clubs, the team be allowed to play in the Eastern Ontario senior "B" group next season.

Blair, after other clubs failed to second the motion, backed the Moved motion but later added his club would refuse to travel as far east as Kingston. He intimated he would seek senior "B" entry in a group closer to Toronto.

Belleville, Kingston, Brockville, Cornwall and Whitby were represented. Brockville voted via telegraph stating its feelings regarding senior "A" hockey were negative.

The meeting was chaired by Lorne Cook OHA vice president. OHA president Frank Buckland sodressed the group on some important points. Belleville was represented by Percy Hancock, Bill Ward, Ray Miron and Gordie Smith; Kingston, Joe Corky and Art Casterton; Whitby, Wren Blair and Wally Brabin and Peterborough, George Bennett.

There were no verbal fireworks as was expected, with club representatives airing their views informally.

Blair, the first to take the floor, said he had received a lot of coaching his own group without consulting his board meeting "A". If the group did not fall in with his suggestion, Whitby would apply for "A" rating and let the chips fall where they may.

He said entertainment and sport were branching out into higher calibre, quoting the Big Four and Toronto Maple Leafs. Oshawa people he said, wanted a better class of hockey than Senior "B". He argued it would not cost much more to get average senior "A" players than good senior "B" puckchasers.

He felt the geographical situation in western Ontario would be better than the eastern group with travelling being less. He hoped to play weekend games in Chatham and Windsor if accepted. He claimed he had talked with western clubs and they agreed they were in need of four clubs. He also had talked with clubs in the group regarding the change. The Brockville decision, he said "was shocking to hear." He agreed Whitby would have to get 75 per cent of the western clubs in agreement with his application.

Cornwall's Ray Miron argued for the change stating that the big reason patronage had dropped in Cornwall was that the team was in senior "B" hockey. He felt the group in senior "A" would not win the Allan Cup in the next three years but it could manage to stay on the same level. He felt that if Cornwall had to play clubs like Orillia and Sarnia there would be no use operating. While classifying senior "A" in this group would not be on par with western Ontario, he said it would bring packed rinks in Cornwall.

BELLEVILLE HAPPY

Dray Denyes said Belleville was happy with senior "B" rating. It was tough enough to get senior "B" players, and the job question here was a big problem. Fans here will support a senior "B" club, and, he added, they will support any club that is winning.

Joe Carlton Kingston pulled no punches in the Goodyears refusal to turn senior "A". He said "unless a cigar daddy comes up with $30,000 we have no intentions of going senior "A". We have terrific player and job problems. We do this for a hobby and do not devote our whole time to hockey. I can't see how we can compete with teams like Whitby and others and we are the only team in this group that can draw with them. If we are to have a good senior "A" club we must bring in 12 or 13 players as our local boys are not old enough. Besides we feel we'd to win once in a while."

"Belleville will have a senior "B" club that will operate, all season. But any "A" outfit that would fold halfway through it. If our club does not put hockey in Kingston someone else will and it will not be senior "B", he said.

President Buckland issued a warning note to the meeting regarding operational expenses and playing problems. He said he doubted if Whitby could get weekend games with Chatham and Windsor. He said an interlocking schedule had been arranged next season for the northern and southern senior "A" groups and this would make a lot of financing. He complimented Blair on the straightforward manner in which he had approached the group with his suggestion.

The Cornwall team, he said, got players more readily than a losing team. But he added that he did not think senior "B" clubs could afford the salary bills of the senior "A".

PREDICTED HIGHER COSTS

He predicted higher costs for senior clubs insofar as the CAHA is concerned if present plans materialize. A plan will be proposed gated at the Quebec meeting of the CAHA to provide that body with more funds. One way was by increase entry fees, certificate costs, referees and protests and everything the association does for a club. It is looking to raise $25,000 to finance the coming season however he had a plan which might avoid these extra costs which will be aired at the meeting.

It would appear, probable that clubs playing senior "A" and junior "A" will bear the biggest brunt of contributing this amount so that the whole cost of the Olympic team wont fall on the club playing Dec. 31 even if the amount is spread around the eight branches of the CAHA it should not be too much for each. After all, he said, the amount the OHA and the entry fee was ridiculously small.

He stressed "Olympic Night" be suggested as a medium of financial help to the Canadian Olympic team. Every club, he said would be asked to hold such a night and charge an extra ten cents which would go to help defray the representatives' expenses. All clubs represented at the meeting will hold a "night" for this purpose.

US Olympics Hockey Team Ready For Test

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Battle scarred Johnny Mariucci bearded his U.S. Olympic hockey stars and today, convinced he has the finest amateur players in America, but wondering whether he has the best team.

The Olympics broke training camp Tuesday after an all-winning eight-game exhibition series with three Minnesota and North Dakota. Their next match is against the University of Michigan at Detroit tonight.

"There's no question that we have the best American players available for the Olympic Games," he says. "But I'm not sure we're the best team in the country. Just business the right way.

Canada, for instance, decides its Olympic representative by tournament. Their Kitchener team defeated the Russian entrant in a visit, with support from some of the other players from other teams. Russia, Czechoslovakia and other strong teams do the same thing, I understand.

WOULD BE BETTER

"We do it here in basketball and other team sports. I think we'd be better off doing the same in hockey."

Individually, Mariucci said, the American Olympic team is top-notch. "But three or four weeks," he argues, "isn't enough to get together. A good team is organized by the year."

The exhibition games to date, the Olympics have looked slick in spots, especially on the performance of Bill Cleary of Harvard, goalie Willard Ikola of Michigan, John Mayasich and Bob Baumgartner, Matchetts of Michigan; Weldon Olson of Michigan State and Ed Siampson.

Siampson, from International Falls, Minn., and goalie Don Biagzio of Cambridge, Mass., are the only members of the 17-man squad who did not play college hockey. Ten are natives of Minnesota.

Dutchies, Troops May Play Exhibition Games

LONDON (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen may play two more exhibition hockey games against Canadian servicemen in Germany after the Olympic Games next fall Curtis d'Ampozzo, Italy, Feb. 8.

Art (Bunny) Ahearne, European president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said today he has received word from Canada that the games are being arranged "at the request of the defence department."

Ahearne, whose travel agency is handling airline reservations for the Dutchmen, said he had made reservations for the Canadian team to fly back to Canada direct from Goring before receiving a letter from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association about the postOlympic exhibition games.

ON THEIR OWN

"I've cabled the CAHA that the Dutchmen have airline reservations as far as Goring but that they now will have to make their own arrangements about getting back," said Ahearne.

The Kitchener-Waterloo club is scheduled to arrive at Prestwick, Scotland, by BOAC Jan. 18 and will play at exhibition game at Paisley, Scotland, the same night. The following day the Canadians will fly to Prague, Czechoslovakia, for games Feb. 18 and 19, proceeding to Cortina by air Feb. 20.

Penticton Vs, who regained the world hockey championship from Russia a year ago, played postournament games against Canadian servicemen before returning to Canada.

"Our service teams would certainly like to play against the Dutchmen," the army padre added. "The games against Penticton last year were a lot of fun.

Hornets Tie With All-Stars

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Marshall's clutch goal with one minute and five seconds of the third period remaining gave Pittsburgh Hornets a 4-4 overtime tie Tuesday night with the American Hockey League All-Stars.

The teams played 10 minutes of a sudden - death overtime but neither could score.

Only 2,032 fans turned out on a slushy winter night to watch the cream of the league battle the defending champion Hornets. Joe Klukay scored two of the Hornets' goals. His second, in the third period, gave Hornets a 4-3 tie.

Buffalo's Ken Wharram sent the All-Stars ahead again at 9:39 to set the stage for Hornet coach Howie Meeker to call goalie Gil Mayer out of the net at 18:21 for a power play. The strategy paid off a few seconds later when Marshall rammed home his tying goal.

The first three All-Star goals were scored by Zello Toppazzini of Providence, Fred Glover of Cleveland and Obbie O'Brien of Hershey.

Flash Goal-Scoring Potential To Turn Back Ancient Foes; Vault Colts For Fourth Spot

by GARRY ALEXANDER

Unleashing their best offensive effort of the season, the Belleville TPTs thumped the Kingston Goodyears 12-7 here last night before 1,132 fans in a free-scoring OHA Senior "B" contest.

The victory lifted the Belleville club into fourth place two points ahead of the fallen Cornwall Colts and three points behind the third place Brockville entry. It was the third straight defeat for Kingston, their longest losing streak of the season. The same two clubs meet in Kingston on Saturday night.

Cox's TPTS were at their best in the first two periods, outplaying their opponents in every department. They opened the scoring at the 35 second mark, led 3-1 at the close of the first session and held a 9-3 lead going into the final stanza. The Goodyears outscored Belleville 5-3 in the final 20 minutes, which saw both clubs throw defence to the winds. Fryia was rugged throughout, but clean, with referees Wind and Cromble assessing only four penalties, three to the winners.

Tony Parisi in the Bellevill cage played sparkling hockey in the first two periods, booting out some sure goals. He had 37 saves during the game while Jackson at the other end was called on for 40 shots. The winners fired 15 rockets at Johnson in their big second period.

Chum Fryia was the top point man of the night, netting two goals and assisting on five others. Left winger Tom Goyer aid Gus Leonard each had two goals and an equal number of assists. Bill Ward, Belleville's playing manager was the best Kingston player on the ice and helped himself to three goals and one assist. Jim Murray pulled into a tie for group scoring championship with Whitby's Bob Attersley by scoring once and assisting on two more while Hub Macey registered a hat trick.

Pete Jones, Bert Hill, Keith MacDonald, Teddy Greenlaw and Gate Wade also scored for Belleville with Bob Wilson picking up a trio of assists. Jack White and Tom Goodfellow were the other Kingston marksmen with Georges Samelenko earning three assists.

The Moirs smoothie, Pete Jones, gave the winners a 1-0 lead on the initial play of the game, taking Hill's pass in the clear and flipping it by Johnson. Keith MacDonald upped the score at 10.34, streaking in, taking Goyer's pass on the fly on a beautiful play. After Fryia made it 3-0 on a minute later, Don Senior gunned home his team's first goal from close in on the left wing with linemates Samolenko and Murray assisting.

It was all Belleville in the middle session with Hill tipping in Wilson's rebound to start the rally. A three-way pass play set White up to make it 3-1. The TPT's seventh goal came with Wilson in the penalty box. Leonard tested Johnson who went down to make the save and Fryia streaked in to golf home the rebound. Goyer's marker came on a clean breakaway while Don Murray poked home the lone Kingston tally from a scramble play at the goalmouth. Pierce checking halted any other Goodyear attacks while Parisi kicked out 13 shots.

The Goodyears pulled up to a 5-3 score by 10.30 of the third with White, Goodfellow and Senior beating Parisi. Belleville surged back however with three of their own, Goyer's marker coming on a perfect passing play with Wilson and White. Hub Macey, one of the better Kingston players on the night's action, netted another with Senior assisting. The hat trick at 19.41 to close the scoring.

Three of the four penalties came in the first period. Wilson and Greenlaw of the homesters and Jack White for Kingston. Wilson bid the only sentence of the second period.

The Goodyears were without the services of Toppazzini, sick with the flu, playing coach Les Douglas, out, for six weeks with a broken toe.

DENY LEAVING AHL

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Officials of the Pittsburgh Hornets and the board of governors of the American Hockey League Tuesday denied reports that the Hornets might quit the league or move to another city.

Joe Smith, hockey writer of the Cincinnati Enquirer, reported Monday night Cincinnati might replace Pittsburgh in the AHL. The Hornets are in the International Hockey League, was in the AHL for three seasons, leaving after 1951-52.

Boxing Guild Holds Own Wake

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Boxing Guild stages its own wake tonight. Its members will hear a plan for a new managers' group which they hope will be more to the liking of the New York state athletic commission.

Bobby Gleason, who handles heavyweight Nino Valdes, said he had reached a majority of the gold members and 1650 they indicated they are ready to dissolve and unite anew under his proposed plan.

The group would be known as the Boxing Managers League of New York, or the Boxing Managers Club of New York.

One of the first moves by the new group would be to seek the approval of commission chairman Julius Helfand. It was Helfand, in the course of an investigation of the sport, who ordered the local affiliate of the International Boxing Guild to disband by Jan. 16.

Would Take Over Baseball Club

KITCHENER (CP)—Joseph King of Toronto has offered to take over operation of the senior Intercounty baseball team here this year.

At a meeting of Canadian Legion, Kitchener branch, Tuesday it was announced King offered $800 as payment on the franchise, held by the legion. Legion members will discuss the offer at a general meeting March 5.

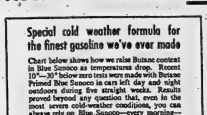
The executive was empowered to attend a senior Intercounty League meeting in Galt Jan. 15 and pay the $50 entry fee.

Negro Puckist New Coach

TORONTO (CP)—Herb Carnegie, who has been in Canadian hockey some time, is spending his time these days teaching young players how to play hockey and like it.

At one-time star forward with Ontario and Quebec amateur teams 36-year-old Herb, a Negro, is handling the hockey end of the recreation program of suburban North York township.

He's organized a school called The Future Aces and with his assistant Doug Hexter, teaches young hockey players how to play better. No National Hockey League stars may graduate from the school, but a lot of youngsters will know how to shoot and stickhandle and all be able to enjoy playing the game a little more.



Herb is living in Toronto now and working as a store-room clerk. He gave up hockey after playing for teams in such centres as Timmins, Sherbrooke, Quebec and Owen Sound.

BUN COOK ILL

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Thursday, January 12, 1956
March 21 to April 19 (Aries) — Business and vocational interests have improved aspects now. Watch investments; agreements close; so to avoid mistakes. Be patient with details, routine.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — A day for forging ahead in worthwhile endeavors. Aspects encourage study, research, teaching, scientific discussions, inventions. Mental work generally.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A beneficial outlook for those who keep sensible control of emotions and who refrain from over taxing or starting another. Conservative action important.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Be shrewd and business-like but, Diplomatic time, be reasonable and you can really get ahead. Family matters, your vocational interests under friendly stars.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Directions indicate new and fruitful opportunities, events to stir and ignite ambition, fresh achievement. But keep your head within reach. Avoid an overconfidence.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Stimulating for practical, mechanical and industrial work. Artistic and scientific professions can also advance. The better you think and work, the better the returns.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Don't permit trivial things or interfering people to hinder your progress or cause you to miss possibilities, benefits. Have faith!

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Difficult matters, sudden decisions and moves are likely now. So use your quick mind, employ sound judgment. Don't be fooled by flattery.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Just the sort of a day for getting ahead in matters that have been hanging fire for some time; also favorable for new (if sound) propositions and ideas.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Aspects suggest caution but there's no need for worry. Do your best, refrain from worry and you can have a profitable day. Success doesn't always come immediately.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — It takes thought, preparation and steady work to bring real achievement, but these things also bring greater sa' tion. Do not fear criticism from others.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — There are bright indications for the doer now — and that should mean you! Selling, buying, handling useful items, services, trades highly sponsored, too introspective. You have many talents and could succeed notably in a publicity position (any worthy trust) to which you put your best efforts. A noble spirit and companionship are your outstanding gifts.

60,000 Republicans Will Pay $100 a Plate to Help Party

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — How would you like to sit down to a dinner that is going to cost you $100?

That's what 60,000 Americans are going to do next week, all in the interests of goodfellowship and support for the party—the Republican party. This $100-a-plater (figuratively speaking) love feast will take place the night of Jan. 30 when the Republicans kick off their money-raising campaign for this year's congressional elections.

Apart from the monetary aspects of the thing, they'll be known as "salute to Eisenhower" dinners, to mark the third anniversary of Dwight D. Eisenhower's inauguration as the first Republican president in 20 years. There will be 54 of them, in cities from coast to coast and from the Canadian to the Mexican border.

Strictly speaking, all 60,000 dinners are not going to cost $100. While $100-a-plate affairs will be in the majority there will be a number of $50 shin-digs and others going at a mere $25 a platter for those who are feeling indigestion at the thought of laying out the equivalent of a month's rent for a single meal.

No estimate has been made publicly as to the amount of money expected to flow into the Republican war chest from the $100 dinners, but to break bread, observers figure the sum ought to run into several million dollars.

This will give the Republicans an early financial advantage over the Democrats, who only last year managed to wipe out the $800,000 deficit left over from their unsuccessful 1952 campaign.

The Democrats, who originated the idea of the $100-a-plate political dinner back in the high tide of the Roosevelten new deal in 1936, haven't yet laid plans for their fund-raising banquets. Thatrs will take place in the next month or two.

For a time, the Republicans shied away from the $100 bite and went in for extreme austerity in the matter of lavish and extravagance. Beginning in 1950, they put on an annual Lincoln Day rally here and charged $1 for a bun lunch, distributed by Republican ladies who were careful not to wear mink. The box-lunch affairs were described, in the party vernacular, as "homespun."

Out in Kansas City, Incidentally, the cost of living and the flationary post - Christmas bankroll have caught up with an annual Jefferson Day rally here and charged $1 for a bun lunch, distributed by Republican ladies who were careful not to wear mink. The box-lunch affairs were described, in the party vernacular, as "homespun."

STAGE DEMONSTRATION

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Pro-Peron elements hurled bottles and stones in an attempt Tuesday night to disrupt a huge rally called by a group of political parties supporting the provisional government of general president Pedro Aramburu. Police arrested 57 troublemakers after the rally ended in front of the National Congress Building. Some spectators were injured by missiles.

Little Benny's Notebook

Saturday morning I was talking and arguing with Glasses Magee about different things in general nothing in particular, and he said, Hay, I wonder if Flora and Dora have had it yet.

Meening the 2 bewty looking twins down in the next block, and I said, Let's go down and see, they cant do any more than keep on repeeching to us.

Sure, what can we lose? Glasses said.

And we went down, and Flora and Dora were outside of their house on clinic chairs, and we walked up to them independent looking as if nothing was the matter and never had been, and they just stood there on their chairs talking to each other as if they thought they were still alone, and after a while I said, Hello there.

Her just keeping on talking to Dora, and Glasses said, Hello there, and Dora kept right on talking to Flora, and I said to Glasses, Oh well, let's go, we are just going to ask Flora if she wants to go to the Saturday Kid show at the Little Grand this afternoon, but I guess it's not important.

That's just what I was going to ask Dora, but let's go, Glasses said, and Dora kept right on talking.

Say, how long have you been here?

We just got here, do you 2 want to go to the show here with us? I said, and they quick said they did, and their mother called them in for lunch, and Glasses said, Good night, what are we going to do for money, I haven't got any.

Me neither, I said, and we made it up to take a long walk after lunch and tell the twins we forgot all about it the next time we see them.

The worst they can do being to pretend we're not there again.

Topsy-Turvy Weather Hangs On in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Southern Quebec's two-day chunk of topsy-turvy January weather stayed on today, combining high temperatures with shiver-provoking gusty breezes.

Damage reports of Tuesday night gales added a church steeple to the list. Lumbering operations idled at Saint-Paulin in the Trois-Rivieres district and area ice fishing operations for dampyed were disrupted.

So far, heaviest damage has been in the Quebec City area where Tuesday night winds up to 60 miles an hour blew off roofs of three city homes, hurled ice chunks into autos, damaged construction projects and tore down television aerials. Two persons were taken to hospital.

At Cape-a-l'Aigle, a village 90 miles east of Quebec, the steeple of the parish church came tumbling down. No one was injured.

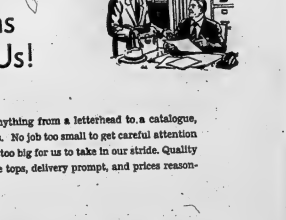
NEW YORK (AP)—The teamsters union decided Tuesday night to call 17,000 cab drivers off New York streets Jan. 18 to take a strike vote. The union, which claims to represent 17,000 out of 20,000 drivers of fleet-owned taxis, is trying to force the 140 fleet owners to recognize it as the drivers' bargaining agent.

Indian Diplomat Wants Bomb Test Banned

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — India's V. K. Krishna Menon Tuesday urged the United States to give up its plans for a new superbomb test in the Pacific. He appealed to the United States and Russia to ban such experimental blasts by mutual agreement.

"What do you expect to prove?" the Indian diplomat asked in commenting on reports that the United States is getting ready for more H-bomb tests.



"You know enough is destroy the world," Krishna Menon continued. "Both sides have enough destructive power now to destroy this planet. Do they want to destroy another planet? There is no end to the amount of power that can be generated for destructive purposes.

"In the interests of humanity, the United States and Russia should get together immediately and stop such tests."

Public Sessions On Coastal Shipping Ending

OTTAWA (CP)—The royal commission on coastal shipping is expected to end its public sessions this week after months of inquiry into problems of Canada's inshore ship operators and its shipbuilding industry.

Only final argument from a half-dozen major associations and companies remains to be heard before the three-man group under Mr. Justice W. F. Spence of the Ontario Supreme Court sits down to draft a report which may be reflected eventually in federal legislation.

Monday the Manitoba government, interested in holding down the province's transportation costs, pressed for retention of the existing situation under which low-cost United Kingdom ships have free access to trade between Canadian ports on the seaboard and inland waterways.

Manitoba attacked suggestions of various kinds for restrictions on U. K. shipping, declaring this would tend to nullify cargo rate reductions which British competition could bring about after the opening of the St. Lawrence seaway.

The Canadian Pacific Railway urged that all ships in the coastal trade be subjected to licensing and rate regulation under the board of transport commissioners. This would help give the railways an equal chance to compete with the water carriers.

The Canadian National Railways proposed a different approach. It said "adequate charges" should be imposed on non-Canadian ships to "equalize the chances for competition."

The Dominion Marine Association, representing Great Lakes and St. Lawrence river vessel operators, asked that the trade be limited to Canadian ships on the river and lakes.

MARRIAGE LED TO LIFE OF FEAR

Marriage of Mrs. Annie Temoconko last summer resulted in a fear-ridden existence in a lonely bush cabin near Kenora, Ont. She met her future husband in Oakburn, Man., then moved to Kenora, where he was a railway section-hand. Mike Temoconko, a Russian immigrant, had been tortured and starved as a prisoner-of-war in Germany, and appeared obsessed with memories. When, in answer to a letter from Mrs. Temoconko, her brother, Tony Sydor went to the cabin, he was shot at by Temoconko. Sydor sought police help, but Mike barricaded himself in the cabin, shooting at police, while his wife begged him to stop. Finally, he forced her to crawl with him through the snow and outside of the police cordon, and they started to walk down the railway track. Police caught up with them and Mike, though he had fired over 100 bullets at them from the shack, surrendered peacefully. He is being held for medical examination.—Central Press Canadian.

Do Your Tomato Fruits Crack?

OTTAWA— Water, either as rain or applied as irrigation, is most consistently associated with fruit cracking of tomato fruits, L. S. Ounsworth of the Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture at Harrow, Ontario, states that other conditions influencing cracking include, shading, pruning, age of fruit, amount of foliage, and root development. Radial cracking, he says, is hereditary and plant breeders are attempting to produce improved varieties.

Recent irrigation studies at Harrow indicate that efficient use of water does not increase cracking. In fact, if a uniform soil moisture level is maintained through irrigation, cracking of the tomato may be reduced. Heavy irrigations on the other hand have increased fruit splitting and even a light rain has been found to influence the degree of cracking.

Tomato varieties which have the uniform ripening characteristics carry much more resistance to radial cracking than those varieties with dark green shoulders in the immature stages. By using this characteristic the plant breeder can work toward the development of varieties resistant to cracking. A variety named Harrow has quite high resistance to radial cracking. This variety developed at the Harrow Experimental Farm is an early market tomato which produces a large yield of medium sized fruit on a determinate vine. It is particularly well suited to growing on stakes.

Tomato fruits are most subject to cracking just before they begin to turn color. If weather and soil conditions are unfavorable at this stage of development, cracking may be quite serious.

Final Tax-Sharing Proposal Made To Provinces

No New Major Concessions Yielded in Latest Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal equalization payments to the provinces under the proposed new tax-sharing formula would amount to $125,251,000 on the basis of the 1955-56 fiscal year, Finance Minister Harris estimated today.

The equalization payments would be designed to bring the per capita direct tax revenue of the less wealthy provinces to the average level of the two wealthier ones, Ontario and British Columbia.

All provinces except Ontario would get payments, although there may be some small reductions because of special provincial corporation taxes.

Excluding these deductions, Quebec would get $40,589,000; Saskatchewan $17,782,000; Nova Scotia $13,945,000; Alberta $13,081,000; Manitoba $12,733,000; New Brunswick $11,733,000; Newfoundland $9,000; Prince Edward Island $3,362,000; British Columbia $2,643,000.

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The provinces are assured of minimum payment guarantees and 50 per cent of all "somewhat greater" revenues under Prime Minister St. Laurent's new tax-sharing proposal.

But on the whole Mr. St. Laurent has made no new major concessions with the exception of yielding a little on the federal share of the corporation tax field.

It appeared his formula—outlined in Jan. 6 letters to the provinces tabled in the Commons Wednesday—may be his final word, though he has suggested a federal-provincial body of experts get together early next month to clarify technical details.

The new concession from previous suggestions is the increase to nine per cent from 8½ federal deduction to allow for provincial taxes on corporation incomes.

This will give provinces a little larger slice of the corporation tax field without the need of double taxation.

But Mr. St. Laurent did not retreat from previous proposals to allow a deduction of 10 per cent of federal levies on personal income and 50 per cent of federal tolls on inheritances to cover provincial taxes in these fields.

The new tax-sharing plan, linked with spread-the-wealth equalization and stabilization payments, is proposed as a five-year scheme to replace federal-provincial tax rental agreements which expire in March, 1957.

The new formula incorporates some features of the tax rental pacts under which all provinces except Quebec have rented their direct tax fields to the central government in exchange for annual payments.

There are guarantees of minimum payments. In the first year of the plan provinces are guaranteed to get not less than they obtained in the final year of the rental pacts. The following year they would be guaranteed 90 per cent of what they got in the previous year. In subsequent years they would be guaranteed 80 per cent of the average received in the previous two years.

Federal equalization payments would bring the provinces' per capita revenue from the direct tax field to the average of the wealthiest provinces—Ontario and British Columbia.

Federal Govt. Rejects Ontario Relief Request

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario government today asked the federal government to increase the scale of its proposed unemployment relief payments but was turned down.

However, a provincial delegation was told by federal cabinet ministers that the federal government is prepared to meet Ontario requests for changes in some administrative details for that province in any agreement.

A federal spokesman emphasized no change could be made for Ontario in the federal government's basic policy of paying half the cost of relief for needy unemployed when they exceed 45 per cent of a province's population.

Despite the Ottawa government's firmness on the increased payment issue, one federal authority said after the conference there appear good prospects Ontario will sign a relief-sharing agreement.

LONDON POLICE GET 1,000 TIPS IN GIRL'S DEATH

Are Working Overtime To Sift Information

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—This city's detective force was working overtime for the fifth day today in a search for the abductor of Susan Cadieux, five-year-old girl sexually violated and left to die last Saturday morning.

The 22 detectives on the city police force had received almost 1,000 calls from citizens offering information and had investigated many of them, as well as questioning three score known sex deviates and "questionable characters" in the area.

Police officials said the information on which each search was based was usually a description of a man seen talking to the girl before she vanished from St. Mary's church yard Friday night, was skimpy.

GUARANTEES PROTECTION

Police chief Earl Knight has guaranteed protection and anonymity for anyone who might be reluctant to disclose information.

Inspector Thomas Wright of the criminal investigation branch of the Ontario Provincial Police, here for a murder-trial, said: "One little scrap of information could break this case wide open within a half hour. I beseech citizens of London answer the chief constable's appeal."

Church and women's groups have indicated they will take definite steps to urge provincial and federal governments to review the treatment and punishment of sex deviates.

At first child, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Wentworth, said in Hamilton Wednesday night that if the people of Ontario want something done about the problem they should write a letter to their members of Parliament and the legislature.

Mr. Child said he conferred with Attorney-General Roberts Wednesday and that the provincial minister reminded him that the control and punishment of sex deviates is a matter for answer under the Criminal Code and that a royal commission on the problem will sit in Toronto Feb. 8.

He said: "The present Criminal Code is not nearly strong enough to be of any use. The penalties are not nearly a deterrent."

Nine Per Cent Seaway Project Now Completed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation issued a report Wednesday saying that—in terms of cost—nine per cent of the seaway project has been completed in the project's first construction season.

Administrator Lewis A. Castle said his agency anticipated that 1956 work will bring the $90,000,000 project to 44 per cent of completion.

Castle said the corporation had a target date of July, 1958, for opening the Atlantic-to-Great Lakes seaway for ships up to 14-foot draft. Navigation for 27-foot draft vessels is scheduled to begin in the spring of 1959.

Is Found Guilty On Murder Count

TORONTO (CP)—Gergorio Giannotti, 27, is scheduled to be hanged here by the murder of Mrs. Lilio Sturm, 29, found with her throat cut in the veranda of her midtown home last summer.

An astute court jury Wednesday took only one hour to reach a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation for mercy. Chief Justice of Ontario Sir Robert Gale sentenced Giannotti to death.

A statement made to police by Giannotti at his arrest was read in court, in it he said he kept company with Mrs. Sturm for three months before the arrival of her husband Otto from Germany.

Frightened by Ottawa Fire Toll, Families Plan to Sleep in Relays

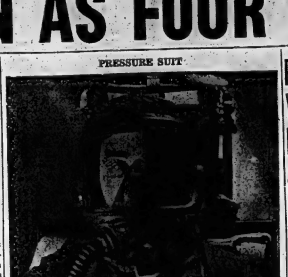
By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A shocked capital woke up today to another multiple-death fire.

A chill fear—a fear of death by fire—hung over the city like smoke in a windless sky.

It is no exaggeration to say that Ottawa is frightened. There seems to be no explanation for the series of fires that have killed 37 persons, including 18 children, since Nov. 18.

In many of the cases, the fire department has so far been unable to find the causes.



Controller Roy Donaldson, at the scene of today's four-death inferno, said the situation is alarming, and that there seems to be no control over it.

Mr. Donaldson, who reports to city council for the fire department, said he will look into the possibility of bringing the Ontario fire marshall here to launch a fire prevention campaign.

He suggested that Ottawa citizens should take prevention around their family tablets, especially how, if possible, to avoid panic.

Fires Cause 167 Deaths In Canada Since November 1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fire deaths in Ottawa today of a mother and her three children raised the winter fire-death toll in Canada to 167.

More than half the victims were children.

A Canadian Press survey shows that from last Nov. 1 to 9 a. m. today 86 persons died in Ontario, 45 in Quebec, 22 in British Columbia, 10 in New Brunswick, 11 in Manitoba, six in Alberta and Nova Scotia, five in Saskatchewan and three in Newfoundland. There were no deaths reported in Prince Edward Island.

Defective heating equipment, careless smoking and faulty wiring were listed as the main causes.

The toll so far is believed the greatest of any winter in Canada's history.

Twenty-five children perished in Ontario. Eight died in Ottawa in two fires within two days. Three daughters of Curly Moynahan, a lieutenant of the Ottawa fire department and a city fireman, Ottawa Rough Riders football star, died with their mother in a fire at their home today. Five small children of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Road died Wednesday in a fire that destroyed their two-story frame house.

At Amos, in northwestern Quebec, a mother and seven children were burned to death Jan. 8 in Canada's greatest multiple fire hazards.

Since Nov. 21 Quebec has had seven fires in which more than two persons died. Twenty-eight persons were either burned to death or suffered fatal injuries in the seven listed.

Of British Columbia's toll at least 21 were children. Four deaths were caused by insufficient insulation around chimneys and stovepipes. One child died of burns suffered playing with matches.

In Nova Scotia, where four children burned to death during the period of the survey, Fire Chief Fred McGillivary of Halifax said it is criminal negligence to leave children alone in a house.

Earle Sturgeon, deputy fire marshal for New Brunswick, said the public must be educated to the fact that fire is "one of the greatest killers on the loose."

"prosecutions of parents for criminal negligence should be carried out in all issues where children are left alone and die as a result . . . where evidence would support the charge."

In St. John's, Nfld. Fire Commissioner Frank Ryan said almost every fire can be traced to the "human element."

"Things just don't blow up of their own accord." He listed careless use of inflammable liquids and oil stoves as one of the chief fire hazards.

Secretary Dulles Seen Stirring Controversy on Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles has gained a reputation for sometimes stating the harsh facts of United States diplomacy in blunt undiplomatic words which stir up controversy.

Today, it appears, he may have done it again.

He may also have sparked a debate in this U.S. election year on the effectiveness of the "policy of deterrence" he credits with holding the Chinese Communists at bay in Korea and Indochina in 1953, and more recently in the Formosa area.

In addition, he seems to have posed sharply the question of American readiness to wage atomic war to break up the Communist political tactics of the Communist high command in Moscow.

In an article in Life magazine, out today, Dulles is quoted as saying it is "a pretty fair inference" that American readiness to fight on a broader scale if necessary brought the Korean War to an end and that the same "policy of deterrence" kept the Red Chinese from marching into Indochina prior to mid-1954 and has stopped them in the Formosa area.

He is also quoted as saying:

"You have to take chances for peace, just as you must take chances in war. Some say that we were brought to the verge of war (in the three instances cited). Of course we were brought to the verge of war.

"The ability to get to the verge without getting into war is the necessary art. If you cannot master it, you inevitably get into war. If you try to run away from it, if you are scared to go to the brink, you are sure to get into it. We've had to look it square in the face. . . . We walked to the brink and we looked it in the face. We took strong action."

IROQUOIS, Ont. (CP) — A 25-year-old construction worker was killed Wednesday when the trailer on his big earth mover jack-knifed and crushed his head against the tractor cab. RENFREW SOUTH VOTES TODAY IN BY-ELECTION

Tea, Cakes, Dancing Used to Woo Electors

RENFREW (CP)—Voters, wooed with tea and cakes, square dancing and oldtime fiddling, go to the polls today to elect a new representative for the provincial riding of Renfrew South.

Polls were to open at 8 a.m. EST and close at 7 p.m. in a byelection called to fill the seat made vacant by the death last November of James Dempsey, controversial Progressive Conservative who had held it 32 years.

The Progressive Conservatives now hold 83 seats in the 98-member House, Liberals 10, CCF three and Liberal-Labor one.

The choice was between Progressive Conservative James A. Maloney, 52 - year - old Renfrew lawyer, and Nathaniel E. Lindsay, 37-year-old Liberal who operates a feed and grain business in this Ottawa valley town.

There were few sharp political issues in the two-party campaign for the seat. But there were plenty of dances, meetings and afternoon tea parties and receptions at which the candidates and their supporters could mingle and chat with prospective voters.

NEED MORE ROADS

Main political talking point revolved around the need for more roads in the area.

Premier Frost, who dropped by Renfrew to lend his support Mr. Maloney at several tea parties and receptions, mentioned possible construction of a highway through the area to Toronto. He said he'd put Mr. Maloney to work in the constituency's interests if the lawyer were elected.

Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver, who accompanied Mr. Lindsay and an oldtime dance band from place to place, said the Frost government is building roads in the Ottawa valley to build a great network of highways in the Toronto-Hamilton-Niagara area. He termed the premier's promise to use Mr. Maloney if elected "political horsewash."

Mrs. Oliver, speaking during a square dance in the Renfrew separate school auditorium, said Premier Frost has already promised no increase in taxation in the current fiscal year. Yet only a few weeks ago he had announced increases in automobile licence fees and a boost of $10,000,000 in Ontario motorists' bills.

He said Renfrew South, the Ottawa valley and all eastern Ontario could not expect to benefit from the Frost government with the extra revenue. The Frost government was the first government to adopt the principle that it was politically expedient to give more money back to the areas densely populated Toronto-Hamilton-Niagara area.

Mrs. Oliver, speaking in the auditorium, Premier Frost told a tea party-reception that he was sure his "nose" can be "thrown directly across the height of land between Renfrew county and the central Ontario industrial area."

The Arnprior-Renfrew district, with a new iron ore field at Calabogie and expanding uranium developments around Bancroft, would then have a short, direct route to the province's centre of population.

Fireman's Wife And 3 Daughters Burned To Death

Father at Funeral of Niece Victim of Pervert at London

OTTAWA (CP) — Fire Chief John Foote said "a suspicion of arson is indicated" in a fire which killed four persons here today.

Earlier, Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario said at Toronto there was no reason to suspect arson in the fire which took the lives of Mrs. Cyril Moynahan, wife of a fire department lieutenant, and three of their five children.

Chief Foote's statement also conflicted with one made earlier by Controller Roy Donaldson at the scene that arson was not suspected. Mr. Donaldson reports to city council for the fire department.

STARTED ON PORCH

Inspector Phil Larkin of the fire investigation branch said the fire started in an open porch at the rear of the west-end Moynahan home.

Victims of the fire which gutted the two-storey frame house were Mrs. Moynahan, 34, and her daughters Maureen, 11, Sandra, 6 and Jo-Ann, 4.

Three child-killing fires have occurred recently within a radius of 12 blocks in the city's west end. One Wednesday claimed the lives of five children and one on Christmas also killed five children.

Lieut. Moynahan was in London, Ont., where he was a pallbearer Tuesday at the funeral of his five-year-old niece, Susan Cadieux, who died of exposure last week after being attacked by a sex deviate.

RESCUED BROTHER

The Moynahan's oldest daughter, 10-year-old Dianne, passed 18-month-old Richey to a neighbor on a ladder and then fled herself after suffering head and arm burns in a vain attempt to help her mother and the three older children.

Mrs. Wednesday morning five of the six children of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Road perished in another blaze which ruined their house in the same general area of the city.

Today's tragedy raised the fire toll in Ottawa, and district, to 37 dead since mid-November. 17 of the victims being in Ottawa proper and 11 of the others in the city's west end. Twenty-three of the 32 were children.

DISCOUNT ARSON

This shocked capital and district now has mounted four-sevenths of Ontario's total fire deaths toll of 56 since November 23.

Arson was discounted by city officials.

Neighbors were awakened about 5:30 a. m. by the screams of Dianne, who was at a bedroom window.

Ernest Holly, a neighbor, was prevented by flames from entering the front door and, after a ladder lying beside the house, put it up to the window in which Dianne stood. He carried Rickey down and was followed by Dianne.

JUMPS TO SAFETY

Dianne leaped up again but by this time there was nothing more he could do. Finally, he had to jump to safety. He was taken to hospital with burns to the face and hands.

Dianne later talked with her father by telephone and it was understood he would fly back to Ottawa today.

Million Ontario School Children Will Receive Salk Polio Vaccine

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Salk anti-polio vaccine will be given to approximately 1,000,000 Ontario children this year, starting as soon as possible after March 1, Health Minister Phillips said Wednesday.

He told a home and school association meeting in his home city:

"We have $3,375,000 declared and we have the money set aside to pay for it."

Only a shortage of the vaccine could curtail the program, First doses would be given to the people of grades 1, 2, 5, 6, 7 and 8 in the elementary schools, and the second doses four to eight weeks later. First graders will receive their shots to 350,000 children in grades 1, 2 and 3. Those children, now in grades 2, 3 and 4, would receive their third doses at the same time the first doses are being given to the other grades.

If sufficient serum is available after this program is completed, it would be given to children in the 2-to-5 age group. Children under two years of age usually have enough natural immunity, Dr. Phillips said, adding that very few children under two ever contracted polio.

66 Passengers Burned to Death On Korean Ship

SEOUL (AP)—Sixty-six passengers, including several small children trapped in a third-class cabin, were burned to death today as flames roared through a small coastal ship.

Police said a cabin boy dropped a kerosene lamp, turning the cluttered, below-deck cabin into an inferno.

The cabin boy, Park Chong Chul, 20, and the captain, Kim Han Suk, were arrested on a charge of negligence.

It was South Korea's biggest ship disaster since Jan. 1953, when a burning ship capsized off Pusan with a reported loss of 249 lives.

Police Blotter

Police activity continued correspondingly little over routine matters at the city police station and patrols of police headquarters during the past 24 hours.

Arnold C. Campbell Named Chairman of High School Board at First Meeting

Member of the board since its inception in 1858 and former chairman of the now disbanded Board of Education, Mr. Arnold C. Campbell was named chairman of the new Quinte District High School Board at the inaugural meeting held Wednesday evening. Mr. Campbell succeeds Mrs. (Dr.) Ferley, chairman Roy Sills, who becomes this year's vice chairman.

Mr. Campbell has taken a keen interest in educational matters in the city, being first elected to the board of education ten years ago. Since that time he has headed many committees and was chairman of the Board of Education in 1951, the last year before the public and high school boards were separated. He is now vacationing in Florida.

Little business other than that of organization was conducted at the inaugural which saw Rev. R.W. T. Middleton of Bayside conduct the invocation. The retiring board chairman Roy Sills was presented with an inscribed gavel by Lorne Musgrove on behalf of the teachers of the two high schools.

A committee of Miss J. Ticket and Roy Sills was set up to investigate and recommend which trustee organizations the board should subscribe to.

The resignation of Peter Lakaris, caretaker at the Quinte Secondary School, was accepted with Glen Murray being appointed in his place.

The board will hold a special meeting January 19th to consider salary requests from staff members, while a second special meeting will be held January 30th to finalize the year's budget requirements.

Debenture payments on the new Quinte Secondary School will commence this year with the city's share expected to add about one mill to the city tax rate, increased requirements for the first two high schools are expected to raise the tax rate close to another mill.

The annual debenture costs for the new school will be $452,000, the city's share being $3.75 per cent or about $23,500. With government grant the cost will be reduced to about $12,500 or one mill. The total cost of the debenture costs will be paid by Thurlow, Tyendinaga and the townships which along with Belleville go to make up the high school district.

Thurlow's share of the new school debenture costs will be 23.7 per cent or $107,124. Tyendinaga, 6.13 per cent or $3,121.20 and Ameliasburg, 4.8 per cent or $3,272.30.

Due to increased assessment in the various municipalities, Belleville's percentage of high school costs has risen to 59.37.

Total debentures to be paid this year by the high school board, including payments of the Belleville Collegiate debentures, will be $101,000, which after grants will be reduced to about $51,000.

Obituary

MRS. JANE MIDDLEJOHN

Death claimed one of the oldest pioneer ladies of Ryletone on Friday morning when the person of "Aunt" Jane Middlejohn, as she was known by relatives and friends alike, Mrs. Middlejohn had been in failing health for some time, following a fall in May, 8 months ago, when she broke her hip. She had been confined to Belleville General Hospital for some time and for the past year lived in the Hastings County Home. At the time of her death she was in her 95th year. Her husband, James Middlejohn predeceased her 2 years ago.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dunnick of Seymour, and came to the farm East of the Town Line, now owned by Fred Bateman, as a bride.

They had no children, and since the death of her husband, Miss Middlejohn made her home for some time with her brother-in-law George Middlejohn, and daughter, Jessie Tweed.

Other times she has also lived with two nieces, Mrs. Edgar McGowan and Mrs. Percy Elliott, at Sine and West Huntingdon.

She was a faithful member of Ryletone United Church where she lived here, and took part in Church and Sunday School work. Funeral service was held at "Beaver Hall" funeral home, in Campbellford, on Monday afternoon, with the body was placed in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Seymour. Service was conducted by Rev. Gordon Whitehorne, and was a double service for Mrs. Middlejohn and Mrs. Maggie Wilson, her niece, formerly of Campbellford and Toronto. Aunt Jane will be missed by a great number of friends and relatives around the district where she lived. She is survived besides her husband James, by one brother, Peter Dunnick, Seymour, at a late date.

Bearers and flower bearers were Messrs. Granville and Lawrence Middlejohn; Earl Finch; George Atchison; Ray Stewart; Murray Petherick; Roy and Harry Harmun.

THOMAS WILLIAM DAY

The funeral of Thomas William Day was held Wednesday, Jan. 11th at the Church of the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Chapel, Belleville. Rev. Ross Hall conducted the service.

Bearers were Ernest Cockell, Jack Sweet, Joseph Dale, Walter Day, Ronald Day and Cecil Day. Interment took place in Belleville cemetery.

B.C.I.V.S. Home-School Assoc. Holds "Open House"

On Monday, in spite of the rain and treacherous ice, a record number of parents turned out for the annual "Open House" at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School.

A brief business period, with the president, Mrs. R. G. Williams, in the chair, preceded the parents' visits to the classrooms.

Mrs. Williams asked the parents to volunteer their services to help the teachers in chaperoning the Friday night dances at the Collegiate. If only three parents were called if they wished to help support a team in the Minor Hockey League. It was explained that each Home and School Association wishing to contribute did so through the Central Committee of Home and School and it was hoped that $60. would be raised.

It was moved by Mr. R. Poste, seconded by Mrs. H. Fuke and voted on unanimously that the B. C. I. V. S. Home and School Association lend its support to this worthwhile cause in the amount of $10.

SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

Two students made announcements about school activities. Paula Freeman, on behalf of the Dramatic Club told of the extensive preparations now being made in taking part, but also by those behind the wings in building all the sets, for their presentation of "Ghost Road", which takkes place next week.

Gloria Reid made an announcement on behalf of the B. C. I. V. S. Glee Club. Under the direction of Mr. Templer, they are presenting, "Hansel and Gretel" the beginning of next month. As this is a short operetta lasting only an hour and a half, the Glee Club is adding a half hour of choral work and will be presenting such favorites as, "On Top of Old Smoky" and the "Brahms' Lullaby". The B.C.I.V.S. orchestra is to assist in this initial appearance also.

Principal Orr spoke briefly, expressing his delight at such a fine turnout of parents, which he believed showed their interest in their children's education. He asked each parent to remember the question, "How can a parent help the teacher?" "Education", he said, "is three-sided, the parents, the teacher and the pupil working together." The first goal to strive for is regular attendance, unless a pupil is ill. Secondly, the parents were asked to be responsible in seeing that their children do a proper amount of homework; the pupil should do at least an hour's homework each day and more in the higher grades with three hours homework in grades 12 and 13.

He also urged parents to phone the school office both if this amount was not being done, and also if a pupil found it necessary to do four or five hours of homework a day and every effort would be made to rectify the trouble.

DISCUSS REPORTS

As the parents prepared to visit the teachers in their classrooms, Mr. Orr asked them to try to keep their visits to each teacher to about five minutes and to just discuss the Christmas report cards. In this way every parent might see the teachers he desired. Appointments could be made for other matters at a time convenient to the teacher, and the parent.

Upon closing the business portion of the program, Mr. Williams invited all parents present to come again to the February meeting which is to be a panel discussion on parents' problems.

Members of the Keyette Club distributed floor plans of the Collegiate to the parents and a new idea this year which was much appreciated by the parents, was their acting as guides for those to whom ever they had difficulty in locating a certain teacher.

Once again "Open House" proved a profitable evening both for the teacher and the parents and it is hoped, also for the pupil, for whom it was planned.

Sting by Wasp Fatal to Child

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—Sting in the living room of their farm home Wednesday night, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Schuster heard a scream from a bedroom where their 10-year-old daughter, Jeanie, was sleeping.

As they burst into the room Jeanie gave a low moan and lost consciousness. The bewildered parents tried frantically to determine what had happened.

Remembering that his daughter had fallen seriously ill after being stung by wasps on two previous occasions, Schuster called a doctor. The girl was dead when he arrived.

The doctor said Jeannie had died of anaphylactic shock—induced by extreme sensibility to insect stings.

Toronto Holdup Loot Believed Gambled Away

TORONTO (CP) — The $4,035 snatched Nov. 16 in a holdup of the Bank of Nova Scotia in downtown Toronto may have been spent on gambling in Las Vegas, police said today.

Richard (Dickie) Anderson, 20, charged Wednesday night with the robbery, said his accomplice, Carl Rosen, skipped town with the money, leaving him "holding the bag."

Rosen, a Toronto barber and part-time musician, is in custody in the United States on armed robbery and kidnapping charges. When arrested in Las Vegas last month, he was broke.

The bank money was snatched from Ruth Conery, 18, a clerk in the coupon department. She later told police she had been met with Anderson several times and had mentioned bank operations to him.

On November 16 a gunman entered the bank's basement and handed Miss Conery a note with the message: "This is a holdup, don't move."

Meanwhile, police said, Anderson phoned the manager of the coupon department from a spot in the bank where he could watch the manager and kept him talking until his accomplice escaped with the cash.

No charge has been laid against Miss Conery.

1,000 HOMELESS IN WORST FLOODS IN MARITIMES HISTORY

Rising waters of the Sackville river in New Brunswick have covered lowlands for miles around, marooning villages and farms in the worst flood in Maritimes history. Citizens by the score have been evacuated from their homes by boat.

Half a dozen Maritime rivers are in flood and continued rain threatens to drive more families from their homes. The floods have spread over Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island with winds up to 60 mph being recorded. Here, on a Nova Scotia road, Rev. George Simpson, a Baptist minister, lends a hand in unloading a swamped truck, one of the thousands of vehicles stalled, some of them under 10 feet of water. An estimated thousand persons have been forced to leave their homes.

No Check Made After Criminally Insane Released

TORONTO (CP)—An average of one mental patient a week is released from the criminally-insane section of the Ontario mental hospital at Penetanguishene and no further check is made of the patient's subsequent behavior, Dr. W. A. Cardwell, the superintendent, said today.

He was commenting on the case of Robert E. Martin, inmate in the hospital for 11 years, who Wednesday was declared unfit to be tried for murder in the slaying of Dr. Rex Hylton.

Dr. Charles Tennant, former head of the hospital, told the jury he would not have released Martin if he were still in charge of the hospital.

Dr. Cardwell said today that Martin, while confined to the criminally-insane section, had never been charged with any offence. Patients facing a charge are not released and Martin now will be confined for life, he said.

Boston's Great Tar Baby of Ring Langford, Dies

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Sam Langford, Boston's great "Tar Baby" of the ring of yesteryear, died today in a nursing home at the age of 78. He was a native of Weymouth, N. S.

Until recent weeks, when his infirmities caught up with him, the legendary figure was a familiar sight on Cambridge streets as he tapped his way with a white cane.

Friends and old boxing fans frequently stopped him to chat about old days and the present crop of boxers.

None is expected to equal the feats of the "Tar Baby" who is reputed to have fought 642 bouts from 1902 to 1923, many against men who greatly outweighed him. Officially he was classified as a welterweight.

Sam's greatest ring weight was only 162½ yet he battled, and beat, many a heavyweight. And in 1906 when he lost a close 15-round decision in nearby Chelsea to Jack Johnson—the same Johnson who later won the title as world heavyweight titlist, Sam weighed a mere 145.

Sam's only source of income was a trust fund set up by the New York Herald Tribune at the instigation of that paper's sports writer, Al Lacey, after Langford was found blind and in dire circumstances in a frigid, cheerless room in New York's Harlem.

REDS MAKE OFFERS

NEW DELHI (AP)—Indian officials disclosed Wednesday that Russia has made new economic aid offers to India, including the building of a complete aluminum industry and expansion of a major hydro-electric project.

Spot Promotion For Paratrooper

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP)—Hurtling from a sky filled with gently swaying parachutes, the sergeant, his chute twisted in a cigaret roll, was seconds from death.

Then fate stepped in, in this case named Lezzie Smith, a big Negro paratrooper from Cleveland.

As Sgt. James Closson of Everett, Mass., flashed past, Smith got a grip of Closson's parachute and had himself a hitchhiker.

Both men landed safely, to the relief of spectators, who included Brig.-Gen. Joseph Stilwell, Jr., commander of the 188th Regiment of the 11th Airborne Division. He promoted Smith to private first class on the spot.

Young Salesman Still Being Held For Questioning

NEW YORK (AP) — A young salesman was still being held today for questioning in the Christmas Eve disappearance of a 20-year-old model's dress designer whose body, police believe, may be in the Hudson river or dissected.

Authorities believe pretty Jacqueline Smith, who came from Pennsylvania to make her mark in the designing world, died at the hands of a boarding house roomer.

Under questioning is 24-year-old Thomas G. Daniel, who steadily dated Miss Smith since last June. The girl has been missing since she visited his apartment Christmas Eve.

Authorities said Daniel has given conflicting stories about his girl friend's disappearance: That she walked out on him, or dozed on a couch; that she committed suicide with a knife when he refused to marry her and that he then dumped her body into the Hudson; and that a second man was involved.

Three Bushmen Will Stand Trial For Murder

TIMMINS (CP)—Three Cochrane bushmen were committed Wednesday for trial on a joint murder charge.

Paul Gauthier, 28; Armand Hebert, 24, and Florent Lapoint, 23, were charged with murdering Joseph Rizzo, 67-year-old grocer at nearby Hunta last Dec. 13 during a robbery. Hunta is 14 miles west of Cochrane.

Mr. Rizzo was found badly beaten and bound hand and foot to his bed in his small store on Highway 11. He died three days later in hospital. A post mortem revealed death was due to a fractured neck and spinal injuries.

The three accused, arrested shortly after the slaying, were first charged with robbery with violence. Hebert and Lapointe were remanded to March 14 for sentence on joint charges of robbery with violence. Gauthier was remanded to the same date for trial on the same charge.

WEATHER, WHETHER YOU LIKE IT OR NOT

Nothing provokes conversation like the weather, fortunately.

Climate has been described as "what the whole country is supposed to get" while weather is "what is happening right here."

What is happening right here is really not a fit subject for lengthy discussion in a family journal. Besides, what is happening here and now may not be what will be happening again for several hundred years, we hope.

However, out of the miasmas of current overcast, one fact emerges in all its pristine lustre. The weatherman's ability to predict misfortune is becoming more accurate each year. This has reduced the output of colloquial humor somewhat but has added greatly to one's intelligent appreciation of impending turmoil.

Take, for instance, the cause of the present unpleasantness — we suggest you take it because it shows few signs of going of its own accord. Torrential rains over the eastern half of a hemisphere have turned mid-winter into a soggy preview of April without the immediate promise of blooms. Snow and ice have vanished. Rivers have broken their banks and drowned communities which prepared for winter with snow shovels, plows and sand.

Canadians, as the largest exporters of "polar air masses", have been rather confused by the turn of events. This turn of events has been the turning motion of a giant ocean storm 3,000 miles in diameter, which has scooped in cold air and swept it far to sea before air conditioning Florida citrus groves with freezing temperatures. The near side of the storm is composed of masses of warm tropic air being borne northward to irrigate winter resorts in northeastern United States and the Maritimes.

A few years ago this would merely have provoked a certain restrained hilarity north and south of the border. Canadians at home would chuckle at the plight of southbound neighbors as frost crusted Miami, while Floridians, normally immune to winter moods, would be able to warm themselves at the thought of the discomfiture of friends up north trying to ski.

Fortunately for all concerned, the weatherman is now so completely informed about these things that dancing in the streets in northern and southern capitals has no chance to break out. With the confidence of a seer with a loaded crystal ball the weatherman describes the whole thing as "unseasonal" and says everything will be back to normal in three days when the storm moves out to sea to disrupt shipping before going on to pummel Europe.

The calm assurance of the weatherman in predicting such unusual weather over such a wide area, and having his prediction come true, is a sobering thought. Next summer when he says there will be a downpour on Labor Day we will pack a raincoat before leaving for the CNE.

REPLACEMENT PROBLEM

In Toronto a society has been organized with the aim of making funerals cheaper. The dignity of death, the society maintains, is being erased by ostentation. Only understatement, it seems.

Admirable as the society's motives may be, it is unlikely that it will achieve much success. Few people have the courage to risk being termed a cheap-skate when they bury a relative. The fact that the rising cost of funerals have abhorred the modern style in funeral rites has little bearing on the final decision. He or she cannot protest.

The chief flaw in the style of funerals according to Hoyle will be required. Scientists may have discovered it in the form of H2, a natural chemical which makes it possible to transplant living cells from body to another and have them triumph in their battle for life with the antibodies which their new home sends out to attack the invaders.

H2 may make it possible to give humans new glands, kidneys or eyes. It may make it possible to perform any operation on a man immediately after his death and rescue a heart which was still living. All cells of the human body do not die at the same time. Death, in one sense, is never instantaneous, but is a process taking place over a period of time. Surgeons have already taken the living tissue of a cornea from the eye of a dead man and transplanted it to the eye of a living man.

If scientists can perform this miracle of rescuing living hearts, kidneys and glands from dead bodies, the demand for these replacement parts will be high. The time may well come when to be embalmed will be considered the last selfish act of a self-centred individual, when burial in an oak casket will be in bad taste and when the "remains" will be a term which has a different meaning from what it does today.

JUST FOLKS

THE BRIGHTER SIDE

Someone committed a murder last night,
But hundreds of thousands were kind.
For the wrong that is done is forever in sight,
To the good we are fearfully blind.
Someone deserted his children today,
But millions of fathers are true.
The bad deeds are not such a fearful array
Compared to the good that men do.

Somebody stole from his brother last night,
But millions of honest men live.
Someone was killed in a murderous fight,
But thousands were glad to forgive.

Their brotherly the wrongs that were fancied or real.
The crimes that we hear of each day,
Compared to the good deeds that we could reveal,
Make not such a fearful array.

I would answer the man who stand up and declare
That the world is much given to vice,
That the man's crimes every day, everywhere,
Can't compare with man's sweet sacrifice.

That for every black soul there are thousands pure white,
The sum of the element is few,
And I know in my heart that the world is right
When I think of the good that men do.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

IT DEPENDS ON US

We often hear the expression that we get about what is coming to us in life.

There is a bit of harshness in a statement of this sort, but there is also a bit of truth in it. Nothing ever happens to us that we in some measure do not bring upon ourselves. We may not bring it upon ourselves by an act of folly; we may be only the kind of person to whom such an experience would naturally happen. This thing seeks us out and bruises and hurts us because it has our number on it.

We are put here in the world to learn. Life is a school. All through the ages hundreds of thousands of people have gone to school and occupied seats and learned nothing. Some learned nothing because they were stupid, but more often because they did not want to learn, or because they wanted to be gay and busy about something else, or because their minds were far away from their tasks. They did not learn, and so they failed.

It is the same in the living of our lives. We may seem to get more of our share of joy than of sorrow, of success than of failure, but we do not learn as we should from this that everyone's life is a pleasant one. There is the danger that monkeys may worry about the threat of automation and their jobs. A demand do-it-yourself kit for Christmas. And for those among them who have taken their jobs for granted, as an inferiority complexes, we offer as consolation these lines from Gilbert and Sullivan's Princess Ida: "Darwinian man, though well-behaved, at best is only a monkey shaved . . ."

The London writer deserves credit for undertaking his survey as a public service, but it does not help him too much success if his ultimate purpose is to encourage monkeys to make humans of themselves.

Use for Old Titles

(New York Times)

When the roster of the reorganized British Cabinet was made public last week observers on this side of the Atlantic were prompted to wonder why such medieval heritages as the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, the Lord President of the Council and the Lord Privy Seal are retained in the Cabinet positions in a Twentieth-Century state.

The titles have the unique flavor that tradition bestows. If it is necessary to have a political strategist in the Cabinet, if someone must supervise the drab work of political organization, why not at least invest the job with some pomp and glitter? If a politician requires dignity, there can be no better way to get it for him than to saddle him with a title.

The Lord President is an officer of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council. The Council meets infrequently to transact purely formal business. The sovereign, the members of the Cabinet and a few-thing like 300 other dignitaries are on it. It issues Orders in Council, which give legal effect to decisions previously taken by the Cabinet. By virtue of his position as head of the Privy Council, a person may take the title of Right Honourable. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Duchy of Lancaster may be somewhat higher, but there is little possibility is to manage the Crown's private estates. To this he devotes approximately the one-half hour a week. The Lord Privy Seal officially has nothing at all to do, although in point of protocol he is the fifth highest officer of state, immediately behind the Vice President of the Council. At one time the Privy Seal had to approve disbursements from the Treasury, but this responsibility lapsed long ago and actually was abolished in 1834.

The British have shaped these medieval institutions to the needs of a modern state. A Minister who does not have to worry about the daily operations of a Department, so the theory goes, has time to think and plan. He can be on hand to jump to the aid of a hard-pressed colleague during debates in the Commons.

In the Churchill Government these offices were made "over-lords" of a group of related ministries. In the preceding Labor Government the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster was kept busy administering the British zone of Germany while the Lord President of the Council, Herbert Morrison, planned the nationalization of key industries. Anthony Eden was made Lord Privy Seal in 1935 to help the Government with League of Nation Affairs.

A Lord President, a Chancellor or a Privy Seal may be an ineffective administrator, but he is a possible adviser; he may be a Party's elder statesman deemed worthy of a Cabinet position for services rendered; he may be designated by the Prime Minister to handle the most important Government undertaking that may be entangled with delicate international negotiations; he may be a man who needs to be placated; or if he is intellectually stubbornly independent ad addicatable, he may be given an appointment of the sy, he may owe his Cabinet post to the Prime Minister's with the Government team without letting him help run it.

Monkeys Face Worse Hazard

(Hamilton Spectator)

The personal advertising columns of The Times of London are a constant source of varied information. Shortly before Christmas, a undertaker between small cottages wanted in Wiltshire and an advantageous young man willing to try "anything legitimate". After November of 1956, appeared this notice: "Wanted, a man to undertake the earning capacity of monkeys would be glad to hear from anyone who owns or knows the whereabouts of monkeys who perform tasks normally done by humans."

We wonder what Londoner, or Wiltshireman, has not commented at least once that a monkey could do a better job than his fellow-humans. Of course, we would never give his opinion to his employer. But apart from that tele-vision commentator Malcolm Muggeridge, Mr. J. Fred Muggs, we cannot recall the names of others who have been replaced by monkeys anywhere recently. And to watch even Mr. Muggs was an unnerving experience because of the amount of human qualities and skills he displayed.

Round still; speak quietly and amiably. Then move slowly either in advance or retreat. Give the dog no hint of evidence to alarm only to sniff after you are sure he, wants to make friends.

All of this takes time, we realize. And meter readers are busy men. But, after all, they do want to read meters, not feud with dogs, don't they?

This Work Is Funny Thing

(Cleveland Enquirer)

Of all the incongruities of this incongruous world, work seems to be the most incongruous of them all. It's the thing you hate when you have it and love when you don't.

When a fellow is young and full of vigor and health he can't keep enough money to lie abed all aday, what with all the work he must? Lie abed all day!

When a fellow it 75 and has a pauper's lot of kale in the bank and can lie abed all day, what does he want to do? Work as soon as day breaks.

The lad who works with his hands envies the out who works with his brain. And the office worker envies the more good, hard exercise in the open air. The worst part of it is that, in the main, a man is doing, and the best job is the one some character holds.

People like to go into places. But they don't like to go to work. If they did, they would be paid for the work they do trying to get out of work they'd earn more than they get now.

So long now. Have to work? Can't play around with this thing any longer!

Menace in Dark

(Sudbury Star)

A Sudbury husband says the surest way to murder yourself you don't need any more furniture than to walk through the house in the dark after housecleaning.

Name Calling Annoys Dogs

(Christian Science Monitor)

A news story with a humorous twist reports that Dothan Alabama, meter readers are tired of being nipped by housedokers' dogs. So they are learning the dogs' names and noting them in their meter books. Now, says the story, there is less hostility the meter man can call him by name and if that doesn't work, can call him names.

Now we would ask, to be sure after a chuckle, would that do any good? Not so much in the interests of chaste English but in the interests of the dog-meter-reader dogs and hence unnipped meter men would it?

Some humans who have conversed earnestly with dogs—and there are many—know the prosaic thinkhave been told that a dog's vocabulary is a dog as manifestations of intelligence and evidence is taken. They are closely related, as a dog's feel. To shout at a dog or dog arouses his instincts of self-preservation; he runs away or gives chase.

Many humans know as well as dogs feel. To shout at a man or dog arouses his instincts of self-preservation; he runs away or gives chase.

Do Vegans Vegetate?

A vegan, I am able to tell you, (Webster doesn't), is a vegetarian who excludes from his diet not just meat, fish and fowl, but also milk, butter, cheese and eggs.

Signs of nutritional deficiency in vegans are (1) sore tongue; (2) sensations of pricking, tingling or creeping on the skin without apparent cause; (3) in women, amenorrhea and other menstrual disturbances; (4) pains in back and spine, stiff back, called "vegan back."

These signs or symptoms occur less frequently in Dutch vegans than in British vegans, and seldom if at all in American vegans.

The total protein intake in British vegans is 7%, of Dutch vegans 9%, of American vegans nearly 10 1-2 per cent, according to biochemical examinations of vegans apparently in good health (but most of whom had had sore tongue at some time), as reported by Wokes, Badenoch and Sinclair in Am. J. Clinical Nutrition.

These investigators state that British vegans do not consume the only vegetable foods (cereals and ground nuts and dry peanuts) known to contain vitamin B-12. They suggest that vitamin B-12 deficiency is responsible for the definite illnesses that have gradually developed in the several years in some British vegans.

I have known, observed and examined numerous vegetarians and it seems to me they have as much vite as people who eat fish, fowl and meat. I have not had the opportunity to observe and examine any vegans, however.

Not from personal observation but from general reading I have gained the impression that vegetarians vegetate. I do not mean by to imply that they ride little but eat and grow," but rather that they "lead a passive existence (Webster's definitive" (as Webster says). In other words, they are not aggressive.

Now, now, take it easy. If you happen to be a vegetarian, or beto be a vegan, keep your shirt on and tell me the facts of life. I have everything—except meatpotato and doughy white bread —but if you have anything to tell me about the advice I gave you you'll find I am just the sweetest guy you ever met.

I shall continue eating meat, fish or fowl daily if I can get it, but if I had to become a vegan I probably become a vegetarian.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

These three-decker sandwiches may be responsible for the fact that the human mouth is growing larger generation by generation. Ever the three-decker is prevalent. That the human mouth is growing larger is asserted by an old family photographer of my acquaintance who has been taking more groups lately, and in the process had to change his camera to one with a wider angle lens to get all the photographs that had collected in his studio.

Some of these went back sixty and seventy years, the work of several generations in the line of business who had each added to the pile of plates and negatives that had accumulated in the back rooms and cupboards. My friend selected a few outstanding examples of the fanciest and weirdest looking of the negatives and printed them up for the fun of it.

There were some dandies. Apart from the fantastic clothes, and the fact that everybody in those remote days had either to sit down mouths are getting bigger.

These were the days of the fancy table set, a Grecian pillar about four feet high, the chief diversion of the photographer hired to point out in these pictures and people of today is that they had either a little rosebud mouth and smaller mouths. Many of the ladies had to smear a touch of salve on either a little wee puckered up aperture, or a lean and forbidding slit across their faces if any of the ladies and seventies had noses in two large proboscl, more like limbs than features, under which, if there was no beard, a heavy mustache draped to right and left, revealing a small lower lip like a cherry, or else another of those slits like the aperture in a piggy bank.

Whether the three decker-sandwiches have caused the larger mouths or the larger mouths have caused the three decker-sandwiches my photographer said I were unable to decide. But we are satisfied

CHANCE MEETING

Every one of us owes to himself, while traveling to Hawaii. Two of my very best friends I first met my way to the Grand Junction.

To chance meetings we owe so much. They add to our capital more than does interest. Life is a groom to our spirit. Thus it is that each opportunity is given to us all to improve our lot and loan out ourselves to others, resulting in a perpetual flow of human happiness.

Every chance meeting should have something in it of personal gain whereas others may be fraught with significance. What a fortunate thing chance meeting there are because of a chance meeting to which Cupid furnished the final touches!

Police Attempt To Unravel Strange Story

TORONTO (CP) —Police today attempted to unravel a strange story of armed hitch-hikers, kidnapping and missing money, climaxed by the admittance of a 37-year-old man to hospital tonight with an acute, and perhaps fatal, attack of jaundice.

Stanko Vecina, a Slovenian immigrant, Wednesday entered hospital in the last stages of jaundice. His fiance, Felli Seme, told police he disappeared last Thursday and returned Sunday with a report he had been kidnapped and drugged. She said $1,100 was missing from his bank account.

Police said they were unable to substantiate any part of the story but the investigation would continue.

Doctors said they plan a series of tests to find the cause of Vecina's jaundice. He reported suffering the disease before, and there are two possible causes of the recurrence—alcohol or the inhalation of some toxic agent. Doctors said the latter cause might back up Miss Seme's story her fiance had been drugged.

The woman said Vecina told her he was kidnapped Thursday by two hitch-hikers he picked up in north Toronto as he drove to the bank in Newmarket, 20 miles north of her. He could remember little else before waking up in the back seat of his car parked near his home.

FIREMAN'S WIFE

New oil heating equipment and new heavy duty wiring were installed in the building about a year ago when Inct. Moynahan bought it. Fire officials, investigating the cause, said it seemed unlikely either the wiring or the furnace were to blame.

In his comment on the series of fires in the Ottawa area, Mr. Donaldson said: "It's tragic but it just seems to be one of those things."

He added that he will look into the possibility of calling in the Ontario fire marshal to initiate a full fire-prevention instruction program.

There were several detectives at the scene besides fire department inspectors.

Mrs. Reilly who lives with her husband in a bungalow across the street from the Moynahan home said "we sleep in the front bedroom and we woke up when we heard a girl screaming."

"My husband pulled on his pants and tore out of the house and I phoned the fire department. The fire was terrific right from the beginning. My husband tried to get in the front door but was driven back. Then he grabbed a ladder lying beside the house and put it up to the roof over the veranda where two second-storey windows are."

The fire evidently started in the back of the building. Mrs. Moynahan was found in her bed upstairs and was apparently suffocated without even knowing of the fire. The bodies of the children also were found in upstairs bedrooms.

The fire station is little more than a block away. Firemen were on the scene about a minute after the first alarm but it was already too late for them to do much.

The first indication to neighbors of the fire were Dianne's screams. One neighbor said that she was leaning out of the front-bedroom window, smoke billowing around her, crying for help.

Moynahan, a former member of the Ottawa Rough Riders football club, was reported by neighbors to have bought the house on the quiet west-end side street to be away from heavy traffic. Several years ago his son was killed by a bus on the busy street on which they formerly lived.

The 15 west-end victims died in just three fires, all within 26 days.

The fire alarm was turned in at 5:37 a. m. and about 25 firemen responded in five rigs and an emergency car.

Reports circulated at the fire scene that arson might have been the cause of the blaze but Controller Roy Donaldson, who reports to city council for the fire department, said there was no particular investigation of arson.

Russians Buy Hybrid Corn

CHATHAM (CP)—Two Russian officials said Tuesday night they have bought 20 car-loads of Warwick hybrid seed corn from Kent county.

Agricultural experts, I. Emelianov of the agricultural department, Moscow, and G. Galeev, from the plant breeding station, Kuban, were accompanied on their buying tour by Nikolai S. Nikitin of the Russian embassy, Ottawa.

They said the corn, enough to seed 200,000 acres, would be used on three large-scale last plots this year.

BRIDGE WASHED OUT

The Sackville river, swollen by thaws and drenching rains, sweeps through a washed-out bridge between Bedford and Dartmouth, N.S. The river turned into a raging torrent after it broke through a dam. More than 1,000 were homeless as flooding Nova Scotia rivers rolled on to the sea after a week of melting snow, rain, sleet and gales. (CP Photo)

Member Claims Harvard Planes Sent to Egypt

OTTAWA (CP)—Alistair Stewart, CCF member of Parliament for Winnipeg North, said Wednesday in an interview that he has been reliably informed that Canadian Car and Foundry Co. of Montreal has shipped 23 Harvard training planes to Egypt.

A little earlier in the Commons, External Affairs Minister Pearson said in reply to a question by Mr. Stewart that he knows of no shipments of Canadian aircraft to Egypt or of any orders for such shipments.

In the interview, outside the Commons, Mr. Stewart said Canadian Car and Foundry is preparing to send more planes to the Middle East. He declined to give the source of his information.

He added that though Harvards are training planes they can be armed.

In the Commons, Mr. Stewart had asked whether any aircraft were shipped from Canada to Egypt recently or whether there are any orders on hand for export of such aircraft.

Mr. Pearson replied:

"In order to give a final answer to this question I would have to make inquiries of the department of trade and commerce as well as my own department. However, I believe I can say at once that I know of no shipments of Canadian aircraft to Egypt or of any orders for such shipments."

Mr. Stewart said later in the interview that Mr. Pearson is looking into the matter.

In Montreal, an official of the Canadian Car and Foundry Co. said he has no comment on the Ottawa report.

FRIGHTENED

But nearly every Ottawa family was already talking about this and had been for some time.

Some parents are talking of sleeping in relays so that there will be at least one person in the house awake throughout the night.

Most of the fires have occurred in homes where there were several children. The worst blaze, just before Christmas, killed five children and their mother.

Home-owners and landlords are checking wiring systems and clearing rubbish out of nooks and crannies in their houses.

Some parents said they plan to sleep in the same room with their children and leave lights burning through the night.

One mother said: "I'm afraid to go to sleep. I don't mind admitting it, I'm scared."

At every street corner, at work and in the home, fire is practically the only subject of conversation.

Common expressions are:

"What would I do?" and "Would I panic and forget the children?"

And, underneath, another question:

"Who will be next?"

Two Men Seen Waving Flags On River Beach

NEW YORK (AP)—A radio report from Quito, Ecuador, today said two men waving white flags were sighted on a sandy river beach in the Amazon jungle area where five United States missionaries were seized by savage Auca Indians.

Dr. Clarence W. Jones, president of the World Radio Missionary Fellowship, said the men were sighted late Wednesday by a local commercial pilot.

Air force and missionary pilots previously have spotted two bodies near the stripped skeleton of the Piper plane in which the missionaries had flown to the jungle site in an effort to contact the Aucas.

In Toronto W. R. Roberts, father of Dr. Paul Roberts, director of the Rimmer Memorial Missionary Hospital at Quito, said today a search party lead by Dr. Art Johnson of St. Catharines, Ont., had left Quito to search for the missionaries.

Mr. Roberts said he received word of the search party on the 1956 Officers Elected by Parish Guild

The first meeting of the year for Christ Church Parish Guild was held last Tuesday.

The president, Mrs. A. Wonnacott, welcomed everyone and wished all "A Happy New Year".

Several letters of thanks were read from members for Christmas gifts received.

Reports from various committees were read, which showed that the Guild had had a splendid year.

Before vacating her chair Mrs. A. Wonnacott thanked the members for all the support they had given her and wished for the incoming officers every success.

Archdeacon and R. C. Dyer took charge of the meeting and later a brief table installed the following officers.

Hon. presidents—Mrs. J. Crescent Mrs. G.G. Wright; President—Mrs. F. Beeby; vice pres.—Mrs. R. Slavin, Mrs. E. Colbourne; treas.—Mrs. G. Watkin.

Mrs. Beeby thanked the members for electing her president and asked for the co-operation and support of all the members.

It was decided to have a rummage sale next week.

Everyone enjoyed a social half hour and a cup of tea and cookies.

Women's Activities

CAMPTON W. M. S.

The January meeting of Campbellton Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of the president, Mrs. R. Pound with a good attendance.

Mrs. Williams explained about the Baby Band that is being formed. Pound gave a report of Mission Band and Mrs. W. Brenton read a letter dealing with supply work.

An interesting reading on "Citizenship" was given by Mrs. D. Brenton, citizenship and temperance secretary.

Mrs. J. Williams gave a chapter on the study book pertaining to "Newcomers". Georgina, a report worker, or a minister, who can speak several languages should meet the newcomers at the seaport.

The first contact with the newcomers is a letter from the United churches, which is attached to his luggage which comes off the boat before the passengers. The first impressions the newcomers get in a foreign country are: language, different ways of life and confusion follows. They probably know no one. When a port worker or minister speaks to them in their own language, they receive encouragement.

Of the large number which comes to Canada fourteen years are Non-British and about one-half understand no English, quite a large number settle in southern Ontario.

"Does an immigrant find it easy to come into our church? The answer is no; because everything is so different, language, custom and worship. The way to get to our newcomers is through the children, then we get in touch with parents."

Mrs. McCrea was the guest speaker and gave an inspiring New Year's message, taking as her text "Behold, I Make All Things New" she said in part. "We like to look back over the past few years, some joys some sorrows, and look for help for the future.

"Beginning this New Year with a new leaf, God has promised us new intangible things, God can create a new heart within us, and can change our outlook on life. This will make a new woman of us, bring radiance into ourselves and our personal lives are enriched. Then we will become part of God's family.

"Unless we share in God's family and its responsibilities, we can hardly call ourselves God's children; if we trust in God, we will have security, so happiness will follow. If only we take Christ into our hearts we will have a new heart and security.

Scripture was read by Mrs. D. Brenton and prayer followed by the meditation.

A lovely duet by Mrs. McCrea and Mrs. T. Howard was much enjoyed. Rev. W. R. Merrick closed the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Polmanter Happily Wed for 60 Years

On the recent the Simon Polmanters were married Jan. 14, 1896. In their case, however, the record needs changing.

"We were married on Jan. 10th by the Tabernacle church minister, Rev. Robertson," Mrs. Edith Polmanter recalled. "Reverend Robertson was a wonderful man but he was very old and made a mistake in the date of the marriage license."

Together with her husband they were taking things quietly in the living room of their home at 87 South Pinnacle St., the day after marking their diamond Edith Pol.

However, the Polmanters have never been perturbed in the slightest over the error in the official wedding certificate. They have always celebrated their marriage anniversary on Jan. 10th and will continue to do so. After all as Mr. Polmanter pointed out, 60 years of married life is a record in itself.

At 85 and still active, he is a lively talker, proud of his politics and his background of hard work.

"What was man put here for but to work," he asks. "I never hurt anyone. It sure never bothered me." He appears well qualified to look out on a changing world. In his prime, before smooth-running machines took over the handling of bulk, his job of keeping the wheels of commerce turning, Mr. Polmanter made his living by teaming. He worked his horse teams for the city of Belleville on the city's streets.

LIVE-LONG RESIDENT

Resident in Belleville since he was two years of age, he is an authority on those self-same streets and recalls much of the passing scene in the city through the years.

However, the most striking memory he has of Belleville, and in particular its main street, was the "Great Fire" in the early 1900s. Then, he recalls, you couldn't walk Front Street without hailing practically everyone who passed. Nowadays, the street is filled with a near - continuous stream of people. Yet fewer people seem to be acquainted.

The Polmanters haven't spent all their life together in Belleville, however. In 1911, Mr. Polmanter built a house (for $3,500) in Hillcrest. Some years later it was burned down and they moved to Chicago, where Mr. Polmanter opened a grocery business.

Less than a year later they were back in Belleville.

For the past 15 years they have been living in their present home on Pinnacle. Their only child, Mrs. Polmanter continues to do her own washing, cooking and general housekeeping. Last year she bottled about 150 jars of preserved fruits and rubbish.

During their years of married life they have reared three children; Grace, a daughter, who lives at home; a second daughter, now Mrs. Cornelius Post, who lives in Chicago and a son, Lorne, a resident of Hillcrest.

White-Collar Girl Favored By Designer

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman should never look severe, in the opinion of Hannah Troy, who sets the uncompromising look of the straight silhouette this spring with feminine and frilly lingerie touches. They range from a wide cape collar of crisp, white embroidered organdie on a navy silk afternoon dress to a discreet little collar of linen and lace on a sheer black wool sheath.

The white-collar girl is this designer's favorite for spring and her crisp accents of linen and lace give a fresh and flattering look to the new fashions, viewed today by the fashion press.

Many of the Troy outfits achieve a two-piece look in a one - piece dress by simulated bolereos and jackets. Others have real jackets which may be removed to turn a tailored costume into a cocktail dress.

BURIED SILHOUETTES

For after-5 wear, this designer presents varied silhouettes, ranging from slim sheaths of silk to draped harem skirts and full, fanny skirts of chiffon or net.

Oleg Cassini uses various devices to make a simple and perfectly shaped sheath look daringly naughty. A case in point is his black linen sheath in which a cut-out section just above the bust provides air-conditioning and manages to give the high neckline a definitely daring effect.

With skilful draping and fluid handling of fabrics, Cassini builds his dresses around the figure of the wearer, considering that to be the principal purpose of fashion is to make women look more exciting.

THIRD STRONGEST ARM 'F'

SEOUL (AP)—Defense Minister Kohn Won Il today said South Korea's 20-division army of 900,000 men plus 10 reserve divisions "is now better than ever and it will be the world's third strongest army if equipped with more powerful weapons." He has been asking the United States for atomic cannon "to make the U. S. military aid to Korea more effective," but the armistice forbids new weapons in Korea.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOUR PROBLEM HAS TWO ANGLES

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 26 years old, have been married seven years, and have a little girl 4 years old.

Ever since my husband and I have been married and had our little girl, he doesn't seem to want to make a home for us or pay our bills. What money he does make, is all spent on himself. He never speaks to me or the little girl when he comes home, and we never have anything in common. He acts as though we are not around.

I don't want to get a divorce. I would like to stay with him for the sake of the little girl. She wants to love her daddy, but he never pays any attention to her. I would like some advice on what to do, because I am desperate.—Mrs. B.

Dear L.R.:

As I see it, there are two important things to consider if you wish to remain with your husband.

One is the matter of money, so that you and your little girl can live the way you should. The other is to bring about an improvement in the relationship between you and your husband.

One way you might tackle the first of these is to suggest that you go out to work yourself to earn the money you need, if your husband will not give it to you. Not provided of course, you can make a satisfactory arrangement for your daughter's care while you are away from her.

If you decide on this plan, then, in order to ward off possible trouble with your husband on this, I suggest that you tell him that it seems so difficult for him to keep up the home and provide the money you and your little girl need, that you feel you should share the responsibility, so you have decided you should take a job. Of course this is stretching a point, but if you take this attitude, instead of blaming him for not providing for you properly, it may keep your relationship from becoming still further disturbed.

As for his disagreeable attitude in the home and his ignoring of you and the child, the only way you can even attempt to handle this situation is to steel yourself to put up with it as patiently and agreeably as you can. If you make it a cause for constant quarreling, things will only get worse, whereas if he were to see that you're not going to allow yourself to be upset by him, he may gradually take more seriously and pay more attention to you.

You could, of course, if you wish to do so, go and have a talk with whatever family service agency there is in your city. Such an organization always stands ready to advise on family problems and you might find it very helpful to have such a talk.

Think all this over, decide what you will do and then go ahead and do it. Things are always easier if you are going something about them instead of just brooding over them.

FOR 4TH A-SUB

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Navy announced Wednesday the keel for the fourth atomic submarine, the Swordfish, will be laid at Portsmouth, N.H., naval shipyard on Jan. 25.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

The regular use of the eye drops will rid the orbs of atmospheric dust.

If you have never used eye pencil or mascara, you might profit from a few appointments with an expert at one of the beauty establishments specializing in makeup. Such an expert will "do" your eyes with respect for your other features and your personality. But, since you spend more time with your face than anyone else, you might as well learn how to evolve an eye-do that is just right for you.

Using tweezers that are sterilized, the eyebrows should be brushed underneath the brow line, never above it. Strays above the nose should be removed; so should those growing under the brows at the side. But you do not thin your eyebrows to a skimpy line. If you are fortunate enough to have well defined eyebrows, pluck them with your tweezers—very cautiously. The high point of brow, a film make-up advisor says, should always be just beyond the iris of the eye. Keep that in mind when you're tweeze-shaping.

Some makeup authorities prefer a soft pencil, some a hard one; some a brown, others a black. Whatever kind you prefer, sharpen it each time to a fine point (old razor blades are fine for this purpose). A general rule is to have the pencilling rather light along the inner brow lines, slightly heavier along the high point (just outside a vertical line to the iris), and lightly tapering toward the outer wings.

Pencilling along the eyelashes is a trick for cocktail time or evening. Better skip it during the daylight hours. Eye shadow, too, should either be used with extreme skill for daytime—or not at all. But mascara—just the faintest bit of it—is well worth the extra time and trouble for day wear. And, each day wear, brush it over the upper lashes only, using almost none at the inner corner of the eyes, a trifle more above the iris and outer lashes. While all this make-up is a thing, most important to the beauty of your eyes, however, is the care of the eyes themselves. Get plenty of sleep and do not strain eyes by reading or writing in a bad light. If you do close work during the day, make it a practice to close the eyes for a few moments now and then to rest them. Use eye drops or an eyewash twice a day to rid your orbs of atmospheric dust and, if you feel that your eyes are unduly strained or that you are having difficulty in seeing unless you squint, run, do not walk, to your eye doctor. All the make-up in the world cannot make unhealthy eyes appear at their beautiful best.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

RETURN PRESENTS AFTER BROKEN ENGAGEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our engagement was broken two weeks before the wedding was to take place. I returned all wedding presents that I had received. But as I had read somewhere (I am not sure if it was in your column) that is not necessary to return showers or presents, I did not take the trouble to return any of my shower presents although I must admit that some were as important and expensive gifts as many of my wedding presents. Now several of my friends have told me that I'm being criticised for not returning some presents while returning others. Was I wrong? If so, is there anything I can do about correcting this now? — Flo

Yes, I think you were wrong. You may be sure it was not my decision that it is not necessary to return shower presents. My advice always is that, if the engagement is broken, the girl should return all presents having anything to do with the engagement, but of no longer exists, and with the wedding which is not to take place. This makes good sense and shows good taste. All shower gifts should be returned, whether important ones or trifles. Likewise, all engagement presents should be returned, and all wedding presents. In the unfortunate and unhappy circumstances of broken engagement, it is most important to use all possible tact and taste to avoid criticism, as you now, unhappily, know. Even though tardy, you should return all the shower presents now, enclosing with each gift a gracious little note of explanation, and if the expired time is overlong, apologizing for the delay.

AVOCADO ON-THE-HALF-SHELL

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a half of an avocado is served, what piece of silver should be placed with it? —G.L.

Customarily the medium - size spoon called the dessert spoon is served with half an avocado half. However, a salad fork is also correct, if the hostess hasn't dessert spoons. A spoon is needed for the delectable part of the pear next to the skin. When an avocado-half is served with a salad filling (crabmeat, for example) best service calls for a fork as well as a spoon.

Feature Attraction: Roasted Beef Tenderloin

By Mary Moore

There are few, if any, cookbooks that will give you instructions for roasting a marinated whole tenderloin of beef. I can't find any and I have dozens of them—cookbooks that is, not tenderloins. They are a once-in-a- year treat.

Pete's young friends—a strong—were lured down from out of town for a dinner party "Let's not have fowl, Mum."

I ordered the tenderloin from the manager of the beef department of a packing house. In my most saccharin voice I let him know I expected the best undercut from a prize beef carcass. Earl did his part in selecting a beauty which weighed 3 1-2 lbs. and cost $2.52. Pete did his part and called for it. From there on I took over.

ROAST BEEF TENDERLOIN ...

Taking no chances I sprinkled all of the surface with unseasoned meat tenderizer, and punctured it too, by stabbing it with the ice pick, and rubbing the tenderizer into the surfaces. Then I mixed together the juice from one lemon and 2 tablespoons of Good Dressing (the emulsified type) and rubbed that into the meat too, and put it into the refrigerator in a long glass baking dish for about 7 hours, for those flavors to develop. I turned it over a few times during that waiting period (once at bed-time) and I basted it a bit with the excess marinade.

When it came time to put it in the oven I sliced some pieces from a chunk of the suet part that I had left-over from making pea soup, and nearly covered the top with those thin slices.

In the same dish in which it was roasting I roasted it at 215 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. It was in the centre when Pete sliced it and the young people ate the whole business. I love watching them dearly drool. I served Duchess pyt atoes made into little nests, around it, both for a garnish and a vegetable.

You may want your beef tenderloin well done. If so, roast it for 1 1-4 hours—but no longer or it will be dry, and that is the fault of many a too-timid cook. Don't overcook your turkeys. Don't overcook your beef. You accomplish nothing desirable by dryness. Tender meats like choice turkeys and beef don't get tenderer from long cooking. They are tender in the first place. Overcooking only extracts the lovely juices and leaves them lying in the pan.

Pour the pan gravy over the roasted tenderloin on a hot platter and spoon a little of this pan gravy over each succulent serving —which are of course, on pre-heated plates too.

THE SMALLEST MAGNIFIERS sometimes have trouble seeing and breathing in masks or fake faces. You can cut out considerably larger eye openings, or shorten a half-mask to fit better. They'll be more comfortable—and just as marvelous!

Parents–Democracy Teachers' Topic at H-S Association

The January meeting of the Queen Victoria and Sir Winston Churchill Home-School Association was held Monday evening in the auditorium at Sir Winston Churchill school. Mrs. A.A. Wilson opened the meeting.

Mr. K. Huntley gave the treasurer's report which shows a balance of $338.94 on hand.

Mrs. Wilson conveyed the thanks of Mr. Clayton Wilson caretaker, for his Christmas gift. Mention was made of the convention—April 3rd and 4th in Toronto and the desire for two delegates from this Association to be elected. Mrs. J. Wrnstanley, seconded by Mrs. Charles Powell moved that a sum of approximately $35 be spent to defray expenses of delegates going to convention.

Mrs. William Bray, publications convener, spoke to the parents regarding literature available which may be on display at the close of the meeting.

The attendance count was won by Mr. C. Frederick's class of Sir Winston Churchill school, and by Mr. A. Furman's class at Queen Victoria School. Mr. Bray brought up the fact that a guard is needed at the corner of Pine and MacDonald Avenues, and Mrs. Wilson reminded the males would be looked after immediately.

MUSICAL INTERLUDE

Musical divertissement was provided by students of Sir Winston Churchill school. Misses Marilyn Tapp and Marilyn Wallbridge favored with the selections, "Sunbonnet Sally, and Overall Jim", and "Whispering Hope". Miss Janice Monsky performed an interesting routine to the music of "Winter Wonderland".

Mrs. Wilson expressed her thanks for the entertainment provided.

Mr. Fairman warmly introduced the guest speaker the Rev. Andrew MacKenzie, Principal of Albert College, who graduated with a B.A. in 1934, having majored in Philosophy and who graduated in 1936 in Theology. Mr. Fairman said the good reputation and pride in Albert College will certainly continue as long as they have men of the calibre of Mr. MacKenzie, who is an outstanding leader of youth, at the head of their school.

Mr. MacKenzie, as a clergyman, principal and father, was the ideal assembly in the role of a father on the subject, "Parents Teachers of Democracy."

With reference to Albert College, persons of various racial and religious backgrounds come each year and approximately 80-85 students come yearly from outside of Canada. Notwithstanding not found there and it is taken for granted that all races work together well. There has never been in the history of the school, established in 1857 any sectarian tests for entering.

PARENTS' TEACHING IMPORTANT

"Teachings of the parents are tremendously important. Precepts our young people have are basically the things they see in adults and in their own parents" We should give examples of right in our own homes when democracy begins and a simple way is by offering leadership instead of adopting a dictatorial attitude and by giving a reasonable and increasing amount of responsibility in the home. Authority is as necessary in the ordinary conduct of life. Children have no prejudices, no fears and very few inhibitions. These come from things they learn from us who are parents and other adults. We should help lead our children to independence of thought, to tolerance of others, to the recognition of their own faults, and the overcoming of them.

Remember, this is a world our children have inherited, not made, surely the least we can do is offer the best of our experience in guidance and counsel and help imbed deeply the ideals which are needed and which are so essential. The people have wishes to be settled, judgments to be made, habits to be formed, thoughts to be expressed and responsibilities to be assumed. They need the help, interest and love of us parents to mature wisely and fully.

"Government is the good of the whole. Government is an absolute essential for a good life in a community of nation, as it is either "Government or Chaos" We can show our interest in democracy by supporting good men and using our vote. Always keep our eyes opened on the windows of the world to have a clear picture of what is going on and to learn and understand other races and religions in order to broaden our outlook.

"Love is what unites us and what we share in our own home. We should live together as families in peace and harmony and if we do not how can we possibly expect to live together as a whole in peace, harmony and unity" (Train up a child in the way that he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it)"

Coffee and cookies were served by Mrs. W. Souls and Mrs. E. Young.

Women's Institute

RYLSTONE: The JANUARY meeting of the Rylstone Women's Institute was held recently at the home of Mrs. Fred W. Bermun, with 16 ladies and three children present. Two of these young people were attending their first Institute meeting. Mary Ann and Brenda Wilson.

Mrs. Howard Spencer, president, was in charge of the meeting.

The Secretary Treasurer, Mrs. Earnest Irwin, gave a report on the receipts and expenses of catering in a recent wedding.

Thanks for the splendid wedding dinner the Institute members provided, was given by Mrs. Spencer, mother of the recent bride.

The Rev. H.E. Beare, guest speaker, chose as his subject, "How Came the Church" and gave an interesting talk on the origin of the early church, and its history down through the ages.

A delayed report on the Area Convention of the Women's Institute held in Belleville, was given by Mrs. Earnest Irwin. Two piano readings were given by Mrs. Charlie Stewart, "Peg o' My Heart" and "Banks of the Bonnie Sweet." There was a discussion on the rural and urban exhibition put on by the Campbellford Rotary Club, in February, and it was decided to assist with the program.

Mrs. Earnest Irwin, Mrs. Charlie Stewart and Mrs. Ellis Jones were chosen as a program committee for the reading, "This I Know," and Mrs. Jones gave us a musical reading, "Just a Closer Walk with Thee" which was found by listening to her best of each one played on the piano by Mrs. Jones.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and lunch committee, Mrs. Charles Stewart, Mrs. Ray Stewart and Mrs. Ellis Jones.

PRINCESS HAS NEW ESCORT

Princess Margaret of Britain, attending a London theatre premiere, turns to chat with her escort, Lord Patrick Terence Plunket, 32, a guardsman who possesses a title that goes back 129 years. He has been steadily "dating" Margaret since she gave up Capt. Peter Townsend, and is also a palace equerry.

FINAL TAX

Equalization payments would be paid each fiscal year, based on tax and population figures for the preceding tax year. There would be no strings attached.

However, there may be certain deductions. If a province collecting its own direct taxes imposes special tolls on corporations over and above the province's general corporate income tax rate, the federal government will allow the corporation to deduct those extra payments from federal levies. And in turn the federal government will deduct those allowances for equalization payments to provinces.

AIMED AT QUEBEC

This qualification apparently is aimed principally at Quebec which has various special corporation taxes. It had been calculated that Quebec would get an equalization payment of about $40,000,000. The deductions would pare this to perhaps $37,000,000.

It has been estimated Ontario might get about $160,000,000 or so in the final tax rental year and that the formula may increase the province's total revenue by about $9,000,000. It was estimated previous to Mr. St. Laurent's new corporation tax concession that Ontario's revenue would increase by $8,200,000.

However, all provinces—particularly Ontario and Quebec where a majority of the corporations are located—will benefit by the increased federal concession on federal corporation tax deductions. This will increase provincial yields from this source.

AND TO YIELD

The half - percentage - point increase may add $15,000,000 to provincial coffers based on 1954 revenues and perhaps $50,000,000 or more based on yields in the more prosperous 1955.

All told, it has been estimated the federal allowable tax deductions and the equalization and stabilization payments may total more than $500,000,000 a year.

In the last year of the rental agreements, in 1956-57, total federal payments may be about $350,000,000. Federal officials have estimated that tax yields from this source fall about $80,000,000 or so short of outlays. But they have enhanced federal fiscal control and eliminated a multiplicity of tax forms and double taxation.

SECRETARY

The three situations Dulles cited took somewhat different forms. In general the U.S. told the Communists, by various public or private means, that it might go to war if they went too far—if they attacked Formosa, for instance.

Preparedness for war against any Red aggression has been a cardinal principle of Western policy for a long time. But it has seldom been stated in such frank and simple language as Dulles' latest words.

Many times it is words rather than the actual, basic ideas to which people are particularly those in Allied countries—react.

That was the case when Dulles stated his policy of "massive retaliation," and when in 1954 he cautioned the French of an "agonizing reappraisal" of U.S. policy if they did not go through with a plan to bring a rearmed Germany into the Atlantic alliance.

WOULD HAVE UNITED

At his press conference Wednesday, Dulles said all the world knew the Western Big Three would have united in action against Red China in 1954 if Far East peace talks had failed them.

Dulles also said in answer to a question that a suggestion that he would like to visit India has been met by an indication from the Indian side that they would be happy to have him. Thus a March meeting with Indian Prime Minister Nehru became a virtual certainty.

Diplomatic observers here feel that if such a meeting succeeded in improving the present state of relations between India and the United States, its importance might even overshadow the three-day Southeast Asian defence pact conference in Karachi which is the main reason for Dulles' journey.

Dulles also said that the United States will carry on tests of atomic and hydrogen bombs because it is "imperative" to hold a lead in nuclear weapons. The effect of his comment was to reject various suggestions, mostly from leaders in countries which are neutral in the Cold War, that bomb tests be discontinued.

Hastings County Farm Forum

A welcome to the new group at West Huntingdon. Very glad to have your report of the meeting held on Jan. 3 when the topics were "New Canadians", Hazzards and Brookdale also report this meeting.

The three forums were agreed that immigration had little effect on each of their communities as there are no immigrant families there except one family at Hazzards.

As to their effect on Canadian agriculture the general opinion was that they were an asset; they are good industrious workers, thrifty and get ahead. They have made use of land that Canadians thought of no value. They have increased the population and so used up some of the surplus food such as butter, Hazzards voice the warning that if there is such a difference in their living standards it is not always an improvement, especially when they settle in groups and do not mingle with the older settlers.

There hasn't been much opportunity to help these families. West Huntingdon says they helped those who were there for short periods by showers of food and household articles. Hazzards have done the same. They have invited the one family in their community to farm forum which they attended and added their share in discussion but didn't come back again.

Some ways to help the new Canadians settle into our farm communities: Give them sympathy and understanding; meet them halfway; invite them to take an active part in community activities and churches; give them a feeling of being needed and belonging; value one's own citizenship and make one's country attractive to them; insist on the new Canadians respecting the flag and country.

Reforms Minister Foote Says CCF Leader's Charges False, Mostly Imaginary Grievances'

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's reform institutions were caught again Wednesday in the middle of a series of charges and counter-charges.

Reforms Minister Foote told a press conference recent charges made by Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, of improper practices in the institutions are a "new and narrow mud-slinging approach" to politics.

He said the charges are false and made up of "mostly imaginary grievances."

Mr. MacDonald said later he stands behind his charges.

"I know they are true. I had no intention at the start of slinging mud. . . . I was merely telling of the misconceived and out-of-date policies of the department which have led to improper practices."

CCF CHARGES

He had charged in speeches and press statements that the Cobourg training school were beaten unnecessarily and cruelly, that a 13-year-old girl was locked in a room for 82 days as a punishment and that situations at some of the institutions were getting out of control because of political interventions.

Maj. Foote said "disgruntled ex-inmates" are the source of charges he have given Mr. MacDonald his information.

In denying the charges, he said Ontario institutions are as good as or better than comparable institutions anywhere and he invited newspaper, radio or television reporters to go into any institution in Ontario at any time and speak to anyone "to learn the facts themselves."

"We have nothing to hide and nothing to be ashamed of. If there was any failure in this department, it was not in the far-sighted work of the staff but in not telling our story to the public."

OUTSTANDING RECORD

The record of Ontario's institutions is outstanding, he said, and its development is planning all the time to improve it.

He cited a newly-opened alcoholics' clinic in suburban Mimico where, he said, methods of rehabilitating persons have been studied by officials from the United States and Europe.

New clinics have been set up or are being set up to give psychiatric help to men, women and juveniles emotionally disturbed to help rehabilitate them.

There is no doubt a person can find things wrong with the institution because of the nature of the persons they hold, he said.

"They have failed and agencies —homes, churches, schools and children's aid organizations—have failed with them before they come to us. We are the last resort and naturally one can find plenty of difficulties."

NOT BLAME OUT

But Mr. MacDonald's charges are not borne out, he said.

Referring to specific charges, he said he never interfered politically with institution staff and did not Mr. MacDonald referred to had been locked in a room at night to prevent her spanning away and when she was "in a tantrum," but at other times she was allowed to join the normal activities of the other girls.

It was "absolutely untrue" that persons in the Galt reformatory had lost their recreational facilities recently.

He said the physical education, arts-and-crafts and hobby programs at the institution have been intensified recently and have been carried on without a break.

Former Senate Clerk Honored

OTTAWA (CP) — Clare Moyer, who served 37 years as clerk of the Senate, Wednesday was made an honorary officer of the upper chamber with right of entry and a seat at its table on ceremonial occasions.

Mr. Moyer, who retired late last year due to ill-health, was in the gallery as the motion was proposed by Solicitor-General Ross Macdonald, government leader, and seconded by Senator John T. Haig, Opposition leader.

ANNOUNCES PARK

QUEBEC (CP)# — Premier Duplessis announced Wednesday the Quebec government plans to create a new provincial park either in Gatineau or Pontiac county, near the Ontario border. The park would raise to six the number of provincial parks the Quebec province. There are also four game reserves.

Communications In Maritimes Being Unravelled

HALIFAX (CP)—The worst communications snarl in the Maritimes' history was being slowly unravelled today as the area struggled to recover from a week-long onslaught of freezing rain, floods and storms.

As facilities gradually returned to normal, weary "ham" radio operators resumed regular jobs after days of relaying vital messages between dozens of isolated communities.

Canadian National and Canadian Pacific telegraph officials said Wednesday the tie-up in the worst in Maritime history. They also said the CPR communications are "in a bad mess."

Although it is still too early for a complete count, power companies estimate more than 125,000 persons were without electricity at the height of the storm. About 7,000 telephone and power poles were down.

WORST HIT

Superintendent M. I. Pellham said 400 Canadian Pacific poles were snapped and shattered in "thousands of wire breaks between Londonderry, N.S., and Moncton, N.B." a distance of 125 miles.

Two hundred CNT poles were broken in the Bayside Junction-Borden-Summerside district of Prince Edward Island and "several miles of wire were down."

A spokesman said about 100 miles of wire have fallen in New Brunswick. The biggest loss in Nova Scotia, where 250 CNT poles fell, resulted when wires were pulled down by ice-laden trees.

A. G. Archibald, general commercial manager of the Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co., said 12,500 phones were out of order in Nova Scotia at one stage. He said the entire province except a third of Prince Edward Island customers was disrupted when 2,000 poles broke under the weight of freezing rain.

Altogether, 3,000 telephone and power poles were flattened on the island by storms.

DISASTER AREA

Mayor Harry Wedge of Summerside declared his town a disaster area when the storm left its 6,600 citizens without power, telephone or telegraph service. Amateur radio provided the only outside contact.

About 200 miles of copper wire have been shipped to the province where four Montreal and Toronto repair crews are working with local linemen. Forty crews with 200 men have arrived in the hard-hit Moncton area from other parts of the province.

They re-established one telephone circuit between Moncton and Amherst Wednesday.

Officials said it would be several months before "round-the-clock repairs are completed.

Federal Aid for Unemployment Relief Discussed with Ontario

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal officials may find an answer today to the unemployment mark on Ontario's part-ici-pation in inter-government agreements on federal aid for unemployment relief.

Ontario, up to now cool towards the terms proposed by the central government, has a delegation meeting Welfare Minister Martin today. It likely will make the province's stand explicit.

Government authorities here have been regarding Ontario as the only uncertain province in the federal-sharing relief setup. Quebec is regarded as pretty sure not to enter an agreement and the other eight provinces are figured as certain to enter.

Object of today's meeting—at which Mr. Martin will confer with three Ontario ministers—was not known, though it was sought by Ontario. One federal authority expressed the hope Ontario will sign up—but not at this meeting.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister St. Laurent tabled in the Commons Wednesday details of his government's latest proposals to the provinces with accompanying letters saying new draft agreements are "somewhat more favorable" to the provinces than last August's first draft."

However, they remain within the framework of a fundamental formula laid down by the federal government when it offered last year to share in the cost of caring for needy unemployed not eligible for unemployment insurance.

Under the formula, Parliament's treasury would pay half the cost of relief for unemployed above 45 per cent of the population of any single province.

The revised agreements, mailed to the provinces Dec. 5, permit the federal share for any period up to five years. Also, a province may start off from any date after July 1, 1955.

While the proposed arrangement may have some larger value in future years, it is conceded here that in their present terms they would have no major impact on either federal or provincial finances under existing employment conditions.

Some officials estimate that at present the federal spending would amount in $10,000,000 a year or less even if all provinces entered.

One would permit of federal sharing in costs of municipalities and provinces for those persons in certain types of homes for special cases. In general, persons in public institutions are excluded.

Another concession is that special municipal-provincial help to needy persons already receiving standard forms of social security would be shared. Generally, those getting social security payments are excluded, but this provision was put in to take care of special cases.

Board Is Ready To Concentrate On Writing Report

OTTAWA (CP)—The three-man royal commission on coastal shipping, its public hearings completed, now will concentrate on writing its report to the federal government.

The commission headed by Mr. Justice W.F. Spence of the Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday completed its hearings which started last July and extended in survey periods. There was no indication as to when its report will be completed.

Final representations came from the Canadian Shipowners Association, representing Canadian-owned deepsea ships, and the shipbuilding firm of Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel.

The shipowners recommended a stable course between the various points of view submitted earlier by witnesses and from the issue of excluding British ships from trade between coastal ports.

COULD CREATE MONOPOLY

W.J. Fisher, general manager of the association, suggested that on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river the trade between Canadian ports be limited to ships owned in Canada but registered anywhere in the Commonwealth.

He said exclusion of British shipping would be self-defeating because it would give Canadian ships a monopoly which could well price itself out of the market.

The shipbuilders proposal would preserve necessary competition and encourage efficiency in the coastal trade, he said, while a St. Lawrence seaway would not be lost to monopolists.

He suggested that the federal government sponsor a shipbuilding program for coastal-going ships.

RESTRICT TRADE

Arthur Simard, vice-president of the Sorel shipyards, suggested the coastal trade be restricted to Canadian-built and Canadian - owned ships as a means of helping the country's shipping and shipbuilding industry.

If British coasting was stopped, Newfoundland would gain an opportunity to develop a shipbuilding industry. New capital would be quickly put into shipping companies to operate the coastal trade.

He forecast that when British ships continue in the coastal trade, Canadian coastal ships would be transferred to British registry as was done for the deep-sea fleet.

Libel Suit Filed

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The former campaign manager of Vice-President Richard Nixon Wednesday filed a $1,250,000 libel suit against a magazine, alleging an article called him "Nixon's secret link to the underworld."

The plaintiff is attorney Murray M. Chotiner, who in 1952 was Nixon's national campaign manager.

The complaint named "Behind the Scene" magazine, published by J. B. Publishing Corporation of New York City. It identified one Marvin Higgins as the "proponent author" of the articles appearing in the current or March 1956 issue.

Naval Staff Chief Retires; First Task to Learn French

OTTAWA (CP)—The first thing Vice-Admiral E.R. Mainguy plans to do when he retires Monday as chief of naval staff is to learn to speak French fluently.

"I've been struggling with French since I was eight years old but have never found the time to learn to speak it properly," he said in an interview.

Admiral Mainguy, 54, joined the navy when he was 15 and has been its boss since Dec. 1, 1951. He will be succeeded by Vice-Admiral Harry DeWolf, 52, of Bedford, N.S.

The admiral will get nine months' retirement leave — the longest vacation he's had since his boyhood in Duncan, B.C.—and go to southern France to learn French.

"People ask me why I don't go to Quebec," he said, "I could, but the weather's better in the south of France this time of year."

(During the interview, the admiral talked through a heavy cold).

Outside of a renewal of his struggle with the French language, Admiral Mainguy said he has no immediate plans for the future.

The admiral comes from a non-seafaring family, though his father shipped journeyman's ticket on Channel islands to settle on Vancouver Island.

Edmond Rollo Mainguy as a boy read sea stories by the shelful and at 14—his father had been dead a decade—enlisted in the navy in 1915. He completed his final qualification examinations because the 1917 Halifax explosion blew away the training school. He qualified, however, on past performance.

"There's nothing like a life in the navy," Admiral Mainguy said, a faraway look in his sea-blue eyes. "I'd do the same thing over again."

In the course of his 40-year naval career—he has more service than any other member of the 20,000-man navy except Rear-Admiral R.E.S. Bidwell, flag officer Atlantic coast, who joined the same day — the admiral has visited nearly all the countries of the world.

His longest stay in any one place or job has been in Ottawa as chief of naval staff.

Friends say that Admiral Mainguy has never forgotten or ignored the lower decks and that consequently he is probably the most popular chief the navy has ever had.

Admiral Mainguy took command of the destroyer Assiniboine at the outbreak of the Second World War and was senior officer of some of the first convoy escort groups of the war. He was chief of naval personnel for two years, commanded Canada's first modern cruiser and after the war served as flag officer on both coasts.

Asked what he considers the major development in the navy in recent years, Admiral Mainguy said:

"I've seen the navy become efficient."

Lawyer Claims Union Is Held In Trusteeship

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto lawyer said Wednesday a Hamilton local of the giant International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL-TLC) is not a union and therefore cannot act as a bargaining agent.

R. F. May, arguing a certification case before the Ontario labor relations board, said Local 879 is held in trusteeship by Teamsters official Frank R. Hoffa of Detroit and is not a true union. He argued against the local's application to represent 89 employees of Leather Cartons Ltd.

Management officials made the same allegation a month ago about Teamsters Local 230, which is also in trusteeship to Mr. Hoffa.

The labor relations board has not handed down a decision in either the petition of Local 230 or the present case of Local 879.

AFL QUESTION

Russell Harvey, American Federation of Labor representative on the board, asked whether the Hamilton local was not still an organization of employees. Mr. May said because it is in trusteeship it is not an "organization of employees" as required by Ontario law.

David Lewis, counsel for Local 879 argued:

"This local union functions in every respect as a local union."

TOO HOT AT FOLE

LONDON (Reuters) — An advance party of the British Royal Society's expedition reported Wednesday night that it is finding life in the Antarctic's "frozen wastes" too warm. In a message received at London headquarters, the expedition leader, Royal Navy Surgeon Lt.-Cmdr. David Dalgleish, said: "The weather is too hot and is making surfaces slushy."

"Jest a Second"

"Breathe out!"

257 Divorce Petitions Filed With Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate, preparing for another heavy session of divorce bills from Quebec and Newfoundland, Wednesday increased from 30 to 35 the maximum number of senators on its divorce committee.

The motion, proposed by Solicitor-General Ross Macdonald, came after divorce committee chairman Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) reported that 257 divorce petitions have been filed so far. This is 69 fewer than had been filed at the same time last year.

Senator Roebuck said it appears the committee will have a "reduced docket" this session. At the last session the committee, splitting into sub-committees of three to hear evidence in each case, had three times that recommended, a record 407 divorces.

HONORS BOY

FORT WILIAM (CP) — A nine-year-old boy has been honored by the British city council. Larry Britt, 1954 winner of the UNESCO art exhibit, received a five-dollar gold piece Tuesday night as a token of congratulations from city council. As 20,000 were entered in the contest, Mayor H. Badanai said the boy earned a proud achievement.

Start Ferrying Paratroopers To Cyprus to Play Role as 'Fire Brigade' in Middle East

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP) — Britain today began sending some 2,000 paratroops toward Cyprus as a show of strength in the tense Middle East.

Dispatch of the airborne "fire brigade" to Britain's Middle East headquarters on the Mediterranean island came amid reports that the government is considering slowing down troop evacuations from the Suez canal zone because of the restless situation in the area.

Transport planes this morning began ferrying the special combat group eastward to reinforce Britain's Cyprus garrison of 100,000 men, many of whom are tied down by disorders arising out of demands for union of the island with Greece.

The airborne troops will serve as a mobile force capable of being rushed to any trouble spot in the Middle East, where British lives and property are threatened.

More than 95 per cent of the 80,000-man canal-zone garrison already has moved out under terms of the British-Egyptian Suez agreement, and at that rate it was anticipated that the whole force would be out by the end of next month.

The pact provides, however, that of only 75 per cent of the original force must be out by Feb. 19 and the other 25,000 can stay until June 19. Informants say Britain may revert to the original schedule.

Deployment of the airborne force to Cyprus and the possible Suez slowdown reflects the Eden government's deep concern over recent anti-British riots in normally pro-British Jordan. Demonstrators there indulged in a weekend spree of violence against attempts to include the Hashemite kingdom in the West-backed Baghdad pact. One British officer assigned to the training of Jordan's Arab Legion was killed.

Dispatches from Jordan's capital of Amman report a slight easing of tension, with most shops reopening Wednesday. A fight has still remains in force against public gatherings, however, and the curfew clamped on Amman during the weekend riots was to be further relaxed to 12 hours today, making it only a nightime restriction.

In Cyprus, British authorities put the streets of Nicosia, the capital, out of bounds to their troops for fear Greek-Turkish rioting might erupt over the slaying of a Turkish police sergeant.

HALIFAX (CP)—The flood danger lessened today in most of Nova Scotia, in the southwest, however, rivers still rose, and in northern New Brunswick sleet struck again.

Many families in the Annapolis valley and eastern Nova Scotia returned to clean up waterlogged homes. But some dwellings were completely smashed, or no longer habitable.

In southwestern Queens county more families moved out. The total made homeless since the floods struck Friday rose to nearly 1,100. Forty-five fled before the rising Medway river.

Damage, counted "in millions," continued to mount. A few more homes and a few more stores and mills were flooded. Another bridge or two gave way.

MORE RAIN DUE

The weather office forecast intermittent freezing drizzle early today followed by more rain. The longest January thaw in Maritime history, which along with heavy rain is the cause of all the trouble, is in its 15th day.

Mill Village residents watched anxiously as highways engineers rigged cables to the Medway bridge on Nova Scotia's main south shore highway. Water eroding its supports threatened to carry it away.

On the river road to nearby Charlesion water surrounded at least 30 homes. The village was isolated. Eight families fled to higher ground. Mail was delivered by boat.

Lakes all along the south coast overflowed with the run-off of rivers and brooks. At Grand lake near Halifax an estimated 50 summer homes were flooded. Water was 15 to 20 feet above normal.

The Lahave river, spread over a 15-mile stretch of farm land near Pleasburst, on the south shore, rose slightly. But most riverside residents believed the worst was over.

COMMUNICATIONS OUT

In northern New Brunswick sleet again crippled power and telephone lines, still shaky from last weekend's ice storm.

Bathurst area citizens were without power from early morning. Ice built up inches thick on wires. More than 100 poles snapped at Allardville, 18 miles south of Bathurst.

Road and rail connections were restored in some parts of Nova Scotia. The Dominion Atlantic Railway announced its trains would operate through the Annapolis valley for the first time this week.

Canadian National finally had its own telegraph link to operate trains between Truro and Moncton. Ham radio operators did the job with mobile equipment for four days.

ONTARIO CREWS HELP

The work of untangling the communication snarl went ahead despite rain and wind in the Moncton-Amherst area and in western Prince Edward Island. The Nova Scotia power commission sent 20 more men to help in Prince Edward Island. Crews from Ontario and Quebec were among those on the job.

At Joggins, near Amherst, mines were flooded after power failed Saturday. Elsewhere stoves to get service restored to prevent a coal shortage at the Canadian Electric generating plant.

All over the Maritimes storekeepers, householders, farmers, manufacturers, telephone and power officials, highway officials and railroaders took stock of the damage.

Reaction Among Provinces On New Agreement Varied

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reaction by provincial premiers to the Dominion government's latest tax agreement proposals was varied.

Premier Frost of Ontario said Wednesday the offer appears more realistic than previous proposals. On the other hand, Premier W.A.C. Bennett of British Columbia described the plan as "unrealistic in this post-war period." He asked Ottawa to take a second look at the proposals.

Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan said he saw no significant differences from proposals placed before the provinces last Oct. 3. He felt the plan would weaken centralized fiscal control.

Mr. Frost said dominion - provincial tax agreements should be in proportion to revenue and the latest federal government offer appears to follow more closely along that line. The premier said the Ontario treasury board will consider the formula.

ONE POSSIBILITY

Queen's Park sources said treasury board officials are interested in the possibility that under the new formula Ontario could through a small increase in corporation tax, call on industry to bear a larger share of the costs induced by the province's heavy industrial concentration.

Premier Bennett said "We will co-operate with the national government but we ask Ottawa to take a second look at the proposals for the good of all Canada."

"We think B.C. should get a fifth, or 20 per cent, of the personal income tax and 10 per cent of the corporation tax. That would be about the same rate we had before Premier (John) Hart entered into the wartime agreement with Ottawa."

Urged to Test Legality of Lord's Day Act

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. J. R. Motchmor said Tuesday representative ministers of the United Church in Ontario have urged the Lord's Day Alliance to test the legality of the Lord's Day Act in Ontario courts.

Dr. Mutchmor, secretary of the church's board of evangelism and social service, said the ministers agreed at a meeting here that there now are sufficient grounds for the alliance to fight a test case. He said:

"We believe that the power to legislate on the Lord's Day observance is vested solely in the federal government and that it has no authority to delegate its powers in this regard to provincial or municipal authorities."

The ministers also requested an amendment to the Lord's Day Act in Ontario to provide that the period between a community's voting on commercial Sunday sports to be extended to from three to five years.

Man Who Slew Doctor Found Unfit for Trial

The jury heard testimony from three psychiatrists during the murder hearing. One said he considered Martin "insane."

The carpenter was charged with murder after Dr. Rex Hylan, 37-year-old native of Melbourne, Australia, was shot to death in his office at the workmen's compensation board rehabilitation centre at Malton.

Dr. John Senn, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at Hamilton, was asked by defence counsel John White how a layman would describe Martin's condition.

"Insane," replied Dr. Senn.

JURY RECALLED

Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly recalled the all-male jury once for further instructions. He had told the men a majority vote was all that was necessary to decide whether Martin was fit to stand trial.

When he recalled them he said he had erred and that their verdict would have to be unanimous.

A second psychiatrist, Dr. Arthur Doyle of Toronto, said Martin had been admitted to the Ontario Hospital for the criminally insane at Penetanguishene in 1938 after attacking a Hamilton lawyer. He was released in 1949.

Dr. Charles Tennant, former superintendent of the Penetanguishene hospital, now with the Ontario department of health, testified that if he had had anything to do with it, Martin would not have been released from the hospital.

Legislation May Speed Cash Payments on '54 Wheat Crop

By ALAN DONNELLY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe has offered western wheat growers the hope that passage of government legislation to help pay wheat storage costs may speed additional cash payments on their 1954 crop.

By the legislation, the federal treasury is expected to bear an estimated $30,000,000 this year in storage charges which otherwise would be paid by the Canadian wheat board as agent for wheat farmers.

That situation was the basis for a question by Hazen Argue, CCF agricultural critic, at the opening of Wednesday's Commons sitting. He asked Mr. Howe whether an immediate interim payment could be made on the 1954 wheat crop "to provide hard-pressed farmers with some cash immediately."

CONSIDERABLE BEARING

The storage-payment bill, Mr. Howe replied, "has considerable bearing on the ability of the government to decide on the amount of an interim or final payment."

"As soon as Parliament has disposed of that matter, we will be able to give careful consideration to his (Mr. Argue's) question."

The measure is expected to be dealt with early in the session, which began Tuesday.

Mr. Howe's statement raised immediate speculation that the storage assistance might leave the wheat board free to make an interim payment perhaps averaging 10 cents a bushel for wheat delivered in the 1954-55 crop year ended last July 31. So far producers have received only an initial payment on delivery, based on $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 northern at the Lakehead.

MAJOR ISSUE

Argue and other opposition members on wheat indicated that agricultural problems will be probably the session's major issue.

Mrs. M. Palmer recently entertained to dinner Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hagerman of Carmel.

CCF leader Coldwell presented a motion to have an immediate emergency debate on the "need for immediate action" to provide cash advances to farmers on the huge stocks of farm-stored grain in the West.

He withdrew his motion when Speaker Rene Beaudoin suggested it could be debated only for the two hours available at the end of the day's abbreviated session.

Little Benny's Notebook

I saved up 50 cents to buy a pop a berthday present, and after school Puds Simkins went to the Quick Rate Novelty Store with me to help me pick it out, and we looked at different things like writing paper and screw drivers and neck ties, and I said, Oh boy, look at these swell big hankerchiffs for 25 cents each, with different initials on them. I can buy him 2 of those with an initial P for Potts or W for William, whichever I feel like, I said.

Yeah, but hay, here's something even swellur for 25 cents each, Puds said.

Meaning packidges of assorted rubber bands with 100 in a packidge, all sizes, and I said, Wow, thimbleism, if I get that 2 packidges of those, he'll have a rubber band whenever he wants it for whatever he wants it for. Oh boy, 2 packidges, 200 different size rubber bands, I said.

Sure, all he'll have to do is pick out the size, Puds said, and I said, Only heck, suppose he thinks I gave them to him so I can partly use them myself.

Aw, why should he; puds said, for I said, Well, he knows I've got a weakness for rubber bands.

Well then put them in a cigar box or sumpin, and I paint a sign on the lid saying, Private, All Others Keep Off, Puds said, and I said, Yeah, sure, that's a good idea. Besides, if I gave him hankerchiffs with P for Potts, he might wish it had of been W for William, I said.

And not only that, he might be embarrissed to have even any initial on his hankerchiffs, Puds said. He might be afriad people will think he's trying to prove he didn't steel somebody elts's hankerchiff, he said.

The result being I bought him one hankerchiff and one packidge of assorted rubber bands.

Spectacular Fight Flares As Blues Hand Habs Worst Defeat Of Season

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The non-popular virus that has infiltrated the veins of hockey in this part of the world, is not by any means confined to this area, as some would have you believe, but is operating in all parts of Ontario and the wild, wooly and fastest west.

Out in the wheat-charged prairies the great winter sport is in the grip of its worst depression. Interest in the game is worse than meagre, it is almost non-existent. And this was once the most popular sport of all.

James H. Gray, writing from Calgary in an evening Journal says Winnipeg was always the west's best incubator of hockey talent. Boys took to skates as soon as they could walk. His junior teams were always powers to be reckoned with in minor professional hockey. Last week the juniors were booted out of the fancy new $1,500,000 hockey rink and exiled to a thirty-year-old structure because they were drawing crowds of less than 50 people.

Gray states that, in Calgary which used to sell the entire seating capacity of its rink in advance for pro games, junior hockey was dropped last year after several years of non-support. This year a five-team junior league was reorganized on a non-professional and community basis. Literally nobody turns up to buy tickets, not even the relatives of the players.

Gray says in no city on the prairies is junior hockey paying its way. Even the pro hockey is in a bad way. People used to blame the lack of attendance on old rinks. In Winnipeg a group of sportsmen dug their own rink and put up the best rink money could buy. They entered a pro team. But despite this crowds have been disappointing, but outstanding compared with the attendance in other western league cities.

Regina lost its club after a dozen games at home averaged less than 500 spectators. Saskatoon and Edmonton clubs have been going in the hole financially, and Calgary is barely paying its way. Only in the small towns is junior hockey retaining its popularity and even there, there is a noticeable slump.

Gray says the sports writers are too busy whistling in the dark to have come up with any explanation for the sorry collapse of a once great sport. Gray's own investigation, he says, is that people have any serious misconception about the game itself. Most explanations simply put it that there is too much else to do. Another excuse is that people find it difficult to get interested in or excited about hockey any more.

We cannot buy that one, Mr. Gray. NHL attendances are well up to par, and in this Ontario neck of the woods a good winning team will pack in the faithful in the "amateur" ranks.

Gray suggests that perhaps it is just another cycle at work. He points out that in the twenties all western cities enjoyed a pro hockey boom. Interest died in the thirties. It revived mightily during the war and has been going downhill for the past five years. Maybe, he says, the thing runs in ten-year cycles.

He thinks other factors have something to do with it. The fall sportswise used to be the dullest time of the year in the west. People looked forward with interest to the opening of the, hockey season. It carried through the Christmas season, then the playoff stimulated attendance. Sports fans got over the Grey Cup fever and discover hockey has played 15 or 20 games. It is something that always appears to be on tap.

He states that some critics maintain that hockey's sorry state springs from the scrambly type being played. He says the same sort of game that was playing to capacity crowds only five years ago. Most people who compare modern hockey with pre-war vintages didn't go to either games. They are just trying to stay in the conversation.

While hockey goes to pot, Gray says, curling continues its amazing boom all over the west. But he doubts if this boom is the reason for hockey's collapse.

The simple truth, he maintains, seems to be that everybody in Western Canada just got bored with hockey and stopped going to the games. Certainly it wasn't caused by television because it was ready for the morticians before television came to the west.

Maybe Ontario's answer to her hockey problems lies in too much of the game. Here in the senior "B" group the schedule started October 26th and closes March 6th. Then comes the playoffs which will probably absorb the rest of the windy month and maybe longer. Figure it out. Over five months of hockey in the year. The old days three months was plenty to wind up the season.

And in these days of frenzied family finance with the head of the house making weekly instalment-payment safaris the average hockey Joe hasn't too much left to invest in two or three hockey games a week.

Rocket Swings at Fontinato Emerges With Four Stitches; Rangers Tops in 6-1 Victory

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Maurice (Rocket) Richard and "Leaping" Lou Fontinato, a couple of fellows not exactly noted for memorizing their Watmore Carnegie lifted Lessons, enlivened proceedings Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

The biggest mid-week hockey crowd of the season in New York—15,317 fans—came out to see Montreal Canadiens play the Rangers and if they were expecting excitement, they weren't disappointed.

Aside from the fact the Rangers won 6-1 and handed Canadiens their worst defeat of the National Hockey League season, the crowd saw Richard tangle with Fontinato in a brief but spectacular fight. Richard emerged with a four-stitch cut over his left eye.

Fontinato was engaged in a bout of high-sticking with Richard during a scramble in the final minute of the first period. It resulted in another whistle as the puck was dropped. Then, as Rich and knocked the stick out of Fontinato's hands, the latter took a swing at him after telling him to keep his stick down.

SWUNG ON RICH

The Ranger defenseman, who now leads the NHL in penalties with 111 minutes, seldom declines such overtures. He dropped his gloves and caught the Montreal forward with a looping right cross to the eye. His fault major penalties but Richard went to the dressing room while Fontinato skated to the penalty box.

The injury-weakened Canadiens—without Doug Harvey, Dollard St. Laurent and Henri Richard—were no match for the Rangers who, besides giving goalie Jacques Plante his worst night of the season were beating him for the first time. Bob Perreault was subbing for him when the Habitants took a 5-1 pasting in their last New York visit on Christmas.

The victory strengthened New York's hold on second place, increasing its margin to five points over the Red Wings whom they play in Detroit tonight. Montreal still has a big 11-point lead at the top of the league.

Pete Conacher was top scorer for Rangers Wednesday night with two, bringing his total for the year in nine games since coming up from Buffalo of the American Hockey League. Danny Lewicki, Bill Gadsby, Aldo Guidolin and Andy Bathgate were the other scorers while Ken Moodell, with Richard assisting, got Montreal's only goal late in the first minute of the second period.

Star of Leicester's victory on a muddy pitch was centre forward Arthur Rowley who slammed in three goals to boost his total for the season to 20. Leicester now meets Stoke City in the fourth round of the FA Cup Jan. 28.

In other cup replays, Bolton Wanderers defeated Huddersfield Town 3-0 and Manchester City stopped Blackpool 2-1. Bolton next plays Sheffield United while Manchester takes on Southend.

Holman TKO's Bob Satterfield In 8th Round

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Satterfield's chin got in his way again Wednesday night, keeping him once more from crossing the threshold to heavyweight title contentions.

Johnny Holman, a hulking 201-pounder with the reach of an octopus, catapulted the big Negro to Satterfield's sensitive button.

Three times Satterfield, who weighed by 17 pounds, fell like someone pulled "Timber!" . . . and He went down for a nine count in the second round of the fight at Chicago Stadium, for eight in the third and finally the scheduled 10-round bout was stopped in the eighth.

Holman's right in the eighth flattened the 13-5 favorite. But Satterfield staggered up just at the count of 10 with eight seconds to go before the bell. Referee Bernie Welsaman stopped it, giving Holman a technical knockout.

Satterfield, at 32, was being boomed as bait for heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano. But all that appeared vanished now.

Holman, who had been clobbered by Satterfield twice before, showed some finesse with a left jab, something that he only recently developed. It seemed to have bewildered Bobby Bell.

The International Boxing Club announced immediately after the bout that Holman had won a Feb. 17 match at New York against either Nino Valdes or Ezzard Charles, winner of the forthcoming Bob Baker Hurricane Jackson bout.

Leicester City Blanks Luton In Big Upset

LONDON (AP)—Second-division Leicester City romped to a 4-0 victory over first division Luton Town Wednesday in the big upset of the third round replay matches in Football Association challenge cup competition.

Star of Leicester's victory on a muddy pitch was centre forward Arthur Rowley who slammed in three goals to boost his total for the season to 20. Leicester now meets Stoke City in the fourth round of the FA Cup Jan. 28.

In other cup replays, Bolton Wanderers defeated Huddersfield Town 3-0 and Manchester City stopped Blackpool 2-1. Bolton next plays Sheffield United while Manchester takes on Southend.

Boivin, Stasiuk Back With Bruins

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins, firmly entrenched in the National Hockey League's cellar, were bolstered Wednesday by the return of forward Vic Stasiuk and defenseman Leo Boivin.

Stasiuk, sidelined for eight games with a leg ailment, and Boivin, out of action since Jan. 1, were pronounced fit after a rugged practice session. Bruins meet Chicago here tonight.

Sonshine Suggests Other Coaches Mind Own Affairs

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Sonshine, team director of Toronto Argonauts in the Big Four Football Union, said Wednesday he wishes other Canadian football executives would stop criticizing his moves in attempting to sign American imports and mind their own business.

"I don't know why these squawkers can't attend to their own business," he said on his return from the United States where he was lining up imports for the 1938 season.

Sonshine has been criticized for offering unusually high contracts to star U.S. college players. Don Mackenzie, president of British Columbia Lions in the Western Interprovincial Football Union said recently Sonshine was talking to so many American college players he was "simply doing Canadian football any good."

Harry said:

"I don't worry about losing players. We just go to work and try to get somebody else.

"Show me the second-division Canadian club that doesn't contact at least 30 players in the U.S. and I'll show you a team that will eventually be a championship club.

"Football isn't a business where you can't make a tackle, an end, a fullback and a halfback and then go out and sign four players for the line. You just can't do it that easily. You might have to contact 100 to get one."

Sonshine said other teams are just throwing up smoke screens to cover their own activities.

U.S. Olympics Hockey Coach Says Russians Team to Beat

By JOE FALLS

DETROIT (AP)—Russia's "machine-like" hockey squad will be one of the teams to beat in the winter Olympics, the U.S. coach John Mariucci said today.

"Canada, of course, will be tough — probably the team to beat," Mariucci said, "but we can't overlook those Russians.

"From all I've heard, they operate like a machine. Everything they do on the ice follows a pattern. They've been playing together for a long time. Some of them for years now—that they've got their passing down to almost a formula."

Canada will be represented by Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A loop.

Mariucci was asked, in view of the Canadian and Russian power, whether the United States team was aiming for second or third place.

WANTS THE TOP

"We're aiming for one spot," Mariucci said. "And that's the top spot."

Mariucci expressed satisfaction over his squad after it beat the University of Michigan National Collegiate Athletic Association champions, 4-1 in an exhibition game before 5,304 in Olympia Stadium.

It was the ninth straight success for the Olympic squad as it makes its way eastward prior to leaving for Europe.

"The game was as good as any we've played so far," Mariucci said. "Homestead has been together as a team only since Dec. 22.

"We're not trying to get the boys 'up' now. We just want to keep them busy. A game a night. We'll play a couple of exhibition games in Germany, Then we'll bring them to a peak."

Vic Heyliger, Michigan coach, said the U.S. squad was the finest of the three he has seen.

"Their strong point is balance," Heyliger said. "I'm sure they'll do well over there."

An interested spectator at the game was general manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Red Wings. He, too, thought highly of Mariucci's hand-picked team.

The U.S. team stepped off to a 4-0 lead in the first 34 minutes, then coasted past the Michigan team, which is composed entirely of players from Canada.

Boxing Guild Is Resurrected Test Case in Supreme Court

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — New York boxing managers were quitting the broken Boxing Guild of New York today, but the organization refused to dissolve in complete surrender.

The guild unanimously accepted the recommendation of its executive board Wednesday night to advise members who are licensees of the New York state athletic commission to resign from the guild "forthwith."

However, it also approved an announcement that the guild will remain intact and will proceed to the New York state Supreme Court to contest the validity of the commission's order, setting a Jan. 16 deadline for all members to resign or lose their licences.

Of the 34 members in the guild, it was estimated about 25 per cent are not licensed in New York. Presumably a majority of those will remain to keep the franchises and guard the treasury, estimated at over $10,000. According to Murray Frank, the guild attorney, an unincorporated body, such as the guild, can exist legally with "seven or more members."

In recommending the members resign, the guild's supervisor, Patterson, heavyweight contender, wouldn't say if he planned to resign. Other managers were not so reluctant. Willie Ketchum, manager of ex-lightweight champ Jimmy Carter; Bobby Gleason, manager of heavyweight Nino Valdes; and Hymie Wilensky, former acting president of the guild, and veteran managers Eddie Walker, Jimmy Deangelo and Cy Cricl (Carmine Fiore's manager) said they were quitting the guild.

A stack of affidavits was expected to be on the desk of Julius Helfand, commission chairman, before the Monday deadline. The resignations of Al Weill, manager of heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, and Vic Vergiles, his partner, already had been filed by wire.

York's guild and secretary-treasurer of the parent International Boxing Guild, said he was not resigning. Daly, under fire by the commission for his part in the alleged "grounding" of welterweight Vince Martinez, as New York licensee.

Max Waxman, New York guild president; Charlie Bauer, secretary-treasurer; and Andy Miedserzther, recording secretary, also are not licensed in New York.

A wave of resignations hit the western New York guild, an 18-member organization with headquarters at Buffalo. Johnny Dejohn and Joe Netro, co-managers of welterweight champion Carmen Basilio, said in Syracuse they would pay no more guild dues. Mike Scanlan, manager of Joey Giambra, a middleweight contender, said he, too, was out. Other resignations quickly followed.

The parent International Guild, two of its officers and the Cleveland affiliate, were indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury in Cleveland on charges of boycotting and other violations of the Sherman anti-trust act.

Chairman Jim Crowley, commissioners Alfred Klein and Paul Sullivan and Executive Secretary Joseph Bernardo of the Pennsylvania athletic commission met with Helfand Wednesday and urged on their "complete cooperation." Crowley and Bernardo urge the National Boxing Association at its executive meeting at Chicago next weekend to back up the commission.

Michigan swung solidly behind Helfand Wednesday. Commissioner Floyd Stevens revealed he had written Helfand he would back the NBA to the "in this or any movement that will preserve the sport's integrity and shield it from evil influences such as have been uncovered. . . ." He said the guild and suspends those who do not resign, we will go along and support the guild 100 per cent. we will not permit any boxing show or set of shows to come into Michigan which do not conform to all standards of our concept of sports."

Maryland, Minnesota, Ohio, Wisconsin, Massachusetts and other state groups already had supported Helfand in various statements. Only Florida, as of Tuesday, failed to write.

Speed Skater Takes Off For Olympics

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 26-year-old Winnipeg speed skater, only Canadian to gain an individual medal in the 1952 winter Olympics, is taking off today for his third Olympic test, the 1956 winter Games at Cortina, Italy, Gordon Audley, a habitual bridesmaid in past Olympics, will represent Canada in the 500-metre event.

Audley, a slight-built, crew-cut resident of suburban St. James, takes his skating seriously. Two or three mornings a week, he and fellow skater Bill Pauling flood the Crescentwood community club track, where Audley practises. Then he goes through twice-daily practice sessions, lasting about 1½ hours each.

Audley, however, does not believe this is enough practice for top-flight European competition. Last month, he had hoped to go to Norway at his own expense to compete in races there prior to the Olympics.

Some 150 fellow-workers dug into their own pockets to raise the money to send Audley to Norway, but the Canadian Olympic Committee ruled otherwise, saying if the whole skating team couldn't go, then Audley couldn't.

Mercurys Edge Sliding Dutchies 4-3 For Sixth Defeat in Seven Starts

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 13-point lead Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen have in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League may not be as comfortable as it looks.

The lead might be gone by the time Dutchmen return from Centralia, Ital, midway through February. They will represent Canada at the Olympic Hockey tournament.

Wednesday night at Kitchener, before 2,176 fans, Dutchmen lost their sixth game in their last seven starts when Owen Sound Mercurys defeated them 4-3. That was the league-leaders' 39th game. They have 66 points.

In the other game, played at Chatham, Stratford Indians overcame a 3-1 lead in the final period to beat Maroons 6-3 and move into a tie with Windsor Bulldogs for second place in the standings. Windsor has 37 games left in the schedule and Stratford 35.

Dutchmen crammed in extra games so they could go to Cortina without disrupting the OHA schedule. When Kitchener-Waterloo returns, the games in hand the other clubs have could boost them past Dutchmen.

The win moved Mercurys four points ahead of last-place Chatham and left them five behind Windsor and Stratford. Owen Sound has 14 wins and a tie in 34 games for 29 points.

Owen Sound took a 2-0 lead in the first period and increased it to 3-0 during the second. Dutchmen rallied for three unanswered goals in the final 20 minutes but they couldn't tie the score.

A crowd of 2,162 fans watched Maroons rally from a 3-1 lead they held after the second period when Stratford Indians fired five goals within the first 14 minutes of the third stanza.

Tommy Walker led the Indian attack with three goals, two in the third period. Other scorers were Harry Paulin, Doug McKay and Pete Kowalchuk. Ed Ferguson fired two counters for Maroons with Ted Power getting the other.

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio reported Wednesday night that Yuri Ivashkin bettered the world skating record for 3,000 metres in an Alma Ata warmup for Soviet Olympic hopefuls. His time was four minutes, 57.8 seconds.

The broadcast said the listed world record is 6:02.5 held by Anton Huskes of Holland.

HUGE TURNOUT

CHICAGO (AP)—Night baseball, considered a novelty 15 years ago, has drawn nearly 42 million fans into American League parks in the last 17 seasons. The American League Service Bureau says 7,351 games have been played to 15 date with a paid attendance of 41,9 618,564.

Irish Blank Marlboros 3-0; Nudge Leaders

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto St. Michael's Majors, bested by the brilliant playing of goaltender Bob Bragan, Wednesday night moved to within one point of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League by defeating Toronto Marlboros 3-0 before 1,010 fans.

Majors scored one goal in each period as they outplayed their heavy but offensively. Sayage stopped 34 shots.

Glen Ibbitson, Nick Mattiuzzi and Bob McKnight were the Major goal scorers. Ibbitson's goal midway through the first period was scored while Gil MacNeil of Marlboros was serving a boarding penalty.

Mattiuzzi's goal at 10:57 of the second came on a 60-foot shot, the puck taking a crazy hop just as Crockett made his play. Marlboros' Gary Leeman drew a penalty box for tripping when McKnight closed the scoring from a scramble in front of the net at 2:49 of the final period.

Injuries Fatal To Jockey

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Nelson Nelson, died today from head injuries suffered in a spill at the Agua Caliente, Mex., track Sunday. He did not regain consciousness after the accident.

Nelson was either kicked by a hoof or struck the fall when his mount fell over another horse which had gone down with a broken leg.

As an apprentice, Nelson rode 200 winners and in 1954 at Golden Gate Fields he scored 40 victories in 43 days.

Rangers Rest Larry Popein

NEW YORK (CP) — New York Rangers, who haven't had a player miss a full game due to injury all season, announced Wednesday that night that centre Larry Popein will not be in action when the Rangers play in Detroit tonight.

Manager Muzz Patrick said that the game with Detroit last week, in not feeling "right" and will remain in New York for medical examination.

TO DEFEND TITLE

Perez Retains Flyweight Title

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Pascual Perez, who looks more like a jockey than a fighter, still was in possession of the world flyweight title today after turning back the challenge of the Philippines' Leo Espinosa.

The little Argentine, standing under five feet and weighing only 107½ pounds, pounded out a 15-round decision Wednesday night before a packed Luna Park crowd of more than 25,000 in the second defence of his title to remain undefeated in 39 professional fights. Espinosa weighed 111½.

Espinosa, who has fallen in two attempts to win the title, lost his fifth fight in 43 starts.

Perez cut Espinosa under the left eye in the third round and had him down for a count of four in the ninth. Blood from the wound seemed to bother the Filipino as it flowed freely at intervals but a boxing commission physician said the cut was of little importance.

Espinosa got up in the ninth after being floored with a stinging left and receiving still more punishment when the bell ended the round.

Bears Finally Defeat Barons

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Hershey Bears, with little hope of making the American Hockey League playoffs, finally have defeated the Cleveland Barons on their home ice.

After taking three beatings from the Barons at Hershey, the Bears turned in a 6-2 victory in the league's only game Wednesday night with Gordie Wilson turning in three goals.

Wilson scored all of his goals in the second period and Lorne Davis added a fourth to make it three-in-a-row for Hershey in the three-goal period.

Both of Cleveland's goals also came in the second off the stick of Joe Lund.

Glittering Array of Celebrities To Appear at Sports Writers Dinner

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey's renowned Patrick family heads a star-studded roster of sports personalities coming to Toronto Thursday, Feb. 2 for a $25-a-plate dinner to raise funds for crippled children.

The Ontario Sports Writers and Sportcasters Association, sponsors of the annual sports celebrities dinner, announced that Lester Patrick is coming from Victoria and will be joined at the head table by sons Lynn, manager of Boston Bruins, and Muzz, manager of New York Rangers.

The list of celebrities includes the two pitching stars of the 1955 world series—Johnny Podres, who pitched Brooklyn Dodgers to victory in the third and seventh games and Whitey Ford, who won for New York Yankees in the second and sixth.

There are two other baseball figures—Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers, first Negro player in the major leagues, and Paul (Dizzy) Trout, former Detroit Tigers pitching star who wound up his playing career with Boston Red Sox.

Normie Kwong, one of the stars of Edmonton Eskimos, represents Canadian football. The China Clipper was voted Canada's outstanding athlete of 1955 in a year-end Canadian Press poll. Another football figure is from the United States—Joe Stydahar, a former all star tackle with Chicago Bears of the National Football League and a former coach of Dan Angelos Rams and Chicago Cardinals.

Golf has two representatives. Al Balding, whose victory in the $15,000 Mayfair Open in Florida last month was the first for a Canadian in a major U.S. tournament, will attend as Ontario's athlete of the year. He was picked in an annual poll conducted by the association. Chick Evans, who won both the U.S. Open and the U.S. Amateur, in 1916, is central pen his U.S.

Other celebrities who have confirmed they will attend include: Leo Dandurand, who signed Howie Morenz to his first pro hockey contract with Montreal Canadiens; Archie Moore, unsuccessful challenger for Rocky Marciano's heavyweight boxing crown last year; Jack Kramer, the tennis star who runs the touring professional group.

The dinner, fifth in the annual series, has a two-fold purpose: To boost the Canada-wide Easter seals campaign for crippled children opening March 1; and to raise funds for the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. The first four dinners netted more than $90,000 which the society used to erect buildings at camps in the Niagara peninsula and near Kirkland Lake in northern Ontario. Proceeds of this year's dinner will go toward construction of a main lodge at a camp in the Ottawa district.

The scores for these teams ranged from 816 to 831 ¼.

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP) — The first contingent of American Olympic athletes didn't arrive here Wednesday but Cortina kept the welcome mats dusted off, anyway, as the vanguard of nearly 1,500 competitors in the winter Games, starting Jan. 26, began to trickle in.

First to arrive were the Italian hosts who had advance skiers, who tried out the downhill and slalom runs in perfect weather. Four members of the Polish team also arrived Wednesday night.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You can hear all kinds of fast sheet capitol records' new circular building. Such as: "They're delaying the construction because they don't know whether to put it on a 33 1-3 or 45."

Well, the 150-foot structure does look a little bit like a monstrous stack of records. But that was just an accident, says Capitol president Glenn E. Wallichs.

"The round design was the idea of the architect, Welton Becket," he explained. "At first I rejected it—sounded too much like a cheap stunt. But he convinced me it would be the best possible design for our purposes."

"And it has turned out beautifully. Making the building round has not been more expensive; in fact, we may have saved some money on the final cost. And we've got a building that will be a real landmark."

ONLY ONE OF SIZE

Wallichs boasted that the Capitol building is the only circular structure of its size in the world. (Its 13 floors are as high as a private building can go in Los Angeles.) What about the tower of Pisa?

"I've been in it, and it's much, much smaller," he said. Besides, his building doesn't lean.

The Capitol building is completely modern, from its underground echo chambers to the 92-foot needle atop its tower. The street floor is occupied by three studios where stars like Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Margaret Whiting, Nat Cole and Tennessee Ernie will record.

"These are the only studios in the world designed exclusively for recording using the latest equipment," Wallichs said. "There are seven layers of wall so that there will be absolutely no noise. The floors are floating on an asphalt-impregnated cork to diminish all vibration. We will be able to achieve a hard sound or a soft sound."

He showed how this will be achieved, citing in room the walls like accordion pleats are splays on hinges. On one side is an absorbent material for soft sound; on the other hard wood for hard sound.

The circular pattern begins on the second floor. It is indented to a 78-foot diameter to give the rest of the building room for parking.

You get that effect on the third floor, like those above it, it has a 90-foot diameter and you sense somewhat the sensation of being suspended in air.

Capitol will occupy the first three and top six floors, renting the others to firms occupied in show business.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There are sequences of almost every kind and description. Some of them have simple names, like simple squeeze; inverted squeeze; double squeeze; triple squeeze.

But some have fancy names of more descriptive natures; names that make your hair curl. Like suicide squeeze, when you squeeze yourself. Or homicide squeeze when you squeeze your partner.

You will see a homicide squeeze in this deal:

	NORTH
	♥K 9 4 2
	♦A 6 4
	♣K 3 2
WEST		EAST
♠10 7		♠J 9 5
♥Q J 10 3		♥8 7
♦Q J 8 5 3		♦K 10 7
♣8 7		♣A J 10 9 6 5
	SOUTH
	♠K Q 8 6 4 3

North had stretched his south partner to a count-test of six spades. This could have been defeated easily if west had led a diamond. But the opening lead from west was the heart queen.

South took over from there. As you can see he has no worries in trumps or clubs or hearts. But when it comes to the diamond suit, two losing tricks seem to have no more than one card saved.

However, south took trick one with his heart king and cashed three trumps. Ace and king of clubs were cashed and a third club ruffed. The heart ace was cashed and a third heart was ruffed.

South now had a trump and three diamonds. A diamond was led and dummy did not take it with the king. East was forced to win with his lone ace and had nothing left but clubs.

West now had left two diamonds and a heart. But when east had to come back with a club which south ruffed, the east was squeezed his own west partner out of a card, it had to be a red card.

If west gave up his heart, dummy would ruff a diamond. Dummy would then have the good diamond king and a good heart. If west gave up his diamond, dummy would throw the heart and take two diamonds.

How declarer knew enough not to play the ace from Queen-Jack-Ten-Nine-Eight-Seven-Six-Five-Four-Three-Two-One-Zero

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, Jan. 13, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You may have to retrace your steps or right some matters now. Don't hesitate: do what's to be done gracefully and past errors will be forgotten. Curb extravagance.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Some exciting developments possible in business or professional undertakings. Enlisting services in the morning. Anything unusual will need careful appraisal, however.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — You're urged to personal and business confidences now. Avoid emotionalism and gossip, too.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — The feeling that everything will be okay is in the air. But the wise will succumb neither to overconfidence nor a careless attitude. Clear thinking and acting are still needed.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Mark time; be tactful in making commitments — especially in matters related to distant persons. Things worth while needn't be hurried.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Be careful in matters connected with personal, business and government situations. Self-control will be needed. Talk, think and act calmly.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Expectations may be only partially realized, but that in itself is excellent. Imagination soars high at times, so be cautious. There is some aggression to combat.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Study your outlook. It may be difficult to distinguish at first between that which is worth while and that which is not. The thoughtful Scorpio native will discern the proper road to follow.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — A bright, cheerful person can turn mediocre openings into dazzling successes — and this means you. Benefits are also possible through friends, partners.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Avoid over-aggressiveness, dissension — except where principle is threatened. Do not make mistakes of judgment through speed.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Deliberate and know what you are about how. Avoid tension, anxiety. They are not good for you or your interests.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — As pace picks up (and it should today), over-eagerness to consolidate programs previously started could make you overlook important details. Self-control, a clear mind will win.

You born today have the inspirational, exciting Saturn as your natal planet. Be on guard not to submit to gloomy moods since they could overshadow your truly genial nature and cause you to be considered austere. You are happiest when usefully busy; Capricorn natives possess perseverance, high intelligence and practicality. No task is too hard nor is any problem too difficult for a true-to-form Capricorn native. Just have faith in your God-given attributes and also in the good in your fellowmen. Birthdate: Salmon P. Chase, statesman, jurist.

MAYORS EXEC. MEETS

MONTREAL (CP)—The national executive of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities met here Wednesday to draw up a policy statement for submission to the federal government Friday.

Landlords Asked "To Go Easy" On Strikers

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Landlords here have been asked to "go easy" on strikers at McKinnon Industries Ltd., plant here until the strike is over.

McKinnon is a subsidiary of General Motors of Canada, whose 11,000 Ontario employees are on strike in five centres.

Joe Berry, representative in St. Catharines of the International United Auto Workers (CIO) spoke to the striking local.

Members had criticized the union for not paying, in some cases, strikers' rent and fuel bills.

Strikers were receiving assistance according to their need, said Mr. Berry. No strike fund can meet all its members needs.

CHARGES SOME GOUGING

If landlords and mortgage holders would assist the union by refraining from legal action, they could be assured they would get what is owing them when the strike ended.

Mr. Berry said city oil suppliers are "gouging" the union by raising prices to 20 cents from 18 cents for making deliveries to order instead of regularly. Hydro and fuel bills in St. Catharines alone were costing the union $10,000 weekly.

About 4,800 employees at the G. M. subsidiary are on strike.

Was Rundown; Suffered Stomach Gas, Indigestion

Also Had Backache, Rheumatic Pains, Nerves on Edge, Couldn't Sleep. Tells How Syntona Gave Relief.

MRS. C. SHADWICK

"I've had a bad time with stomach upset and rheumatic pains, but I feel just fine since taking Syntona," said Mrs. C. Shadwick, 116 Clark Street, Woodstock, Ont.

"I would often have so much distress and gas in my stomach that I didn't feel like eating. Even the lightest food seemed to give me trouble. I was rundown, nervous and a sluggish feeling. But, the things that worried me most were the sore rheumatic pains in my joints, hands, back and muscles. I got so that I could scarcely walk and when I sat down it was hard for me to get up. I just felt miserable and couldn't sleep. I'd toss and turn all night and get up tired.

Much Different Now

"When I first read about Syntona I was skeptical. It sounded too good to be true. But it certainly is a good thing I did because it turned out to be just what I needed. It wasn't long before my food began to digest better, now I scarcely have trouble at all and best of all the aches and pains are relieved so that I can get around fine. My nerves are better, too, so I get sound, refreshing sleep and am now always tired and full of pep. Syntona has helped countless numbers of men and women all over the country. It is pleasant to take and relieves you quickly, too.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Brink's Suspects Face Prosecution Soon After Arrests

FBI Cracks Biggest Cash Robbery Ever Committed

BOSTON (AP)—Ten of 11 convicts named by the FBI as the masked gunmen who pulled off history's biggest cash robbery—the fabulous $1,218,211 Brink's grab of six years ago—were turned over to the state today for prosecution.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover announced "solution" of the case Thursday shortly after six men were arrested, in Boston by his federal agents.

The convicts named as participants by the FBI already are in prison on other charges, two are still at large and one died last year of natural causes.

Most of the loot has been recovered.

Within hours of Hoover's announcement the six arrested men were arraigned and held in bail totalling $670,000.

SURPRISED GUARDS

The FBI has been working on the case for months ever since the 1850, when the men—their faces covered with grotesque masks—surprised the night guards of the Brink's money-carrying firm on the second floor of a waterfront garage and surprised five guards.

Hoover refused to disclose how the case was solved or what new evidence must be protected for the trial.

However, district attorney Garrett H. Byrne of Boston dropped a hint that one of the men turned as a participant has provided valuable information.

Byrne said Joseph (Specs) O'Keefe, 47, of Boston, will be a principal witness before a county jury called to begin hearing evidence against the suspects today.

The federal government turned the case over to the state for prosecution because state penalties are heavier than federal law allows.

DISCUSSED CASE

O'Keefe was with Byrne for more than five hours Thursday night in the discussion of the case. O'Keefe was one of the men in jail in Springfield, Mass., at the time of Hoover's announcement Thursday. He is doing 27 months to five years for receiving stolen property and conspiring to carry a gun.

The others already in prison are Stanley A. Gusciora, 36, doing five to 20 years in Pittsburgh for a store robbery.

THOSE HELD

Arrested in Thursday's FBI roundup were these Massachusetts men:

Joseph F. Banfield, 45, Boston, the 11th man named by the FBI, died of natural causes in 1954.

Hoover said the men planned the robbery for a year before it actually came off. Included in the preparations were several "trial runs."

Quebec Bank Boxes Robbed Of $100,000

WARWICK, Que. (CP) — Safety deposit boxes at a branch of the Provincial Bank were looted of an estimated $100,000 during the night, provincial police reported today.

Bank officials in this community 100 miles northeast of Montreal said the thieves battered a hole in a brick wall of the bank leading into the vault. The robbery was discovered when the bank staff reported for work this morning.

Bank spokesmen said it was impossible to assess losses accurately since only depositors themselves know the amount kept in the safety-deposit boxes. Unofficial estimates ranged around $100,000, however.

Vows to Fight To Regain Her Eight Children

SHORT CREEK, Utah (AP)—A frail, tired woman came home to this desert village today, leaving seven of her eight children in state custody and vowing to fight "with every drop of my blood" to get them back.

Only four-year-old Vaughn met Mrs. Vera Black on her return. He was whooping cough and could not be turned over to state welfare authorities Thursday, when the welfare commission took custody of the other seven children after Mrs. Black refused to swear in writing not to teach them polygamy. Vaughn will be surrendered to the state when he is well.

Welfare commissioner H. C. Shoemaker said Mrs. Black is one of three wives of Leonard Black, who was among a number of Short Creek men convicted of unlawful cohabitation by Arizona authorities two years ago.

The Blacks are members of a "fundamentalist" cult which believes that polygamy is God's law. The Latter-Day Saints (Mormon) Church outlawed polygamy in 1890.

$4,500 Payroll Snatched from Office Clerk

Police said a man jumped out of a laneway and grabbed a parcel containing the money, from the arms of pay clerk Nella Hunt, 36, soon after she left the Toronto-Dominion Bank at downtown King and Bathurst streets.

The payroll, $2,000 of it in cash and the rest in cheques, belonged to Newsome and Gilbert, law stationers.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: The storm centre of the Atlantic coast for the past few days began moving northeastwards during the night and once again considerable rain is falling in the Maritimes. As this disturbance moved up the coast skies cleared over southern Ontario although patchy cloud conditions produced a few snowflurries across northern sections of the province. This fine weather area is expected to remain over Ontario today and Saturday.

CONSERVATIVE EASILY WINS RENFREW SOUTH

James A. Maloney Will Be New Member

RENFREW (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives have been decisively restored to full power in the Ontario provincial riding of Renfrew South.

A heavy vote in the riding's byelection Thursday gave James A. Maloney, the party's new representative, the biggest Progressive Conservative majority since the late James Lawrence took the seat from the Liberals in 1945.

Premier Frost, whose Progressive Conservative supporters increased their numbers to 84 in the 98-seat Ontario legislature as a result of the victory, called the outcome gratifying.

Commenting in Toronto, he said: "I would like to add my congratulations to Mr. Maloney and his supporters who have done such a splendid job."

The 53-year-old Renfrew lawyer's victory was conceded by his only opponent, Liberal Nathanie E. Lindsay, less than three hours after the polls closed at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

The by-election was a final footnote to a brief but stormy chapter in the Ontario valley riding's political history. It was created by the death last November of Mr. Dempsey.

The veteran Progressive Conservative lost the support of Premier Frost and his colleagues during the spring after disclosures that Mr. Dempsey had not reported $6,800 in contributions for his 1951 campaign. Mr. Dempsey resigned the Progressive Conservative nomination he had won previously, then was reinstated by most of the riding's party supporters who had backed him earlier.

He campaigned vigorously in the Ontario general election last June as an Independent Progressive Conservative and won with a 700-vote majority. The result was the same Mr. Lindsay who lost in Thursday's voting. Mr. Dempsey polled a total of 7,235 votes, Mr. Lindsay 6,335 and H. M. Reid, CCF candidate who did not run this time, 509.

At his death, Mr. Dempsey still had not been restored to party standing in the provincial party.

Mr. Maloney, who lives in the June voting, Mr. Maloney had 8,008 votes when counting ended for the night with results in 46 of the riding's 99 polls. Mr. Lindsay, Liberal candidate, is a farm implement dealer.

Central Bridge Gets Kingston Contract

TORONTO (CP) — The department of highways today announced the contracts worth a total of $1,830,000.

Ellis-Don Ltd., McLachlan Construction Company Ltd. was awarded a contract for $1,130,350 for a 10-mile road in the Blind River district; Cox Construction Company, $664,000 for a bridge and a clover-leaf intersection on Highway 401 in the Kingston district; and Dominion Bridge Company Ltd. $372,000 for steel for a bridge on Highway 401 in the Kingston district.

Old Lady in Black Knitted Scarf Thinks London, Eng., Part of Canada

By ROBERT RICE

LONDON (CP) — The old lady pulled her black knitted scarf tighter around her shoulders and smiled humbly and hopefully.

"She-thinks she's in Canada already," whispered a Red Cross official.

A questioning glance, and the old lady's face creased in a smile, fumbled in a dress pocket. Out came a well-worn envelope, addressed to Joseph Papp, Welland, Ont., in the left hand, top corner was a name in almost illegible Romanian.

"I'm sorry," said the Red Cross interpreter, "I used to know bits of Romanian. But I can only speak Greek now."

She studied the name.

"It looks like Josephine."

The smile widened across the old lady's face.

"Josephine Zvanyik!"

The old lady nodded.

But beyond that, the old lady, who thought London was Canada was a mystery. Some said she was 79 years old.

With her were 19 youngsters, ranging from the youngest, coy, 7-year-old Dorothy, 11, to the eldest, bold Basil Tyrchalow, who is 20 and going to his brother in Hamilton.

And there was Nicholas Zalkow, 18, in a security uniform with a hooked rug given him by the Red Cross. He will join his father in Toronto.

Behind them were years of wandering that they wouldn't talk about. Separated from parents during the war, they reformed in the Second World War, they were tracked by the Red Cross and placed aboard a plane with 70 displaced persons to join relatives in Canada.

They arrived by London Sunday, and saw a circus, an ice show and the waxworks at Madame Tussauds.

They boarded another plane Thursday and began the last lap of the long trip to Canada. The plane was due in Toronto at 12:40 p. m. today.

And then—at last—the old woman in the black knitted scarf will be in Canada.

Govt. Sure All Provinces But Quebec Will Sign New Unemployment Aid Pacts

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal spokesmen profess confidence that every province except Quebec will sign agreements under which the central treasury will pick up part of the cost of unemployment relief.

The long financial question mark—Ontario—came before federal authorities Thursday, and informants said later it appears the big province will put its signature on the line.

The confidence of federal informants in this reversal of Ontario's previously-cool attitude towards federal fiscal encroachment despite a flat federal turndown of Ontario demands for more generous contributions from the federal treasury.

However, federal ministers meeting Ontario ministers were conciliatory to the extent that they suggested Ontario would like some special treatment in some administrative procedures in an agreement, though this would not cost the central treasury anything in dollars.

Health and welfare minister Martin and Labor Minister Gregg of the federal cabinet and Welfare Minister Goodfellow and Minister Goodfellow of Ontario met Thursday.

The Ontario ministers got a definite rejection of any idea of higher federal payments on unemployment relief. They proposed this to the federal officers, though it was understood they did not go into details.

Much of the meeting was devoted to the question of administration of a federal-Ontario relief agreement. Federal authorities gathered from this the idea that Ontario is interested in signing up for the plan, and the new agreed to be the take-it-or-leave-it terms of the latest federal approach to the provinces.

After the one-hour conference Mr. Martin declared in an interview the federal financial policy is set.

But he added Ottawa has conceded to Ontario it was wrong on the principle of applying the mechanics of proposed agreements so far as Ontario is concerned and will be glad to change these for the province.

Ever several months, Mr. Frost has been chilly towards the federal plan, saying it is not generous enough. The federal proposal gives the government's treasury taking over half the cost of caring for needy unemployed above a level of 3 per cent of an individual province's population.

Quebec's Newsprint Industry Faces Iron-Fisted Control

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's giant newsprint industry today faced drastic provincial government control on production, distribution and sales, including allocated fixed-cost supplies to Canadian newspapers.

Controlling four-man, cabinet-appointed board, its expenses to be charged to the $5-mill industry, was established in a bill tabled Thursday in the legislature. It could parcel out provincial supplies to consumers.

It was Premier Duplessis' answer to the refusal of the industry to heed his demand that provincial consumers get a preferential from recent price increases.

The tough measures, which call for the board to set an "interpretive" way by order-in-council, would not affect the price of Quebec-produced newsprint sold outside the province.

The main teeth of the bill are:

1. Establishment of a four-man "newsprint board," empowered to allocate newsprint to Quebec consumers 60 days after the bill is law and equipped to supervise the newsprint industry to see that its directives are carried out.

2. Quebec newsprint prices would be frozen for two years after Sept. 1, 1955 level—the 1952 price whereby provincial consumers organizing their own newspapers get $117-119 a ton.

3. Exports of raw or partially-processed wood pulp from Crown lands, amounting to some 800,000 cords annually to Ontario and New Brunswick, would be banned retroactive to Jan. 7. Export permits would be granted under certain circumstances.

4. Quebec consumers, estimated as more than 140 daily and weekly newspapers, would be entitled to newsprint as each received last year from the Quebec mills according to the provincial pool, with newsprint board empowered to amend flow to newspapers as necessary.

5. Neither the board nor any of its members would be liable to writs taken in executing the measure, nor the board's decisions could be delayed by legal action.

6. Stiff fines, ranging from $5,000 to $50,000 would face producers violating the rules of the legislation. A fine of up to $150,000 could be slapped on a corporation violating the law. Directors of companies could sue producers for non-fulfillment of delivery orders set by the board—or the board could prosecute if the newspaper did not.

All the legislation, provided that establishing the newsprint board, would come into force after receiving royal assent. Mr. Duplessis' Liberal majority party has the necessary majority to push it through speedily.

Another part of the bill covering the newsprint board's establishment from provincial forces by order-in-council whenever the cabinet decides.

Still another provision of Thursday's bill stipulates:

The lieutenant - governor - in - council, by regulation consistent with the foregoing provisions, may make any supplementary, interpretive or ancillary provisions calculated to ensure fair and effective carrying out thereof."

Berlin Reds Fire Shots At Britons

BERLIN (Reuters)—Communist border guards fired warning shots at British troops trying to salvage a wrecked British army jeep on the zonal border here today.

The British authorities ordered a prompt protest to Soviet authorities in East Berlin.

The jeep had crashed Thursday night on the British sector border with the Soviet zone.

When the injured occupants of the wrecked jeep had been carried to hospital, about 25 East German police gathered near the car and forbade British soldiers to remove it.

When a British colonel ordered his men to remove the jeep, the East German policemen fired about five warning shots without hitting anyone.

The colonel then ordered a detachment of 40 soldiers to the spot. They dragged the jeep into the jeep was removed into West Berlin.

PIRATES HIJACK CARGO

PENANG, Malaya (Reuters)—A member of the crew of a junk swam three miles to an island near here Thursday and reported that Chinese pirates had hijacked the craft and cargo of rubber. Police boats later combed the area without success. Three other members of the junk's crew are missing.

Wounded Driver Is Acquitted Of Negligence

TORONTO (CP)—A young auto thief who ran down and killed two pedestrians in a stolen car was cleared by a jury here Thursday of charges of criminal negligence causing death. Judge Hugh Landerbridge, was acquitted Thursday of a charge of criminal negligence causing death. Judge Hugh Landerbridge, was acquitted Thursday of a charge of criminal negligence causing death.

Mrs. Angelina Colangelo, 19, was also killed, and a third nurse, Eileen Keating, 19, was injured last night when a car hit a parked car where the three student nurses were standing on the Toronto suburban East York.

Mr. Allan Davidson testified that Smythson, because of his wound, could not be held responsible for the accident.

NAB FORGERY GANG

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Argentine police have seized printing presses and engraving equipment and arrested several persons believed to have been involved in the forgery in Buenos Aires of 230,000,000 cruzeiros in Brazilian paper money, a police announcement said Thursday. Police said the gang had already shipped the money to Brazil and Brazilian authorities have been notified.

MARITIMES AGAIN HIT HARD BY NEW SLEET STORM

Thousands Without Light, Heat or Phone

HALIFAX (CP) — Thousands more Maritimers were without light, heat and telephone today after sleet struck again in northern New Brunswick and Cape Breton Island.

The flood danger in southwestern Nova Scotia diminished, however. Only one river—the Roseway in Shelburne County—continued to rise.

Lt. Gov. T. L. Prowse of Prince Edward Island designated almost half of the province a disaster area after a year of prince and Queens counties by the executive council.

In Gloucester county in New Brunswick's north shore an ice storm deprived more than 50,000 citizens of power for the second day. Repairs were expected to take at least three days, longer if icing continued.

U. S. SENDS AID

The New Brunswick Telephone Company continued to work 1,000 phone line breaks in the Bathurst area alone. Maine telephone companies sent in repair crews to help patch up shattered communications.

Rain and freezing temperatures formed ice storms that downed communication lines through the Cape Breton hills. Fallen poles and wires cut off electric power and ment telegraph line, northern Cape Breton's main communication link.

Dingwall and other villages in the area were cut off. Travellers into the Cape Breton highlands were told of trees bent double by ice in the Cape Smokey district, 1,700-feet above sea level.

Liscomb from Sydney, 75 miles south, said it might be days before all the breaks could be repaired.

START TO SUBSIDE

Fredericton — Medway river dropped two inches at Mill village, near Liverpool, N. S. Forty-five families have been driven from their homes there.

Two Men Admit They Cut up Body of Girl

NEW YORK (AP)—Police 127 the mystery of missing Jacqueline Smith has been solved with the arrest of two men on charges of homicide. But authorities now must go through the gruesome process of finding the dismembered girl's body.

Held without bail for hearing next Thursday are Thomas Daniel, 27, and Leo Pijuan, 46, accused of performing a fatal abortion. Police said both admitted they dismembered the girl's body and dumped the dismembered parts in trash containers.

Miss Smith came here from Lismore, Ont., to visit relatives and become a fashion designer. She met Daniel last June and asked him steadily. She was never seen again after a Christmas Eve rendezvous in his apartment.

Multiple-Death Fires In Ottawa Will Be Probed

Joint Inquest Ordered In Feb. by Fire Marshal

OTTAWA (CP)—A joint inquest will be held into four Ottawa multiple-death fires early in February, Ontario fire marshal W. J. Scott announced today.

The inquest cannot be held until next month because of the large number of witnesses that have to be heard.

The four fires, all since Dec. 18, took a total of 17 lives.

They are:

Dec. 18 — Mrs. Florence Eisenman, 34, and her five children were killed in their west-end home.

FULL-SCALE INQUEST

Dec. 23 — Mr. Herbert Steele and her son, Barry, 4, died in an apartment house fire in the east-end Sandy Hill district.

Dec. 31 — Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Rood perished in their west-end home.

Jan. 12 — Mrs. Cyril Moynahan, 39, and three daughters were killed in a fire in their west end.

Mr. Scott heads a group of investigators ordered here from Toronto Thursday by Attorney-General Roberts following the series of killing fires.

He and Ottawa fire officials met today to launch a full-scale inquiry. Seventeen-year-old Patricia Moynahan and 18-months-old Ricky Rood are only members of the family of fire department Lieut. Curly Moynahan to escape the west-end blaze.

FATHER ARRIVES

Lieut. Moynahan, former Ottawa Rough Riders football star, arrived here Thursday from London, Ont., where he was pallbearer Monday at the funeral of five-year-old Sean Cadieux, who died of exposure last week after being critically assaulted by a sex deviate.

He was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cadieux, Susan's parents.

The blaze raised the death toll from fires in this area since last Nov. 1 to 32, including 23 children.

A Canadian Press survey shows 97 persons have died in fires in Canada since Nov. 1—56 in Ontario, 16 in Quebec, 10 in British Columbia, 13 in New Brunswick, 11-in Manitoba, six in Alberta and Nova Scotia, five in Saskatchewan and three in Newfoundland.

Six Are Held On 21 Counts Of Housebreaking

TORONTO (CP)—Police in suburban Scarborough said Thursday they think they have stopped a series of break-ins with the arrest of six youths, four of them juveniles.

Brian Logan, 17, Henry Solway, 16, and a juvenile were taken into police custody after a Scarborough resident called police when a window was smashed in his home Wednesday. Three other juveniles were later arrested. The six are charged jointly on 21 counts of housebreaking.

The break-ins began six weeks ago and have netted $3,000 in cash and an undetermined amount of jewelry.

Charge Manitoba Hutterites Build 'Communist Country within Country'

OAKVILLE, Man. (CP) — Demands for government control over expansion of Hutterite colonies in Manitoba were made here today before behind an expressed fear that Hutterites are building "a Communist country within a country."

About 175 citizens in this community, mainly west of Winnipeg have demanded provincial legislation limiting Hutterite colonies. Spokesmen for Association of Canadian Portage rural municipalities, described Hutterites as "a body of strict practising Communists under a strongly-organized, semi-alien, self-seeking and aggressive communistic system."

The association passed here accused Hutterites of trying to replace a democratic and loyal Canadian community with a communistic system. It asked whether the future was to be in the hands of "our honored pioneer men and women and their descendants and the loyal people from other areas" or "will the Hutterite colony be native and purchase land, not as persons or patriotic citizens, but as a body of strict practising Communists. . . ."

Sitting in at the meeting were Agriculture Minister R. D. Robertson and Utilities Minister C. E. Greenlay, but they did not take part in the discussion. They did say the matter probably would be considered on the cabinet level.

Demands against Hutterites are based largely on the rapid growth of this sect. The religious sect is distinguished by communal way of life, with all property owned in common and with each member supplied the necessities of life instead of being paid wages.

Neighboring farmers hold that this self-denial is unfair competition, allowing the colonies to prosper financially and permitting them to offer high prices for new land. A high birth rate also helps the colonies forces them to expand.

Difficult to Keep Secrets From Newsmen

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent conceded Thursday that it's difficult to keep things secret from newspaper men in Ottawa.

He was commenting in the Commons throne speech debate on a statement by Opposition leader Drew that with one exception the government's legislative program for the session contained no surprises.

Mr. Drew said the only major item in the speech from the throne not disclosed previously was the proposed bill to require equal pay for women doing the same work as men in all industries under federal jurisdiction.

Mr. St. Laurent replied:

"I believe we have all been in Ottawa long enough to realize that anything that gets serious consideration anywhere does not remain secret very long." Mr. St. Laurent said.

"The ladies and gentlemen who occupy the press gallery have ways known to them of obtaining information which they do not hesitate to communicate to the readers of their newspapers as soon as they can get the slightest inkling about what is apt to happen."

Fired, Hired For Same Job At Twice Pay

STROMNESS, Ont. (CP)—Clerk Harold D. Pyle of Sherbrooke township, Que., was fired on Wednesday Thursday, was hired back a few hours later with apologies and at almost double the former salary.

A motion to give him his job back was made by councillors Gerald Dickout and Arthur Clark, who had moved his dismissal.

Mayor W. J. Wellington, who was given Mr. Pyle's job, reclaimed. He said the job was "misrepresented" to him.

FINE ICE SURFACE NOW ON BAY

Following the "freeze-up" of last night, the lower stretches of the Moira River and the bay now boast a fine ice surface for outdoor skaters and ice-boat enthusiasts. If this light snow covers the surface in spots.

Unemployment Higher than Last Winter

Unemployment in the Hastings district is ranging slightly ahead of last winter, it was noted today by Mr. H. M. Reed, manager of the local unemployment office.

Mr. Reed reported there was a total of 1,965 applicants for work in Belleville and in the county area outside of Trenton with 1,507 of these receiving unemployment benefits.

At the same time last year the number of claimants was 1,562.

Male applicants for work in Belleville and in the county area total 1,138 with 534 females also looking for work.

In the city and immediate district there are 467 males and 360 females receiving benefits while postal claims total 663 male and 187 female.

The Deloro Smelting plant of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Ltd., constructed east of the city last fall has completed production and the plant machine shop now in production.

The frames is now up and men and others are expected to be put into operation shortly.

Many of the workers at the new plant have been transferred to Deloro, but Mr. Reed said that about 35 workers had been placed from the Belleville unemployment list.

When in full production the Deloro Smelting plant is expected to employ in the neighborhood of about 300 workers including office staff.

Suburban Planning Board Seeking Budget of $5,000; City's Contribution $3,200

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board this year will seek a $5,000 budget from its three municipal participants.

The money will be used to continue the survey planning of promising and fast-developing township areas on the city's rim.

Belleville would contribute $3,200 to the forecast expenditure while Thurlow township's share would be $1,250 and Sidney township's $500.

The board passed the motion requesting the sum from the municipalities at its first meeting of 1956 in city hall last night.

While of the survey planning would be concentrated on 1,600 acres of property running north from Belleville to Foxboro and the way 601 development and east from Sidney Street to the C.N.R. to Zwick. A thin slice of property also has yet to be surveyed to the Sidney township west of Avondale Road. If the forecast budget is approved by the three municipalities it will mean completion by the year's end of a survey that runs about two years ago, encompassing an area from Bell's Side Road north in Thurlow to beyond Avondale Road and north to Highway 401.

CONCERTED SURVEY NEEDED

The concerted survey would be an orderly skeleton to control growth of those township areas experiencing or likely to experience development and now clustering it with unsettled areas.

At last night's meeting, attended by Mayor Jane Forrester and Controller Ross Thompson as this year's representatives of city council, Mayor Forrester noted the necessity of calling upon a consultant to advise on the planning of these areas.

"The board," said W. A. Wiggs, "has done a good job but we need someone to help us make decisions." However, he said, the consultant should not hire a consultant before we get the call.

Harry Morrow, ex-reeve of Sidney township, was one of the delegates.

"The first thing we should have is a survey," he said. "I can't imagine the completion of the plan should be our main objective," he said.

CLAIMS ENGINEER NEEDED

John Ransom cautioned the board against hiring a consultant now and then not laying out additional funds to take action on the report.

"Unless you plan on the money that you put with — then don't plan," he said.

He also held an engineer would be of more benefit to the municipalities than a planning consultant.

"What these three municipalities need to do is to co-operate and get a cracking good engineer," he said.

"Such an official with 15 to 20 years' experience would have a wide knowledge of planning," he said.

After lengthy discussion, the board agreed with chairman J. J. Trudeau, who first presented the meeting with the necessity of a consultant, to glean more knowledge on the cost of hiring such an official and a background on the qualifications he would offer.

Proper positioning of trees, water mains, hydro and telephone poles on thoroughfares also came in for much discussion.

Plotting of these accessories is really a job for a consultant and if one is not available someone should be appointed to lay out a scheme, Mr. Ransom told the meeting.

"If you do not strive at a solution you are going to be in for a lot of corporal trouble and eyesores on the streets," he said.

Mayor Forrester told the board she had enquired about the underground laying of hydro power but learned, though it was done in large cities, it would not be feasible in smaller municipalities due to expensive deterioration of materials during installation.

A motion was passed that the board correspond with the Department of Planning and Development in Toronto, public utilities, hydro and telephone authorities, to cull their opinions on the laying out of new streets in new areas in reference to facilities installed underground and overhead. The advisability on the width of streets will be included in the motion.

The board also passed a motion approving in principle the setting up of dry cleaning business on Coleman street. Because it represented a change in the "permissible uses" category of the zoning by-law of Belleville the board ordered several times on municipal business lists during past months.

Ald. Keegan, speaking for the motion, told the meeting that dry cleaning establishments, because of their former use of inflammable fluids were listed permissible under industrial zones. However, due to removal of the fire hazard element in late years it was safe for them to operate in commercial areas of the city. What the city wanted to do was to place dry cleaning operations under the commercial by-law, he emphasized. It would not mean changing the by-law itself but was just adding to it. However, it appeared to the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board was proper before the matter could be submitted to the Municipal Board in Toronto for further action.

Belleville's traffic problems also came up for some discussion.

Mr. Ransom felt the board should offer its services to the city, whether it be a plan or not.

"I think this board stands ready to help within its limitations," said chairman Trudeau.

Also among those attending last night's meeting were Reeve R. Harder and Harold Wright of Sidney township, Reeve Fred Mitchell and Douglas Aitkin, representing Thurlow township.

Police Blotter

An R.C.A.F. training plane passing repeatedly over the city drew the ire of a number of residents last evening with the result that the police station was deluged with telephone complaints about the noise.

The city sergeant called officials of the air station who promised they would look into the matter. Complaints rule out the idea that the plane drone a city at night, it was stated.

A hit-and-run motorist knocked over a stop sign and wrecked a Dickie and Hall Ltd. truck at the intersection of Dundas and George street, Trenton, yesterday. The accident at police revealed the damage was done by an auto.

Two minor accidents were investigated by police. William Shaw, 214 Albert, struck a hydro pole at the corner of Victoria and Bleecker, doing about $100 damage to his car.

At the corner of Dundas and Foster a flower pot stopped the discharge a passenger and was rammed from behind by a car driven by Mrs. Ted Ellis, R.R. 6 Belleville. Damage to the car amounted to about $300 and to the bus about $75.

DESPATCH BATTALION

LONDON (Reuters) — The war office announced today that the Suffolk Battalion, Highland Light Infantry, is being sent to Cyprus in addition to the airborne troops flown to the colony in the last 24 hours.

With today's decision on planned move, Britain will have sent approximately 5,000 more troops to reinforce the Middle East garrison.

Reeve T. Cooney Of Rawdon Enters Race for Warden

The contest for the Hastings county warden's seat, in which Reeve Thomas Cooney of Rawdon township fight despite the fact that one reeve whose name was originally entered, has announced he will not run.

It is now understood that Reeve Theodore Cooney of Wellington township will contest for the warden-ship along with Reeve Charles Bullard of Deloro village, and Reeve Elmer Wood of Huntingdon township. Yesterday Reeve T.C. Graham of Tweed, whose name had previously been entered in the contest, said he would not be in the field.

The county warden will be named at the inaugural meeting of county council which gets underway next Tuesday afternoon. Reeve James H. Sprackett of Tudor and Cashel is the retiring warden.

Two Maritime Youths Held For Car Theft

Two 18 - year - old Maritime youths, one of them a member of the Royal Canadian Navy, appeared in city magistrate's court this morning charged with auto theft. They were remanded by Magistrate T. Y. Wills for one week.

Police held Gordon Russell Hambrooke, and Lional D. Maynard, stole a car belonging to Harvey Young while it was parked on Bleecker Ave. and drove it to the Brockville area. There it was wrecked in an accident. The two youths are then said to have taken a bus from which they were removed by police and returned to Belleville.

Maynard pleaded not guilty to the charge and was remanded for one week, while Hambrooke was remanded without plea.

George Lawrence and James Miller, both of Belleville, were also remanded for one week, when they appeared on a charge of robbery with violence. Bail of $3,000 was set by the magistrate.

REMANDED FOR SENTENCE

Joseph Reid of Trenton was found guilty of theft from his employers, Belle Cleaners, while acting as a driver for one of their cleaner trucks. He was remanded until Tuesday for sentence.

An assault charge arising out of a disturbance at a local restaurant was enlarged until January 27th.

Two ordinary drunks appeared in court and both were sentenced to time in jail when they failed to produce fines levied.

"Can you get $13?" asked Magistrate Wills of one of the men following his plea of guilty.

The accused smiled and replied "I could, but I would rather serve the time."

"That is very correct and proper answer, and one which I don't often hear," returned the magistrate as he imposed the alternative jail sentence.

Will Take Away Christmas Trees With City Trucks

City householders who have so far neglected to put out their Christmas trees will have their last trucks take them away, it was stated today by City Engineer Charles Mott.

Mr. Mott said that many Christmas trees have already been picked up, but that there were still discarded trees in the city. Owners of households get their trees out to the front some time next week, and they will be taken away," the engineer noted.

Did You Side Step Bad Luck Today?

This is the city.
We say this:
A black cat walked along East Bridge Street early this morning.
This is Friday the 13th.
The black cat did not know it was Friday, the 13th.
Or does it. It crossed Bridge Street leisurely and rounded the back of footloose office corners.
Nor did it wiggle a whisker when the superstitious pedestrian in mid - there, suddenly shuddered, attempted to round the early-morning fallen and as suddenly sat down on a slippery, snowy pavement.
Across the street a neck-stretching newspaperman who was taking in the early-morning drama, forgot to look where he was going and bumped into a fire hydrant by the Tip-Top Tailors store.
This is the day that ebony felines walk unmolested where they please, while in houses, spilling of salt without tossing a pinch over the shoulder, walking under ladders and breaking mirrors are supposed to be harmless scraping of the bad luck it concerned.
In the theatrical profession this is the day—of all days,—when whistling or combing hair, opening hats on beds is de trop. To do so is footlight suicide, or so the superstition think.
Yet there are many people who defy these ancient rituals of supposed ill luck. Take the case of the two ladies last year, who were walking along Front Street. They came to a ladder leaning on the bottom of which nearly reached the curb.
The more superstitious one carefully stepped to the edge of the pavement to avoid walking under the ladder. Her foot slipped. Result, a sprained ankle.
Take the case of the twin boys who were born on Friday the Thirteenth. Years later they married their childhood sweethearts together. Again it was Friday the Thirteenth. One had got married — the other run over by a truck. You could not tell one from the other.
In Paris, France, and probably in other superstitious centres of the world the famous "Thirteen Clubs" get together to celebrate and form the organization all of whom were born on Friday. They also get married — the other run over by a truck. You could not tell one from the other.
Room Number 13 in whatever hotel they select in which to sleep.
Here they hurl defiance at everything in the superstitious calendar.
They ignore pins scattered on the floor. They break mirrors, willy-nilly. They chase thirteen times around the block corners. They deliberately spill salt-cellars. They open umbrellas indoors. Hats are tossed on beds. They walk under ladders placed in their pathway. In this purpose.
Bad luck? The last reports state that the "Thirteen Club" of Paris has been celebrating its "Bad Luck Day" for the past thirty years with the original membership.
This reporter was born on the "13". At least so his maternal parent stated — and that was there. A few hours later when the paternal half walked into the room, he mentioned the fact it was Friday the thirteenth. He looked at his offspring and said:
"Why bring that up?"
We often have wondered what he meant.

Rabies Alarm Proves False In Oshawa Area

OTTAWA (CP)—Three dogs in the Toronto-Oshawa area reported as being suspected of rabies show no evidence of the disease, the agriculture department said today.

Dr. K. F. Wells, federal veterinary director general, said in a statement that the animals "have all proved negative when submitted to laboratory tests."

"Investigations have shown no evidence the dogs had been exposed to rabies in any way . . ." the statement added.

"There is no danger of rabies infection in either the Toronto or Oshawa areas at this time."

The suspected cases in Clarington and a confirmed case in Hastings county, its first since before 1939, had led to fears an outbreak of the disease had spread from northern Ontario.

Many suspected or confirmed cases have been reported in Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie.

Queen Will Meet Lepers Adopted By Royal Family

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will visit a leper settlement next month during their tour of Nigeria and will meet two lepers "adopted" by the royal family, it was announced today.

Both lepers are children. One is "adopted" by Queen Mother Elizabeth and the other by the Duke under a plan arranged by the British Empire Leprosy Relief Association.

The river settlement, which the Queen and Duke will visit on Feb. 9, is in Calabar, Nigeria.

A spokesman of the Leprosy relief association in London said he hopes the cure of infection in meeting lepers is "far less than in the case of historical times, particularly if out of doors."

Many Workers Back on Job

TORONTO (CP)—More than 200 of Canada Wire and Cable's 1,300 workers returned to work at the company's suburban Leaside plant as a strike by the United Electrical Workers (Canada) Union entered its 105th day.

A union official estimated today that a settlement talks are under way with the assistance of a third party. A company spokesman said he has no knowledge of them.

The union struck for more wages and increase offered by the company was rejected by the union, which asked for a general increase of 12 cents an hour. The minimum basic wage is $1.62 an hour.

'Y' Becomes Hive of Activity In Community

"Proof that the local YMCA is becoming more and more vital part in the life of the community, as a community centre, was witnessed these last few days when the walls of the old building literally squeaked with activity," reported Dr. Diamantides, general secretary of the YMCA. "Every corner of the building is being used to capacity these days by large numbers of community groups, for a variety of activities from 9 a.m. in the morning till after 10.00 p.m., in the evening," continued Mr. Diamantides.

Between Monday morning and Wednesday evening this week, the following groups have met in the "Y"—The Ministerial Association; R.E.T.A.; Trenton Evangeline Girls' Pet Cadets; 'Y' Physical Education committee; Quinte Foremen's executive; Hydro Forestry Department; Hi-Y Girls' Club; Hi-Y basketball club; the newly-formed 'Y' Triangle Club; Prince Edward Club; Quinte Lapidary Club; Bandit Drifters Commission meeting; So-Sel Club; a Hi-Y boys' tea-dance; the executive committee of the YMCA; annual meeting committee of the 'Y'.

"During the next three days' time, 24 physical activities were held for boys, girls, youth and adults in the physical department of the building.

"And this is not the whole story," concluded Mr. Diamantides, "because the main gate of the 'Y' closes at 10.00 p.m., giving the impression that all of 'Y' activities cease after that hour—but residents, finding a "home away from home" in the Hi-Y-operated available bed in the 'Y' dormitory each night during these three nights."

U.S. Airways Are Becoming Very Crowded

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. airways are becoming so crowded and so many flights are regulated, a special government advisory group said today, that airliners will be flying with death as a average of four times daily.

"Unless dangerous conditions in the air can be anticipated . . . unless some urgent action . . . is made to provide ultimate high-level leadership to the problem of air traffic control, the situation in line with air traffic growth and the progress being made in ground traffic control, the study group said.

The eight-man committee was headed by William Barclay Harding, New York investment banker and private flyer.

The "urgent action" which the committee described as vital is the immediate appointment of a figure of national stature to head a committee review of all aviation problems and to draw up a master, 20-Y's blueprint for orderly development of aviation facilities.

Immigrant Dies Without Telling Kidnapping Tale

TORONTO (CP)—A 27-year-old Slovenian immigrant died in hospital today without being able to give police his version of a report he was kidnapped and held prisoner.

Stanko Vencina entered hospital Sunday with jaundice after telling his fiancee, Felli Seme, he had been knocked out by hitch-hikers in North Toronto Thursday.

Miss Seme said Vencina told her he had been held in a basement and apparently drugged before being dumped in the rear seat of his own car near his home Sunday evening.

She said $1,185 had been taken from his bank account and $61 from his wallet.

LOOT ACTOR'S HOME

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Burglars looted actor Kirk Douglas' home of approximately $50,000 in jewelry, clothing, art works and other items, his secretary told police Thursday. All of the actor's clothes and even the contents of a freezer were taken.

Trenton Baritone Will Appear On CBC Show

A promising young Trenton baritone next month will be heard by CBC on its "Stars of Tomorrow" show.

He is 25-year-old Cor Otthof, pupil of Mrs. Catherine Hendrikse, Belleville music teacher.

Mr. Otthof, who came to Canada from Holland six years ago, has been taking lessons with Mrs. Hendrikse for the past three years. At present he is working at a hardware store in Trenton.

His principal number on the show will be an aria from Verdi's "Un Ballo en Maschera."

MARITIME

On the Lahave river, farther east, the water started to fall. At the weakened Sherbrooke dam the road dropped a foot during the time following a threat of greater devastation.

A truck crawled over a flooded highway from Bridgewater to Lunenburg. Residents of Germany their first mail and newspapers in five days.

Trains and bus service was back to normal in the Annapolis valley but floods and washouts still blocked two CNR sub-divisions. All cross-country roads between the valley and the province's south shore were impassable.

Utility companies said telephone and power services would be fully restored in northern Nova Scotia and the Annapolis valley Saturday.

HEAT RESTORED

In Prince Edward Island, however, it will be weeks before repairs could be cleared up. Damage in the area west of Charlottetown was estimated at more than $2,000,000, at least $500,000 in Summerside town alone.

Diesel generators were shipped in to give power to Summerside, Alberton and Borden.

The weathermen offered no encouragement as the record-breaking January thaw entered its 10th day. The forecast continued rain and drizzle, with no sign of a change. Two inches of rain fell Thursday at Sydney.

Shot, Killed Jilted Suitor, Then Weds Girl

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A Fort Worth girl and a 28-year-old draftsman—who earlier in the day, police said, had shot and killed the jilted suitor—were married Thursday night behind the locked doors of a Lutheran church.

Frankie Wilcoxen was wed to Miss Jimmie McKee, 18, in rites attended by only seven persons.

Wilcoxen's wedding day started shortly after midnight, according to police, when he shot and killed John Hoyt Blythe, 29.

Wilcoxen told police his car was forced to the curb by an automobile driven by Blythe.

The draftsman said he had a pistol in the car and when Blythe grabbed the keys to his car he pointed the weapon at him.

GRABBED GUN

"He made a grab for it and it went off," Wilcoxen said. The bullet struck Blythe in the forehead.

Wilcoxen said Blythe had once dated Miss McKee and more recently had been "bothering" her.

Wilcoxen was charged with carrying a pistol and released on $1,000 bond. Authorities said the slaying case would be presented to a grand jury for action.

Resembles Sketch Of Man Wanted

MONTREAL (CP)—Police Lieut. George Cookson said Thursday night a man was picked up in downtown Montreal because he resembled an artist's drawing of a suspect wanted by Ontario police.

He denied an earlier report that the man had made a statement after he was arrested.

Police said the man resembled the drawing of a man wanted by London, Ont., police in connection with the death of three-year-old Susan Cadieux.

The police lieutenant said the 27-year-old man is being held on a loitering charge.

Dulles Under Fire from British Papers

LONDON (Reuters)—U. S. State Secretary Dulles is under fire from British newspapers today for his assertions that the United States saved the world from atomic war before three times in the last 14 months.

Whitehall circles disagreed with parts of Dulles' account of official international developments of 1954 but would not take issue with him for fear of spoiling the atmosphere for Sir Anthony Eden's visit to Washington this month.

The Times said: "It is astonishing and regrettable that he should have raked over the ashes of Anglo-American disputes — especially whether the Allies should have intervened to save Dien-Bien-Phu—so soon before Sir Anthony Eden is to arrive in Washington."

DANCE OF DEATH

The Daily Mail says the bulldup of strength is the only deterrent to communism. "But there is a great difference between providing policy with a solid backing, such as NATO, and embarking on a dance of death up to the brink of the pit and back again," it adds.

The Daily Herald comments that Dulles' statement that the ability to get to the verge without getting into war is "the necessary art" is a terrible doctrine that will shock the United States.

"Cassandra," hard-hitting commentator in the London Daily Mirror, declares that Dulles' revival of his old "brinksmanship" days "is reckless war talking his risks throws known to all the world."

U.S. to Proceed With Pacific Atomic Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is going ahead this spring with atomic and hydrogen tests in the Pacific, but—apparently heeding stories from abroad —will tone down the nuclear blasts.

In what amounted to an official rejection of demands that all the big powers quit testing nuclear weapons, the Atomic Energy Commission and defence department announced Thursday night:

1. Preparations are under way for a series of nuclear tests to begin this spring at the Eniwetok proving grounds in the Marshall islands of the mid-Pacific.

2. Because there are no "effective international agreements" in effect to limit or control armaments, the U. S. must continually endeavor "to maintain the most modern, efficient military strength for the purposes of peace."

LESS POWERFUL

3. The tests will involve use of weapons for which the power will be "substantially below that of the maximum 1954 test." This reference is a parliamentary statement by AEC chairman Lewis L. Strauss, was to the super-powerful blast of March 1, 1954.

That explosion, unofficially estimated to have been equal to 57 megs released by the detonation of about 17,000,000 tons (17 megatons) of conventional TNT, brought invisible, radioactive material falling on the deck of a Japanese fishing boat. The crew developed radiation sickness. One died.

BRINK'S SUSPECTS

Hoover said the men approached the Brink's headquarters in the public garage in Boston's north end in a small truck.

In the trip of a few miles from the Roxbury district, seven of the men donned navy-type pea jackets, visored caps and Hallowe'en masks. All were armed with pistols.

SCORNED BUILDING

On a flashlight signal from one of the gang on a nearby rooftop, the men entered the building and went through six locked doors with keys they had obtained while planning the job.

The robbers went up a flight of stairs, through a hallway and money - counting room and approached the locked mesh-wire door of the vault room. Five employees were busy handling the money collected that day. It was then 7 p. m.

When the robbers pushed guns through the mesh door, the guards were so situated that their own guns were out of reach on a wall rack. Also out of immediate, reach was a buzzer which would have sounded a police alarm.

The robbers forced the five employees to lie face down on the floor, bound and gagged them and snatched more than what appeared to be large laundry sacks. During the long investigation all of the men named Thursday, except Faherty, had been questioned at one time or another by investigators. Some of the men even went before a federal grand jury investigating the robbery about four years ago, but that jury failed to return any indictments.

Young Mother Tells Court About Killing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A young mother, testifying in a hushed courtroom, said she sat reading her two-month-old baby while a lone policeman was shot to death nearby.

Mrs. Noreen Carey, 27, testified Thursday at the preliminary hearing of Jack Gordon, 30-year-old salesman later committed for trial on a charge of murder arising from the Dec. 7 slaying of constable Gordon Sinclair.

Mrs. Carey's husband Donald, 27, is sought in eastern Canada as a material witness.

The woman said Gordon was driving her and her husband to a dinner engagement in suburban Burnaby but stopped to pick up a man she named as Bob Smith.

She said they drove to the spot where the shooting took place and Gordon and her husband left the car.

After two shots rang out, her husband and Gordon ran back to the car as Smith began to pull away.

James Miller, now serving a sentence for illegal possession of narcotics, said he supplied Gordon.

Poet Retires From Naval Post

OTTAWA (CP)—Cmdr. E. F. B. (Ted) Watt, 54, journalist, poet and veteran of two world wars, has proceeded on leave pending retirement from the navy, it was announced today.

Born at Woodstock, Cmdr. Watt joined the navy as an ordinary seaman in 1917 and saw service with the Canadian and Royal navies.

He was on the staff of the Edmonton Journal from 1920 until 1939 when he spent four years as a freelance writer of fiction, magazine articles and poetry. His poems are to be found in school readers across Canada.

In 1944 he went on active services again in 1940. He was made a Member of the British Empire in 1946. He has served for time during the war as deputy director of naval information and in 1948 became staff officer psychological warfare on the staff of the director of naval intelligence. In retirement he held up to his retirement from the service.

OFF THE RECORD.

By Ed Reed

FLYING A KITE

Simone Philpott, Liberal member for Vancouver South, has placed on the House of Commons order paper a resolution urging the government to consider the advisability of recognizing the Chinese Communists government.

The resolution had been sponsored by a member of an opposition party, it would have occasioned little surprise. There is much that can be said for, as well as against, recognition of Red China. There is no good reason why this question should not be debated by the Commons, and many good reasons why it should be. Not the resolution itself, but the identity of its mover, is what gives rise to surprise and speculation.

Mr. Philpott is a member of the Liberals, the governing party. Has he placed his resolution on the order paper without consulting and informing the Cabinet? If so, is not this a rather amazing departure from the customary behavior of Liberal members on a question which cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be accurately described as coming under the heading of private business of a member? If the Cabinet was consulted, why has this method of initiating a debate on the matter been chosen in preference to a government resolution?

Hon. Lester B. Pearson, secretary of state for external affairs, has hinted more than once that Canadian public opinion might change its policy of non-recognition of the Communist regime. If the government believes this change advisable, why did it not bring the Philpott resolution forward? Apparently the government itself is undecided about the wisdom of a change in policy and wishes to hear the opinions of all members of the House? If that suggestion is held to be unlikely, then what other explanation is there than the conclusion that the government has felt it necessary for Mr. Philpott to "fly a kite" to test Canadian public reaction to recognition of Red China? If this be the explanation, the government fulfilling its true function, which is to make the decisions which it believes are wisest, not those which will be most popular?

GROWING OLD SUCCESSFULLY

"Growing Old Successfully" is the title of the article in the December issue of "The Royal Bank of Canada Monthly Letter." It might be described as a highlight of the month's reading, one of the exceptions to the rule that most of the paper that gets piled on an editor's desk is swept into the waste-paper basket without being read.

The title itself is enough to set one thinking. We always thought of growing old as something which, if one did at all, one did successfully, regardless of whether one liked it or not, as winning a pool. All one had to do was to do it and the very fact of doing made it a triumph.

The title of the Bank's article, however, casts doubt on this assumption. Apparently growing old is more akin to getting elected to Parliament, or kissing a pretty girl, accomplishments in which the whole question of the success or failure of the enterprise depends upon how one follows up the initial advantage.

There is nothing quite so disillusioning as a kiss which instead of thrilling one results in one of the participants in your breast-old niece dropped the goldfish in your mouth while you were sleeping. Similarly, says the Royal Bank, achieving old age can bring sorrow instead of joy. "We find ourselves passing out of leisure that is deadly dull, flat and uninviting." If any institution could remedy such a situation, it would be a bank. However, the Royal Bank does not offer the least hint of relief. Instead it gives hints how the individual may do it himself. "Pick and choose among the many things these later years have to offer," it urges. The time to prepare for old age is when you are young.

TWO ASSAULT CASES

Attorney-General Kelso Roberts has decided to appeal the 60-day sentence imposed on a Toronto man for beating a child. The appeal is being made on the grounds that the sentence is too lenient.

The case is sub judice so we shall make no comment.

As for his statement on a second child-assault case that a sentence of a fine of $100 or 30 days in jail imposed on a boarder of babies, "while light, is not one which it would be expected a higher court would increase", we can only hope that the Attorney-General's Department misludges the higher courts of the province. The child in this case was found dead of asphyxiation, his body covered with bruises. Best comment we have seen was in the writer of a letter in the Toronto Star who pointed out that a 77-year-old farmer had been sent to jail for two weeks for mistreating a horse, and that anyone who expected that a comparison of the sentences for the two offences would leave nobody much choice but to revise his evaluation of the comparative importance of children and horses.

STILL A CAPITAL CRIME

At London, Ont., authorities are looking for the man who caused the death of Susan Cadieux, aged 6.

Yet, if they find him, they say, he may never be charged with murder. The opinion of pathologists is that he did not actually kill Susan. He molested her, abandoned her and she died of exposure.

"As a result," says the Canadian Press, the "most serious charge which could be laid against him would be manslaughter."

However, he could be charged with rape. And the death sentence, though seldom invoked, is still the maximum penalty for rape.

PURPOSE

I have no wish to play the saint, To play the man, to play the friend;
I'm unskilled and unclothed, I'd rather To keep the faith with all,
Be enshrined in stone and paint To do my best unto the end.
In churches window-paned. In all tasks, great or small.

I tolerate the saints of old. To fashion something as a whole
Their holy lives I praise, That symbolizes me.
But I would have my story told And at the last to have a soul
In more familiar ways. That's fit for God to see.

I'd rather, when I leave this Here is the fame I'd leave on earth, earth,
And all my toil is through, The only praise I'd gain:
Have one who shared my That I had understood men's pain mirth
And felt their sorrows, too. And understood their pain.

"I started at the bottom of the ladder, 21 years ago as a loiter, however, I've had the misfortune somehow to rubber on promotion."

20 YEARS AGO

January 13, 1936

This is surely an example of honesty in advertising. Joe Morrier in this city years ago was popular and well esteemed and conducted a first class store. In his advertising he was plain spoken and often amusing. Here is one of his ads taken from our file copy at this time in 1936: "I have some very handsome black bear robes made from goat skins. I say this in no spirit of derision; it is not the fault of the goat that they are not known to be bear, but as much benefit will be derived from the robes as if they really were bear. And the economical citizen will save money and the enterprising farmer will make big profits, and everything will be lovely." Joe Morgan, opposite the Anglo-American Hotel.

Athletic Association team at the Turnbull Street rink last evening, the score being 10 to 3. Mayor R. C. Graham faced off the puck. The Maroons were the pride the Belleville team: Boland, point; Gilmour, cover; Wasson, L. Goyer, Whalen, Spencer, Chechette and Hunter. A meeting of the local Board of Health was held this morning in the city clerk's office to organize for the year. All the members were present, namely Dr. Yeomans, the Medical Health Officer; Mayor Charles N. Sullivan; Arthur McHugh, Fred Kelley, J. Panter, J. A. Laidlaw and Walter Alford. Arthur McGie was elected chairman of the board for the year.

The second game in the City Hockey League the Hardwares vs. Campbell's, resulted in the Greys of the east hill, the score being 6 to 5. Saddy Brennan was the referee and he had his work cut-out for him trying to make the boys play decent hockey. There was a lot of tripping and slashing and the boys "roughed it up" much more than was necessary. The following composed the lineup: The Greys, Minchinton, Campbell, Robb, Alford, Whitney, Spaughton and Turner; Hardware Company, Phillips, Pepper, Saunders, Grover, Bowen, Burke and McGuire.

Conversational Spray Carries Five Feet

Diagnosis is the art or act of recognizing the presence of disease from its symptoms, and deciding how to call it; character; also the decision reached. So says Webster.

According to a survey of various urban and rural sections of the country by officers of the U.S. Public Health Service about years ago — about the time Tony was a pup — three-fourths of respiratory infections accounted for the everyday work of physicians that is, illnesses and accidents.

That means not just the immediate illnesses from such ailments as measles, scarlet fever, tonsillitis, meningitis, pneumonia or what-have-you, but also the complications or sequels of such infections, such as otitis media, mastoiditis, pleurisy, rheumatic fever, sinusitis, impairment of hearing, and the like.

In most instances illnesses in this category are not diagnosed in the beginning. The patient or his guardian is content to call it a "cold" and gamble that it won't prove to be diphtheria, measles, infantile paralysis, meningitis or other serious respiratory infection.

Too often physicians who dare to diagnose from such patients change doctors—dare not say, in the early stages, "I don't know" or "I don't know yet what is developing" —foster the practice of calling any respiratory illness a cold. In the early stage of the indisposition or disease—when the infection is most communicable — and thereby contribute to the spread of the infection, the undiagnosed disease.

Not that a good doctor can diagnose a respiratory infection in the onset, when it is most likely to spread, but the doctor can and should at least instruct the patient how to avoid spreading what he has caught.

Any number of physicians, specialists and health authorities have told people how to avoid "the common cold" and what to do when "threatened" or down with it, but no physician or health authority can or will define or describe such an entity.

The answer I have gotten whenever I have challenged the cold timers to define "the common cold" or to tell me in medical terms what a "cold" is or how to protect people from catching measles, diphtheria or something of the kind from the "cold" who has the doctor's assurance that it is just a "cold."

Tomorrow we'll tell you how to safeguard yourself against this illness.

"Any fool knows what a common cold is."

Not just any fool, for indeed I don't. What's more, I don't believe any physician or health authority knows what a "cold" is, and that's the main cause for the flu or describe "the common cold." It is tag which satisfies many a patient but the doctor doesn't know what ails him, but it isn't a diagnosis.

Tomorrow I will tell you how to safeguard yourself against this illness.

Strength for The Day

LITTLE BECOMES MUCH

There is a story in the fourth chapter of II Kings about a Hebrew widow who was poor and about to be sold with her family into slavery. And the prophet Elisha came to her house and asked what there in the house; and she said, Thy handmaid hath not anything in the house save a pot of oil.

Then Elisha told her to go and borrow from her neighbors all the vessels they would let her have. After that, she was to shut the door upon herself and her sons and pour some of the oil into each of these vessels; and as she did so, the oil in each vessel increased until the vessels were full to the brim.

The Biblical story is, among other things, a parable. This story is to be thought of in connection with our Lord's feeding of the five thousand. It is a little bread passing through his hands become enough to feed a multitude. The story of the woman in ancient days and the story of Jesus feeding the five thousand set forth the truth I have called the little became much.

Little is a very special word in Christian vocabulary. Under it's power the little becomes all-sufficient.

It—in them is a world of meaning and silent revelation.

I have looked into Eyes that dazzle. Eyes as clear as spring water.

I have looked into Eyes that are as dull as mud in a stagnant pool. It is a sight to inspire anyone. With Happy Eyes we look out upon the world where our Nature smiles and a love of beauty is stimulated. By listening to look upon beauty every where our Eyes are trained to see it, like Pippa in Robert Browning's poem "Pippa Passes."

When you say nice things about your self-respect those Eyes will look them, a word of encouragement, those Eyes will look back at you and they light up and thank you with an extra sparkle!

Lads Are Obliging

(Kitchener- Waterloo Record).

Probably you've noticed there is something awfully nice about the average growing boy. He's always so hungry he will eat anything—the pudding that languished, the cookies you forgot to add the salt to, or the biscuits that got scorched. "They taste all right to me," he'll say, reaching for a second helping. "I don't see a thing wrong with 'em."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A prominent Canadian police official has been quoted to the effect that the reason for the considerable increase in motor fatalities in the past year may well be the disturbed state of the world, and the anxiety of the public mind generally. People cannot drive as well when they partake of the world-wide unrest.

If our police become psychologists, we might confidently predict that the motor fatalities for the coming year will be twice what they were last year. The last people in the world to become versed of psychology should be the cops. The function of a policeman is not to try to figure out why a person misbehaves or flouts the law. It is merely to nab those who do.

This psychology is an insidious thing. Psychology is just another word for apology. A few years ago psychology was a little-known science and was largely applied to the study of nuts and queers. Now psychology has invaded the entire human scene. It is applied to business and politics. They have psychologists attached to schools. We are all reached to excuse on our faults and failures. The world is mine".

seems, is peopled by nuts and queers.

Maybe so. But what a fix we will be in if the cops come under the spell of this interesting and popular fad and all become psychologists. Instead of wading in and grabbing a drunk by the scruff of the neck, the policemen will stand back, viewing the disorderly scene and trying to figure out just what psychological factors lie behind the behavior of this poor fellow mortal. When traffic snarls up, the psychologized cops will refrain from pinching anybody, reflecting that the poor dear public is merely sharing a world-wide anxiety neurosis.

Alas Atlantis Is Lost Again

(New York Times)

We do not so much mind the report, made by Dr. Frank Press of the California Institute of Technology to the American Geophysical Society at Los Angeles, that the moon does not consist of a chunk of something like iron, used to explain earthquake waves by a new method and these indicate, as the second guess, that it has layers of basalt and granite under all oceans are of uniform thickness, rather than a continent and neighbor anyway. Some day man will visit it, and even today we can be sure that there will be no end of such techniques as Walt Disney exhibited for TV viewers.

We don't mind as much where the moon came from, but what we do mind is a collateral conclusion that Atlantis never was and never was any such continent as Atlantis. All we can say on this point is that Drs. Pyrex and Swing have not taken their Fiske as seriously as they might have done. Plato always said that what he put down was, outside the Pillars of Hercules, "an island larger than Libya and Asia together." Plato said this island's first king was named Atlas and possessed wealth "as never before in any royal house nor will ever easily be seen again."

The people worked metals of several kinds, had an abundance of horses, "the noblest and best-tempered stuffs," ever fruits and vegetables and fished in waters providential for everything for which provision was needed."

Life in Atlantis was thus somewhat that men in later years could only dream of. In the end, unhappily, the island sank into the evil ways, and at the end of the "Critias," in an incomplete paragraph, Plato avows it clear that the wrath of the gods descended upon them.

The story is too good to lose. We need Atlantis. We need the romantic dream of a golden land and age. We need the dream scientists in their places or next thing we know they will be trying to tell us the moon isn't made of green cheese.

Trade Controls

(Windsor Star)

A Uganda farmer was arrested after trying to sell three human beings for experimental purposes. Even the most rugged individualist must admit some government controls are needed.

War Spurs Research

(Edmonton Journal)

Britain's newly appointed astronomer royal, Richard Woolley, made a rather biting comment on the state of science in the world today. After calculating that the cost of a trip to the moon would be about equal to that of the hydrogen bomb he said: "I am a confirmed sceptician that the journey would be made because "it doesn't win wars." He added: "The world would soon be making the trip if it would win a war."

There is, regretably, a great deal of truth in these cynical remarks. In the last generation, most of the money spent on research was especially those which have depended on elaborate and costly researches—has been devoted to preparing for war. The atom bomb became a possibility only because governments financed a thorough exploration. Similarly the development of guided missiles depended on a study of the atomic properties of the upper atmosphere and the possibilities of rocket flight which were intangible in earlier years. Even in medicine one wonders if the development of penicillin and other "miracle drugs" would have been so rapid as it was if it had not been for the urgent needs of war.

There is actually nothing new about this. Much of the early development in aeronautics was associated with the requirements of the military for more accurate navigation in the third dimension. For centuries, too, the world's finest minds—leading to devise more efficient systems of navigation to protect warships operating in distant waters and among the most consistent patrons of the science of astronomy.

The true scientist is fundamentally driven by a sort of divine curiosity, an urge to penetrate the unknown. To get his support he needs, however, he often has to establish that his research will benefit mankind in war or to get government to kill more of his country's enemies.

TODAY'S DAILY MEAL

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HAPPY EYES

The eyes have been called the seat of the Soul. Perhaps that is why, at times, we like to look deep into the Soul and see reputed secrets revealed. Happy Eyes have their own language though it's mostly a silent one. It's expressed just the same.

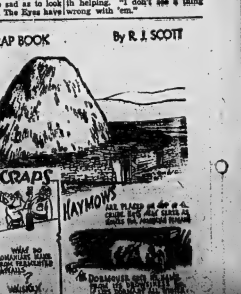
I was dining in a hotel one morning with a friend and we people in their seats and began to eat our meals my friend remarked that he could always pick out the happy people by getting a good look at their Eyes. The world's meaning darts out of the Eyes. No other feature of the face is so revealing.

The Eyes of Lincoln told the story of his heart. There was a gentleness and nobility to the Eyes of Washington as revealed in the various portraits, and there is to be seen power and wisdom in the Eyes of Daniel Webster. There are no more honest Eyes than those of a baby or child. They look right through you!

There is an endless variety of Eyes—the Creator never made two exactly alike—but the ones most attractive to us are the ones we look into and love—the Happy Eyes. Nothing is quite so sad as to look into unhappy Eyes. The Eyes have it—in them is a world of meaning and silent revelation.

I have looked into Eyes that dazzle. Eyes as clear as spring water. It is a sight to inspire anyone. With Happy Eyes we look out upon the world where our Nature smiles and a love of beauty is stimulated. By listening to look upon beauty every where our Eyes are trained to see it, like Pippa in Robert Browning's poem "Pippa Passes."

When you say nice things about your self-respect those Eyes will look them, a word of encouragement, those Eyes will look back at you and they light up and thank you with an extra sparkle!



Lads Are Obliging

Probably you've noticed there is something awfully nice about the average growing boy. He's always so hungry he will eat anything—the pudding that languished, the cookies you forgot to add the salt to, or the biscuits that got scorched. "They taste all right to me," he'll say, reaching for a second helping. "I don't see a thing wrong with 'em."

Delegates Say System Violates Rate Principle

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission announced Thursday it has developed a new formula for which Ontario municipal utilities may base their power bills to customers.

Commission spokesmen told delegates to the annual meeting of District 4, Ontario Municipal Electric Association, that the new structure should mean increases in power cost to only a small percentage of domestic consumers. Some delegates, however, said the new rate violated a principle of hydro rates that the more power used the less it costs.

W. Ross Strike, Hydro's second vice-chairman an said the new pcon would make rates more equitable. It was a four-block system, with rates varying after consumption of 50, 250 and 750 kilowatt hours a month. The system now used by most Ontario communities is two-block, with one rate for the first 60 kilowatt hours and another for additional power. Niagara Falls has a three-block plan.

TEST IN WINDSOR

The four-block system is being tested in Windsor.

Delegates turned a cold shoulder on the commission's first attempt to generate enthusiasm for its 50th anniversary celebrations. They defeated a proposal by A.A. Kennedy, OMEA president and a Hydro commissioner, that an anniversary issue of Hydro News, the commission's own magazine, be distributed to all domestic customers in the province.

The commission this year celebrates both the passage of provincial legislation setting up the first Hydro commission in 1906 and the appointment of the first commissioners.

The OMEA is expected to sponsor an anniversary celebration in Kitchener in May.

REMOVES HAMMER

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Spot, a 18-inch-long English setter, is in good condition after an operation for removal of a nine-inch xylophone hammer from his stomach. Dr. W. F. FLIES OVER POLE

Marine Lt. Col. Hal R. Kolp, of Akron, Ohio, is the first pilot to fly over the South Pole since 1947. Bad flying conditions forced him to change his flight plan and he had to steer his four-engined Skymaster due south and over the pole. Lt. Col. Kolp was on a reconnaissance mission for Adm. Byrd's expedition when he ran into a "whiteout".

Political TV Broadcasts Not Yet Decided

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent Thursday gave a noncommittal statement on whether political broadcasts will be allowed on Canadian television.

He said in the Commons that he has "never been personally impressed by so-called political television broadcasts that have come from countries where that has been used to a considerable degree."

He added, however, that "there will be no obstacle to the use of television for any legitimate purpose."

It might be a question of how much public time should be made available to political parties. That would have to be balanced against television's "real educational and informative value" to the public.

Political TV broadcasts would have to be done "in a manner that is really conducive to a proper and dignified conduct of partisan propaganda."

OPPOSITION CRITICISM

Opposition leader Drew had earlier criticized the absence of political broadcasts by federal parties on television.

"Canada must be almost unique on either side of the Iron Curtain," Mr. Drew said.

Provincial political parties had used television in provincial election campaigns but not the federal parties.

"We alone are denied that privilege."

Yet the CBC has found time to report the activities of cabinet ministers, Mr. Drew said. He was not challenging that, but it was not part of the exchange of political ideas essential for preserving democracy.

Searchers on Way to Identify Bodies Believed of Missionaries

By JORGE JURADO

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—The arrival of a ground search party at a campsite in the rugged Auca Indian country was awaited today by searchers who believed those of missing American missionaries. There has been no report on a fifth missing evangelist.

A United States Air Force helicopter crew—which remained at the scene—reported finding the bodies Thursday night, but its messages did not identify any of the victims.

The 20-man ground party, led by Dr. Art Johnson of St. Catharines, Ont., was about 10 miles from the campsite when last heard from Thursday night. In the party was another Canadian missionary, Rev. John Shalanko of Niagara Falls, Ont.

In search for the five missionaries began last weekend after they disappeared in an area on the eastern slopes of the Ecuadorean Andes, where they had been seeking to christianize the Auca tribesmen.

BODIES IN RIVER

The helicopter crew's report was relayed by radio from Shell Mera, search headquarters 100 miles southeast of Quito. The fliers had sighted one body Tuesday near a plane the evangelists had used to reach the area. A second was seen Wednesday and the third and fourth were found in the Curaray river Thursday, the report said.

The helicopter crew'd a seven-mile area around the camp but found no sign of life.

Members of the missionary party were Peter J. Fleming, Seattle, Wash.; Nathaniel Saint, Huntington Valley, Pa.; James Elliot, Portland, Ore.; Edward McCulley, Milwaukee, Wis., and Roger Youderian, Lansing, Mich.

Entries in Fleming's diary, found at the base camp, indicated that the missionaries were lured to the river by signs of friendship from some of the tribesmen. They apparently were seized Sunday just after radioing: "Here come a group of Aucas we have not known before."

HAD SEEMED FRIENDLY

Abraham Vanderpuy, president of the Inter-Mission Fellowship of Ecuador, said the missionaries had worked since last September to make friends with the Aucas.

The missionaries had made many flights over an Indian village on the river and, lowered gifts to the tribesmen. The Indians were evidently pleased by the gifts, and the Americans landed on a beach along the river Jan. 3 and put up a prefabricated hut in a tree as an advance camp.

DOOMED, GETS TAX BILL

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—Caryl Chessman, author of the best-seller, "Cell 2455, Death Row," received a "final notice" Thursday from the internal revenue bureau asking for $3,433.62 in unpaid 1954 taxes and interest. The convict, who still is fighting through courts his 1948 death sentence for kidnap-rape, was silent as to "avoid the inconvenience, embarrassment and additional costs that result from further delay."

Govt. Willing To Appoint Woman to Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has decided to appoint a woman to the three-member civil service commission but is having difficulty finding one to take the job, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday.

He told Margaret Aitken (PC, York-Humber) in the Commons that the vacancy on the commission had been offered to a woman but she had "felt not desirous of acceptance."

He added the matter still is under consideration because the government would like to have a competent woman on the commission. He did not identify the woman to whom the post was offered.

Miss Aitken's question whether the government is considering appointment of a woman followed a suggestion made Wednesday by Mrs. Ann Shipley (L — Timiskaming).

A GOOD START

Mrs. Shipley, first woman in Canadian parliamentary history to move the address in reply to the speech from the throne, suggested Wednesday such an appointment would be a good start towards giving women more opportunity for advancement with men in the economy.

Before the session opened Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC — Hamilton West) said in a statement that the government should take advantage of the present vacancy to appoint a woman to the commission.

The vacancy was caused by the retirement last autumn of C. H. Bland, then chairman.

The Sauna--a Most Successful Way to Beauty and Health

By NICHOLAS MIKA

When the French are proud of their perfume and the Germans of their beer, so are the Finns proud of their steam bath, the sauna. In fact they have reason to be proud, because there is no better way to clean your body more thoroughly and achieve a more delightful feeling of relaxation than by a sauna bath.

When you sit in the sauna for the first time, wrapped in a cloud of hot steam, gasping for breath in a temperature of almost 160° F. you think you are choking to death. But if you have the courage to hold out for thirty minutes and faithfully follow the rules of the sauna, the reward will be almost miraculous. Your tired feeling is gone, your spirit is lifted, with one word, you feel like a million.

The Finns say that they would never have given the world so many good sportsmen had it not been for their sauna. Indeed, they won so far over two hundred Olympic medals. It is a well-known fact that the Finns belong to the strongest and healthiest people in the world.

Well, what actually is the sauna? It is a small log cabin built not far from the lake usually surrounded by trees. Inside you find a stove covered with stones that are heated until they are burning hot. Along the wall is a platform where you can rest with a tub of water beside you. From time to time you splash the water in your face to cool yourself or pour it over the red stones to get more steam. If you like you can climb a little higher and enjoy a more intensive heat. Now you are not sweating, the water is running in little streams from your body. You become thirsty. But the treatment is not over. An attendant whips your body with birch twigs and scrubs you with a brush that seems to have been made like a porcupine. Oddly enough, it does not hurt in the slightest, but you can well imagine that your blood is racing through your body. You can take a cold shower after that, but the Finns prefer to jump in the cold river in the summertime or roll in the snow in winter.

Mind you, the sauna bath in Finland is not merely the equivalent of our bathtub. It is also a substitute for our afternoon tea parties. For it is by no means unusual to invite friends on a Saturday afternoon for a get-together in the sauna. In fact, it is the revered place to make business deals, hold political discussions and exchange the latest gossip. Before settling a problem, the Finns always take the time to go to the sauna to cleanse not only their body but their mind.

Although the effect of the steam bath is its miraculous reducing effect. You can easily lose twenty pounds within a month provided you don't develop a healthier appetite after the treatments.

Today the sauna bath does not belong to Finland alone. It has spread all over Europe and has become more popular every year in America. Its health - bringing effects are widely recognized by doctors and scientists. And, for thousands of people it is the elixir of life.

The beginning of the sauna goes back more than a thousand years. From the log bath house that is still characteristic for rural Finland it has developed into the most elaborate bathing establishments in the cities. The wooden platforms are replaced by marble steps. Instead of a whipping with twigs you can get a professional massage. A built-in swimming pool saves you the trouble of running to the river. The blazing stove is replaced by a regulated steam supply. But most of the people prefer the old type log cabin with the smell of smoke and moistened birch twigs. They can miss the comfort of a well-furnished house but they cannot live without their sauna.

Girl Guide and Brownie Work Here Faces Emergency Situation

PARLIAMENTARY REPORTER

OTTAWA.—Francoise Cote, Ottawa parliamentary correspondent for Montreal La Patrie, is the first French-language woman member of the parliamentary press gallery. She worked for eight years with Quebec Government-Journal, and one year with Ottawa Le Droit before joining La Patrie.

Girl Guide and Brownie work in the city may have to be abandoned because of lack of parental interest and too few pack and company leaders.

This conclusion was reached Monday night at an executive meeting of the local Guide and Brownie Association.

Scarcity of volunteer pack and company leaders and individuals who will do association work has created an emergency situation for local Guides and Brownies. At present less than half a dozen persons are trying to do the work of several times that number.

A special meeting has been called for next Monday evening in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday School rooms to determine the fate of the Guide movement locally. Those interested in keeping this work in existence are urged to attend.

HEAVE TOLL

NEW YORK (AP) — Hurricane and flood disasters in the last six months cost the American Red Cross a record sum of more than $27,000,000. It plans a record peacetime spend for $60,000,000 in 1956. OFFICERS ELECTED

Past President, Miss Helen Jones; president, Miss Gertrude Lazier; 1st vice-president, Miss Grace Kenny; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Grace Anderson; recording-secretary, Miss Faye Young; treasurer, Miss Helen Cook; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lou Wilkin; supply secretary, Mrs. Stella Grant; press secretary, Miss Marion Nichol; "Missionary Monthly", Mrs. Pauline Lilley; assistant, Miss Daisy Young; community friendship, Miss Pearl Campbell; assistant, Mrs. Isabel Tempereance secretary, Mrs. Helen Calnan; literature secretary, Mrs. Nellie Anderson; pianist, Mrs. Dehnza; assistant, Miss Marion Nichol; auditors, Miss Archdale, Miss Grace Houston, Ruby Reed; assistant, Mrs. Wright Houston, Mrs. W. Roblin, Miss Lois Shaplin; Explorer leader, Mrs. Marguerite Marshall and Mrs. Marjorie Hodgson.

Following the installation of the officers, Mr. Davis congratulated the new officers and those re-elected and expressed his hope that the coming year will see a repetition of last year's fellowship and success, and that all recognize the significance and importance of the missionary program of the church in its responsibility to bring the good news of the Kingdom of God with those who have been deprived of it. Bridge Street church has various groups, is making a large contribution to the ministerial needs. When one does her best in the work of the Kingdom one is giving her best to Christ's services and this type of gift brings great happiness and blessing, the greater the sacrifice the greater the joys in giving. If one consecrates in full, she shall go on to greater progress. There is no spiritual recovery apart from advance.

Mr. Davis closed his remarks by saying that he was happy to note the progress in the missionary work and expressed the hope it will continue.

Mr. Davis was thanked by Miss Lazier.

A reception at their home, Front Street, Stirling, on Sunday afternoon and evening, attended by well-wishers greet the well-known couple. Guests were in attendance from Belleville, Kingston, Tweed, Marmora and the surrounding countryside, a testimony that they are widespread respect for the McGee family.

ATTEND SOLEMN HIGH MASS

On Monday morning the couple attended a Solemn High Mass of thanksgiving in St. James' the Minor Church, Stirling, celebrated by their son, the Rev. W. J. McGee of Belleville. He was assisted by the Rev. W. O'Brien, Toronto, as deacon and the Rev. D. MacDonald of Bedford, Ont., as sub-deacon.

The Rev. J. J. Buckley of Belleville was master of ceremonies with the Rev. Peter Murphy of Belleville as thurifer with John Long and Michael Long of Stirling as acolytes.

The Rev. S. Lesage of Chesterville, Ontario, a former pastor of Stirling, preached the sermon.

The choir of St. James' the Minor Church, assisted by the Rev. J. Lazarche and J. Clinton McGee, Jr., sang the Mass Aleyaiu with Mrs. J. Clinton McGee, Jr., as organist.

Following the Mass, the Rt. Rev. Leo J. Byrne, Vicar-General of Kingston Diocese, presented the couple with a Papal Blessing granted to the jubilarians.

Among the many priests assisting at the Mass were: the Very Rev. H. J. Leavitt, Perth; the Rev. F. D. Hyland and the Rev. Stanley of Madoc; the Rev. G. F. Marin, Deseronto; the Rev. W. H. Carty, Trenton; the Rev. T. F. Healy, Marmora; the Rev. G. A. O'Hearn, Toledo, Ont., and the Rev. J. Healy, Kingston.

Following the Mass, a sumptuous dinner was served at the Stirling Hotel for the celebrating couple and their friends, with Father Jos. Murray McGee, as toastmaster.

PRESENTATION

On Sunday evening Mr. Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P., presented greetings from the provincial secretary on behalf of the Province of Ontario.

The couple was a bower of beauty with baskets of yellow roses, chrysanthemums and white heather, arrayed on the table.

Mrs. McGee received her guests in a gown of white with gold corsage and was assisted by her daughters. The bridegroom of 50 years was in formation on his lapel.

Mrs. Ross Herniston, Kingston, was in charge of the guest book and the honored couple received a recipient of a large array of lovely gifts.

Those who assisted were: Mrs. James Mitts, Mrs. Clarence McGee, Mrs. Vincent Farrell, Miss Gertrude Meikle, Mrs. Maude Annis, Mrs. Roy La Chapelle and Miss Hinde Kerby.

The best wishes of Stirling and district go out to Mr. and Mrs. McGee for future years of happiness.

CANADIAN MILLS TURN TO SYNTHETICS

Faced with severe foreign competition, Canada's textile industry has had to turn to new methods and new products in order to survive. An appeal to the government met with refusal to protect the industry through high tariffs, and though the U.S., British and other countries can sell their surplus natural textiles here at very low cost, Canadian manufacturers now are turning out synthetic rather than natural fibres and finding that they can retain at least part of the domestic market. Here are samples of the industry's new product—draperies of spun glass which are wrinkle proof and fire-proof and will not fade in sunlight nor shrink when laundered.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HAVE YOUR IMAGINATION IS RUNNING AWAY WITH YOU.

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Though I suspected it for a long time, it has just come to my attention that my mother and sister have been talking to any man who came to see me more than three times. I don't know what I'll do when they tell them, but the men never call again. My mother and sister have even checked on the place where I work, to make sure there are no eligible men there. If there were, I am sure they would get the same line, whatever it is. I haven't yet met anyone of whom I have become too fond, but I rue the day I do.

I have thought I might get an apartment of my own, but some of my money is tied up in the home we live in, so I feel rather trapped. I have also thought of accusing my mother and sister to their faces, but I know they would deny having started anything.

I hope to join a club where I will meet a lot of gentlemen, and I dread to bring them home to get to marry, but it is very hard to believe that they would go to quite the extremes you think they have.

In just what way did it come to your attention that these two have discussed you with any men friends in such a way that the men stop coming to see you? Did any one of the men tell you that this happened, or tell one of your friends so that it got back to you? Or are you still just "suspecting" that you have been talked about?

My suggestion is that if you actually have very definite proof that your mother and sister have done what you think they have, then do something to put a stop to it yourself—that is, confront them with it and have it out with them. But unless you have concrete evidence which cannot be disproved, it would be extremely foolish for you to say anything.

I DON'T THINK YOU'LL LOVE THIS BOY FOREVER"

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Is it possible to be in love at 15? Eight months ago I met a boy and my heart left me. I'll bet, forever. You'll probably say I'm too young to be in love and that I should go out with other boys. I do go out with others, but I never feel the same with them as I do when I'm with this one boy.

Could this be just an infatuation, or is it true love? —L.M.

Dear L.M.:

It is not likely that any 15-year-old can be really "in love." To understand what real love means requires maturity and experience which come only with the years. It requires, also, a knowledge of people that makes it possible to tell the difference between someone who would make a dependable, loyal and devoted marital mate and someone who would not. Such a knowledge can be acquired only by having lots of friends and knowing them well. That is why it is wise for a teenage girl to go out with more than one boy, and vice versa, and for none of them to be in a hurry to think themselves "in love."

In view of all this, I just don't believe you are going to "love" this particular boy "forever," and I don't believe you would think so yourself if you had the maturity I've been talking about. So my advice to you is to go right on going out with other boys, as well as this one, so that you can begin to acquire that knowledge of people which will enable you to recognize "real love" when it finally comes to you.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

TO DYE OR NOT TO DYE

A slight turn of the brush at each stroke "exercises" hair roots and stimulates circulation.

There used to be a saying to the effect that "a woman who will admit that her hair is "touched" up will even tell her age." But that's no longer true. Women nowadays are having fun with color rinses, dyes and color shampoos. And their hair doesn't have the gray before they experiment, either. Changing the color of one's hair has become just as much of a morale booster as buying a new hat. And, with color shampoos, it can be done just as frequently since, if you decide you don't like the effect, you can wash it right out.

If you're toying with the notion of doing anything drastic about the color of your hair, however, you'd best put yourself into the hands of an expert at a reliable beauty salon. The coloring you desire may require a complicated process in which the hair is first bleached, then dyed or tint-ized. One of your considerations will be how often it will be necessary to have this complete job done. And that will depend on your hair. Hair that lies flat against the scalp shows the darkening roots faster than hair which springs up to conceal part and hairline.

Other important considerations are the rate of growth of your hair and the contrast in the natural color and that which you would like it to be. You may be able to make the adjustments in "no work" at all, four to five weeks apart or you may have to make them as close together as two to three weeks.

Whatever you decide to do about the color of your hair, however, do give it thorough daily brushings with bristles that are stout enough to penetrate to the roots. The brush affords exercise to the hair roots and stimulates the circulation in the scalp. Slightly turning the brush at the end of each stroke to give the hair a pull is even better exercise. Regular shampoos and brushing are always the key to the health of hair and scalp but both are doubly necessary for dyed or tinted hair if you'd keep it as soft and lustrous as it should be.

GOOD MANNERS

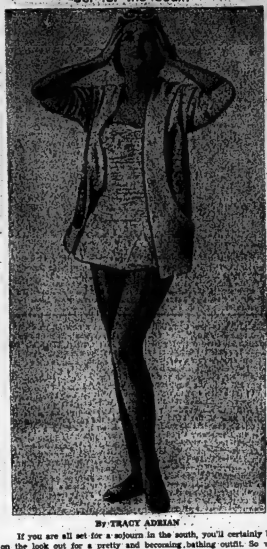
By MRS. BEECHMAN

BREAKIN GUP 'GROUPS" AT A PARTY.

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

A group of my friends and I would like to have your opinion about a procedure which another friend of ours has at her parties. She and her husband give large parties either late-afternoon or evening on Saturday or Sunday, and we all agree that they are wonderful hosts. However, they are the only people we know who insist on breaking up groups of guests who have settled down to enjoy one another. Some people resent this. What is your opinion of this? — Ethel H.

I'm enthusiastic about the social procedure of your friend and her husband at their parties! It takes a good deal of social finesse, very often a good deal of courage, and always a 'reeling eye", to break up what a friend at mine calls "the felled groups." It's really a good idea, and so wise, for a hostess or host to go over to a group of people who have tenaciously remained together for too long a time and who have taken no responsibility about circulating and sharing in the give-and-take of hospitality and friendliness. Very often it's a group of intimate friends who naturally flock together and thoughtlessly remain there, or it may be a group of women who are always talking shop, or a group of men who have bogged down, to be exclusive. The clever hostess or host breaks up such a group by taking a guest over to another group after saying, for example, "I want so much to have you and Helen Williams know each other . . .won't you please change places with Jack Blake."



CUTTING THE WEDDING CAKE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

The daughter of a lifelong friend and I have a girl who has always been very dear to me, is to be married soon, and recently she asked me to preside over the serving of the wedding cake, which is to be a three-tiered three-tiered cake. Of course, I accepted, but I must confess I'm vague about what this responsibility means. Doesn't the bride cut the first slice of the wedding cake? And at most of the wedding receptions I've been to I seem to recall that the guests serve themselves. So what would there be for me to do? — "Auntie"

Yes, always the bride and groom (his right hand over her right hand) cut the first slice of the wedding cake together and share it with each other (a gesture signifying that henceforth they share everything). The rest of the cake-cutting-and-serving procedure depends on the wishes of the bride and her family. On this occasion apparently their wish is for you to take over the cake-serving, and this does indeed make the procedure much nicer and more personal than having (1) the caterer's assistant cut the cake of (2) the guests help themselves.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Question: I enjoy your column in the paper very much. I wonder if you could give me a recipe for red cabbage with spices in and sugar, as one don't like it too sour. Also would like to know if you have a recipe for prune jam. It's prunes and figs and I don't know what else . . . our children love the bought cookies but I find they are too expensive . . . have you any recipes that resemble the bought ones? . . . Mrs. L. A.

Answer: I don't know whether you want raw pickled red cabbage or red cabbage cooked as a vegetable as I will give you both.

RED CABBAGE PICKLE

One medium large head red cabbage, 1¼ tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon celery or mustard seed or ½ teaspoon each, ½ cup sugar, 3/4 cup vinegar (or less). Shred cabbage finely or coarsely. Add salt and sugar and mix. Pack it well into the cabbage. Add vinegar and spices and let stand 12 hours before serving.

SWEET-SOUR RED CABBAGE

Three tablespoons butter or margarine or bacon fat, 1 small onion finely sliced, 4 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 medium head red cabbage shredded about 4 cups, 3 cups, 3 tart apples sliced thinly, 1/4 cup mild vinegar, 1 cup water, pepper to taste. Melt shortening and add onion and brown sugar. Cook until a golden yellow. Add remaining ingredients. Cover. Cook on high heat until steaming, then reduce heat to low and cook until tender — about 30 minutes in all.

(The prune jam is called

ORIENTAL MARMALADE

One cup prunes, 1 cup dried apricots, 1/2 cup each figs and dates and raisins, 1 each lemon and orange, 1 cup dark corn syrup or sugar. Soak prunes and apricots, remove stones from prunes and chop or grind both fruits. Cut figs and dates into small pieces, and chop lemon and orange finely. Mix fruits, add just enough water to cover, and soak 24 hours. Add the syrup or sugar and cook gently 40 minutes. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

There are so many varieties of cookies that can be bought I don't know which you are referring to, so I'm giving you a cookie that is popular with children, and you can write again telling me the type you refer to.

RAISIN-OAT CRISPS

Three — quarters cup seedless raisins, ½ cup shortening, 1/4 cup water, 1 cup brown sugar (packed), 3/4 cup sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon each soda, cinnamon and salt, 1½ cups rolled oats. Rinse and drain raisins and add to the shortening and water and heat until only until shortening melts, stirring. Cool. Stir in vanilla and sugar. Sift flour with salt, cinnamon and soda. Stir into first mixture, with oats. Drop by greased teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 deg. about 10 minutes. Cool 1 minute before removing from pan to wire rack to cool. 3½ dozen.

Unscientific Attitude to Life

By ROY L. SMITH

In spite of our professional devotion to science, and in spite of our high claims to being scientific, we take an altogether unscientific attitude toward life.

We assume in the chemist's laboratory that we can achieve no dependable results except by obeying the laws which operate there. We assume, when we set out to build a bridge, that it is necessary to conform to all the laws of engineering. But when setting out to build a life, we seem to assume that we are at liberty to make our own laws.

SIN AND SUFFERING

It was commonly believed among the ancients that all suffering was a direct result of sinning. Much of that notion continues to this day, and much of it enjoys the sanction of science. If a man sins against his body by overeating, or if he sins against his mind by introducing poisonous thoughts into his thinking, he can be sure of suffering. But between the ancient and the modern thinker there is this difference; the ancient man of religion believed that the suffering was a result of the whimsy of his God, and the modern man of religion knows that pain and woe are a result of a defiance of the laws of his God.

FIRST STEP TOWARD CURE

The first step toward a cure for the suffering that results from sin is taken when the sinner makes up his mind to live in harmony with the law.

When the chemist discovers the mistake in his technique, he corrects it. When the farmer discovers that he has violated a law of nature in the process of planting, he corrects his methods. In both cases we call it scientific.

In similar fashion, when the religious man finds he has been violating a moral law, he undertakes to correct his procedures. This, we say, is repentance.

There is no promise of a cure for the victim of typhoid who goes on drinking polluted water. There is no promise of success for the engineer who defies the law of gravity. And there can be no peace of mind for that individual who violates the guidance of his most intelligent conscience.

An automobile stalled on the highway and the driver, being a man quite without engineering training or experience, called a mechanic from the town four miles away.

When that very efficient individual arrived he lifted up the hood, made a few adjustments, and then, lowering the hood, said, "Now it will go!"

"How do you know it will go?" the driver exclaimed, incredulously.

"Because it has everything," the mechanic replied. "It has gas, spark, timing compression — everything — it has to go."

Without knowing it, perhaps, the man from the garage was expressing a profound old religious principle. When any man has the confidence that he has conformed to all the laws of God, he can be absolutely sure that life will work. "Perfect love," said the Apostle Paul, "casteth out fear."

"Perfect love," in its broadest terms, means "a complete acceptance of the will of God for all of my life."

Let any man surrender his determination to have his own way, to make his own laws, and to do as he pleases, and let him accept instead the purposes, plans, and procedures of God, and he may be very sure that life be made to work.

Life is exact, and the exact man finds it extremely generous toward him.

STAN'S OPTIMISTIC

CHICAGO (AP)—Manager Stan Hack Thursday predicted his Chicago Cubs would be improved over last season and perhaps crack the first division in the National League which they missed by 4½ games in 1955.

"I'm going into spring training with an open mind," said Hack, a 16-year third baseman with the Cubs who took the club helm in spring of 1954. "Everybody on the roster has a chance to make the ball club. I'll give a good look at everybody."

CAMPBELLFORD

Council Holds Inaugural Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — The inaugural meeting of the 1956 council took place in the council chambers here on Monday evening, when the Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith of St. John's United Church officiated.

Mayor Locke, in his opening address, asked council to co-operate as a body during the year, and to work for the procurement of new industry.

Council as a body, accepted the invitation of the Campbellford History Club to be guests of the club at a luncheon in the Parish Hall. Following this, a striking committee met in the council chambers to select committee heads for the new council. Mayor R. J. Locke named the following to the striking committee: Reeve D. R. Maybee, Deputy Reeve P. M. Rutherford and Councillor F. H. Macmillan.

At a meeting held at 7.30 in the evening, the entire council reconvened and the striking committee reported their selections. Each committee head then selected the members of his committee. The committees for 1956 are as follows: The first named is the head of the committee:

Finance— Councillor F. S. Linton, Reeve D. R. Maybee, Councillors Isabel C. Tuhan and F. H. Macmillan.

Road and Bridge — Reeve D. R. Maybee, Deputy Reeve P. M. Rutherford, Councillors William Nicholls and Georg Nicholls.

Property — Deputy Reeve F. M. Rutherford, Reeve Maybee, Councillors Macmillan and Nicholas.

Legal — Councillor P. H. Macmillan, Reeve D. R. Maybee and Councillor Nicholls.

Fire, Water and Light — Councillor F. G. O'Sullivan, Councillors Macmillan and Linton.

Police — Councillor W. R. Nicholas, Deputy Reeve Rutherford, Councillor Macmillan.

Hospitalization — Councillor Isabel C. Tuhan, Councillors Linton and O'Sullivan.

Industrial — Mayor R. J. Locke and Councillor Nicholls.

BAND "GRANT"

During the meeting, Councillor Macmillan said that in view of the fact council was paying a sizeable grant to the Campbellford Citizens' Band, he felt council should have a representative on the band executive to report on expenditures, or that the band should give council an accounting for the monies spent. This was left with the legal committee to look into, and to report on at the next regular meeting. The "grant" which council will make this year to the band was voted on at the last municipal election in December, when the band asked the people of the town to provide one third of a mill on the tax rate (this year about $1,300) for the operation and maintenance of the organization. They presented a petition to council, signed by the required number of property owners, and consequently the matter was placed before the electors, as required by statute. The vote carried by about three to one.

LICENCE FEES TO BE COLLECTED

Council decided also that all licence fees due should be collected immediately, and instructed the town clerk, Elcon M. Ibey, to see that the fees were collected and a report brought in at the next meeting on any that are still outstanding.

A communication was received from the Northumberland Women's Institute asking council to endorse their petition to Counties Council that a new Home for the Aged be provided. This was signed by ten district Women's Institutes of the county, but council was not legally able to act on the request.

The matter of providing a laneway at the rear of the stores on the west side of Front Street North was brought up, but no action was taken. There is no access to the rear of stores in the area, except through a private driveway, which is kept closed. Council felt that in the event of a fire, it would be necessary for fire-fighting equipment, particularly pumpers, to be able to have access to a strip of land adjoining the rear of the stores, and only a few yards from the bank of the Trent Canal.

ACCEPTS RE-APPOINTMENT

R. H. Townsend, who forwarded a letter of resignation from the library board, was interviewed during the day at his home by the mayor, and Mr. Locke reported that Mr. Townsend had consented to accept a re-appointment to the board for another three-year term.

The Court of Revision for 1956 was named as follows: Reeve D. R. Maybee, Deputy Reeve P. M. Rutherford, Councillors G. Nicholls, W. Nicholas and F. S. Linton.

Council adjourned after passing the pay sheet.

LET THERE BE PEACE AND HARMONY

CONSERVATIVE

But even without the complete returns, Mr. Maloney had surpassed the previous Progressive Conservative high majority of 1,837 rolled up by Mr. Dempsey in the 1951 general election against two other candidates. It was still short, however, of the 3,915 majority the Liberals won in 1934.

It appeared that about 80 per cent of the riding's some 17,000 eligible voters turned out after the polls opened at 8 a.m. EST to record their choice despite rain weather with snow and rain across the riding. In the June election, 77 per cent of the electorate voted.

COUNTRY VOTE HEAVY

Dr. John S. Findley of Arnprior, the riding's returning officer, said the back-country vote was very heavy. "The weather doesn't bother them much back there."

Mr. Maloney was making his first bid for a legislature seat. His only previous election attempt was in the 1945 federal general election. He lost a fight for the riding's Commons seat to Revenue Minister McCann.

But he brings to his new job a family background that has long been acquainted with politics. His father, Dr. Martin F. Maloney, was a Conservative member of the Commons from 1925 to 1935 and his mother was the daughter of a former Liberal member of the Ontario legislature.

He is married and has six children, five of them girls. The latest daughter arrived during the election campaign. That left brother Eddie with another daughter, Adair. She accompanied her father to the informal tea parties and receptions at which Mr. Maloney did most of his electioneering.

Mr. Lindsay carried on his campaign accompanied by an oldtime band that played for the square dances at which most of his appeals for votes were made.

Both candidates received assistance from their provincial party leaders. Premier Frost turned up for a couple of days to put in a good word for Mr. Maloney and Ontario Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver spoke in support of Mr. Lindsay.

The political side of the campaign was marked by few clear issues. Mr. Frost said a new highway may soon be built from the Renfrew area to Trenton, Mr. Oliver said highways in the Ottawa valley would be neglected by the premier's government until the more densely populated central section of the province had been taken care of.

The outcome left the Liberal standing in the legislature unchanged at 10. The CCF has three members and Liberal-Labor one.

CAMPBELLFORD

Citizens' Band Elects Officers

CAMPBELLFORD — The annual meeting of the Campbellford Citizens' Band was held in the Legion Hall this week when an election of officers for 1956 took place. The results are as follows: past president, Harold W. Pierce; president, Ken Kingston; vice president, Reuben Eason; secretary-treasurer, Ernest Archer; librarian, Joe Clark; assistant, Walter Lowe; attendance officers, Bob Cowell and Everette Bleeks; custodian of instruments, Fred Dorie, assistant, Donald Young and Marshall Sills; custodian of uniforms, Alan Jones; bandmasters, Peter Battman and Donald E. Bennett.

TWO BANDMASTERS

The two bandmasters arranged to share duties between them in order that a junior group could be trained before the regular Thursday night practice. This will provide future musicians for the band. It is expected that Bandmaster Donald Bennett will assume most of the training for the juniors, and that Bandmaster Peter Battman will relieve him to a considerable extent in leading the Citizens' Band.

Secretary - treasurer Ernest Archer read a detailed report of the 1955 activities and the financial statement he presented showed a favorable bank balance of $91.73. It was agreed that the financial statement be made public each year for the benefit of the citizens of the town. A concise statement of the assets of the band, financial and otherwise, is being prepared.

The band agreed to co-operate wholeheartedly with the committees in charge of the Old Home Week celebrations this coming summer.

The idea that the band replace a number of routine appearances with a few major concerts locally was viewed with favor. A concert is planned for the spring, likely to take place during Easter week, and a similar venture is a probability for the fall.

DON'T DO IT, BUD!

If an unobtrusive note in the latest bulletin of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association finalizes itself, that estimable organization will lose one of its strongest bulwarks. It seems that Frank Feaver, its secretary for the past thirteen years "must withdraw from active service." Frank puts in his own footnote, "Sorry — but I cannot find the time to carry on in softball."

This is a severe jolt to both veteran and other softballers of the province. Softball without Frank Feaver will be like the well-known pooch minus its rear appendage; Mutt without Jeff; salt without pepper or an Abbott minus his Costello.

We are not trying to point out that any man is indispensable. Feaver would be the last to admit that. But there is a eastern pedal, it seems the OASA will have a tough task filling the Feaver shoes, if and when the likeable Frank decides to call the secretarial chore a day.

Outstanding stars of the softball diamonds of the province have been dubbed "Mr. Softball" at intermittent periods after a season or so of outstanding achievements. If such a nominal accolade were to be given in permanency, there is no negate in the province more worthy of the cresps than that which wears the Feaver fedoras.

As Jack Christie, secretary of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, and secretaries of other provincial organizations will testify, the administrative work of these Ontario-governing bodies is no sinecure. It calls for long consecutive hours of victims. There are problems to solve and sometimes puzzles to unravel. The pay is small and the hours are not good.

Keeping sports families like the OASA under control and in good humor is a job for a man with iron nerve, unquestioned ability, appetite for tail and a clear-thinking mind. Frank has all of these.

Softball in Ontario has forged ahead by leaps and bounds over the last decade and the ship of state has been the OASA. It has had some embattled skippers over recent years, men who guided the craft over sometimes rough seas but eventually came to anchor safely. However the "pilot" has stayed by his job for more years, and his outstanding achievements in directing the ship has been one of the main factors in the success of the organization.

We have known Frank personally for a number of years He ranks among the numbers one of our sports acquaintances. He has always been willing to assist in whatever possible and no problem was too great for him to tackle, or to see that it was straightened out satisfactorily to all concerned.

No doubt there will be a lot of pressure placed on the amiable Feaver to reconsider his decision to retire. We add our wishes to that, as will softball officials and others in Belleville and the surrounding district. Perhaps equally capable hands will take over the onerous task, but as far as softball goes, there will only be one Frank Feaver.

And if his decision to retire does materialize, Frank can leave the secretarial seat with the satisfaction of a hard job well done over the many years he acted. He can leave with the inward satisfaction that the OASA grew, from a toddling child to a healthy young giant which shows no signs of ceasing to expand, under his capable hands.

As is his custom Frank has started the softball wheels moving early. His first bulletin of the new year stresses the view that another banner year lies ahead. He urges all executives to hold their annual meetings early and get hr the affiliations, etc. also hotel reservations for the OASA annual slated for Toronto on Good Friday weekend.

BARE FACTS!

Some time ago an Eskimo who had been severely mauled by a grizzly bear was admitted to All Saints Hospital in Aklavik, 150 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

He told a strange story of how he and a friend were hunting, one with a .22, the other with a large bore gun. Our hero spotted a bear and shot it with the .22. The bear did not go down but ambled off the timber into some thick shoulder-high brush.

The hunters separated and as our Esky was making his way through the cover he was suddenly confronted by an angry wounded bear. The animal knocked the gun from his hand and before he could do anything the bear was crushing his arm and shoulder and gnawing at his head.

According to his story, he remembered what his father had told him. "Son, if you ever get caught in the grip of a bear, shove your arm down its throat and hang on!"

That's what he claims he did. It's hard to believe but the fact remains he came out of it alive—and the bear dead.

Charlie Hardwick, the mighty atom of the composing room, laughed when we told him the story. . . . . .

"I believe it," he chuckled, "I remember an old hunter, a former resident here who went bear-hunting in the North Hastings country once. He had a similar experience. He too, rammed his arm down the bear's throat. The only difference is, he grabbed the bear's tail and pulled it inside out. But he could never convince his friends that he killed the only fur-lined bear in history." . . . . . .

— No, it's not a 300 game. Charlie's mother-in-law just phoned she's been forced to cancel her visit! "

Hec Lalande Sparks 5-0 Win With Brace of Goals, Assist; Blues Bow 6-0 to Detroiters

Sometimes you just can't figure New York Rangers.

They must have confused even themselves Thursday night by enduring a 6-0 National Hockey League whipping from the third-place Detroit Red Wings only 24 hours after they pulled a 6-1 victory over the league-leading Montreal Canadiens. What a switch in form!

The Wings clipped Rangers' second-place margin to three points with their rout at Detroit Olympia before 11,279 customers.

In the other game Thursday night Chicago Black Hawks broke out with four goals in the third period to shut out the last-place Bruins 5-0 at Boston. The win lifted Hawks over Toronto Maple Leafs into fourth place.

RED WING WINGS

Right winger Gordie Howe led the Detroiters to their 15th win of the 1955-56 season. He netted two goals. He fired his 20th of the season at 9:18 of the first period and his 21st at 19:39 of the third. Marty Pavelich, Metro Prystai and Red Kelly tallied the others.

The shutout for Detroit goaltender Glenn Hall—his eighth this campaign—ended the Rangers' six-game pattern of Rangers' games against Wings. Hall, a former 24-year-old rookie, 5-4 and 7-3 in their last two meetings in Detroit but lost a 3-0 decision in their previous trip to Detroit.

Howe's goals run his total to within two of Montreal centre Jean Beliveau, the circuit's leading scorer. Gordie's opener was a 55-foot screen shot and his second a long drive. Howe has scored 21 from 20 feet out while New York netminder Lorne Worsley crawled hopelessly in chase.

Worsley stopped 41 drives. Hall handled 23.

It was a poor start for the Blueshirts as they embarked on a nine-game road tour.

FIRST NHL SHUTOUT

Bassen, 23-year-old native of Calgary in his fourth game of the campaign, made 32 saves. He took over when regular goalie Al Rollins was given a rest. Terry Sawchuk in the Boston cage stopped 35 Chicago drives.

Hec Lalande scored twice for Chicago. He came up with what proved to be the winner at 11:24 of the first period when he tipped in Benny Wolfe's long, angling pass. Lalande got the other one at 15:39 of the final period. Other third-period goals went to Glen Skov, Gus Mortson and Red Sullivan.

It was the Bruins' 23rd loss in 60 games this season. They have dropped 13 straight. Not since the Bruins' first team in 1924-25 had a Boston major league entry gone so many engagements without a victory.

Bedford Town Almost Whipped Mighty Arsenal

LONDON (Reuters) — Bedford Town, a small Southern League club, came within a whisker of provoking the biggest shock in the history of the Football Association Cup Thursday by leading mighty Arsenal 1-0 to within five minutes of the whistle in their third-round replay at Bedford.

Arsenal snatched an equalizing goal and scored again in extra time to beat the Cinderella club 2-1.

Bedford, a team of part-time players — bricklayers, toolmakers and upholsterers—had 45 minutes of glory. Then better soccer, they never allowed their illustrious opponents to settle down and almost achieved their dream. But Arsenal's greater experience and the stamina of their full-time professionals told during the extra time.

The non-league club might have won, but luck was against them. Twice they had good disallowed for offside. In the next round Arsenal are at home to Aston Villa, who Thursday beat Hull 2-1 in their replay at Hull.

Granites Ready For Tankard

They qualified last Tuesday for the Ontario Tankard at Oshawa Jan. 26. Thursday they were joined by eight clubmates who will make the Oshawa trip.

Hockey, Skating Titles for Canada At Winter Olympics—Shaughnessy

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Shaughnessy, Jr., was a busy defenceman with the United States Olympic hockey team in Germany in 1936.

Today, he leaves for air for another Olympics show, this time as general manager of Canada's 30-athlete contingent to the winter Games at Cortina, Italy. Action starts Jan. 26.

The big, American-born telephone company executive can explain the 20-year transmission.

"I'd been playing hockey for McGill University and visited a lot of American colleges that way," said Shaughnessy, 42, in an interview.

"I still hadn't chosen either Canadian or American citizenship, and I was asked I oplay for the U.S. hockey team. I figured I'd never get another chance to see an Olympics."

Shaughnessy, who is a member of the family of eight sons and a daughter born to president Frank Shaughnessy Sr., of the International Baseball League, picked a tougher way to get there this time.

He has been living up "Opera-tion Cortina" for 1½ years. His massive correspondence files testify to the paper work involved in arranging accommodation, transportation and such incidentals as availability of good food—meals are a must — good water, good filingual skate sharpeners and so on.

"We have budgeted for about 1200 to 1250 per competitor and official. There's a daily food tab of $7. Extras on that, including baths, some steaks and Canadian style breakfasts, will bring it up to about $9 daily."

With the exception of the speed skaters, the Canadian team and some parents will be staying at the Hotel Concordia. It is famed for its kitchen and drinking water, reports the Canadian embassy at Rome.

Sartorially, the Canadians should make a splash.

"They men all got blazers with the Canadian crest, plus grey flannels and station wagon coats. The women got blue with crest, two blouses, grey skirts and a cartige—or short—coat."

"Alouette football toques went to everybody to provide something really Canadian. The women's are shocking-style."

Shaughnessy expects Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen to win the hockey and Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden of Toronto to take the figure skating pairs title.

He figures "average" chances for gold medals include any one of the five 500 skiers, "given a good day," and Carol Pachi, the young Montreal figure skater.

Helfand Storm Still Raging; Managers Abandon Guild Ship

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—The gusts of fight manager Al Helfand put loose in setting Guild of New York outlawed today as Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York state athletic commission, announced a hearing on charges against the Monday night televised fights from St. Nicholas Arena.

Helfand's office announced Thursday night that 29 members had left the broken guild and many more had called to ask about the proper procedure of resigning. Another batch of resignations was expected in today's mail.

The specific charges against matchmaker Tex Sullivan, treasurer Willie Gilzenberg and the London Sporting Club which promotes at St. Nick's was expected to be the "convincer" for the managers who can't make up their minds.

Sullivan and Gilzenberg were hit with eight charges and the London Sporting Club with two so the two men were ordered to appear today to show cause why their licenses and the club's license shouldn't be revoked.

COMMISSION'S CHARGE

Helfand charged Sullivan and Gilzenberg with "certain persons convicted of crime, bookmakers, gamblers and persons of similar pursuits" in violation of state law. Last week at a press conference he accused the St. Nick's promoters of associating with men with criminal records in attempting to move their operations to Baltimore, effective Jan. 23.

The two also were charged with trying to move to Baltimore, as a "subterfuge" to enable guild members to "circumvent and sabotage" the commission in its rule, forbidding membership in the guild after Jan. 16. In effect, the men were charged by Helfand with conspiring to work with the guild to knock out boxing in New York and move it out of the jurisdiction of the commission.

Other charges against Sullivan and Gilzenberg were that the promoters paid welterweight Ronnie Delaney of Akron, O., in cash instead of by cheque, dealt with light-unlicensed (in New York) manager Harry Hissin, and Bill Daly, who was not Delaney's manager or comanager. (Daly is secretary-treasurer of the International Boxing Guild which is under indictment by a federal court on charges of anti-trust violations).

"We have never done anything wrong," said Sullivan who also spoke for Gilzenberg. "There's nothing in the charges we're afraid to answer. We'll be glad to appear and give the public our side of the story."

Saddler Trains For Comeback

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sandy Saddler returns to serious training today for his Jan. 18 featherweight championship bout against challenger Flash Elorde, pride of the Philippines.

Saddler took a short layoff when his manager, Charlie Johnston, decided the champ has reached his peak.

Elorde, who outpointed Saddler last July, has been working steadily for weeks for his chance at the title.

Junior Habs Whip Canucks; Increase Lead

MONTREAL (CP) — Eddie Dutch's three-goal outburst in the final period Thursday night paced Montreal Junior Canadiens to a 6-3 win over their Lauzier Trophy rivals, the Kitchener Canucks. Canadiens, who lead the race for the Quebec trophy, now have an eight-point lead over Kitchener although the Ontario club has three games in hand. In their two previous meetings this season the Canucks downed Montreal 4-2 and 5-1.

A crowd of 1,791 saw Dutch bang in his three goals within three minutes and 33 seconds to break a 3-3 deadlock. Claude Richard gave Montreal a 1-0 lead in the opening period but quick goals by Stan Bradenda and Wally Boyer put the visitors ahead.

Claude Provo knotted the count for the Canadiens when he scored the only goal of the second period. Dutch started his hat trick at 7:21 of the last period and added successive goals at 10:26 and 10:53. Montreal captain Andre Provost completed the scoring on a breakaway in the dying minutes of the game.

Bradley scored his goal while Kitchener was shorthanded. While Bradenda was serving an organize their power play, he stole the puck at the Montreal blueline and beat goalie Gerry Johnston with a 15 foot slap shot.

Dutch's first marker, which proved to be the winner, came with Kitchener defenseman Ken Douglas watching from the penalty box. He scooped up a goal-mouth pass from Ralph Backstrom and fired home from five feet out. Rudy's goal also came with the visitors shorthanded.

NABA Checking Amateur Status Basketball Star

TORONTO (CP)—Fred Bibby of Toronto, chairman of the National Amateur Basketball Association, said Thursday the association is checking into the amateur standing of Vancouver's Bob Pickell, top basketball star in the country.

The 37-year-old rangy centre with Vancouver Y-Phs has been accused by some teams of playing basketball and football for money. Although there has been no formal complaints, Bibby said the British Columbia Amateur Basketball Association has asked the CABA to check into Pickell's status.

The specific charges were unsigned.

It has been reported that Pickell accepted money when he signed with British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union last year and that he was paid for playing games in a commercial league during trips to Bellingham, Wash. Pickell has denied the allegations.

If Pickell were ruled ineligible as an amateur he would be unable to play on any Canadian basketball team in the 1956 Olympics. Under the CABA's strengthening system, Pickell probably would be the first choice to bolster an outside team or Vancouver were eliminated in the Olympic trials.

Bibby said the British Columbia association "wants clearance ahead of any requests by outside teams asking for an investigation of his amateur status."

AFTER SKATING EXPERIENCE IN EUROPE

Although they aren't planning on winning either the Olympic or worldpairs skating titles—as their predecessors, Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden of Toronto et al, did—Canada's duo hope to cop both crowns—Barbara Wagner, 17, and Bob Paul, 18, regard these competitions as the best kind of experience they can get. And experience is what they need, for as logical heirs to the Dafoe-Bowden monopoly, they are expected to one day take over where their seniors left off. Both Toronto high school students, Barbara and Bob will represent Canada in the Winter Olympics at Cortina and then will proceed to Garmisch, Germany, for the world championships. After that they'll give exhibitions in Paris and possibly elsewhere to enhance their reputation as one of the finest skating twosomes in the world.

Yank Skiers Optimistic Over Olympic Chances

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—This could be the year Art Devlin has been dreaming about since he donned a pair of skis for the first time 39 years ago.

The 53-year-old veteran of two United States Olympic teams and countless world championships never has been sharper than he is today—less than two weeks before the start of the winter Games in Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy.

His coach, Olav Ulland, thinks he has the best U.S. bet to win the grand jumping title—something no Yank ever has won against the tough Scandinavians. Devlin, for his part, acknowledges this is the strongest group to compete the U.S. ever has put together.

"I won't say how we are going to do," said Devlin, "but I do know that this team is good. We have balance and that's important.

"In past years, we've sent teams to the Olympics with one or two aggressive jumpers. This team has six of them. Every guy thinks he can win."

FONTANA WINS

BOMBAY (AP)—Don Fontana of Toronto Thursday defeated G. Vasant of India 5-7, 11-9, 6-1 in the pre-quarter finals of the men's singles in the western India open tennis tournament.

Injuries Reduce Canadian Skiers To Lone Entry

KITZBUEHEL, Austria (AP)—Injuries have reduced the Canadian men's Olympic ski team competing here this weekend to a single man. Even the coach is out of action.

Because of the mishaps, Andre Bertrand of Quebec, the downhill specialist, will be the only Canadian in the men's events.

The brothers Andy and Art Tommy of Ottawa are both on the sidelines as coach Franz Gabl after a series of accidents on three successive days. Art Tommy, rated Canada's best slalom competitor, hopes to be fit for the Olympics beginning in two weeks, Bertrand said.

The injuries began when Andy Tommy broke his leg 10 days ago. The following day, Gabi fell and fractured bruises and sprains which have kept him off skis since. The ailing next hit Art Tommy, who tore several ankle ligaments in a practice run.

SANTEE WITHDRAWS

BOSTON (AP)—Star miler Wes Santee has been forced by a leg injury to withdraw from the mile run in Saturday night's Knights of Columbus Games at Boston Garden.

Flyers Defeat Hamilton 7-4

HAMILTON (CP) — Barrie Flyers climbed into a sixth-place tie with Hamilton Cubs in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings by whipping Cubs 7-4 Thursday night before 1,250 fans.

Scoring five goals within five minutes and 46 seconds of play in the first period, the Flyers easily held on for their victory.

Bill Furhan with three goals, Alvin Norcross, Dick Cherry, Arnold Smith and Gord Loveday were the marksmen for Barrie.

Bill Blenis scored twice, Max Saturn and Cammie Burton once each for Cubs.

Cub Brian Smith was awarded a penalty shot by referee Vern Buffey but the Hamilton club's leading goal scorer fired the puck into goalie Bob Senior's pads.

'Bantam' Ben Man to Beat In 'Bing' Tourney

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Bantam Ben Hogan may be the man to beat in Crosby's pro-amateur tournament, despite his smiling insistence that he is a mediocre golfer these days.

The Texas master earnestly tells one and all that there will be no more grim battling for sub-par scores, but his surprising practice rounds here, casual as they appear, are causing spectators to wonder.

His five-under-par 67 Thursday and the even fancier 63 he shot the day before have moved him right up alongside Lloyd Mangrum, sensational winner of the Los Angeles Open, and Dr. Cary Middlecoff as a favorite. Middlecoff won the pro event here last year.

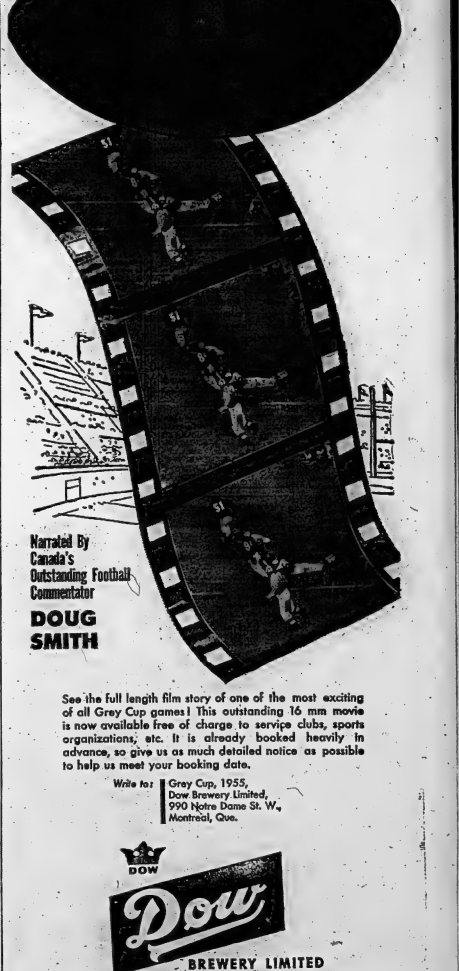
Named Coach Frisco 49-ers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Frank Albert, who dazzled the college football world as its first modern T-formation quarterback, Thursday was named coach of the San Francisco 49ers with whom he starred for seven years.

"I intend to put a colorful, representative team on the field," the 35-year-old, who never has been a head coach before, told a press conference.

If he means the kind of color he flashed when he called the signals for the National Football League thirty, then look out for anything from an offence which this year sputtered through a dismal season.

For when Frankie ran the show as quarterback he might kick when he should have run, pass when he should have kicked, and run when all the laws of football logic called for a punt.



The duration of Albert's contract and its terms were not disclosed.

Many Interesting Shows Ready for TV Viewing

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — There's something for everybody — well, nearly everybody—coming on television these next few days (all times EST):

Drama—In "Blithe Spirit" Noel Coward sends his own play (with Lauren Bacall, Claudette Colbert and Mildred Natwick) "Stat Jubilee" (CBS-TV), Saturday, 9:30 p. m.

Art—Marcel Duchamp, a painter, raised hob with the conventional when his famous "Nude Descending the Staircase" was shown at the famous and revolutionary Armory show in 1913. Now Duchamp, who hasn't painted in 20 years, is interviewed at the age of 68 in one of the consistently interesting NBC-TV filmed interviews with "Elder Statesmen." NBC-TV, Sunday, 3 p. m.

Opera—"The Magic Flute" by Mozart has been given a new English libretto by poets W. H. Auden and Chester Kallman. "NBC Opera Theatre". (NBC-TV) Sunday, 5:30 p. m.

History—In one of history's most fascinating crimes four Americans bilked the Bank of England of a fortune in the 1870s. In "The Great Forgery" the principal thief is Hal March, who on "The $64,000 Question" customarily is giving money away. "Omnibus" (CBS-TV) Sunday, 5 p. m.

Movies—In the steady effort to improve daytime TV programs on week days ABC-TV enters the lists next Monday with a new series of two-hour British films. The opener is a top-drawer Alfred Hitchcock thriller, "The Lady Vanishes," starring Michael Redgrave, Margaret Lockwood and Paul Lukas. ("Afternoon Film Festival" (ABC-TV), Monday, 3 p. m.

Minor Hockey

A five-goal second period led to Belleville Team One's fourth defeat without a win at Memorial Arena last night as Trenton shaded the city crew 7-6 in a district league juvenile fixture.

The usual number of midget and senior games were also played. In midget, Team Three held the high-flying Team One to a 6-6 draw. Five tripped Team Six 5-1 while Team Four dumped Team Two by a 5-3 score. The Maple Leafs shaded Black Hawks 3-2, Red Wings won by the same score over the Rangers while the Canadiens and Bruins fought to a 3-3 deadlock.

JUVENILE

Belleville held Trenton to a 1-1 tie in the first period but the visitors rapped home five in the second, three with Art Culloden serving a pair of minor penalties, to go ahead 6-2. Belleville rallied in the third to secure the victory 5-1 but the rally fell short by two goals.

Guy Austin spearheaded the Trenton attack, firing three goals while Norman Yargo had one and two assists. Drake, Vicars and Scott also scored. Leavitt assisted on a pair with one each for Jones, Hawthorne and Scott.

Gord St. Louis sparked Team One, netting two goals and assisting on a trio while Bill Foster followed with a brace of goals. Latchford also scored while assists went to Ron Wannamaker, Don Bishop, Gord Irwin and Art Culloden.

The losers drew on the seven penalties, Culloden and Irwin getting two each.

MIDGET

Dennis Kerrulis starred for Team Three, scoring all three of his team's goals after Team One held an early lead. Gary Rowbotham netted a pair for Team One. Gord Fuller also scored. Bill Vogt, Bellanger and Cook drew help-ers.

Earl MacDonald paced Team Five in victory with three goals while Bernie Boulter had a goal and assist. R. Ritchie fired the odd goal while Don McNevin, John Brennan and J. Sprague each assisted on one. D. Valcamp tallied for Team Six with D. Westfall helping. The losers drew six penal-ties.

Ted Murphy was top man in Team Four's win, picking up three points on two goals and one assist. Doug Moreau, Carl O'Neil and Dick Hurst also scored with O'Neil getting the winner. Keller and Gerow had assists. Jones accounted for two of the loser's markers with Lucas also scoring and assists going to Woods and Kvarda.

SQUIRT

Jimmie Hurst and Dean Williamson tallied for Canadiens in their deadlock, with Jimmie McGuire and Dennis Tracey scoring for Bruins.

Jim White, Tommy Bennett and Billy Graydon each netted a goal for the Red Wings while Allan Mott and Ron Carrigan potted the Ranger goals.

No Legislation Planned to Form Council

OTTAWA (CP)—No legislation to establish a Canada Council is planned by the government this session, Prime Minister St. Laurent declares, despite changes very materially before the end of March, Opposition Leader Drew, and Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday.

Mr. St. Laurent, speaking in the House of Commons debate, did not elaborate on his references to the present situation.

The prime minister was replying to a previous speech by Opposition leader Drew, who had mentioned the absence of any reference to the Canada Council in the throne speech's outline of planned government legislation.

Mr. Drew said that the council, recommended in the 1951 report of the Massey royal commission on Canadian culture, might have been able to implement the report's broad recommendations.

(Mr. St. Laurent said just session that the government has accepted the principle of the Canada Council, but he did not say when it might be established.)

Church Council Requests Early Strike Settlement

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Council of Churches Thursday requested early settlement of a General Motors of Canada strike, now in its 13th day.

About 17,000 members of the United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL) are on strike in five General Motors plants.

The council appealed in a letter to negotiators for "reconciliation in the name of Christ." The council represents Baptist, Anglican, Presbyterian, the Churches of Christ, the Evangelical United Brethren, the United Church, the Salvation Army, the Society of Friends and the YMCA.

The letter said the strike is "causing untold hardship, distress and privation for many."

Signed by council secretary Rev. Fred Poultron, the letter added:

"We don't claim to be experts on labor relations and we are not competent to comment on the issues involved but we must assume that this strike is going to be settled at some time. There is a compelling need for settlement. We say make it now."

FOUR MORE DIE IN OTTAWA FIRES

Ricky Moynahan, 18 months, is comforted by a neighbor, Mrs. Mary Thexton, after his mother and three sisters escaped or suffocated in their Ottawa frame home. At the time of the fire, his father former Ottawa Rough Rider football star, "Curly" Moynahan, was in London, Ont., attending funeral services for Cadet Cadieux, who died of exposure after being attacked by a sex deviate. Death of the four Moynahans brings the total of fire victims in the Ottawa area to 23 for the past two months.

HUNGER OVERCOMES DEER'S NATURAL TIMIDITY

One of the toughest winters in years has Europe in its grip. And it isn't good for man or beast. One effect it has is to make these deer in the state woods near Copenhagen, Denmark, forget their timidity in their hunger for food. Sometimes they come up to the men who are placing fodder and take the hay right out of their hands.

Drew, Coldwell Both Call For Non-Confidence Votes

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Blame for the ailments of the prairie wheat economy was laid at the government's door Thursday as leaders of two opposition parties in the Commons called for votes of want-of-confidence in the administration.

Opposition leader Drew presented a motion which said cabinet members deserve that censure "by reason of their indifference, inertia and lack of leadership in the face of serious national problems and their disregard of the rights of Parliament."

A second non-confidence motion by CCF leader Coldwell was aimed squarely at the government's plan, begun last November, of guaranteeing bank loans on farm-stored grain up to $1,500, at five-per-cent interest.

The CCF motion, an amendment to Mr. Drew's, accused the government of "failure" to provide interest cash advances on farm-stored grain equal to at least 75 per cent of the initial payment a farmer would get if his quota could be delivered to elevators.

"FINANCIAL CRISIS"

It said this is needed "to alleviate the serious financial crisis now confronting western farmers and the entire economy of the prairie farmers."

Mr. Drew also called for cash advances on farm-stored grain and said low-grade wheat now in storage should be disposed of as feed grain to make room for this year's high-grade crop.

Rev. E. G. Hansell, acting Social Credit leader, said there is "starvation in the midst of plenty" on the Prairies because of government inability to dispose of huge surpluses of wheat and other food.

Prime Minister St. Laurent joined the three opposition leaders in the throne speech debate, which continues today at a morning sitting.

The prime minister said the cabinet had considered providing cash advances on farm-stored grain but felt it would be impractical. The Canadian wheat board was not set up to provide such a service.

SALES GREATER

He said wheat sales since November have been greatly in excess of a year ago. And the government was putting pressure on the railways to move wheat to available storage at the Lakehead and Pacific coast.

The major wheat exporters, however, had produced more wheat in the last four years than the world market could absorb and some importers were turning to growing their own wheat.

"That is a situation that has to be faced as a fact," Mr. St. Laurent said.

Opposition speakers Thursday, however, centred their fire on the prairie problem of glutted wheat storage, slowed shipments and cash shortages arising from farmers' difficulties in delivering wheat to elevators and thus getting paid by the Canadian wheat board.

PROPOSED MEASURE

Almost nothing was said, however, about a proposed government measure to have the treasury bear storage costs on all storage wheat owned by the wheat board in excess of 179,000,000 bushels. It would be effective last Aug. 1—start of the current crop year.

Mr. St. Laurent denied one statement by Mr. Drew—that there is available storage space for 100,000,000 bushels of wheat. The prime minister quoted Trade Minister Howe as saying there is less than half that space available.

In a five-point suggestion Mr. Drew proposed, besides cash advances and disposal of low-grade wheat, the recruiting of top-flight salesmen to promote exports, study of the whole problem by the Gordon royal commission on the economy, and immediate steps to ensure full use of all elevator space.

Mr. Coldwell said the government's loans-guarantee plan for farm-stored grain, is inadequate and cumbersome. Many farmers, even with plenty of wheat on hand, could get bank loans of only $200 instead of the maximum $1,500.

Farmers were unable to meet immediate living expenses and farming costs, yet the government's attitude was "remote, cold and unsympathetic."

LEAVING GODFREY

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Blaufox, 39, for the past five years Arthur Godfrey's chief talent hunter, said Thursday night he is planning to leave the Godfrey troupe "because I want to do something better." He denied rumors that he had been fired because of difficulties with Jack Carney, co-producer of the Godfrey show, "Talent Scouts."

Dresden Cafe Owner up for Discrimination

TORONTO (CP)—A restaurant owner, charged with practising racial discrimination, is scheduled to appear for trial Jan. 17, the department of labor said Thursday.

Morley McKay, owner of McKay's Restaurant in Dresden, Ont., was charged by two University of Toronto students who said they were refused service in his restaurant Nov. 12 because of their color.

Jake Alleyne, 26, and Percy Bruce, 26, both of Trinidad, said they went into the restaurant for a cup of coffee, but could not get served.

McKay was convicted of a similar charge a year ago, but the conviction was quashed on appeal. Under the Fair Accommodation Practices Act, McKay is liable to a maximum fine of $50 if found guilty. The act is administered by the labor department.

INCLUDED PIPE

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Transit Commission Thursday reported 135,000 articles were left by passengers on city buses, streetcars and subway trains in the last five years. About 47,000 articles were claimed. Forgotten items included 12 feet of copper pipe.

Acquitted of Charges

WINDSOR (CP) — Raymond J. Strange, 25, of suburban LaSalle Wednesday was acquitted of criminal negligence in the traffic deaths of two teen-agers.

Mr. Justice R. W. Trelaven directed an Ontario Supreme Court jury to dismiss the charge against Strange.

Strange was charged in the deaths Sept. 5, 1955, of Patricia Hart, 16, and Gerald Soullliere, 15, who police said were struck by a car while crossing a west-side street. Strange testified he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming car.

Youth Calmly Chews Gum as He Goes to Death

OSSINING, N.Y. (AP)—William Byers, 18, calmly chewing gum, was electrocuted Thursday for the murder of his 15-year-old lover's mother.

Byers showed no emotion as he walked into the death chamber at Sing Sing prison and was strapped to the grim chair at 11:01 p.m. Three minutes later he was pronounced dead.

Byers was convicted of hammering and knifing to death Mrs. Anna Gresh, 43, because the mother caught Byers in bed with her daughter and objected to the illicit romance.

The daughter, Theresa, was convicted of second-degree murder for helping Byers slay her mother in March, 1954, in a Manhattan tenement flat. Theresa is serving the maximum sentence, 20 years to life.

GM NEGOTIATIONS GETTING DOWN TO BASIC ISSUES

Full-Dress Sessions Opening Next Week

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators in the marathon General Motors of Canada strike will turn from side issues to bedrock discussions in full-dress bargaining sessions next week.

Top officials of the company and the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CLC) will be on hand in an all-out effort to settle disputes that have kept 27,000 workers idle for 119 days.

Both sides decided to spend the weekend in private huddles to review progress to date and consolidate their positions.

Frank James, a member of the union's General Motors department in Detroit, has been on the scene in the talks here for the last two weeks, planned a quick trip to Detroit for a conference with his chief, Leonard Woodcock. He will be on return here Sunday in time to brief the union team.

The company, meanwhile, planned its own meeting in Detroit. A company spokesman said Louis G. Seaton, GM's director of labor relations, will probably return here for talks with the union Monday after an absence of a month.

TECHNICAL SESSIONS

A group of technical experts is also expected to join next week's sessions here after they got the predicted a quick end to the strike but both indicated they expected to make headway here.

"We expect a little different attitude on Monday," a company representative said.

And a union source commented:

"We could get on a much better footing . . . that doesn't say it's going to be settled next week. But we could get into a new period when both sides are working toward an early end."

But he cautioned:

"If it doesn't work, it could slide back into a stalemate again."

UNION DEMANDS

Union demands in the contract deadlock which sent workers out at Oshawa, Scarborough, Windsor, St. Catharines and London include:

1. Full company payment of health and welfare plans; wage increases to bring GM scales to the level of its auto industry competitors and a supplementary boost to make the last flat (6¢) increased pensions; and a system of job bidding to give promotions largely on the basis of seniority.

There were reports that the union would make some of its side issues in order to give the company more leeway in operations. It was said to have considered a request that the annual two-week plant shutdown should be set for the last week of July and the first week of August.

SIGN PACT

BELGRADE (AP) — The Soviet Union and Yugoslavia Friday signed a new trade pact, giving backing for seven industrial projects within President Tito's Communist country.

LANDINGS SAFELY

PARIS (Reuters) — A twin-engined French aircraft carrying Randolph Churchill, journalist son of Sir Winston Churchill, was forced landing on one engine through thick fog at Orly airport Friday night with only three minutes fuel in its tanks.

Two RCAF Men Jump Safely After CF-100's Collide in Air

OTTAWA (CP) — Two RCAF fliers bailed out of their crippled CF-100 fighter plane after a mid-air crash Friday. The pilot of the second plane and his aircraft home safely despite the fact part of its tail assembly was sheared away.

Using the crash-rescue equipment, Flt. Lt. John Kitchen, 33, Calgary-born pilot and his navigator, FO. Bill Delorey, 22, Quebec City, blew themselves out of their plane after the collision at 13,000 feet. The plane crashed in a field and burned.

They landed safely in a field a few miles south of Carleton Place, Ont., 25 miles southwest of here, and were picked up and returned to their Uplands base at Ottawa by an RCAF helicopter.

Pilot of the other plane, FO. Pete Green of Grand Manan Island, N.B., got to fighter staggering in the sky, headed for home. Although his controls were made sloppy by the loss of a good part of the plane's tail assembly, he landed safely on a cleared runway at Uplands.

WOUNDED AT DAMAGE

Looking at the plane later, he and other officers shook their heads in wonder that the plane flew. All the starboard elevator and the top of the horizontal stabilizer had disappeared.

The limping fighter was escorted back to base by the third aircraft in the three-plane formation. It was flown by Flt. Lt. L.B. (Mike) Pearson—no relation to the external affairs minister.

Looking at F/O. Green's tangled tail assembly, Flt. Lt. Pearson implored him over the intercom to bail out. But Green couldn't hear. His radio aerial had been damaged in the crash.

The planes, belonging to the RCAF's 410 (Cougar) Squadron at Uplands, were on a routine flight of CF-100's based at Uplands, were doing tight formation flying at 13,000 feet over the Carleton Place area when the collision occurred.

Even the pilots themselves are not sure what happened.

Flt. Lt. Kitchen, flying on Green's starboard wing, said later it all happened so fast "I don't know what collided with what."

The first thing he knew part of his wing was gone and his plane began to spin. He ordered his navigator to bail out as the machine fell off.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synoptic: — It is clear and cold over most of Ontario this morning, but the bitter winds of Friday have diminished, and sunny pleasantly cold weather is forecast for the Great Lakes area today.

Some cloudiness will edge into western Ontario and northern and southern areas as a disturbance from the central states approaches the province.

7,500 Workers Being Laid off In Auto Plants

DETROIT (AP) — Two of the "Big Three" of the auto industry, General Motors and Chrysler—Friday reported adjustments in production schedules will result in layoffs affecting nearly 7,500 employees. Ford previously reported a layoff of 4,600 workers.

General Motors said about 3,900 workers are being laid off at six assembly plants outside Michigan in scheduled readjustment of Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac production.

GM has a total work force of 325,000 in the United States.

Chrysler Corp. said it is laying off 3,581 workers at plants in Detroit and Evansville, Ind.

Chrysler announced Friday night it will lay off an additional 1,900 workers Feb. 17 in a cut "in line with current market trends."

The layoffs will be at the corporation's Dodge main plant in suburban Hamtramck, which makes Dodge automobiles and trucks and is a major supplier of parts for all Chrysler's automobiles.

Mother, 6 Children Flee from Flames

NEW LISKEARD (CP) — A mother and her six children were left destitute here Friday when fire destroyed their house.

Mrs. Owen Cote led her children to safety after the fire started from overheated stove pipes.

Neighbors and relatives of the Cotes planned to assist Mrs. Cote.

Vancouver Police to Recruit Youths In War Against Juvenile Hoodlums

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police, fighting roaming juvenile gangs, plan to recruit their own force of 18 year olds to work as office cadets, leaving experienced police men free for patrol.

The plan was announced Friday by police chief George Archer in a fighting policy report to the police commission in which he laid plans to "wipe out street-corner hooliganism."

It was augmented by a report from deputy chief Gordon Ambrose that:

"Instructions have been given the youth detail that the situation is to be cleared up immediately. Trouble-makers are to be either driven out of the city or convicted and sent to prison."

The youth detail is a squad of detectives known through the 750-man force as "the baby sitters." Its patrols the juke joints and restaurants where teen gangs gather.

The detail would be backed by the manpower of a special "trouble squad" to deal with "gatherings of youthful rowdy elements."

The youth detail has been in operation several years, working with probation authorities and juvenile court officers.

The cadet policemen, chief Archer said, will be first major report since taking office Jan. 1, "assigned to clerical duties, cut pool clerks, stores assistants and complaint counter clerks, thus releasing constables the force employs . . . a number of officers in work of a routine nature, investigation of young males of some clerical aptitude," the former RCMP superintendent said.

"It would also be a salary economy for a relief from the present shortage of police applicants. Passing into the force of such cadets would assist recruitment and provide the best possible material."

Auditor-General Questions Powers of Crown Companies

OTTAWA (CP) — Auditor-General Watson Sellar has opened the question of whether crown corporations have too much financial power.

In his annual report to Parliament, a two-inch-thick document, the watchdog over public spending has singled out the special federal agencies as having perhaps far more money and securities than they need to meet liabilities.

At the end of the 1954-55 fiscal year, the agencies held more than $160,000,000 in cash and securities.

No uniform test can be applied as to how much a crown corporation really needs, but year-end audits showed that total cash, securities and receivables held by some more than doubled their current liabilities, Mr. Sellar said.

At another point, he suggested the government is underestimating its investment in these special agencies which range from uranium processing to synthetic rubber production.

The government had shown its total loans and investment in the corporations as $1,793,000,000. He said it would be more informative if statements showed the full amount of the government's equity because corporation records showed net assets "much in excess" of $1,793,000,000.

Crown corporations include the government-owned Polymer Synthetic Rubber Corporation, Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited dealing with uranium, Northern Transportation Company, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the National Harbors Board and "the Northwest Territories Power Commission.

Several irregularities resulted mainly from departmental moves circumventing Parliament.

There was one instance of apparent crookedness, though it did not appear to involve federal officials in wrongdoing. Mr. Sellar described this as indicated falsification of records in connection with the government's 1953 aid program for marketing New Brunswick potatoes.

"Treasury investigations indicate a falsified report of one inspection and delivery records," he said in his report tabled in the Commons Friday.

The federal government had paid out $2,300,000 but settlements were restricted to transactions not in controversy.

Ontario Urges Magistrates Send Deviates to Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial officials Friday outlined plans for treating sex deviates and for keeping closer tabs on convicted sex offenders who have served prison terms.

The officials of three government departments and the Parents' Action League decided to urge all magistrates to send those charged with sex offences to hospitals for psychiatric study, either before trial or before sentence. Meanwhile, the committee has been appointed to give "serious consideration" to the possibility of convicted sex deviates being held for treatment after sentences expire.

Reforms Minister Foote said that if prison terms are to be effective in such cases, the offenders must get psychiatric help. In many cases they were released when their sentences were completed, which may be earlier than the completion of treatment, he said.

The committee's recommendations will be presented to the federal royal commission headed by Mr. Justice Joseph Sedgewick, a factor which will meet here next month to study the sex deviate problem.

Health Minister Phillips said he felt a final solution to the problem could come only through changes in the Criminal Code.

It was expected Ontario's brief would recommend Criminal Code changes permitting officials to keep offenders in reformatories or prisons for indefinite terms so they would not be freed while there was any likelihood of them repeating offences.

Mr. Foote also said his department is planning to build a new clinic "as soon as possible" to investigate and treat convicted sex offenders.

Dr. Phillips said that in addition

Russians Return First Group of War Criminals

BERLESHAUSEN, Germany (AP) — The Soviet Union returned 450 Germans described as "war criminals" to West Germany today.

It masked the first group of returnees classed by the Russians as war criminals to reach West Germany since the repatriation of German prisoners began last October.

Authorities said today's group will be allowed to return to their homes, but will be subject to investigation and possible arrest depending on information furnished by the Russians on their alleged crimes.

KEEP THEM SHORT

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold leaving Sunday on a world tour, told reporters how he expects to cope with short stopovers in 17 countries: "If you know what you are talking about, you can say in a 15-minute speech everything you have to say, and discuss in a day everything you have to discuss."

to providing proper facilities for psychiatric examination of deviates facing charges, the province also will make facilities available to people of this kind on parole or probation or voluntarily seeking assistance.

MARITIME STORM DAMAGE AROUND TEN MILLION

Thousands of Poles Down, Bridges Lost

HALIFAX (CP) — A January thaw, now in its 11th day, has left coast maritimers at least $10,000,000. Property damage alone from floods and ice has mounted today at nearly $7,000,000.

Figures are far from complete. Some areas of Nova Scotia are still flooded. Sleet and freezing rain fell again Friday in New Brunswick. But a preliminary tabulation from rough estimates of road engineers, utility companies and families whose homes have been flooded indicates the blow dealt the east coast one of her most costly blows.

Beyond actual damage to roads, bridges, railroads, wire lines and buildings is the incalculable loss to business and industry. Lumbermen, whose woods operations were stopped, estimate their loss in the hundreds of thousands.

Nova Scotia, ravaged by floods from rain and melting snow, appeared to be the heaviest loser. Damage in that province was believed more than $5,300,000.

ROADS AND BRIDGES

Damage to bridges and roads alone may reach $2,000,000. The provincial highways department still doesn't know how many bridges it lost, reporting about 100, including four major spans. Many more were washed out.

Town of the largest were on the foaming St. Mary's river, 70 miles northeast of Halifax, a two-span covered bridge at Aspen, left the Pictou county home and the busy days in the whole province.

Eleven of Nova Scotia's 14 municipal counties reported bridges washed out or damaged, including at least a dozen smaller spans.

Washouts on paved and gravel highways will take hundreds of thousands of dollars to repair. Cost of repairing sleet damage to power, telephone and telegraph lines in the province is estimated at more than $500,000.

REVIEW BY PEARSON

Heaviest damage to wire lines was in New Brunswick, however. Sleet struck in the south-east section Moncton-Sackville area. Later it moved west, where it blanketed lints in the northeastern Bathurst district.

The New Brunswick Electric Power Commission says its damage will be "considerable." The total for all Maritime power and communication utilities is placed at not less than $1,500,000.

The number of shattered poles reached more than 15,000—including 6,000 of them in New Brunswick, more than 2,000 in Prince Edward Island, 3,700 in Nova Scotia.

Power companies were hardest hit, losing thousands of poles. It costs an average of $60 to replace and straighten a power pole, from $40 to $100 for a telephone pole, depending on the number of circuits.

Loss to thousands of household-ers and small business owners was difficult to assess. Early reports indicate damage to homes, mills, stores and fishing boats will reach $1,200,900.

At least 100 homes along Nova Scotia rivers and lakes were flooded to the point where residents had to be evacuated. More were damaged. An estimated 1,100 families had water above the first height of the floods.

Thousands of board feet of lumber has been washed away. Floods cost railroads and bus lines much passenger business.

SETS PLOWING DATE

WHITBY (CP) — The Plowing Association of Southern Ontario Friday announced 1956's international plowing match will be at Ivan Dow Farm, just north of here. The match is scheduled for next autumn.

Ambassador Says No Training Planes Sent to Egypt

OTTAWA (CP) — Russell of Kingston, Egyptian ambassador to Canada, Friday described as "absolutely false" reports that 25 Harvard trainer planes have been shipped from Canada to Egypt.

Alistair Stewart, CCF member of Parliament for Winnipeg North, said in an interview Wednesday he had been reliably informed that 25 Harvards had been shipped to Egypt by Canadian Car and Foundry Co. of Montreal.

In reply to a question by Mr. Stewart in the Commons earlier that day, External Affairs Minister Pearson said he knew of no shipments of Canadian aircraft to Egypt or orders for such shipments.

The following day, Mr. Pearson said the government was investigating whether any planes had been shipped to Egypt.

"ABSOLUTELY FALSE"

The Egyptian ambassador said in an interview:

"I have found absolutely false the claims that 25 Harvard trainer planes have been sent to my country by Canada."

Canadian Car and Foundry has declined comment on Mr. Stewart's statement.

The Egyptian ambassador also said published reports that 40 army trucks were loaded aboard an Egyptian freighter at Saint John, N.B., were "complete invention."

Mr. Pearson has said that Canada wants to do nothing to upset the arms balance in the Middle east or which would result in an armaments race there.

Release Suspect At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — City detectives said Friday that a man, picked up in a downtown beer parlor for questioning into the death of Susan Cadieux, 10-year-old girl, has been released.

Police chief Lamb said the man, a bushworker, had not been near London at the time of the death of Susan Cadieux, who died from exposure after being assaulted.

The bushworker had been picked up following an anonymous tip to a Winnipeg newspaper that he answered the general description of a man being sought in the London case.

Montreal Truck Driver Wins $2,500 On TV Show for Heroism at Kingston

MONTREAL (CP) — A 41-year-old Montreal truck driver, who risked his life several weeks ago to save the lives of two children in Kingston, ht., is $2,500 richer today as the result of his heroic effort.

Richard Lanthier won the amount Friday — in cash and prizes — as a contestant on a New York television show.

Lanthier emerged a hero Dec. 20 while driving a tractor-trailer loaded with highly-combustible material through Kingston en route to Toronto. He had just caught fire and Lanthier, ignoring icy streets and traffic lights, drove his vehicle to the city's outskirts, leaping to safety seconds before the load exploded.

Kingston police and fire officials said his action averted a major disaster.

Lanthier appeared on a New York TV show, (On Your Account) which invites persons to relate a human interest story out of their lives. A Montreal resident forwarded a newspaper clipping telling of his deed to the show.

Lanthier won the jackpot and prizes by answering several questions correctly.

Saskatchewan Requests New Tax-Rentals Talks

Another Federal-Provincial Parley Sought by Douglas

REGINA (CP) — Premier T. C. Douglas has requested another federal-provincial conference on the tax-rental question.

A letter he sent to Prime Minister St. Laurent earlier this week says the Saskatchewan government believes another conference is warranted because the effect of the plan tabled in Parliament Wednesday are so "far-reaching." It suggests the conference be held in April.

The letter was made public today in a statement from the premier's office.

It reiterated the view of the CCF government that the plan does not give enough importance to the special needs of the various provinces, and would weaken centralized fiscal control.

Fatally Wounded Man Told Police He Shot Himself

LINDSAY (CP) — A provincial policeman testified at the preliminary murder hearing of Alexander Scriver Friday that her husband told him before he died of a gunshot wound:

"It was an accident. I did it myself."

Mrs. Scriver, 38, of Corson's siding, is charged in the Christmas Day shooting of her husband, Earl, 39. Magistrate R. I. Moore reserved decision until Jan. 14.

Constable John Williams of Fenelon Falls testified that as Scriver was being taken to hospital, he told him the shooting was accidental.

Dr. Robert Jamieson of Cowdenclough said the wounded man told him as he was being treated: "I was fooling around with a gun and shot myself."

EASILY DISCHARGED

Constable Williams said the .410 shotgun which fired the fatal shot could be discharged by brushing against clothing because of a defective trigger.

Scriver's stepchildren, Teddy, 12, and Loretta, 15, told of a week of quarrels between the pair which them leave home. Mrs. Scriver finally left with the children the week before Christmas and returned home Dec. 21.

The children told their stepfather started drinking wine Christmas morning and throughout things about the kitchen. They said their mother came out of the bedroom with the razor and twice told him to stop. Then, they said, "the gun went off."

Scotland Yard Man Gives Files To Ex-Convict

LONDON (Reuters)—The prosecutor's statement in the trial of a Scotland Yard detective allegedly gave an ex-convict his police file from the criminal records office as payment for carrying out an illegal operation on a woman he lived with.

The prosecutor also said the detective illegally conspired with others to obtain a number of abortions for women and he forged a woman on bail to abscond to Canada with a false passport.

Detective Sgt. Thomas Mills, 47, Mrs. Katherine Reeves, 43-year-old ex-convict, and Reginald Edwin Wolfe, 49, a merchant, are charged with unlawfully possessing official documents, conspiracy to cheat justice, and conspiring to secure abortions.

In 1949, Mills, who worked in the criminal records office, records, met a convicted abortionist named McLennan, the prosecution said. McLennan was under investigation on Mrs. Reeves as the result of the white slave traffic inquiries.

"That was the first of a number of abortions brought about by McLennan in agreement with these defendants," the court was told.

The defendants were ordered held in custody to Jan. 20.

Beer, Liquor Warehouse Vote In Stirling Wed.

Residents of the village of Stirling will go to the polls on Wednesday, January 18th to decide whether or not they want a warehouse for beer and liquor in their municipality.

There will be two ballots, one for a beer warehouse for the sale of beer for home consumption and the other for a liquor warehouse.

Wednesday's vote will be the first time since 1908 that Stirling has cast a plebiscite on liquor. At that time the vote was dry.

Village Clerk Fred Mallory said the council had asked for a quiet vote on Wednesday. There is no campaign by parties and there was no petition for the vote.

"Council took it on their own to put the vote following a request by certain parties for an expression of opinion by the citizens," the clerk said.

There are 760 eligible voters on the list in Stirling. A sixty per cent majority is necessary before either ballot can carry.

Legal Possession Of Year-Old-Son Denied Mother

TORONTO (CP)—An unmarried mother suffered a set-back Friday in her attempt to regain legal possession of her year-old-son, whose she placed in adoption when he was six days old.

A writ of habeaus corpus against the superintendent and the president of the nursing home which handled the adoption was quashed in the Supreme Court of Ontario by Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan. He ruled the writ was improperly served.

The writ was granted Dec. 23 by Mr. Justice Wilfrid Judson, after Helen May Agar, a Canadian now living in Nassau, Bahamas, said in an affidavit she gave her baby away while "in pain and confused due to the effects of drugs and the effect of sedatives."

CAN TAKE ACTION

In quashing the writ, Mr. Justice McLennan said his ruling does not prohibit the mother of the child who now has the child and the service of a solicitor.

The writ granted was against Mrs. Florence Jones, superintendent of the Victor Home, and Hugh S. Mills, president of the Toronto Home Missions Board, chief arm of the United Church of Canada, which owns it. The writ meant they must either produce the child or show cause why they need not obey the order.

Miss Agar's counsel, P. B. C. Pepper, said he will either appeal the ruling or seek a new writ.

Miss Agar said in her affidavit she now works for an oil and gas company in Minneapolis and earns enough to support her son.

AUDITOR-GENERAL

Later an agriculture department official said some New Brunswick dealers and producers had tried to sell their surplus twine, making phantom deliveries under the federal aid plan and then selling the twine to private customers. A treasury board report is to be made to cabinet after a complete settlement.

In another potato deal, with the Prince Edward Island potato marketing board, the government had paid out $280,000 more than it knew because final settlement included overpaid freight.

That was just one of a number of deviations from normal financial procedure. The auditor-general pointed out a long list of instances in which he suggested federal officials were assuming more moneyhandling powers than allocated to them by Parliament.

Irregularities ranged from pay telephone bills to defense plan spending. They included reports of petty post office thefts and, in contrast, year-to-year attempts to tighten up of the law by some defence officials. This led to crediting of cash back pay to members of the armed forces discharged in absentia after going absent without leave.

One branch of the service actually overpaid itself pay amounting to the last known address. But the practice was discontinued said Mr. Sellar, when an audit test of cheques cashed showed some discrepancies in genuine cases.

He suggested those who go AWL and are subsequently found have their pay balances forfeited.

On the Colombo plan issue, he estimated that $1,000,000 worth of Canadian aid to India will never be recovered, subject to finances for projects in that country.

Under the counterpart fund scheme, India gets money of her aid from Canada in goods which are sold locally and the proceeds uses the proceeds to finance economic projects.

In another case, Canada shipped 30 locomotive boilers. India sold the boilers for scrap at a price much lower than the Canadian cost of manufacture because she found the boilers were of a smaller size than the world price. The difference constituted a loss.

In another case, northern affairs department officials ordered $600,000 worth of goods before March 31, 1953, the deadline for spending the money, until later and was to have been covered by a supplementary appropriation in the 1954-55 fiscal year.

Some $2,200,000 was spent on the northwest communications system between Edmonton and the Alaska boundary though Parliament had appropriated only $500,000. The rest came from system funds spent without the formal process of shifting them through the treasury board.

Bodies of Five Missionaries Buried in Ecuador's Jungle

QUITO, Ecuador (CP) — The bodies of five American missionaries, massacred by savage Indian tribesmen they had hoped to convert to Christianity, were buried in Ecuador's jungle Friday near the stripped skeleton of their plane.

The search for the missing men came to a grim close when rescue parties found the fifth body in the remote Curaray river valley. The body had been located over the last few days by air and ground searchers crossing the jungle habitat of the primitive Auca Indians.

The ground search party was headed by Dr. Arthur Johnson, of St. Catharines, Ont. In the search party was another Canadian, Rev. Jack Shalanko of Nisgara Falls, Ont.

Randy Parrott, president of the Missionary Aviation Fellowship, announced the fate of the five who apparently were attacked just after sending a radio message: "Here are some of the little tribe we've not known before."

At least one of the missionaries had been run through by a primitive lance.

PLANE A MONUMENT

The dead men were Peter Fleming, Seattle, Wash.; Nathaniel Saint, Quichua, Ecuador; Ed-James Elliot, Portland, Ore.; Edwin Sizkaby of nearby Ridge and Roger Youderian, Lansing, Mich.

Abraham Vanderpoy, president of the Inter-American Fellowship of Tecuador, said the missionaries' Piper plane, "Wings of Mercy," will be left at the death scene as a monument to their sacrifice. Searchers said the Indians had killed Nova, a Piper Cruiser's fuselage.

The mission group had been trying to win the Aucas' friendship for the last four months.

The Aucas made numerous flights over an Auca settlement along the river and dropped machetes, beads and other trinkets which apparently delighted the tribesmen.

Informants in Quito said it was the third attempt by missionary groups to reach the Aucas, who know little of modern civilization.

In Portland, Elliot's father, Fred Elliot, read reporters letters from his son telling of the mission's plans to convert the Aucas.

"We would like to reach this people," the message said. "These people are killers. They do not have so much as a word for God in their language, let alone a word for Jesus."

Toronto Blaze Drives Fifty From Their Beds

TORONTO (CP) — Fire that broke out in a hardware factory which were hundreds of gallons of cleaning fluid threatened for a time to blow up in three-storey basement-store building early today.

The blaze was discovered at 3.30 a.m. in Specter's hardware store at Bathurst and Olive streets and forced 50 apartment dwellers to flee in their night clothes. It spread to a second floor inside the snack bar and a clothing store and into the apartments upstairs before it was brought under control.

Firemen said no one was injured but they had to carry a small boy from one of the apartments who was "still half asleep."

FIRE CHILDREN

Traffic in the area was thrown into a tangle and 20 police constables were called to direct traffic to break up the jam.

Police said Mrs. Cecil Dupeetle who lived in an apartment over one of the stores, dashed back into the burning building to get her five four children.

Mrs. Dupeetle led his wife, Margaret, and two of the children to safety. Then, discovering that the remaining two children were in the building, he sprinted back upstairs and carried the two boys down with each arm.

Constable William Moore shirt, piled up a drainpipe to rescue Pat Beaucoiel, 4, from a second-storey balcony window and fled to escape flames a few feet away.

Cows So Hungry They Ate Way Through Floor

HAILEYBURY (CP) — A man whose cows and horses were threatened with starvation when floors and posts of a chill barn was told Friday that he deserved a whipping.

Magistrate E. W. Kenrick, fining William McKnight of Portage Hay road $50 with $21 costs on the cruelty-to-animals charge, told him:

"I feel a man should be whipped who treats animals like you."

The magistrate said he was showing leniency only because McKnight was the father of six children.

Dr. F. C. Nelson, a veterinarian, said the two cows and two horses had eaten right through the floor when they were found Jan. 5. The animals have been confiscated by the crown. McKnight had pleaded not guilty.

10-Year Struggle For Canada Entry Ends

WELLAND (CP)—A Communist Christmas present reunited today a 78-year-old Hungarian great-grandmother with her two daughters and their families here.

Mrs. Julianna Zvonik, sold in a telephone interview interpreted through her daughter, Mrs. Mary Papp, that a 10-year struggle for permission to come to Canada ended successfully at Christmas time.

"The man who delivered my permission to leave for Canada smiled and handed me the notification, saying: 'Here is a present from Jesus,' the said.

When Mrs. Zvonik reached Toronto's Malton airport Friday two daughters, Mrs. Papp and Mrs. Julia Szakaly of nearby Ridge way, who have lived 18 years in Canada, greeted her with kisses and embraces. A Lift For Living

Trust Where We Cannot See

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

While the year is yet young, may I ask each of you to say silently to God something which the Psalmist said: "My times are in Thy hand."

At the turn of the year we are especially conscious of time. Of course, we modern Americans seem always to be time-conscious. Our eyes are ever on the clock. We strive strenuously to figure out time-saving devices. Whatever our hand finds to do, we keep looking at our wrists to see how long it takes to do it.

Yet fussily conscious as we are of time-schedules, we are not all so aware of time-sequences. We count the minutes and the hours, but we do not always stop to figure out what they are adding up to.

I do not know how many of you keep a diary. It is one of the good habits which I do not have. But the mere keeping of a daily does not matter as much as the nature of it. It aids the memory to register a daily list of things we do, the places we visit, the people we see. Do we also put down some of our reflections on the things that happen? That is the way to keep a real diary which registers our growth through the years.

Some time ago a man wrote his autobiography. A critic in appraising it said, "He has faithfully recorded his emotions without collecting his thoughts." Just to jump from experience to engagement without stopping to reflect tends to beget a "busy-ness" without real effectiveness.

FUTILE BUSYBODY

The late Glenn Frank once described a futile flustered busybody in these words: "Like a turnstile, he is in everybody's way, but stops nobody; he takes a great deal, but says little; looks into everything but sees nothing; and has a hundred irons in the fire, but very few of them are hot, and with these few that are, he burns his fingers."

Well, the Psalmist was not harried by our hurried schedules. He carried no wrist watch, and I venture to believe kept no engagement book. He measured the passing of the hours by the shadows on the eternal hills. But he had patience to reflect on what his days and years were adding up to. And he looked up to God with this conclusion: "My times are in Thy hand."

This declaration meant, first of all, "My life as a whole is in the hand of God." The Psalmist could not understand many aspects of his life, but he trusted where he could not see.

LIVE IN GOD'S HANDS

J. Arthur Thompson, the Scottish scientist, said some years ago that life is like a book in which the first and last pages are missing, some others still uncut, and other stuck together. That is true both of our individual lives and of life in the large sense of history. But however many of the pages may be unreadable to our eyes, the Psalmist and those who share his faith believe that the volume of life is held in the hands of a purposeful God.

Elsewhere the Psalmist said, "We spend our years as a tale that is told." But life is a story with a plot and a purpose and not "a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing." In a sense each of our lives seems a mystery story. Look at what and where you are now and ask yourself whether 20 years ago you could have seen such an outcome.

Yes, there is mystery in our lives but our life story is not as mystifying as a certain thriller, which was described to me as having its plot so well concealed that even the author did not discover until the last page who committed the murder. Not so with the mystery of your life and mine.

The Divine Author knows how we are going to turn out. He knows what we shall be doing at the end of 1956. But God's foreknowledge, in my opinion at least, does not foreshorten our freedom. God has to leave us free will so that we can grow up into maturity.

We advance toward the future like rowers of boats, with our backs toward what is ahead. We cannot see the sea ahead of us. Our eyes can only behold the wake of our vessel. Just as the waves stirred by a boat are swallowed up in the sea, so our regrets can be lost in the ocean of God's forgiving love.

And the memory of God's past mercies gives us trust in the future. God's purpose is to develop into His sons. And the basic aspect of a son's relationship to his father is trust. How beautiful to see a boy's confident trust in his father! Such is the confidence of the Psalmist when he said, "My times are in thy hand."

Christmas Waste Is Welcomed

Ever wonder what became of discarded Christmas wrappings and boxes? The containers that bulged so mysteriously and curiosity-ticklingly before the gifts were taken out of them? The wrapping paper brave with Santa Clauses and holly and lighted homes and trees and sleighs in red and green and gold? It seemed sad to dump them off into oblivion, to cover their once-radiant promise with the lid of a trash can and bid them goodbye forever.

But be of good cheer yet! The news is happy! These bright appurtenances of the season are not lost in limbo. They are only undergoing a Great Transmogrification. Waiting for them with open arms is the wastepaper industry, to which they come just in the nick of time (the temptation is strictly resisted to say the St. Nick of time).

This up-and-coming industry, which does a $200,000,000 business a year, had been starving for paper. Production ran at a record high, and collections were not keeping up. So a big post-Christmas gift, tons and tons and tons of it, will go to paper and paperboard mills throughout this country and abroad.

It may be a strange reincarnation that Sister's doll-box and Buddy's cowhuid wrappings are in for, but it's a reincarnation, and that's what counts.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

STUDYING ONE SPECIES

A form of bird watching found by many to be both interesting and useful is to concentrate on one species for an entire year. You may not wish to start until the migrants are returning; however, a permanent resident or a winter visitor might prove a fascinating subject. Record your findings regularly and use your bird book like a dictionary.

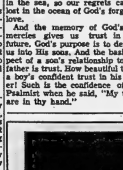
When did you first see an individual of your chosen species? Look if this is a normal date for it to be in your vicinity. Compare its size with that of some very familiar kind, such as a robin. Note its exact appearance. Are the sexes alike, and if not, to which does your bird belong? Where does it alight? How does it fly? What does it eat? Is it a member of some flock, or is it alone, with a mate, with some other species? If a flock, is the flock large? Does it make any sound, and if so, what? Many birds are recognized by their voices.

This information should be followed up as the year progresses with the same questions and many more added. Where are birds of this type found most abundantly? Upon what do they feed during the different seasons.

Have they only one call, or several? Does a call seem to signify anything: fear, happiness, a desire for others to join in?

WATCH OTHER BIRDS

Supposing you have chosen a bird that can be seen right now. When winter's back has been broken, watch out to discover if other individuals of your special species are returning. (English sparrows are permanent residents wherever found, but only some starlings are here constantly, others are migrants and will come home to nest).



As spring advances, has your bird more calls? If it sings, where and when? Carefully note any song and compare it with a canary's or a robin's. Birds may sing all on one note, or may have a regular tune.

When is nesting begun? Which parent works, or do both? Where is the home, how is it fastened, and of what is it composed? What is its shape? Is it lined? When is the first egg laid and are others on successive days? Which bird incubates and how is the nest approached? When do the eggs hatch?

Are new-born babies feathered? What are they fed and by whom? When do they leave home and do they remain in the locality? Do they migrate?

A TRIBUTE TO E. B. LALLY

In the recent passing of Edward Basil Lally, this city, and the whole community of all Canada, has lost a man whose life work was the enriching of other lives.

Mr. Lally was one of the founders and first managing director of the National Society of the Deaf and the Hard of Hearing. He brought to this post not only the experience of 18 years as a teacher at the Ontario School for the Deaf but a dedication to the betterment of the deaf and the hard of hearing that was motivated by a sensible, practical understanding of their problems, a willingness to spend his life helping them toward solutions, and an ability and a cheerful modesty that accomplished great good to this end. He died on the job.

The work to which Mr. Lally gave his enthusiasm and his energy can briefly be said to have been prevention of deafness and the provision of adequate services for the deaf and hard of hearing.

The work of prevention involved close association with the medical profession, medical research workers, public health authorities and agencies and the Canadian Medical Association. In his last report Mr. Lally told directors that the Society proposed to make application for affiliated membership in the Canadian Medical Association.

Provision of services for the deaf and hard of hearing was a project that required liaison with municipal, provincial and federal agencies including the National Advisory Committee of the Dept. of Labor; provincial co-ordinators of rehabilitation; the Dept. of Veterans' Affairs and the Dept. of Health.

A program of public information about the problems encountered by Canada's 330,000 deaf and hard of hearing led to the compilation of some 100 circulars by the Society.

Co-ordinating the Society's needs and desires with the services of public and private agencies was only the administrative background for the personal work done for individuals. Personal services available to anyone from infancy to old age through the Society include: counsel in any problem arising from loss of hearing ability; advice on training in pre-school and elementary students; provision of competent medical examination and counsel; counsel as to vocational training or re-training and job placements for adults as well as for graduating students.

During the 14 years of its existence the Society has registered 11,330 applicants. It has made 2,883 placements in occupations ranging from unskilled to professional. 3,600 free medical consultations. Some 900 hearing aids have been distributed. Included in the registration are 5,000 former members of the armed forces.

Mr. Lally's work is his monument. The lives of thousands of handicapped Canadians are happier and more useful because of Mr. Lally's sympathetic understanding of their plight and of his practical interest in their cause.

The growth and success of the Society which reflects his personality to such a marked degree is a living monument to the life and work of Canada's late, a better place because Edward Basil Lally lived and worked here.

GOOD NEWS FOR FISHERMEN

Come on spring! Hurry up. Want to get after those pickerel.

The ice is indeed lovely sunshine which the Department of Lands and Forests has been spreading on these otherwise gloomy January days — the news that pickerel catches by commercial fishermen from Glenora to Indian Point are at an all-time high.

This holds forth promise that pickerel fishing next spring and summer may be good . . . or at least better than it was during the cold and unproductive winter weeks of 1955.

About the only pickerel many sunmertime fishermen saw last year were dead ones — floating bloated and belly up on the top of the water. This led to the belief pickerel fishing might be poor this year — and possibly for a few years to come. However, the Department now views the large catches by commercial fishermen as evidence that there was actually an exceptionally large pickerel population in the Bay of Quinte last summer and that only a small portion of the fish fell victims to the warm water. The survivors, it is believed, merely just stayed quiet where it was coolest, not bothering to eat.

Hope they work up a real appetite by mid-May.

TONGUE-TIED

Dr. Irvine Loudon, of London, England, has told the medical profession that doctors are wasting their time by asking patients to stick out their tongues because all heavy smokers have furred tongues.

Perhaps the patient stick out his tongue is not just a diagnostic aid. It is very valuable in rendering the patient speechless while the doctor has a chance to conduct more important investigations while he takes charge of the interview.

STATUES NEED PROTECTION

Plastic coverings should be placed on the public statues of Paris to protect them from pigeons, a city councillor of the French capital urges. The unfortunate relationship of out-of-door statues and birds has been deplored in every city where the celebrated have been memorialized by their images in bronze and marble being erected in public places. It has been the subject of comment ranging from doleful to ribald jest.—Sydney, N.S. Post-Record.

JUST FOLKS

NOT SO BAD

"It's a tough old world," said a friend to me,
As we wallowed in the slush.
"It's a world crammed full of misery,
Of trouble and grief and rush."

But just that minute I saw a face
With a welcoming smile most glad
And a hand outstretched in the market place
And I answered: "It's not so bad."

"It's a tough old world," said a friend to me,
"With nothing but trouble in it."
But just at that very minute I saw Youth offer a helping arm To Age in the crowded street,
And I answered: "There's much in the world of charm.
There is bitter, but heaps of sweet."

And I can't subscribe to the Kill Joy's creed,
Nor the doctrine the Grouch professes;
For everywhere blossoms the kindly deed
And everywhere bloom caresses;
And everywhere, be it rain or shine,
If we'll open our eyes to see,
There are joys that are 16-carat fine
Just waiting for you and me.

Mrs. Earl H. Fry, Albion Street, has returned home from the hospital where she spent the past four weeks.

Miss Helen Hurley has left for Toronto where she will take an affiliated course at St. Joseph's Hospital Training School for Nurses.

Mr. Alfred Morris of Toronto, formerly of Albert College, has received an appointment with the Ontario Department of Health in Hamilton.

Mr. J. L. Hughes of London, Ontario, spent the week-end here with his mother, Mrs. William Hughes, Queen Street.

Mrs. Russell Larmour has returned to her home in Oshawa after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers, Forest Avenue.

The Rev. Robert Hall, pastor of John Street United Church, lived up to his contract and paid the full amount on December 31st, 1935. Considerable repairs will have to be made on the bridge and superstructure during this year. The board of directors was re-elected, namely: Messrs. Thomas Ritchie, J. W. Chandelier fell in church. Shortly after the congregation had left the Bedeneville Methodist Church on Sunday evening and the caretakker was putting out the lights the large chandelier hanging from the ceiling in the centre of the church fell and set fire to the carpet and matting. The fire was extinguished before much damage was done.

The early days of the bay bridge. The following is from page 3 of the copy of this time in 1896 will be of interest: "The annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Bridge Company was held last evening in the city hall. The vice president, Mr. Thomas Ritchie, was unable to be present and the chair was occupied by the vice president, Col. James Brown. The directors reported that the bridge is leased to Mr. Richard Arnott from April 1st, 1896 to 1916 for the sum of $4,450.00, being an increase of $150.00 over the previous year. Mr. Arnott lived up to his contract and paid the full amount on December 31st, 1895. Considerable repairs will have to be made on the bridge and superstructure during this year. Fish 70 Million Years Old

(By Jacques Millot in The Scientific American)

In 1938, off the east coast of South Africa near the mouth of the small Chalumna river, a fisherman brought up a strange fish. It came to the attention of the zoologist, J. L. B. Smith, at Rhodes University College in Grahamstown, South Africa, and he recognized the fish as an authentic coelacath. The discovery revolutionized the zoological world. Of the coelacanth was a mystery. It was a very ancient class of fishes which was supposed to have disappeared some 70 million years ago.

This great group of fishes, named the crossopterygians, flourished during that decisive era in the history of the earth when the first land animals evolved—when the fish, taking on legs and lungs, went forth to populate the continents.

The crossopterygians were distinguished by lobed fins which were the forerunners of the limbs of the land animals.

The interested scientists decided they must organize a methodical search, mobilizing all possible facilities to insure success.

Fishing, collecting, preserving and transporting the fish by air was set up by the Comoro Islands by the Madagascar Institute of Scientific Research, aided by the local authorities.

This organization has been rewarded by the capture of three new coelacanths, all in good condition.

Thorough study of those fish is now in progress.

One of the great problems of evolution has been to find anatomical links between the fishes and their land invading descendants, which emerged at the end of the Devonian epoch. Comparative anatomists have speculated that half a million years after the fin of the fish evolved into the forelimb of the frog, the forerunner of our own arm.

It is hopeless to trace a connection of any kind between the fish's fin and the human hand.

The fin that we know well—the goldfish of the aquarium, the trout of the dinner table—the fins have a long history of fin structure and orientation from the fishes to the frog. For a long time evolutionists were troubled by this major gap between the fishes and the amphibians. But the gap has now been bridged by studies of ancient fishes, and this is where the coelacanth comes in.

The fin of the crossopterygians can be thought of as a fleshy limb—the missing link between the typical fish fin and the typical limb of the other vertebrates.

Futhermore, the skull of the crossopterygians is constructed along the same lines as that of primitive amphibians. These striking resemblances have led paleontologists and anatomists to consider the crossopterygians as living through the drought forth amphibians and the land and air animals.

The crossopterygians are very ancient bony fishes which appeared in the Devonian epoch, ages at the start of the Devonian. They include two distinct lines of descent. One is that of the coelacanths (whose name, from the Greek, means "hollow from the spine"). The other is called the rhipidistians.

Today the coelacanths now captured belong to one species, named latimeria chalumnae, Smith.

They are between four and 5 1-2 feet ling as adults and weigh from 110 to 130 pounds.

The living coelacanths are a good deal larger than those previously found as fossils. Their bodies are entirely clothed in large cycloid scales. After the fish has a steely blue-grey color, flecked with white. Soon after death its color changes rapidly, usually to chocolate brown.

Coelacanth fossils have been found in many lands during the World—from Brazil to Spitsbergen, from Great Britain to Madagascar. But today the fish seems to be restricted to the waters washing the little Comoro archipelago, situated halfway between Madagascar and East Africa at the north entry to the Mozambique channel. The first specimens found off South Africa, must have been a wanderer from the Comoro area.

Although the local Comoro fishermen had known the coelacanth almost to a man and have been offered, by steadily rewarding, the catch of coelacanths is only three or four per year. The fishermen are rather skilful Canadians live on the deep, rugged bottom of the islands and implies only fine moisture droplets spraying forth from mouth and nose during coughing, sneezing or conversation — CRI means common respiratory infection; second, being a decent sort and not a stinker you warn everybody exposed to whatever you have, that he or she may catch it.

The Common Cold Is Not What it Seems To Be

Calling any apparent respiratory infection CRI (pronounced kree) until it is diagnosed is a good rule, a kind of golden rule of hygiene because it indicates, first, that the respiratory infections have this in common: they are spread in most instances via the visibils and palpable or the invisible and impalpably fine moisture droplets sprayed forth from mouth and nose during coughing, sneezing or conversation — CRI means common respiratory infection; second, being a decent sort and not a stinker you warn everybody exposed to whatever you have, that he or she may catch it.

GETTING READY FOR ETERNITY

We are safe in an evil world, so long as we are well. A ship is not made to stand forever in the harbor. It must go out into the water. The waves will buffet it about. But water will never hurt a ship so long as the water is not in the ship.

We cannot get away from the fact that we live in an evil world. It has always been evil. The responsibility rests upon us to make it so. We are to make ourselves as good as we can in such a world as this is and what we live as good as we can. But after we have done our best, the world will still be a wicked place. And we must live in this evil world and we must rear our children and send them out into the world, knowing that it is an evil world. Not such a fright is routine. Hodbracks remained serene when the cannon on the early pioneers rode and tramped to the Pacific Coast. Both America and Mexico have erected statues to "The Pioneer Mother." One of the greatest pioneers ever paid to such a Mother was written by Hamlin Garland—which was his own mother.

There is more pioneering going on in the world now than ever before—for better health, more leisure for workers and better methods of education in schools and colleges. These are the pioneers who knew it could be done so.

GO PIONEERING

Have you ever noted how pioneers have influenced progress and happiness in this life? Pioneers opened up this great northern continent and every land and continent. Pioneers in science, business, and medicine have created all that are the ones to whom we owe our advancing civilization and all progress.

It often takes great courage to be a pioneer. Columbus met the first gained only opposition and ridicule. I came upon a statement by that fine artist and lecturer, Robert Henri, who was a constant inspiration to those who studied under him. He said: "The artist is the man who leaves the crowd and goes pioneering. With him there is an idea which is life."

It won't be difficult to take up the challenge for perfect trips into outer space. After Colonel Lindbergh proved that it could be done. His one perfect feat put scientists to thinking. Now such a flight is routine. Hodbracks remained serene when the cannon on the early pioneers rode and tramped to the Pacific Coast. Both America and Mexico have erected statues to "The Pioneer Mother." One of the greatest pioneers ever paid to such a Mother was written by Hamlin Garland—which was his own mother.

TV Ruined By Old Bulbs

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

Old fashioned electric light bulbs are the bad influence behind reception!

Investigators of the Department of Transport have come up with the report that these old bulbs seem to be causing much of the interference in the Brockville area. When replaced with modern bulbs, the reception has improved 100 percent.

Owners of these old fashioned bulbs have remained in use in family garages, workshops and cottages, and their owners quite unaware of their sabotaging effect.

The old tungsten bulb actually sends out small television waves. These waves are capable of causing audio and visual interference on television sets.

Royal Salute Goes Limit

(Montreal Gazette)

One of the inquiries that come most often to any newspaper office is this: Why is a 21-gun salute 21 guns, and not more or less?

In the current issue of the monthly "Legionary" is an interesting piece in which Col. E. R. Biwen-Macpherson of Ottawa gives his findings about the ceremonial royal salute of 21 guns — which is also used by many foreign countries to salute heads of state.

The librarian of the Admiralty, London, has given him the following explanation of the number of guns.

In 1668 "An Establishment touching Salutes by Guns to be Henceforth Observed in His Majesty's Royal Navy" was published. It set down the number of guns to be used in saluting the several ranks:

"For a Captain, 11 guns; for a Captain having other ships under Command, 13 guns; for a Rear-Admiral, 15 guns; for a Vice-Admiral, 17 guns; for an Admiral, 19 guns.

"No ruling was set for the royal salute, but in 1731, when the first naval regulations were issued, they ordained that royalty was to be saluted by "such number of guns as the Lord High Admiral shall think proper; not exceeding 21 guns each ship." Apparently it became the custom to go the limit in honoring royalty, and so it has remained."

Crash Landing With a Smile

(London, Eng., Sunday Times)

You would think it hardly possible to extract an ounce of humor from a crash landing in the Atlantic, in the middle of the night, from 20,000 feet, but Transworld airlines thinks otherwise.

Passengers in their new Super-G Constellations to New York are handed a booklet entitled "How to Ditch Without a Hitch." Illustrated with sprightly drawings of grinning people playing canasta and knitting in a rubber lifeboat in the middle of the ocean.

Here is some of TWA's happy-go-lucky talk: "Let's prepare for ditchers . . . so you can take to the water as serenely as a seagull . . . waves are fashionable in emergency landings. Young Bright Yellow and quite handsomely tailored . . . Remove sharp objects and pencils from your pockets . . . Take off your glasses. Remove your collar. Remove your tie . . . Don't take off any other clothes (You'll want to look your best when you land.)"

Writing Corn

(Ottawa Citizen)

Inverin and Pravda, the two leading Russian newspapers, have belatedly become involved in an argument over how to grow corn. The editors should stick to their own field, and argue about how to write it.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The reason I do not play billiards or pool is very simply that I can't bear the sound or feel of scraping the chalk on the button of the cue. For such little annoyances and prejudices it is likely most of our lives are guided and directed. It so happens that pool rooms are the kind of man in whose company I have most at home; loving, keen competitive men who aren't particular about going home, who love to idle away the hours and have a bellied over a pool table. An evening in a pool room has all the quiet, ironic company of men like themselves, amid the click of balls and, looking down on a billiard room. The click of billiard balls has for them the effect of the plop of a fly on a screen door or the splash of a rising trout has for me. For forty years, my friends of this description have tried every devices to lure me into the game. But the squeak and scrape of that infernal little square tablet of chalk on the side-lines, watching my friends play, the sight of them chalking their cues gives me what my grandmother used to call the creeping shivers.

Thus, instead of growing into a man rather than a boy, instead of these most cotton to, I became a homegoing man, a quick-hunting man, spent his afternoons half hours walking through department store hardware departments, more than ones almiessly walking the nooday streets, looking at my fellow creatures. In the evenings, I spent hours like a child with a set of Meccano, or the set of electric chesterfield from her, reading the books and papers that came to the house through with it, and walking for the comics. Even so, my mind would wander away to the thought of my friends playing pool while I was at comics. No! I let my thoughts so wander, the squeak that scrape would send me scurrying back to the comics and the electric field.

A great many of us in this world are neither men nor mice, but just flotsam obedient to trifling currents and eddies.

Confidence Aids Growth

(Northern Miner)

When business is conducted in an atmosphere of confidence it is more likely to get worse than better. But, when confidence reigns people decide in terms of expanding rather than retrenching. If the odds on a new venture are close, or balanced the scales are more likely to be tipped in favor of positive action rather than a negative move.

The effect is cumulative and provided the economic base is not seriously out of, kilter these decisions are bound to maintain business at a good pace. So just on confidence alone we think 1956 has a better than average chance of being a good year.

It's a wonderful era, this in which we live. Prosperity is guaranteed by the simple act of helping others, however possible, rise a little every year. Expanding populations are on the side of the money managers.

French Story

(Hamilton Spectator)

There's a French story we relish or the Gallic mentality. The marriage be talks and the listen; six months after marriage she talks and he listens; two years after marriage they both talk and the neighbours listen.

Along Canadian Trails

Amateur Colonists

By LEONARD L. KNOTT
Illustrated by Jack Tremblay

Canada is still a young country and many people who come here today think they are faced with danger and hardship if they decide to make their homes away from the big cities.

Not so long ago, such was the case. In 1902, for instance, a band of amateur colonists, without any training in farming or frontier life, arrived in Canada and struck out for the wilderness. They were all folk from England and they came to Canada because of a book written by the Rev. I.M. Barr, an Anglican minister who was born in Canada and who wrote his book so that people in England would learn about the opportunities here.

Almost 2,000 people came to Canada to join Barr's colony in a land about which they knew really nothing. They should never have come, but in spite of the hardships they never went back and their descendants today live in a fine Canadian city. They arrived in Saint John, New Brunswick, and travelled by train to Rawdon in the Canadian west.

At the village of Saskatoon which had then only a few hundred inhabitants, their great and terrible adventure began. Many of them had lost their baggage on the way and never recovered it. For a few days, they lived in tents while they were buying horses, oxen and wagons. Then they set out on a 200 mile journey across the barren prairie.

WALKED 20 MILES

Some of the colonists walked the entire distance and those who walked had often to wait for their fellow amateurs who knew nothing about horses or oxen. None of the colonists had ever seen horses before. Wagons broke down. Teams got stuck in the mud. Women and children had to help their men-folk carry goods and supplies. In desperation, one of the strugglers left their supplies by the side of the trail and struggled on seeking only to reach their goal.

Altogether, it took the colonists two months to travel their 200 miles. And when they arrived at their homesite they had to begin building homes, breaking the ground to plant crops and carrying on other tasks with which they were completely unfamiliar. A few families built tents there towards the cold winter; others built huts of mud and sod into them to escape from freezing. When supplies were urgently needed, some of the younger colonists would travel on foot 200 miles to Edmonton and carry them back.

Barr made the trip with the colonists but he soon quarrelled with them and, disappointed, never returned. A new leader was appointed, Rev. G. Lloyd, who later became Bishop of Saskatchewan.

COLONISTS STAYED

The colonists, desperate, cold and often hungry stuck it out and refused to go back. Their leader had the Indians bring food to the settlement to build a church. Together, these amateur colonists built a city. They named it in honor of the man who, savaged with them, Rev. G. Lloyd; adding to his name the word minister for his church.

So the city that is known as Lloydminster began just about 50 years ago. It was founded by amateur colonists who found hardship greater than anything they had ever expected when they decided to be true Canadian pioneers.

FLYNN RETURNS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Errol Flynn, who has been living in Europe in recent years, came back to Hollywood only to be served Friday with a contempt citation. The citation, obtained for Nora Eddington, former wife of Flynn and mother of their daughters, Deidre, 11, and Rory, 9, contend Flynn failed to live up to child support agreement.

RAWDON
A.C.W.W. Sends Greetings From London

RAWDON. — The A.C.W.W. of London, England, sent their 1955 greetings crested with a large circle of holly leaves and berries, laurel leaves, pine boughs, and cones with a central theme showing two globes. This outlined the British Empire all around the globes wherever there are Women's Institutes. The greetings were outlined in red lettering. The words read: "For many people, this is the time of year for coming home; the time when families gather to renew the links that bind us to our kinsfolk.

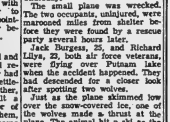
"Home" is a word that lies deep in all our hearts. It means parents and children, a house, a country. It means a place and people we love and understand, a place and people that love and understand us.

"Some people—and they are fortunate—speak of their "second home." They have another house, another family, perhaps another country, that they love almost as well as their own. We, who call all have "second homes", in the nearest village, or the farthest corner of the world, a house, a welcome and a friendship. Link Secretary of Hiver Valley Women's Institute.

At a later date last week, a message from Ceylon, was received. Their Institute celebrated their silver jubilee in 1955 and in the book is a fascinating story of the life as it actually lived in ships, struggles and achievements. It gives a vivid picture of the development of rural welfare during the past 25 years.

CREED OF CEYLON W.I.

The Country Women of Ceylon are proud of their organization and their part in most worthwhile. It reads as follows:



"Let us do all the good we can in every way that we can, to all the people that we can; let us bless in our lives by our words and deeds; let us refrain from finding faults in others; but direct our thoughts to their service; let us not be impatient in expecting the fruits of the seed of our labor.

"Let us in serving others forget all differences of the common heritage of our Mother Land; let us cultivate the virtues of humility, love kindness, be tactful; action; let us, remembering that idleness and not poverty is a cause for shame, value the dignity of work.

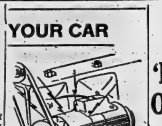
"Let us strive to rise higher day by day, and make of our life a blessing and source of joy and light."

Stoney Creek, Ontario, the Mother of Institute work, can be proud of their sister organizations in Ceylon.

Low-Flying Plane Knocked Down by Wolf

TOWER, Minn. (AP)—A timber wolf took a mighty leap and knocked down a low-flying airplane Thursday.

The small plane was wrecked. The two occupants, unhurt, were marooned miles from shelter before they were found by a rescue party several hours later.



Jack Burgess, 25, and Richard Liye, 25, both air force veterans were flying over Putnam lake when the accident happened. They had descended for a closer look after spotting two wolves.

Just as the plane skimmed low over the snow-covered ice, one of the wolves made a thrust at the plane. The animal hit a ski as the plane whipped by, and the craft went topsy-turvy into the snow.

The wolf was killed and the plane demolished.

YOUR CAR

Loose Mounts 'Cause Noises In Generator

By EUGENE MILMOE

Before your mechanic troubleshoots battery generator in your car, you'll see him make a quick inspection of the mountings. You may have assumed that commutator, brushes or bearings are to blame—but, as he can tell you, a loose generator mounting or poor generator troubles are traced to nothing more mysterious than loose mountings.

Lubrication of the generator is often overlooked or overdone. Every 5,000 miles, the oilers should be given a few drops of medium engine oil, but care must be taken since over-lubrication will invite damage.

Periodic inspection of belt tension, terminal connections and leads is another maintenance service the average motorist can perform. When generator repairs or replacements are needed however, he should seek out a mechanic with know-how and equipment.

C.N. writes: "After I installed a new battery on my car, the engine became difficult to start, ran very poorly and used gasoline odors developed which I traced to seepage at the carburetor. I finally replaced the carburetor but the same troubles continue."

(A) The new pump is probably delivering too much fuel. Between these and the pounds of pressure is the right amount for your car.

FAULTY COMPRESSION

From A.N.: "Because my car is using a lot of oil, I thought it is for a compression test. The reading showed pressure of almost 110 lbs on all but two cylinders—they are only 80 or 85. This doesn't make sense to me because new rings were installed only a year ago and the car has been driven less than 10,000 miles since that time."

(A) Ring trouble isn't necessarily indicated. Leaky valves may be at fault. A good mechanic can determine this with a vacuum gauge or by taking another compression reading after pouring a little oil into each cylinder to seal the rings.

O.S. asks: "Does a squeaky fan belt mean it is too loose?"

(A) Sometimes; but a too-tight belt will also squeak.

KNOCK, KNOCK

C.T. writes: "The engine of my 1952 car has developed a heavy knock, but it isn't always heard. I notice that depressing and releasing the clutch pedal when the engine is running seems to bring it on. I thought it was a main bearing noise, but a friend says it might be the crankshaft play. Which is right in your opinion?"

(A) As a matter of fact, my guess is a loose flywheel.

From J.C.: "In trying to cure my rough idling engine, I've spent—valves, plugs, distributor, coil, generator, battery, choke, carburetor, air cleaner, fuel pump lines, heat control valve, etc.—have either been serviced or replaced. I have even tried different brands of gas. All of this has cost me a small fortune, but the condition remains as bad as ever. Has anything been overlooked?"

(A) If you haven't already done so, it might pay dividends to test for air leakage into the intake manifold.

'Roly' Whitley President Of Local Branch of VON

TRENTON — (Special) — Former mayor R. J. "Roly" Whitley was elected president of the vocal branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses at the annual meeting of the organization last night. He took over from S. Mowbry who has held the post for six years. "I never expect to do the job Mr. Mowbry did," commented president Whitley, "I would say honestly ever that if I get the same support from the committees I can sure keep the V. O. N. alive and healthy," he added. Kenneth J. Couch alderman, in his remarks paid a tribute to Mr. Mowbry's work.

Mayor Russ Burtt extended the accident that happened to V. O. N. Nurse Marion Dickson and said he hoped she would be well again soon. He pledged the same assistance to the officers and committee council had given them in the past. President Whitley noted that services of council were always forthcoming.

Mrs. M. E. Bonter, president of the Belleville branch expressed sincere greetings from the executive and committee and wished president Whitley every success in the coming year.

Auditor Terrance M... Read reported that at December 31, 1955 the branch's current account balance was $250.40 and the savings account balance was $1003.55.

Nurse Dickson's report read by her assistant Mrs. O. W. Larry showed the two nurses completed 2,197 calls during 1955. The report also touched special activities conducted by the branch. For example the branch sponsors a well baby clinic each Thursday.

Those interested in V. O. N. work here were enlightened by reports from secretary Mrs. C. E. McColl and treasurer Grant Elliott.

BRANCH EXECUTIVE

Don McPherson chairman of the nominating committee reported that the following had been elected to the branch executive. Senator W. A. Fraser, honorary president; Roly Whitley, president; S. Mowbry, immediate past president; Don McPherson, first vice-president; Harry Foster, second vice-president; S. Mowbry, secretary; Grant Elliott, treasurer.

The business of the branch was followed by a program of entertainment. Vocalist Jean Whitley was well received. She sang two numbers "When You Were Sweet Sixteen" and "Desert Song". John Uttley accompanied her at the piano and played two arrangements on his own.

A vote of thanks to the entertainers and Miss McEwen responsible for the program was expressed by Dr. J. E. Richmond. Doug Whitley proposed a toast to the V. O. N. previous to the singing of "O, Canada" at the close of the meeting held in parlors of Grace United Church.

Strict Enforcement of Traffic Laws Answer to Problems

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stricter enforcement of provincial traffic laws may be an answer to Canada's traffic problem, a Canadian Press survey shows.

Attorneys-general in most provinces said they feel a police crackdown is one sure way of reducing traffic deaths.

In 1954 there were 2,586 persons killed in traffic accidents in Canada and 2,067 were killed in 1953. Figures for 1955 have not yet been compiled.

A speedup in the safety campaign was made in almost every province. Ontario's Attorney-General Roberts, in a drive to halve the province's death toll, launched Nov. 1 a 12-month safety campaign with a police crackdown as its major theme.

Police set up roadblocks on the heavily-traveled Queen Elizabeth way and stopped thousands of cars for checks.

British Columbia had a similar drive during the Christmas Holiday season.

New Brunswick went under a new safety driving act Jan. 1, by which, government officials said, the province should become one of the safest in Canada. The act includes the popular "points system" for offenders now operating in British Columbia and Manitoba. Ontario is reported studying the system.

By it a motorist scores a point every time he's convicted of a serious traffic offence. If he gets too many points, he's called in for a rigid test. If he flunks, he doesn't drive any more until he learns all over. Or, if the offences are grave problem.

Says Brink's Robbery Planned Year-and-Half

BOSTON (AP) — Joseph J. (Specs) O'Keefe, 47, key to the FBI's breaking of the Brink's $1,218,211 robbery of six years ago, went before a grand jury today after being quoted as saying the robbery had been planned a year and a half.

One of 11 men named by the FBI Thursday as participants in the biggest cash robbery ever committed, O'Keefe has been described as the "leak" in the case. Authorities say he decided to "talk" because he didn't get his share of the loot.

The Boston Traveler quotes O'Keefe as saying that prior to the holdup a gang entered the plant night after night through a garage after everyone but the watchman had left.

The gang removed locks from every door in the plant so they could continue.

The locks were taken directly to a keymaker in the employ of the gang and a key was fashioned and the locks returned in a matter of minutes.

O'Keefe also stressed "there was no inside connection. We had keys to every lock in the joint. We had completed plans and we didn't need an inside man."

Meters Robbed

TORONTO (CP) — Two employees of the Toronto traffic engineers department were arrested Friday on charges of theft of dimes from downtown parking meters.

Police identified the accused as Leonard Albert Clarke, 33, and Gerhard Gallagher, 39, whose jobs were to collect money from meters using hand carts.

His licence is suspended for a long time.

Highways Minister A. W. Macdonald announced this year was the most important development in motor-vehicle administration in his department since the introduction of fees for licences.

Ontario has introduced a written test to accompany its standard driving test for all applicants.

Every possible means for improvements is expected to be introduced in the current session of the provincial legislature.

Mr. Roberts of Ontario has proposed an international safety conference as a step that might be taken to find a solution to the problem.

The Master Maker of Violins

By Nicholas Mika

(Article 14)

Every year around the middle of May a festival takes place in Cremona, Italy. During this festival musicians and music-lovers from all over the world come to listen to the tune of an old violin. The man who built this violin died more than two hundred years ago, but his instruments live on, scattered over the earth, and the price for any of them staggers the imagination. Some of these instruments are not to be bought. They rest in museums or in the showcases of private collectors who cherish them dearly.

The people of Cremona are proud of their master and they say that no one in the world will ever build violins with a more beautiful or sweeter tone. In the evenings when they put on their best clothes and sit in the taverns sipping their wine, a stranger who happens to be there may hear some unusual stories about the fate of the famous violins.

BEYOND IMITATION

And the truth is that this man's violins do seem to have a magic power over music lovers. The soul is penetrated by their intoxicating melodies. Chemists have tried to imitate the varnish the locks returned in a matter of minutes.

The Boston Traveler quotes O'Keefe as saying that prior to the holdup a gang entered the plant night after night through a garage after everyone but the watchman had left.

Some of these instruments are not to be bought. They rest in museums or in the showcases of private collectors who cherish them dearly.

The people of Cremona are proud of their master and they say that no one in the world will ever build violins with a more beautiful or sweeter tone. In the evenings when they put on their best clothes and sit in the taverns sipping their wine, a stranger who happens to be there may hear some unusual stories about the fate of the famous violins.

BEYOND IMITATION

And the truth is that this man's violins do seem to have a magic power over music lovers. The soul is penetrated by their intoxicating melodies. Chemists have tried to imitate the varnish the locks returned in a matter of minutes.

The Boston Traveler quotes O'Keefe as saying that prior to the holdup a gang entered the plant night after night through a garage after everyone but the watchman had left.

The gang removed locks from every door in the plant so they could continue.

The locks were taken directly to a keymaker in the employ of the gang and a key was fashioned and the locks returned in a matter of minutes.

O'Keefe also stressed "there was no inside connection. We had keys to every lock in the joint. We had completed plans and we didn't need an inside man."

Meters Robbed

TORONTO (CP) — Two employees of the Toronto traffic engineers department were arrested Friday on charges of theft of dimes from downtown parking meters.

Police identified the accused as Leonard Albert Clarke, 33, and Gerhard Gallagher, 39, whose jobs were to collect money from meters using hand carts.

His licence is suspended for a long time.

Highways Minister A. W. Macdonald announced this year was the most important development in motor-vehicle administration in his department since the introduction of fees for licences.

Ontario has introduced a written test to accompany its standard driving test for all applicants.

Every possible means for improvements is expected to be introduced in the current session of the provincial legislature.

Mr. Roberts of Ontario has proposed an international safety conference as a step that might be taken to find a solution to the problem.

Antonio Stradivarius was born in Cremona, Italy. During his festival musicians and music-lovers from all over the world come to listen to the tune of an old violin. The man who built this violin died more than two hundred years ago, but his instruments live on, scattered over the earth, and the price for any of them staggers the imagination. Some of these instruments are not to be bought. They rest in museums or in the showcases of private collectors who cherish them dearly.

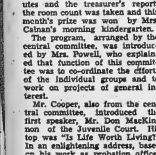
'Is Life Worth Living'? Topic at Queen Alexandra H-S Assoc.

The Queen Alexandra Home and School Association recently held its monthly meeting with the president, Mrs. Jones, presiding.

After the reading of the minutes and the treasurer's report, the room count was taken and this month's prize was won by Mrs. Catnan's morning kindergarten.



The program, arranged by the central committee, was introduced by Mrs. Powell, who explained that the purpose of this committee was to co-ordinate the efforts of the individual groups and to work on projects of general interest.

Mr. Cooper, also from the central committee, introduced the first speaker, Mr. Don Maddox, son of the Juvenile Court. His topic was "Is Life Worth Living?" In an excellent address, based on his work as probation officer with juvenile delinquents, Mr. MacKinnon showed how, in helping children and parents to discover truer values and better ways of living, he had created for himself a rich and satisfying way of life.

The second speaker, Captain Marks of the Salvation Army, unable to be present in person, sent his address on a tape recording machine. He centred his talk around the life of a boy, who, salvaged by both legs and arms, had, nonetheless, discovered that living was most worthwhile.

Mr. Cooper thanked the speakers. Refreshments were served by the morning kindergarten mothers.

Letters from Mexico

By Arnold Meyers

Merida, Yucatan, Mexico.

It is now here in Merida today. That say, with a flourish of breath, the matador advanced upon the bull to administer the "coup de grace". But this bull was by no means dead yet; besides two of the darts had fallen out, it suddenly eyed the matador, who advanced waving his cloak right in the background for the purpose of preventing the bull from turning upon the matador when his back was turned.

The matador waved his cloak of red enticingly at the brute's head. Down went the head and for the last time the bull made a charge. Suddenly the bull lowered its head, charged with all its might and lunged forward toward the matador. But by an error in the matador's calculation, he missed the mark and the enormous shining horns passed him. He stepped back to the side for a few feet where he collapsed into the arms of two attendants who led him off to the hospital.

The bull-ring thing happened so quickly that I felt like one stunned. As that body went hurtling through the air, I felt my heart go back, a gasp went up from the crowd, a few people hurried to kerchiefs to their faces, and Mrs. Prescott turned her face to the back of my shoulder. Simultaneously she declared her intention of returning to the hotel.

In the meantime a team of burros was driven across to the carcass. The dead bull was hitched to the burros and dragged around in a circle. The seats are not seats at all, but huge concrete steps which go all the way around the arena in consecutive tiers. At the bottom is a walk, at the back of which is a high fence with "exits" at regular intervals. It was on one of these "windows" that we found ourselves. Gently, Mrs. Goodchild broke the fact that it had just raised hard and was still cascading down the tiers.

Heavy, dark clouds, hung low the murky sky over the Plaza de Toros in Merida. A feeling of depression was apparent on every breast as the great moment drew near. Suddenly, at a fanfare from the band, there was the "supporting cast" of the day entered the arena, marching in single file in a grand march past. These were made up of the banderillos (men who dart spears or banderillas who go on foot), then the picadors, who go on horseback upon weak, old nags of horses. After them came the donkey - team whose job it is to cart away the carcasses. Finally, mounted upon a fine black horse, and highly trained in deportment, came the star matador of the day. After circumnavigating the arena to the crowd many times, he went to the sidelines, for his work was to come later.

THE BULL ENTERS

Suddenly, at a blast from the horn, the big iron doors opened wide and with a great, charging rush a black bull bounded through, opening like a thing possessed. Head low, his long, curved horns threatening, he charged at a certain banderillo, who darted nimbly aside, planting in the bull's short spear adorned with red and blue ribbons, on the top of the beast's shoulders.

Quickly, agile creature turned quickly, and he charged again, only for the nearest wooden barrier and squeezed in behind just in the nick of time. Then over the beast had the other banderillo to deal with, but the latter played it safe, attempt a stratagem. After successfully dodging a headlong rush, he planted his spears in the bull behind the bull, and uttered a cry of triumph. The crowd was shouting about abruptly. In went the second dart. By this time blood flowed down from the bull's shoulder.

PICADORES

Standing by the wooden wall of the bull-ring, each on opposite sides, were two picadores, mounted on their nags. Their long, scrawny bones were scarcely able to sustain the weight of the rider and the enormous saddle which hung down the entire length of the animal, which was very thickly padded.

Catching sight of these latter, apparently for the first time, the maddened, bull trotted toward one of them, but Señor Alfonso Hamilton with 22 members and one visitor present. The 1st vice-president, Mrs. Neal, was in charge.

Our current event was given by each member. The topic for the meeting was "Citizenship and Education."

Two new Canadian members, Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Wyatt, were welcomed to Holland.

Going Places
Mental Bugaboos of Travelling

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

From time to time in this space we've touched on some of the less apparent pitfalls of getting places—unpredictable tangles with the law, highway, health, and safety hazards, and the like.

But on reflection it seems to us there are a few more mental bugaboos in travellers' minds than there are real reasons for concern.

Are you afraid of flying? And why?

Highway accidents? Sure there are lots of them and they never involve people who stayed home.

But law enforcement officers know the alert and competent driver rarely gets into them. Almost every accident has some element of carelessness, inattention to the road, its condition, other motorists or a failure on someone's part to handle his car correctly and in keeping with the rules.

If you have confidence in your own reflexes and ability to spot others who aren't driving safely and intelligently, and your capacity to operate your car with one eye on the rear-view mirror and you don't sit hit "out of nowhere," your chances of staying out of trouble are pretty good, we suggest.

A car in good running condition helps too, but by the same token many drivers fuss and worry too much about their cars. The safe car that has been properly maintained according to the manufacturer's and the owner's manual, rarely breaks down.

The days of major failures due to stress—cooling systems overheating, gasoline vapor locks and tires failing—are just about past.

Most of what can go wrong with your car without a lot of warning is some anyhow, and these days a competent mechanic is never very far away.

CLEAR DIRECTIONS

Getting lost on the highway used to be a genuine source of concern, but these days it's almost impossible. Accurate road maps and clearly posted route signs and directional signs help to get you on the track than to stay on it.

Some drivers still have difficulties when passing through cities because of the distractions of traffic, but careful attention to road signs can make that no problem at all.

Afraid of food poisoning? In five years of steady traveling, we've suffered only once, and that was a very flashy resort city restaurant, and the huge, impressive, and plush taurant is usually its own evidence of safe, if not necessarily delicious food.

Many travellers who plan a trip by air worry about being unable to arrive or get back on time because of cancellations. Yet statistics show these days less than one flight in 50 is cancelled for any reason.

While mechanical and weather delays still are unhappily frequent, this is usually made up for by the fact that airplanes are faster than ever, and though you may arrive later, it probably won't be so late that you've much cause to worry about getting back to work late. The fastest hop in the United States, coast to coast can now be made in as little as eight and one-half hours.

Air crashes? Some statistical boy-lyist once figured you'd have to stay aloft continuously for several lifetimes before your number might be up.

EMERGENCIES

Emergencies at home? You can get in touch by phone even coast to coast in a matter of seconds for as little as two dollars. And if no one else can figure out exactly where to find you, nobody can.

Illness? The heartiest and healthiest men in the world are those who spend a career as commercial travellers. No time clock pressures, no chilly hours spent in cold rooms at night—and keeping away from the kind of fatigue that comes from inadequate supply of warm clothing, particularly this time of year, is, of course, the rule. Of course, should medical attention wherever you go, be required for any reason, as we have found, are pretty much unexcelled.

Burglars or fire in your home? Taking the proper precautions (a a few lights on timers, drawing the blinds, disconnect all electrical appliances, notify police and delivery, and ask the police to keep an eye on the house) you should find it just as you left it.

Above all, if you keep in mind that travelling is the way of life of people who manage to live out their days with no more inconvenience than you have at home, you'll realize that simply being away is not a source of danger in itself.

Claudette Colbert Does Not Give Hoot for Smart Clothes

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It may surprise you that Claudette Colbert doesn't give a hoot about clothes, despite the fact that she has long been one of the screen's best dressers.

In one television performance she appears in four fetching outfits. Then she tells Host Ed Sullivan "Blithe Spirit" with Noel Coward and Lauren Bacall.

"You should know the trouble I've had over those four dresses," she said. "Designing, fitting, buttings, fittings, fittings. It drives me nuts. When I think of the money, the fact that I spent on my lifetime over clothes!

"Clothes aren't very important to me. Clothes never have been. If I had to spend as much time on my face as I spend on it for some women do, I'd go to Tahiti and wear a Mother Hubbard."

NOT IMPORTANT

Fancy duds are important to Claudette professionally, but she maintains that actresses devote a lot of the other glamour girls.

"I don't have time to wear clothes as can a lot of producers' wives," she remarked. "If I have two pictures a year, that's two new clothes for a lot of producers' wives," she remarked. "If I have two pictures a year, that's two new clothes for conservative clothes. I think it's ridiculous to spend a lot of money on clothes that you'll wear for years or more. And I often do."

Claudette is more adept eight evening gowns and an equal number of cocktail dresses. She says she doesn't care not a whit if friends recognize them — "you don't have to have a new dress for every occasion."

BUYS AND KEEPS

You can understand why she feels this way. Her present wardrobe evening gown can run from $800 to $1,000, and her favorite designer was Adrian, since retired from feminine fashions the designs only men's ties and hats.

"He was the most prolific of all the designers," she said. "Among people think of the lavish things he did for Garbo and Norma Shearer. And he also did more conservative clothes, and they were what I liked."

Now she favors Maibocher in New York and Balmains and Dior in Paris.

Claudette is winding up her CBS Radio Network series "Those Throwbacks she won't sign a long-termer again. She says, "I don't want to call her own shots.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

This is the eighty-fifth birthday of Dr. Albert Schweitzer. The tributes that will find their way to Albert Schweitzer hospital, originate from the hut of African negroes to the palace of Royalty. There can be no comparison here as to importance because each message will possess the same sincere quality of equality, the equality of sincerity. This is That vision with the thousands who wish to pay humble tribute to the great Austrian whose "Reverence For Life" was revealed to him in the African jungle.

When we came to the actual typing of this birthday greeting, we wondered if it would not be fitting to quote some message to our ears from Dr. Schweitzer. His writings are full of messages but we have chosen a message from the epilogue of his book "Out of My Life And Thought."

Sincerity is the foundation of the spiritual life.

With the modern method of thinking our generation has lost its feeling for sincerity and with it the power to think well. It can therefore be helped only by being brought once more on to the road of thinking.

Because I have this certainty I oppose the spirit of the age which tries to destroy my self-confidence the responsibility of taking my part in rekindling the fire of thought.

It is elemental.

The birth of my childhood I have preserved with the certainty that I can never lose it. In belief in truth. In the confident that the spirit generated there by the influence of good and strong circumstances. In my view as a child of the world, the mankind than that which, through its mental and spiritual disposition, is able to get out of itself. Therefore I do not believe that I have to look for the road to pin right to the end.

Because I have confidence in the power of truth and of the spirit, I believe in the future of mankind."

If we seem to be receiving rather long and giving in the acknowledgment, then that is fitting for the Schweitzer hospital. Whatever has been giving to his fellowman for a lifetime that has lived on and on, present for the future, and to the future must be left the ultimate appreciation of his giving.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

"Then He arose and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm".—St. Matthew 8:26.

One of the most beautiful religious art windows in America is that above the altar in the chapel of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland.

Placed by members of the naval class of 1863 as a memorial to Admiral David D. Porter, it portrays the Saviour walking upon the water. At every religious service it reminds worshipers that Jesus is still the Ruler of the winds and the sea.

It is a tradition at the Naval Academy to close chapel services with the singing of the hymn cited above. Every naval graduate of Annapolis has sung it scores of times and will remember it always.

ETERNAL FATHER, STRONG TO SAVE

Eternal Father! strong to save,
Whose arm doth bind the restless wave,
Who bidd'st the mighty ocean deep,
Its own appointed limits keep;
O hear us when we cry to Thee
For those in peril on the sea!

O Savior, whose almighty word
The winds and waves submissive heard;
Who walkedst on the foaming deep,
And calm amid its rage didst sleep;
Oh, hear us when we cry to Thee
For those in peril on the sea!

O Sacred-Spirit, who didst brood
Upon the chaos dark and rude;
Who badest its angry tumult cease,
And givest life, and light, and peace;
Oh, hear us when we cry to Thee
For those in peril on the sea!

O Trinity of love and power,
Our brethren shield in danger's hour;
From rock and tempest, fire and foe,
Protect them whereso'er they go;
And ever let there rise to Thee
Glad hymns of praise from land and sea.

And for navy men and officers serving on ships throughout the world there is something satisfying in the knowledge that they are being "remembered" regularly by kneeling congregations in the navy's mother church.

The hymn was written in 1860 by William Whiting, a clergyman of the Church of England, for publication in a volume of "Hymns Ancient And Modern".

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

ANNOUNCING SECOND ENGAGEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Two years ago our daughter announced her engagement (we announced it formally in our local newspapers). About eight months later they decided to break the engagement, and her father and I sent a formal notice to the newspapers that the engagement had been broken by mutual consent. Now our daughter has again become engaged, and we are uncertain about how to announce this engagement publicly. We are giving an afternoon reception at which it will be announced to relatives and friends. — Mother

Send the customary engagement-announcement form to the newspapers, of course making no mention of the previous engagement: "Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sloan of 123 Fourth Avenue, this city, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Sloan, to Mr. Peter Clark, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lane Clark, of Columbus, Ohio." This announcement should be sent in time to be published in the newspapers on the day following the reception.

GUEST'S ORDER COMES FIRST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that when ordering in a restaurant, the girl gives her order to the man, her host, and he gives both orders to the waiter. But when he gives the orders to the waiter, shouldn't he mention her order first? This is a case, I say, he should mention the girl's order first, that he really should make a point of doing this. B says it makes no difference which he mentions first. Which is right? — Column Readers

A wins the bet. I hope you are A, and I think you are. When giving the two orders to the waiter the host should give his guest's order first. This sequence is a nice refinement to have.

IN THIS CASE DO NOT PAY CLERGYMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a question I can't possibly discuss with my bride-to-be or her family. The father of my fiances is a minister and he is going to perform the ceremony in their church. In the list of wedding expenses in your column the other day you name as one of the groom's responsibilities "the contribution or gift to the minister who performs the ceremony." Now should I give him, or at least offer him, this "contribution or gift"? Or should I perhaps include this in an envelope, and say the best man to present the envelope to the bride's father? — Groom

This gives me the opportunity to tell you that, although a contribution is generous, you must not give a contribution to the bride's father who is to perform the ceremony.

MARRIED BRIDAL ATTENDANTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This afternoon I came home thrilled because one of my dearest friends (she and I have known each other practically all our lives) told me that she had set their wedding date for next April and asked me to be one of her bridesmaids. But when I told my mother that I had accepted her invitation, Mother said of course I couldn't accept because I am married and have a 5-year-old child. Of course, my friend, the prospective bride, knows this, but she didn't mention Peter (my husband) at all when she asked me. I feel that I should get in touch with her and explain, but Mother says that would be silly. What do you think? — Adele

Your mother has the wrong idea about this. Today a member of the bridal party, honor attendant or bridesmaid, may be either unmarried or married. And the fact that you are a mother makes no difference either. Of course your friend, the bride-to-be, didn't mention these facts because she took it for granted that they were not important in her decision or in your acceptance. As a matter of fact, sometimes the little daughter of the matron of honor or of a bridesmaid is chosen to be a flower girl or the small son of a bridal attendant is chosen to be a page.

BEAUTY

NEW HEARING AIDS A BOON TO THE BEAUTY-CONSCIOUS WOMAN

A hearing aid that's concealed in the hair and has its receiver in a pendant earring is completely invisible.

For many years the beauty-conscious woman beset by hearing difficulties was in a definite quandary. If she wore a hearing aid it was certainly no asset to her looks and, if she didn't, what looks she had suffered as her affliction progressed, for it makes no mistake about it, impaired hearing does affect one's looks. The strain of trying to hear causes lines to appear in the face and the effort to conceal the affliction produces tension which is reflected in the condition of the skin and hair as well as in those jerky motions which are also a beauty liability. Furthermore, there is a loss of alertness which causes a woman to lose her sparkle and the appearance to vitality which is so necessary to genuine charm.

However, with the old-fashioned hearing aids it was hardly any wonder that the average woman preferred to risk the handicap these beauty assets rather than have the conspicuous instruments which advertised her difficulty to all and sundry. Today there's no such handicap to such beauty risks. Thanks to science, a woman can now wear a hearing aid and no one will ever know the difference, since they're practically invisible.

Manufacturers are outdoing each other in cleverly concealing these devices and they can be procured in the form of lovely earrings, as hair ornaments and even in smart looking eyeglass frames. Mechanisms are so light that the wearer is hardly conscious of them herself and they are cleverly dyed to match the color of the hair so that they can be concealed in the smartest of coiffures. So, if you're hard of hearing, stop dreading the wearing of an aid. Instead, consult your physician and have him prescribe one of the modern new ones which will not only prove a boon to your ears but to your looks as well.

Chocolate—Mix well 1 heaping tablespoon cocoa (or more to suit taste) to sugar before adding milk and cream. Proceed as usual.

Cinnamon—Mix well 1 1-2 teaspoons ground cinnamon with sugar before adding to milk and cream. Add a few drops of red coloring. Omit vanilla.

Peppermint— Omit vanilla and add 1-3 teaspoon peppermint extract. If oil of peppermint is used only a few drops are necessary. Add either red or green food coloring for desired shade.

Grapenut—Add 1-3 cup grapenuts to warm basic mixture, and let stand until grapenuts soften before freezing.

Pineapple-Coconaut—Add 1 cup drained crushed pineapple and 1-2 cup desiccated cocoanut to basic mixture.

NOTE:

The whipping after the first freezing corrects any lumps formed by powdered cinnamon or cocoa; also any curds in the pineapple ice cream.—Joan.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THERE IS HELP FOR YOUR KIND OF ILLNESS IF YOU SEEK IT

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I have a very serious problem in that I have spells of depression which I am sometimes unable to control. I have talked this over with my husband and have also talked with loved ones in my family about this, and they seem to think I'll be all right.

I used to work out, and would like so much to do it again, but I would not be able to hold a job.

For quite some time, the future has looked so dark, and if I don't take steps to clear this up by myself alone, it will not be done, as it looks as if everything is being left up to me to do which I think is best.

When I was in my teens, I had an operation and lost my baby, and since then I have been unhappy and very nervous. Sometimes I think the operation may be the cause of my trouble.

What do you think I should do? I just can't go on this way; staying around the house day and night with nothing to do but think, after I get my work all done. I guess my husband doesn't want me to go to a hospital, and I don't want to go, either, but something has to be done.

Do you think I should talk this over with my family doctor and see what he says? — A.R.

Dear A.R.:

I certainly do think you should talk with your family doctor, and just as quickly as possible. I am very much surprised that your family did not see to it that this was done long ago.

The type of condition you have is not one you can handle by yourself. You need expert help in finding out just what the cause of your depression may be, and you need guidance in making your way out of it. It is all wrong, and quite needless, for you to continue in such a state of mental torture.

If your family doesn't make it their business to find the right kind of help for you, then you should take it into your own hands and find it for yourself. You can do this, I am sure, by talking the whole problem over with your doctor. He will know just how to direct you to the person who can help you the most. I am sure you have tried your very best to help yourself, but, as I say, this sort of thing requires the guidance of a doctor who understands all about your kind of ailment.

You definitely can be helped out of your depressed condition, so try not to feel hopeless about it. To be depressed is just as much an illness as to be physically sick, and there is a cure for both. If you put yourself in the right hands.

So see your doctor at once, and do exactly as he says, even though it may mean going to a hospital for awhile. It would not only be much better for you to be in a hospital than for you to be alone all day, but it might very well speed your recovery.

Here's a coat designed for ski fans. By Bonnie Cashin, it's as good as it is practical. Planned for warmth and plenty of style, the cape-skin coat has a full apace lining, big pockets and hidden storm cuffs. There is an attached hood, knitted with points at the side. From a single button at the neckline, the coat curves to a wide line for wrapping the knees comfortably in a ski-lift chair.

Journalistic Zanies Still Evident In News Room of the Fourth Estate

By DICK PAYNE

Frank Rasky has an article in the latest issue of "Liberty" dealing with newspaper columnists. They are, he maintains, the modern equivalent of Thucydides, the Greek historian. Based upon a time, he admits, columnists may have been grafters and rum-pots, "but newspaper publishers have long since swept into the ashcan this variety of journalistic deadwood."

Three little round holes look mournfully down at me from the ceiling of the Ontario Intelligencer's newsroom, like a triple-threat version of Little Abner's Bald Eagle.

They are powerful medicine; otherwise why would a fire sitting down to write the truth — and on my own time?

The truth is that the greater part of the work in newspaper offices is done by solid citizens, like you and me; the same type of solid citizens who do the rest of the world's work. But news papers are kept alive by their zanies — and we have them. The day publishers sweep the last of them into the ashcan, they may look for the demise of their papers, for that is where they will be, dingy, unswept, unhonored and unread.

Those three little holes in the Intell ceiling tell a more important story than the famous last words of the once-popular song. They made their appearance in the Intell office on the night that I did, but I feel honored to be in their company.

It seems that, once upon a time, over 20 years ago, there were three employees of the Intell two of whom thought the time had come to drown their sorrows. The third, a girl, went along to see to protect them and the men to go home. As you might have guessed, she did not succeed in that. There was also a memorable evening. The three holes aspirin mark the spot where whom she was not particularly interested decided the time had come to "put up or shut up" and produced a .22 rifle, spraying bullet holes in the ceiling re-bullet holes in the ceiling re-mains. There were also numerous other bullet holes found in the furniture and shop equipment as well.

(P.S.—No, he wasn't fired, not for a little thing like that. The Intell, I discovered to my moderate surprise and immoderate delight when I joined the staff months ago, is a newspaper, son, with all that that implies).

Rasky would have/his believe that there are characters capable of livening up a party in this fashion among the country's newspaper columnists. If "its so, 'tis a grievous thing, and grievously will one columnists answer for it. They will be unable to put the competition off the lesser fry, who still include a more-than adequate number of men and women with a lust for life and living — and the corresponding inclination and ability to write about it.

Of course, I have to admit that I know few columnists personally —just one, in fact and he was not among those to get Rasky's attention. Just one — and sport columnist — but I could name a few Sport columnists are to editors what Norwegians are to Swedes — and up in Northern Ontario they say that a Swede is a Norwegian with the brains taken out, so you know where this leaves editors.

I can't believe, though, that newspaper columnists are any different from ordinary newspapermen in any particular except the size of their assets — in and money, though it may be the root of all evil, is not so strong a poison that it can dredge all the impropriety out of a man the minute he gets a by-line.

Most columnists were once reporters — many of them reporters on sports papers, in fact one of the best potential columnists are still reporters. And they lack is the chance. The best specialist in Canada is a postal clerk at Collingwood, Ont. He can write a better wrestling story than any other man. The Intelle George Carver and the by-line boys on the Toronto papers aren't in the same class — they can't match Scotty Carmichael. Collingwood is 40 miles from Toronto, the nearest town with a daily newspaper, but the Toronto sports editor had sense enough to realize that, while a report of a wrestling match in Collingwood certainly wasn't news, it was definitely art when Carmichael was at the typewriter.

Carmichael learned his trade in a hard school. He was correspondent for the Toronto Telegram during the depression when Frank (Gus) Teakey was his assignment editor on the Toronto Star. On one occasion Teakey drove a hundred miles in the drifts of the Blue Mountains to gather a story and phoned it in, word by word to the Star — and back they came rejected. Impressed with them he called Hardy and started to wonder whether he could get a raise for the month. Then along came a telegram from the Star — story by editor had arrived in the office in the Blue Mountains. "Sent them once and got returned them," wired Teakey. "Want them at once," wired the Star. "Am drinking them now," wired Teakey, "20 below zero," wired Teakey. "At once," wired the Star. Teakey threw up the arm of the telegraph operator, twisted it behind his back and finished the message with it would be in the best interests of all concerned if the Star, brief, four-word message, frequently spoken and rarely written by the Star just what it could do with his job.

"Nevertheless must insist that you get that story and pictures promptly."

Teakey threw up. He got them. Today he is still with the Star, family and sports-photographer. His work still shows touches of that enthusiasm which he had one last time, but in the thirties, to report that: "Before five innings Carmichael collected the hair Collingwood Collegiate today won the Georgian Bay Intercollegiate Rugby title." It was a long time before I spoke to him again. On the day he got my promotion he was down as far as a wildcat oil well and I was the only spectator on the statistics for the first half of the game. In the second half I crawled down to the end of the hall dozen cars, one of which may, or may not, have been Scotchering Teakey.

The man who sent that polite, job-retaining telegram to Teakey was probably Gerald Brown, then city editor of the Star about that time. I never met Brown but I heard from him, not of him, on several occasions. The "girls" on the Star switchboard were word telegrams enquiring what farmers in the Orangeville district were talking about better with Russia. The "it" came out of Ottawa, where Brown headed the wartime public relations branch of the RCAF. His news scrutiny criticism was brief but to the point. "You write like a Rotarian," was the way he put it. The culprit was a newspaperman he would crawl out of his shaker Brown is now a publisher at Victoria, B.C. Perhaps he has been joined by Rotarian Teakey.

The "Rotarian" crack will be understood by every newspaperman — and be inexplicable to almost everybody else. There are only two things wrong in the life of a newspaperman than drawing the short straw. One is to be doomed to write obituaries, the equivalent of soliloquy Hamlet on a diet of bread and water. The other is to be assigned to cover a church service. If reporters' prayers were answered, the gates of hell would have to open their wide every weekend to receive the flood of editors who had handed out Sunday church assignments.

The most entertaining yarns about the newspaper business always seem to be connected with liquor. That's why the yarn pots have their uses — they have so many more opportunities than the rest of us. But even the sober-sides have their moments. I remember the night when I was first introduced to Scotch whisky and dry ... .

But here we go into a personal story, of no interest to anyone but. What's this! Rasky says in "Liberty" that it is always the simple little stories about personal experiences that bring columnists the most fan mail. Well, all right, then, if you insist.

As I was saying, Durham had won the O.H.A. intermediate hockey championship in 1936 and I went down to cover the celebration. After the banquet, I went to the office of the Durham Chronicle-Times to get additional information. The editor and owner was Frank Irwin, a fiery, red-voiced, soft-hearted ex-U.S. marine.

He looked at me sadly. "If you were Dulmage," he said, "I would offer you a drink." Dulmage in question was George, my predecessor as sports editor of the Intelligencer and Sun-Times and now on the sports staff of the Toronto Telegram. He was one of three newspapermen-sons of Mark Dulmage, a native of Bowmanville, Edward County who learned his trade as a printer with Charlie Hardwick, compositing room foreman of the Intell, and who later decided it was easier and more profitable to write stories than to handle type sensibly fellow.

I allowed that, although I was not Dulmage, I would do the best I could to uphold the standards he had established. Frank Irwin relented to this extent, pulled out a bottle of Scotch and poured. I was the first time I had tasted Scotch. We had a couple of drinks, then inspected the plant.

"Like another drink?" asked Frank.

"Yes, but . . ." I held up the empty Scotch bottle.

"I've got another," said Frank.

He pulled out a bottle — or gin. It was the first time I had met gin on equal terms and it will probably not the first time that Scotch and gin have met each other — but it is certainly the last time they are going to be so chummy for a hoe-down. I am not on speaking terms with gin to this day. Scotch I have, on occasion, tried to patch up my old but I am innocent bystander.

Well, anyway, I hopped into a car driven by Don Fleming, son of Publisher Howard Fleming. He left Durham perfectly sober. I got out at Owen Sound, 28 fast miles later, as tight as one of Marilyn Monroe's dresses but much less appealing to the eye. I grabbed the typewriter on its first time around, but the keys kept dodging. Finally I beat a retreat to the roof, moaned, was horribly ill and eventually recovered enough to write the story, dragging myself home, pieces but not sinless, about 2 a.m.

Up betimes and down to the office by about 7.30, I discovered to my mild surprise and considerable gratification that the story was written in English. Although my stomach still had the "No Visitors" sign hung out I was starting to hope that I would live. Then I heard the police department superintendent issuing orders. "And wash those windows; they are a mess."

Last night — the root — probably a wind blowing — oh, my goah.

The Sun-Times is a temperance paper.

The axe, however, had still not fallen by late afternoon, when I was due to board a ship for a weekend publicity cruise, my knuckles parboiled from less than the boss, Publisher Howard Fleming.

As soon as I got aboard I could see I was going to be quite a party. Some of the newspapermen were already busily seeking inspiration. I tried a beer, but it didn't do much good. For me it was going to be a dry weekend. About 4 finally managed to eat. All went well then until 11 p.m., when I decided it was time to retire. Watching people empty glasses, for which consumption you have no yen, or rolling dice, for which you have no money, can be boring after a while.

I was just climbing into my upper bunk when my foot slipped and hit the hose in the face. Outside the door a voice shrilled: "Give me those dice; shoot thirty dollars."

I lay very still. Nothing was said, then or later.

* * *

The next afternoon penny-pitching began in earnest under combination. But the fool next to me upset his beer on my one and only shirt. Then he compounded it making suitable comments, when Mr. Fleming walked into the room. I was awfully glad that the poker players included two of the leading members of the city's legal fraternity. It looked as if I might be needing their services.

Then came the call to action. Press conference. On the upper deck. All the newspapermen gathered, while the representative of the advertising agency of the steamship company explained the purpose of the trip, where the ship usually sailed, why. Then how long.

He had finished when he spotted something.

"Where's the London Free Press man?" he asked.

Nobody knew. But somebody knew where he might be. In his cabin.

"Well, some of you come along with me," said Mr. Ad Man. He was going to see the London Free Man. He didn't drink. Not drinking is not considered fun. By way to win friends and influence the press.

We knocked on the London Free Press door. It opened. A wildly pixilated face appeared before our eyes.

"Huh?" he said.

"Good heavens, man, who weren't you at the press conference?" said the Ad Man.

"Press conference!" Puzzled eyes focussed. "What press conference. Nobuddy tol' me 'bout any pres conferenz. I'm only newspaper man. Nobuddy ever tells me anythin'."

The teary started. Then the face brightened. A wonderful idea.

"Cummon in an' have a drin'," invited the Free Press. I didn't need any drink. I was happy. Somebody was a worse fool than me.

If I had only known who was going to have the last laugh! This was a story with a long fuse.

It was eight years later, in 1945 at the time of the famous Grey, North by-election on the conscription issue, when Gen. McNaughton was seeking a seat in Parliament, that the ghost of celebrations past walked again. There descended on Owen Sound a horde of people, from the erudite and talented I. Norman Smith of the Ottawa Journal to the buxom if not bewitching creature whom the Ottawa contingent booked knew more stories than any other woman in Canada. All the tall stories were not told by the candidates on the hustings. Newspapermen traded yarns, too. One evening I was trying to match tales with Alfie McKee and Dick Sheridan of the Star and a London Free Press man who, for reasons which will appear later, shall remain nameless. I related the story about my boot trip, at the last time I had been in the company of a Free Press staffer. "When was that, Dick?" asked Free Presser. "Yes," I replied. "I don't know why the guy was, but he was certainly a fool" "Yes," admitted the Free Press man, "I certainly was the worst I've ever seen."

There's a fortune in collapsible floors if somebody would just put them on the market at a price that guys like me could afford.

The only other drinking story I want to tell is really a tale about a sober non-newspaperman. One day in the thirties Teddy Graham, then captain of the Chicago Black Hawks, returned to his hotel after a game in Maple Leaf Gardens to discover a Chicago newspaperman attempting the difficult feat of typing a story while lying on the floor with his head under a desk. It was rather obvious that he was trying to make his deadline. Graham turned to Leonard Butt, a school pal of mine, and asked him to write the story of the game. Butt's marks in English were higher than mine. In spite of this he had not, for some reason or another, chosen journalism as a career. He was also laboring under another handicap. He had immediately explained to Graham, he didn't want at the game, he said.

"So what?" replied Graham. "Neither was he," pointing to the prone prostrate.

"Sure," said Butt. "What was the score?"

"How should I know?" snapped Graham. "I was too busy playing to keep track."

Butt obliged, lifted the phone, called the Maple Leaf Gardens, got the score and lifted the typewriter off the floor and began on the Chicago writer.

Graham, reading Butt's thrilling story of the game appeared on Page 1 — or a great Chicago paper, under the other fellow's by-line, of course.

Besides stories about newspapermen, there are other stories by Dame One of the best yarns-twisters is Archie McMillan, former editor of the Intelligencer Review and the Ontario intell. Archie, a Archibald, which I like best all concern the same person.

There was a Hamilton citizen who had relatives in Ottawa. The Christmas relatives were creme de la creme. They looked on their Hamilton cousin as some country Bill, by a member of the family. So he was hurt when he learned that the capital cousins were planning a cocktail party at which all the cream of Ottawa and members of the diplomatic corps would be present. He was not invited. He invited himself. He was, he felt, an overnight visit, but he remedied. So he boarded the next train for Ottawa. In evening clothes he arrived at the cousin's home and entered — by the kitchen door. Greeting the maid, whom he knew him, he picked up a tray of cocktails, stalked into the parlor, greeted many of whom also knew him, then put the tray down on a table, sat down by the front door and boarded the next train for Hamilton, without exchanging a word with his mooty relatives.

The second yarn-spinner was assisting in a Hamilton charity drive when he met a man of the blonde, blue-eyed, big-wig on whom he had called said business was bad, he could not give anything, business was terrible, in fact he did not know how he could even buy fuel. The solicitor voiced his condolences and left. Some time later the man whose business was bad had another headache. The telephone rang frantically. It was his wife.

She wanted him to do something across Germany from Poland before the Russians, and still fell feel of one, being thoroughly disillusioned about the Russians one day before V-E Day, much better than par for the course. The Germans scooted, leaving the prisoners to their own resources. No Allied troops were around. But and some companions took refuge in the abandoned barracks. At 10 p.m. there came a thundering knocking on the door. They finally opened it cautiously. Before them stood a drunken Russian, one of the slave laborers.

"Habbens voo schnapps?" he enquired.

That may not be German, but it is German as spoken by a Russian and translated by a Canadian and gets across the general idea.

"Nein," replied the airmen. "Me gel," quoth the Russian, in German.

They persuaded him they did not want schnapps.

A couple of hours passed. Came more knocking.

The Russian.

"Habbens voo frau?" he asked.

"Nein, nein.

"Don't want any, either."

But the offers of schnapps and frau continued to be made at irregular intervals throughout the night. Towards morning the Russian got tired. So did the airmen. They slept. They awoke to the rattle of a machine-gun.

What now? In fear and trembling they looked out. There was the Russian, hunched behind the gun, making it chatter frantically every time a target for it appeared on the farmyard.

He was carefully glad when the allied troops showed up.

And then, besides the things some zany newspapermen do and the stories that others tell, there is the third kind of yarn about the newspaper office.

Some months ago when I came in, found some correspondence on my desk from Walkerton, Ont. It was dated the middle of a week old, a week in the future, changed it and put it in the file.

Couple of days later the Walkerton correspondent phoned. Where did we get that police court report? "Why you sent it in, Margaret." "I didn't." "But you did; I recognized your writing." "I tell you I didn't. There was no court case like that here."

Sherlock Holmesian at both ends, and some facts.

From Walkerton — the report was correct, all right, but it was about a case that had happened a year ago.

From home office — the unlevelope had been put on my desk by the janitor. He had entered the office the night before to see a ret run across the floor. It disappeared behind a desk. He swept the desk to try and catch it, found the desk full of mail an envelope. Thought he had just knocked it off.

In another week that envelope would have been there exactly a year.

Great, flap and conferences. Contrary to the opinion of some of the newspapers don't have to ask permission before printing a report of court proceedings at the time. But dragging up an old story, a year old, without Report Investigation is a prominent citizen, caught in one of those offenses of which even prominent citizens, being human, are sometimes guilty, have landed in jail for drunk besting. Something obviously had gone haywire.

"The truth," I insisted, "will set you free."

The facts overruled. Chasing rats behind desks and finding terrible words under them might give the establishment a bad name. Looked as if the joint never got cleaned.

So, officially, that letter was inadvertently mislaid.

Rats!

Back to Rasky, too, on this no screwballs in the newspaper business any longer.

Except I am still with me, a happy good night, as columnist Walkerton correspondent Sue would say, and especially to all screwballs.

Garden Notes

Planning the Garden for 1956

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Those who live close to the soil, and those who choose gardening as a hobby are always away ahead in their plans.

The dream of spring and summer while the seed is in the store house. they count the harvest before the seed has sprouted or the fruit blooms burst. And that is as it should be. Without a dream no plan can move forward.

January is a good time to look forward, and back. Indeed, January is named for Janus the god who had two faces, one to look forward, and one to look back. We need the memory of past performances to build new and better plans for future gardens.

In the new year let us a start a garden note book. In it we should keep addresses of nurserymen who stock plants we wish to try for the first time, as well as old favorites. There is much good advice found in seed catalogues. Make a note of where this may be located. It is a nuisance to have to leaf through a dozen books for one small but important item.

KEEP RECORD

Keep a record of orders sent, date received and condition of stock, also performance of said stock. If the stock is good you may wish to send for more of the same plant material. If, on the other hand the stock is not satisfactory, you can write it off and avoid further failure. Attach to note book or file any instructions which come with the stock.

Read up on habits and care of the plants you have sent for, before they arrive, and make notes of any pertinent facts which may be valuable later.

Include clippings of interesting plant material, and plan to look for this in your catalogues and local nursery. New plants add spice to your collection, and often fill a special function.

Keep a record of local and area flower shows and plan to attend. Local seed companies, horicultural societies and park boards stage special events including slides, films, flower shows and lectures. Take these in too. You will have a chance to see new plant material, pest control methods and garden tools and equipment. It is a time to meet people who are a step ahead of you in handling plants. Discussion often solves knotty problems.

FEEDING STATION

Do you have a feeding station for birds? Don't start feeding them unless you intend to keep it up. They soon come to depend upon it. But, it is a good habit to cultivate. Besides eating the grain and crumbs you put out for them the birds will eat many pounds of grubs and larvae from your trees and shrubs. Then too it is a good way to get acquainted with the chickadees, cardinals, bluejays and song sparrows. They like ground bacon rinds, fats, sunflower seeds, nuts, crumbled stale bread and cake as well as grain. After heavy snows and ice storms the birds have a difficult time to find weed seeds and grubs. Make a special point to put out food on such occasions.

Shrubs with edible berries also attract birds. Make a note now to plant some in the spring. Colonseaster provides a handsome show, spring and fall and food for the birds. Barberry, honeysuckle and mountain ash are also excellent lures for the feathered folk.

Communist Threat Growing Says Campney

OTTAWA (CP) — The Communist threat to the Free World is growing, Defence Minister Campney said Friday.

He told the fifth Commonwealth defence conference on clothing and quasseed stores:

"We are still more tightly bound together in a joint effort to face a common threat, a serious, persistent and growing threat to our freedom and our lives. . . .

"There is, I fear, little hope of any letup in the cold war in the forseeable future.

"We must all continue to maintain and develop our defence efforts for, if we have learned anything in recent years, it is that our opponents understand that and respect us directly in proportion as they respect our potential power. . . .

UNEASY PEACE

"Events of the past few years have but confirmed again and again the fact that we live in an age of uneasy peace which permits us no relaxation of vigilance.

"Meanwhile, the pace of progress in recent years, it is that our opponents understand that and respect us directly in proportion as they respect our potential power. . . .

"Methods of equipping and supplying modern armed forces simply must keep pace with these weapons and procedures."

The conference, attended by representatives of nearly all Commonwealth countries, is meeting in Canada for the first time. The United States has sent several observers.

After the initial meetings here, delegates will spend most of their time at Fort Churchill, Man., studying how the latest clothing and other supplies stand up under Arctic conditions.

Goalies Have Problems; Future Of Worsley, Rollins, Sawchuk Unassured

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GOT ONE?

Wanted! — A second-hand crystal ball in good condition. Must have record of yielding at least 50 per cent correct predictional visions. Will trade used ball, or sell to lawn bowling club for kitty. That's all it is good for.

Apply Michael J. Rodden, sports editor, Kingston Whig-Standard.

This department has inserted the above advertisement at personal cost. This action was brought about after perusing the latest crystal-ball findings of Swami Rodden.

Wearing his grandiose robes now fringed with Goodyear turkey feathers, the estimable Yogi approached his crystal globule the other day — and what he saw warmed the cockles of his honorable cardiac region.

The creaking that was plainly audible as Swami Rodden crept up on the glass prognosticator, was the sound of strain as his favorite "limb" began to show the signs of wear and tear.

His morale got a boost, when, after the commercials had cleared, the "ball" flashed a bulletin. "These Blairmen," it said, "who talk and play like a senior "A" brigade, have won six of the last eight engagements and with 17 games to go should experience little trouble in retaining possession of the top rung."

Gad, what a chance the ole ball took on that one. That's equal to betting the sun will rise in the east.

Then came the theme song of the Magedomas, "Do Not Think of the Games That Are Gone, Maggies," and the Colts, "Hey There, You With the Stars in Your Eyes." Followed this number by the mist-covered globe "The Colts and Maggies have broken even in their last eight starts whereas the TPTs Goodies have won three and lost five." There was a suspicion of a tear in the Yogi's eye.

Then the ole ball went into a statistical prognostication. This smacked but definitely of the handiwork of one Maxie "Picture Tube" Jackson. "The standings," quoth Michael in sonorous voice, reading from the writing on the globe, "has the pulsating shoe for the TPTs in fourth place two ahead of the trailing Colts. But of vital importance is the fact that Belles have only 17 games to play and the Canal City team, twenty." Gad, what brain-wrecking arithmetic.

The ball turned a scarlet hue at this point. And there ached on its red face were the words, "Mathematically, the ultimate in points the teams could achieve shows the following: Whitby 71, Kingston 67, Brockville 58, Cornwall 53 and Belleville 47."

Came the groaning moaning noise. The Swami turned pale. He was all right, but the limb upon which he has perched himself bent perilously. Even it did not agree with the outright anti-Belleville predictions of the ball. It shouldn't. It was grown on a Maine maple.

However, the Roddenian sphere has a canny streak in its make-up. It did not, or would not prognosticate the results of the game played last night between the Goodies and the Maggies down Maggieville way. And it probably would have expanded its shiny surface into a broad grin had it read the Maggie sports editor's comment that "This is a battle for second place." Shucks, what difference does a few points between friends.

But it did pave the way for something or other in the event the Coxmen repeat their victory of Tuesday night over the Goodies tonight. It clouded its one prodigious optic with tears and what is at ylibly revealed to the smiling swami.

"The TPTs who so soundly trounced the defending champions (copyright) in Belleville Tuesday night, should be well rested before they meet the Douglasmen on Saturday night. Moreover that Friday night bout in Brockville could take a heavy toll from the champions". (copyright)

Swami Rodden should remember the ancient adage, "Coming events cast their shadows before." It is that the darkening visage of his favorite crystal sphere portends that he, too, like some other columnists we know, is getting themselves behind the well-known "eight-ball". Time will tell.

Joking aside, tonight the Coxmen (fresh from their morale-raising 13-7 thumping of their arch enemies the Kingston Goodyears meet their old foemen down in the Community Centre at 8 o'clock.

The game is a must for both squads. The Teeps are fighting to hold up their end in what seems a bitter fight for the third and fourth positions. The Goodies, not too consistent of late, with the Brockville Maggies' upsurge are narrowing the field between the Whitby Dunlops to what might be a better race for top playoff berths.

Brockville is highly confident with the scoring upsurge of the Duncan twins. They have eyes on that second place. The Goodyears, like the Teeps, are injury-riddled, but they too will be battling desperately for that two-spot. The Cornwall Colts, like the Teeps, have a lot to fight for. It looks like a "rat-race for a playoff berth. Every team below the Whitby Dunlops will be battling for a spot in the playoff sun.

The Teeps have flashed their potential in their decisive victories over the Dunnies and the Goodies. So has the Brockville team. Coach Danny Cox believes he has the style of the hockey ability of his Teeps. After seeing their decisive victories over the Dunnies and the Goodies, he has reason to believe that the Teeps will come through tonight. He figures that his club is the "Club X" (unknown quantity). So do we in Belleville. It was a bit heart-warming to see over 1,000 fans on hand to see cheering the Teeps to a well-deserved win over the Kingston Goodies.

WANTS IT SHARED

NASHUA, N.H. (AP)—Cincinnati Redlegs manager Birdie Tebbetts wants to see the first seven clubs in the American and National Leagues share in the world series pot "to raise the competitive spirit" in the waning days of the baseball season.

Tebbetts suggested that a percentage of radio-TV money be dumped into the pot to be shared by the players.

Ranger Bosses Give Net Mite Ultimatum to Play--or Else; Hawkman on Spot; Terry Hurt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three National Hockey League goaltenders have problems. Lorne Worsley is on the hot-seat, the hockey future of Al Rollins is cloudy and Terry Sawchuk is on the disabled list.

Let's take them one at a time. Worsley, who guards the nets for New York Rangers, has been given an ultimatum by his bosses—coach Phil Watson and general manager Muzz Patrick. Either the leagues' tiniest netminder improves his play or he goes to the minors, say Watson and Patrick.

"Despite what everyone says we are not a good hockey club," Watson said. "We're in second place because everyone has been working hard. If everyone doesn't do his job we're sunk. And lately Worsley hasn't been doing his job.

"He isn't in condition. He played very well at the start of the new season but lately he's been too nervous. He's been worried out of his net and getting beaten too often by easy shots."

Patrick is of the same opinion but he added a stringer. "Of course if Worsley should come up with a couple of shutouts this weekend we might change our minds," he said. "He's due for a good, long deal better than he has been doing."

Should the Ranger brass decide it's time for a change, Johnny Bower, now with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, will probably get Worsley's job.

Worsley has the third-best goals against average in the league. He has allowed 96 goals in 38 games for a 2.53 average.

TO TAKE REST

Watson said Friday that centre Larry Popein has been ordered to take a 10-day rest and will miss Rangers' game at Toronto Saturday against the Leafs. Watson declares said Popein had received a bruise on his head and reconsended that he rest.

Rangers, who absorbed a 6-0 whitewashing at Detroit Thursday by the Red Wings, visit Chicago Sunday for a battle with fourth-place Black Hawks.

Rollins' trouble is somewhat advanced compared with Worsley's problem. The Chicago goaltender was displaced in the nets 19 days ago by Hank Bassen of Buffalo Bisons in the AHL.

Rollins was told by Black Hawk officials to report to Buffalo in place of Bassen but he balked at the order and announced he would quit hockey first. He was reported to have flown to Chicago at his own expense to await Black Hawks' return Sunday from a month-long road trip.

Rollins said Friday he would disdain the situation with coach Dick Irvin and general manager Tommy Ivan when he is back at work in Chicago. When Bassen was brought up to the Hawks, Irvin intimated he would probably go along with Bassen for the rest of the season.

Boston Bruins visit Montreal Canadiens tonight and Johnny Henderson will be playing goal for the Bruins. He will be subbing for Sawchuk who is out "indefinitely" because of an injured finger received in Thursday's game against Hawks at Boston.

Henderson has been playing with Hershey Bears in the AHL this season.

Toronto and Montreal also report player additions.

Bill Burega, a defenceman with Winnipeg Warriors in the Western Hockey League, has been called up to Leafs for two games. He will replace Jim Morrison who has a pulled muscle.

Canadiens received some joyful news Friday when it was learned that defenceman Doug Harvey will rejoin the team for tonight's game. The cast has been removed from Harvey's injured hand and he has declared himself ready to play.

Magedomas Whip Goodyears 7-2

The Brockville Magedomas won a "four-point-night" in their contested drive for second place in the senior "B" league standings last night, defeating the Kingston Goodyears 7-2 in the riverside arena.

The victory marked the fourth in a row for the Maggies and by the same token four straight defeats for the Goodyears. The Maggies crept to within seven points of the second-spot champions.

Arch Richardson was the Maggies star, getting boom four goals while linemate Ed. Duncan was credited with four assists and brother Erwin two. Val Walker, formerly with Kingston, was good for two while Easter, a newcomer and Thomson got the other pair.

White and Hob Macey scored for Kingston. Bert Brooks replaced Johnson in the Kingston nets. Bourada, Maggies goalie was one of the outstanding stars of the game. Kingston meets the Belleville TPTs tonight in their Community Centre.

Blues Thump McGill Puckists

MONTREAL (CP)—Ken Linesman scored one goal in each period Friday night to lead the University of Toronto Blues to a one-sided 7-3 senior intercollegiate Hockey League win over McGill Redmen.

The win, Toronto's second in two starts, boosted them into a first place tie in the four-team loop with Laval University. It was McGill's third straight loss.

Besides Linseman's hat trick, Sandy Macdonald and Brian Anderson, the winners while single goals went to John Aitit and Brian Anderson. McGill marksmen were Pete Consable, Gord Currie and Dick Ballsan.

"He played a little pro hockey once, but had to give it up. Couldn't fight worth a darn!"

Dutchies May Play Game In Moscow

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen said today they are interested in playing an exhibition hockey game in Moscow.

But George Dudley of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association thinks the Russians should put cash on the line first.

Russia said today over Moscow radio that she is inviting both the Canadian and United States hockey teams to play in Moscow after the Olympic games in Cortina d'Ampesso, Italy, later this month.

Kitchener officials said they are definitely interested in playing in the Russian capital. But the team is due back in Canada to play an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league game at Windsor Feb. 12 and it is doubtful whether they could obtain postponements of seven league games remaining to be played after their return.

Dudley, secretary-manager of the CAHA, said he is opposed to the exhibition game unless the Russians are prepared to pay more than bare expenses.

So far the CAHA executive will meet in Toronto Saturday and the proposed trip will be discussed then. He said no official word has been received from the Russians.

Maroons Whip Dutchies 6-1; Farewell Salute

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons, underlings of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, became giant killers Friday night and knocked off the team that will represent Canada in the winter Olympics.

And mighties to them all in the win over Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen was Chatham native Connelly-Lloyd Ferguson line. The trio scored all Chatham goals and collected 11 points.

Ferguson scored three goals and two assists, Connelly got two goals and Power schounted for one goal and three assists.

Dutchmen, who leave Sunday for the Olympic hockey tournament in Italy, got their only goal early in the first period when Howie Lee scored the goal.

The night's activity left the standings unchanged.

Dutchmen, Allan Cup winners last season, still hold a 12-point lead atop the league table but they've lost seven of their last eight games.

Stratford and Windsor Bulldogs are tied in second place with 34 points and Owen Sound has 31. Chathsin is in the cellar with 27.

At Stratford, Elmer Shoy got a lucky goal in the first period but Indians got two earned goals in the second on penalty-shot combinations by Roy Leckie and Ken Green.

Biltmores' Sweeney Scores 6 Goals In 12-4 Victory Over Hamilton Cubs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The experts of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League predicted last fall that this season's race would be one of the closest in years. Their forecastings are looking fairly accurate today.

With nearly two-thirds of the schedule completed, only 10 points separate the first and last-place clubs.

Barrie Flyers and Toronto Marlboros helped tighten matters a little Friday night. Flyers handed St. Catches Teepees, who share the top spot with Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks, a 5-2 drubbing at Barrie while Marlboros were defeating Canucks 7-4 at Kitchener. In the other contest, Hamilton and Guelph. Biltmores had their usual high-scoring power and walloped cellar-dwelling Hamilton Cubs 12-4. Those dozen goals raised Biltmores' season total to 156 in 30 games, or 5.2 goals a game, highest in the league.

FLYERS MOVE UP

The Barrie win moved Flyers out of a last-place tie with Cubs into sixth place with 25 points. Hamilton and Guelph each have 29 points for a fourth-place deadlock. They are three points behind Toronto St. Michael's Majors and four off the pace set by Teepees and Canucks.

Flyers jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first period when they scored twice against that way through the second. Zach Leach scored the first at 20 minutes. The winners were paced by the two-goal performance of Arnold Smith. Staples went to George Ranieri, Bob Beckett and John Forhan. Bob Butler and Ed Hockstra rounded for Teepees.

Kitchener-Waterloo gave the 1,424 fans something to cheer about in the first period by taking a 3-1 lead but Marlboros roared back with four straight goals early in the second before Canucks finished the period scoring with a goal. The Toronto team outscored Canucks 3-1 in the last stanza.

LEADING SCORERS

Midway through the final frame, referees Larry Lewis of Galt ordered Marlboro coach Turk Broda from the game for some uncomplimentary remarks the coach made.

Biltmores' victory was their third straight victory. Billy Sweeney scored 19 points and is tied with four goals and set-up six others. It was the highest individual scoring feat of the season.

Bob Forhan, Eddie Shack and Bob Watson collected two goals each and Tom Jenson and Brian Webber completed the Guelph scoring. Guy James, Brian Smith, and Bob Robinson, with two goals, scored for the losers.

The Guelph line of Sweeney, Webber and Shack collected a total of 25 scoring points.

Big Four Grid Brass Meets To Discuss Future Strategy

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of the Big Four football clubs meet here today to map the league's final strategy for joint East-West talks in Winnipeg next week that are expected to open a new era in Canadian professional football.

The Big Four will hammer out the policy it will propose when it gets together again with the Western Interprovincial Football Union in an attempt to unite forces and provide a sounder economic structure for pro football.

It involves primarily the adoption of a limited interlocking schedule, the appointment of a commissioner or a group to run the joint setup, an improved attention list, the possibility of a two-game Grey Cup final, joint draft selections, split gates and continuance of some sort of affiliation with the Canadian Football Union.

Preliminary discussions were held privately at a Big Four meeting in Vancouver Nov. 23 and a Big Four session in Toronto Dec. 4. The two leagues are expected to organize the new setup when they meet for four days in Winnipeg starting next Friday. Joint sessions will be Jan. 20 and Jan. 21 and each league will hold its annual meeting Jan. 21-22.

IN FRANCHISE

Both the WIFU and Big Four have agreed in principle to some form of merger with each league continuing its separate identity. Now only final details have to be worked out.

Final Big Four proposals will be presented by Big Four chairman Ralph Cooper said Friday no detailed announcement is likely to be made on the proposals before they are presented to the WIFU.

The biggest step to be taken at Winnipeg will be the adoption of a limited interlocking schedule. Both leagues have been playing an eight-game out types of such schedules—and they will be presented to the joint meetings for consideration.

Tentative feeling at the Big Four meeting Dec. 4 was that for the 1956 season two teams from the east would go west and play two or three games while two or three teams from the West moved east for games with the other Big Four clubs.

Three of the Big Four clubs are reported to have lost money last season and the league is in favor of increasing its number of games in 1956, from 12 to possibly 16 the same number the WIFU teams played last season.

FAVORED COMMITTEE

Delegates the Big Four reverses a decision taken at its earlier meeting in which it favored a national commissioner with power over both leagues. At that meeting it favored a three-man committee to supervise the new setup. The decisions endorsed at that meeting also include a commissioner for each of the two leagues, besides a representative of each club to would form a governing body to vote on football matters.

Both the WIFU and Big Four have indicated that the majority of their forces they will continue its affiliation with the CFU.

The proposed joint draft of Canadian college players would benefit both leagues. At present the WIFU doesn't recognize the drafting of these players by the Big Four clubs and it competes to solicit them for players. Under a joint draft a player would have to play with the club he was drafted by unless traded or sold.

Solunar Notes

New Emphasis in Stocking Birds

BY JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.)

My house, situated on the outskirts of Williamsport, Pennsylvania, stands on a hill immediately adjoining the golf course of the Williamsport Country Club. Our plot is about six acres in extent and that of my nearest neighbor is about 12 acres.

Perhaps one and one-half acres of this combined area is composed of lawns and gardens; the rest is allowed to grow as it will. Trees and brush which have been cut down are not destroyed. Instead they are deposited on the unimproved area in piles and these make excellent shelter for such wildlife as manages to escape the predation of hunting cats, hawks and owls.

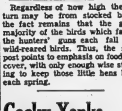
At one time, when golf course and its adjoining property were a farm land, there were plenty of quail herebouts — native birds, which had been here always. As late as 12 years ago, from 12 to 15 nesting pair could be spotted of a spring morning when little roosters were "bob-whiting" to their mates.

As the land was cleared and houses built, the quail began to disappear. For a time, game-farm quail were stocked in the attempt to repopulate the area. Unfortunately these stocking attempts came to nothing. Those little pen-reared birds simply could not survive under present conditions. Last spring I heard only two roosters whistling in this general area, one of them down among our brush piles.

BIRD SUPPORT QUOTA

This is only one more example of a basic truth in game-bird management—an area will hold only such birds as the wood and cover accommodations will permit. Stock all the birds you please; the land will carry only such birds as its food and cover will support. Moreover, the birds which survive, sometime times out of ten, be those that have been hatched right in that area.

The State of Wisconsin Conservation Department, in common with all such departments, has had a certain amount of pressure brought to bear in the matter of pheasant stocking. Accordingly, they decided to find out definitely how they could have the best return on the sportsman's dollar when it came to stocking ringneck.



A long-term study brought out, definitely, what they had suspected—artificial stocking does not begin to do the job when it comes to repopulating the covers. Natural reproduction, indicated by a adequate food and cover, is by far the best solution of the problem.

SMALL BROODS

Hens that were released in the spring, in time for the nesting season, produced small broods. Only two hens produced a total of slightly less than two birds, half of which would be cocks for the fall shooting. The reason—only about one-third of the hens released survived to bring of broods during the nesting season.

Actually, the most efficient use of sportsmen's funds is in the release of young cocks, the stocking being done within a reasonably short time before the legal shooting season. This method does step up the quality of the hunting each fall.

In the spring, there are invariably certain areas in which there are plenty of hens but few if any cocks. Then the judicious planting of ringneck cocks will enable these hens to breed and raise broods that, being accustomed to survival in open country, these little mothers can raise large broods to maturity.

Regardless of how high the return may be from stocked birds, the fact remains that the great majority of the birds which fall to the hunters' guns each fall are wild-reared birds. Thus, the signpost points to emphasis on food and cover, with only enough wise stocking to keep those little hens busy each spring.

Cocky Yanks Hurl Defiance At Ski World

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—The United States Olympic ski jumping team broke camp today and coach Olav Ulland hurled a bold challenge at the rest of the world.

"No one is going to jump farther than our boys," he said as the team set out on the first leg of its journey to Cortina d'Amperzo, Italy, where the games start Jan. 26. "They are strong and have the spirit. If we have the spirit we won't be because we can't make the distance."

Ulland, a 45-year - old Seattle sporting goods dealer who was a member of the famed Kongsberg Ski Club of Norway that dominated international jumping for two decades, cautioned, however, that the UKS. team does have problems.

"The judges score about 50 per cent on distance and 50 per cent on form" he said. "The European judges are very tough on landings and sometimes they give you 'n' below par. That scares me just a little because in the United States, the judges are lenient on landings and as a result the boys don't concentrate on them."

BYRNE SIGNS

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy Byrne, the comeback athlete of 1955, has signed his New York Yankees contract at a substantial increase in salary.

The 36-year-old southpaw, named the American League's No. 1 comeback and also first in the American League, which includes all sports, compiled a 15-5 record last year after being brought up from Seattle late in the 1954 season.

Bay of Quinte Basketball League Is Reorganized

The Bay of Quinte Intermediate Basketball League which did not operate last year will be revived for the 1956 season. This was decided at a meeting held at the Y.M.C.A.

Representatives from Trenton, Picton Army and Belleville were in attendance at this meeting while Trenton and Napanee sent word that they would enter teams if a league could be organized.

It was agreed to begin the schedule during the week of Jan. 16. Each team will play each of the opponents once at home and once on the road. (Example: Belleville will play one game at home with Trenton RCAF, one game at home with Picton Army, one game at home with Trenton Army and one game at home with Napanee; then they will play each of the above teams for one game at each home court.)

The games are to commence at 8 p.m. The home team is responsible for officiating each home game. At the end of the regular schedule, the first four teams in the league standing will compete in the playoffs. The team finishing first will play the team finishing fourth in one semi-final while the second place team will meet the third place team in the other semi-final. Each of these semi-finals will consist of a sudden death, one game elimination series, with the winners moving into a two-game total points to count final.

Team managers are: Napanee, Don Mills; RCAF, Cpl. Eckley; Picton Army, Donald Rice; Belleville, Ekhler; Belleville Don Dolan.

Schedule:

January 16, Trenton Town at RCAF; 18, RCAF at Belleville; 18, Napanee at Trenton; 19, RCAF at Picton Army; 25, Napanee at Trenton; 25, Belleville at Napanee; 30, Napanee at RCAF.

February 1, Belleville at Trenton; 1, Picton Army at Napanee; 6, Belleville at RCAF; 7, Trenton at Picton Army; 8, RCAF at Trenton; 8, Napanee at Belleville; 14, Belleville at Picton Army; 14, Trenton at Napanee; 15, Trenton at Belleville; 16, RCAF at Napanee; 21, Napanee at Picton Army; 22, Trenton at Army at Trenton; 21, Picton Army at RCAF.

English Stallion Valued at Nearly 2 Million

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A. B. (Bull) Hancock, Kentucky thoroughbred breeder, Friday placed a value of $1,737,700 on the great English stallion Nasrullah, son of Nashua.

Hancock confirmed a report that a syndicate which he heads purchased five shares in Nasrullah and six shares in Ambrok. The purchase shares in the two imported stallions were owned by the estate of the late William Woodward, Jr., owner of Belair Stud and of Nashua.

Hancock said that Max Gluck, New York and Kentucky sportsman, had offered a high bid of $251,100 for the Nasrullah shares. Under terms of an offer by the Hanover Bank of New York last week, Hancock's syndicate had six days in which to match Gluck's offer.

CONFIRMS BID

Hancock, vacationing at this resort, confirmed that his syndicate matched Gluck's offer. He said there are 35 shares of stock in the 16-year-old Nasrullah, and if each is worth $50,220, the total value of the English sire is $1,757,700.

Nashua was sold to a syndicate headed by Leslie Combs II a Kentucky breeder, for $1,251,200 and he is in Florida preparing for a winter racing campaign as a four-year-old.

Nasrullah was sold to an American syndicate in 1949 for a reported $372,000. Hancock confirmed the purchase price matched a high bid of $127,000 for six Ambrioz shares. This would make the 10-year-old French stallion worth $635,000 on the basis of 30 shares.

Skaters Leave For Cortini

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's Olympic figure-skating and speed-skating teams left by plane Friday for London and Milan, Italy.

The squads, accompanied by Canadian Olympics manager Sydney Dunnaway Jr., were flown briefly in London and fly on from there to Milan before going to Cortina, Italy, where the winter Games are being held.

A Nation Is Behind 'Em

Flying Dutchmen Leave Sun. To Defend World Hockey Title

KITCHENER (CP)—A band of 17 part-time hockey players—including school teachers, college students, a carpenter and a brick layer—leave Sunday for Italy to defend Canada's Olympic hockey crown.

Many hockey experts rate Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen among the best this country has sent to the Games since Canada first won the title in 1920.

The 1955 Allan Cup champions and present leaders of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A loop will warm up with exhibition games in Scotland and Czechoslovakia. The Dutchmen also have been invited to Moscow for a post-Olympic game.

But the decision on accepting that invitation will depend on time and money.

MISSED ON ONE

Canada has won every Olympic round since 1920 except in 1936 when Great Britain, stiff in team of English- and Scottish-born players who learned their hockey in Canada, took the crown.

Although the Olympic series are termed in the Games, most of the talk—and there's been plenty of it—concerns Canada's chances against the formidable Russian squad.

A motorcade of fans will accompany the team when it leaves by bus for Malton airport for the flight to Rome. During a stopover in Montreal, players will be given a civic reception.

In Paisley, Scotland, they will play their first game Jan. 18 and then go to Czechoslovakia for games Jan. 21 and 22.

Then it's off to the Olympic Games Jan. 26 to Feb. 5 at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, for the serious business of holding on to the title won for Canada by the Edmonton Mercurys.

Many supporters are disturbed by the Dutchmen's recent record. They've lost seven of their last eight games but still have a 12-point lead in league standings.

JUST TIRED

Coach Bobby Bauer says the team is just tired.

"Our schedule has been murder," he said Friday. "We have a five-day rest period before we start the tournament. That's all we need. A good rest."

The coach said Friday night he plans no drastic changes in his team's style.

For years the contention has been that Canadian teams playing in Europe were at a disadvantage because of the outlawing of body checking which they rely on heavily in home games.

"We don't have a heavy-bumping team to begin with," said Bauer, a former National Hockey League star. "We have built our attack around speed and strong skating and that's what you need to beat those European teams."

MOSCOW INVITATION

Team officials said they are interested in the possible invitation to the United States and Canada to play exhibition games in Moscow after the Olympics.

But George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said he would oppose the game unless the Russians agree to pay more than bare expenses.

And Pat Boemer, president of the Kitchener club, said he is more concerned about the amount of time required for the Moscow trip. "We have to leave for Canada by Feb. 9 if we are going to finish our regular league schedule," he said.

One of the men in the Kitchener lineup is centre Ken Laufman, a native of Hamilton who now leads the league in goals. A carpenter by trade, his is playing his first season with Kitchener, and previously played minor and junior hockey in Guelph, Ottawa and Belleville.

TEACHES SCHOOL

Bill McKenzie, one of the few defencemen among the league's leading point getters, is a high school teacher. Gerry Theberge a bricklayer from Fort Frances, Que., is a left winger and also one of the league's top point getters.

Winger Lorne Lange, playing his second year with Dutchmen, is second in the point department. His third spot is right winger George Scholes, a salesman who played junior hockey with Guelph and later did senior service with Quebec and Moncton, N.B., teams.

Reports Friday night said goalkeeper Denis Brodeur was still in doubt as an injury thumb might prevent him from making the trip. The other goalie is Ken Woodall who has seen action with teams in Montreal, Sweet Grass, Edmonton, Brantford, Glace Bay, N.S., and in England.

Canadian Skier Beaten in Surprise Finish

KITZBUEHEL, Austria (CP)—Louis Wheeler, Canadian women's ski champion from St. Jovite, Que., celebrated her 21st birthday today by sweeping to the fore early in the Hahnenkamm international ski meet, but was beaten out by a surprise finish by Germany's Sonja Speri.

Miss Wheeler's second - place time was 2:43.2.

The freckle-faced redhead who skis around her father's Quebec winter resort finished ahead of Canada's Lucky Kruger of St. Sauveur, Que., who is usually faster than her in the downhill.

The 19-year-old Carlyn felt today but still finished in the fair time of 2:53.0, though out of the top 10.

Miss Speri racked up the best time of 2:40.0. Miss Wheeler accomplished her speedy run on borrowed skis, she broke her Friday.

Kathy Rodolph, United States Olympic hopeful, broke a leg and suffered a possible back injury in the downhill competition. Kathy, 23, of Reno, Nevada, scored fifth for the U.S. in the last Olympic competition, and had been counted on as a contender this year.

LEAFS BUY PLAYER

TORONTO (CP) — Purchase of Walter Dercuck from the St. Louis Cardinal organization was announced Friday by Rodney Schaffer, general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League. Last year the six-foot infielder hit .294 with Columbus of the Sally League.

Boxing Brass May Recommend Guild Ban

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Boxing Association's executive committee meets today with a strong possibility that the NBA will recommend backing of New York commissioner Julius Helfand's ban against the New York Boxing Managers' Guild.

The Helfand-vs.-guild subject is No. 1 on our agenda," NBA president Lee Ballreda said.

"However," he added, "our action will come in the form of a recommendation to all member states. It will be up to them to take definite action."

Helfand has set Monday as the deadline for members of the New York guild to resign or face loss of their New York licences.

Ballreda said he expects between 15 or 20 delegates to attend today's annual session.

Besides the guild, agenda include the rating of boxers in each classification and discussion on a new system of scoring bouts.

Helfand will not attend the meeting.

Mustangs Whip Golden Gaels In Hoop Game

KINGSTON (CP)—University of Western Ontario came through with a decisive 74-42 victory over Queen's Golden Gaels to open the two-game intercollegiate basketball season here Friday night.

The Western squad showed superiority in all departments, its sharpshooting forwards penetrating the Queen's defence regularly.

Top scorer of the game was Moncrett of Western with 21 points. Ellis had 16 and Scratch 12. For Queen's it was Stone with 16 and Kerr with eight.

Varsity Edges Assumption 74-61

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Varsity Blues edged Windsor Assumption College Purple Raiders 74-61 in a see-saw senior Intercollegiate Basketball League game tonight.

Led by centre John Dacyshyn, Varsity's top scorer, Toronto pulled away from the Windsor squad in the last 10 minutes of the game. Dacyshyn scored 18 points, all in the second half.

Guard Howie Triano was the top marksman for the Purple Raiders, scoring 13 points during the game —nine in the first half and four in the second. He was bolstered by centre Matt Borowcic, who scored nine points before fouling out, and Larry Comorton, also a nine-point man.

Windsor opened the scoring by netting five points before Varsity finally got the hoop but a sharp attack gave Toronto a 33-34 lead at the end of the first half.

Toronto had 23 fouls and Windsor 27. Foul shots counted heavily in the game with Toronto picking up 34 points on set shots and Windsor 18. Referee Ron Guard Ruby Rimaza led in this department, sinking nine during the game.

Mike Souchak Cracks Whip In Bing Tourney

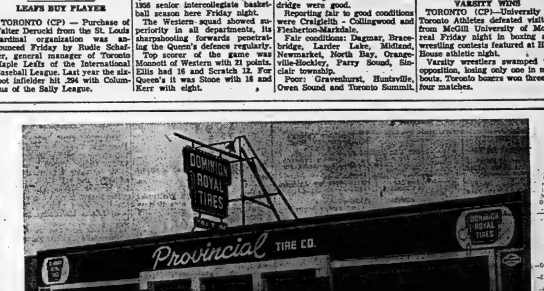
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Mike Souchak was cracking the whip today in Bing Crosby's pro-amateur golf circus, but semi-retired Ben Hogan and ambitious dentist Cary Middlecoff were hanging on the turtle's coattails.

Souchak, the former Duke University football player, rode a string of six birdies and an eagle to an eight-under-par 64 in Friday's opening round of the $15,000 tournament, being played on two of the three courses crowding the Monterey peninsula. Today's finals involving the 60 low scorers in the two days of the third layout at Pebble Beach.

The 33-31—64 Souchak fashioned Friday was on the Monterey peninsual course, which is considered three strokes easier than the cypress point fairways over which both Hogan and Middlecoff played. That means Big Mike moved over today to the ocean-hugging course with two less than already in the leading links.

The tournament drew a Canadian contingent.

Jack Kay of Montreal shot a 69. Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Al Balding of Toronto fired 70s, while Gary Cowan of Montreal shot a 74.



Middlecoff carded a 32-34—66 and Ben Hogan a 33-33—67 at Cypress. Actually, though, they were three strokes off the pace set by Souchak.

Some of the money behind Mike Souchak's one strokes with a 33-32—65 at Monterey. He, too was firing today at Cypress point.

VARSITY WINS

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto Athletic defeated visitors from McGill University of Montreal Friday night in boxing and wrestling contests featured at Hart House athletic night.

Varsity wrestlers swamped the opposition, losing only one in nine bouts, Toronto boxers won three of four matches.

The bidding they used is shown here:

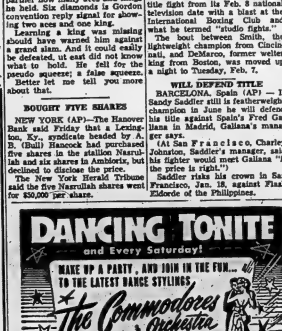
South	North
1 Club	2 Hearts
2 No-Trump	4 No-Trump
6 Diamonds	7 No-Trump

Up to the time north took it to seven no-trump there is not much anybody could object to. The opening of one club was sound. It had all the requirements such a bid calls for, even if nothing more.

The two heart first response by north was a good jump. It told of six tricks inclusive of two sures. Anything less than a game is unthinkable with such a supporting hand.

Combined with a partner who opened the bidding, north had all the reasons for expecting a slam of some kind. He could throw all systems to the wind and still find excuses for going to a slam.

But to go to the grand slam in no-trump is carrying his optimism just a bit too far. Especially after he learned that the opponents had one king and whatever queens and jacks they might have.



His bid of four no-trump was good. It was the signal for asking partner how many aces and kings he held. Six diamonds is Gordon convention reply signal for showing two aces and one king.

Learning a king was missing should have warned him against a grand slam. And it could easily be defeated, at east did not know what to hold. He fell for the pseudo squeeze; a false squeeze. Better let me tell you more about that.

BOUGHT FIVE SHARES

NEW YORK (AP)—The Hanover Bank said Friday that a Lexington, Ky., syndicate headed by A. B. (Bull) Hancock had purchased five shares in the stallion Nasrullah and six shares in Amboirx, but declined to disclose the price.

The New York Herald Tribune said the five Nasrullah shares went for $50,000 per share.

Minor Hockey

Three games were played in the pee wee section of the B.M.H.A. at Memorial Arena this morning with the Rangers shading the Red Wings 1-0, Black Hawks downing the Maple Leafs 4-2 while the Canadiens whipped the Bruins 5-3.

Roy Gaffney led the Hawks to victory, scoring two goals with one each for Howard MacDonald and Stu Muirhead. Dennis Hull had one assist. Arthur Lucas and Peter Armstrong tallied the Leaf markers.

In the low scoring Ranger-Wing battle, Jimmie Ross netted the lone goal to give the blueshirts two points in the win column.

The Canadiens rode to victory on a brace of goals by Jimmie Rutherford. Teddy Rowland, Howard Uens and Bruce Symons also scored while Rodney Follwell and Bob Townsend had assists. All the Bruins goals were solo efforts with Robert Blaker getting two and Leslie Hall one.

Italy's Gift to Hollywood Does Not Like Cheesecake

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Torta di Fromaggio—what is that?"

The inquiry was made by Rossana Podesta, Italy's gift to Hollywood. Having been here only two months, she still falters on English. It was explained that Torta di Fromaggio (Italian translation of cheesecake) is leg art, glamor photos, etc.

"Oh," she exclaimed knowingly, her dark eyes brightening, "yes, I know what that is. I do not like it."

What is this? An Italian film beauty knocking cheesecake?

Miss Podesta continued: "You mean posing like this." She gazed seductively over her shoulder, then dropped the pose. "I hate it. I have done some in Italy, but now I refuse. They do not ask me here at Warner Brothers because they know I do not like it.

"I do not mind showing the legs if it is part of the picture. But just to pose for photographs—that is silly."

CHEESECAKE DECLINE

This may distress some males, but she feels cheesecake is on the decline both here and in her native land.

"I do not think you make the girly revues that used to be made here," she observed. "The public's taste has become too refined for that. They want good pictures, not just girl shows."

Miss Podesta finds some opposition to her views in her own family. Her brother is a handsome Italian actor, Marco Vicario, who is here with her before going to Mexico for a movie.

Said he: "When I came to this country, I said I wanted to see two things—the Empire State Building and Marilyn Monroe." He added sadly, "I have seen only the Empire State Building."

Miss Podesta is here to play a Cuban girl in the Alan Ladd epic "Santiago." She is handling English with amazing agility considering she has been taking the language for just two months.

Extensive tests were made, and it was concluded that she could memorize the English lines though she couldn't speak the language. Now she's signed to a picture a year here, but that doesn't mean she'll settle in Hollywood.

"I love it here," she remarked, "but I also have a contract in Italy. When I stay away more than six months, I get very homesick."

AT THE CAPITOL — Shelley Winters who co-stars with Jack Palance in the girl friend, a dime-a-dance doll with "The Big Knife", Aldrich's hard-hitting Hollywood drama, "I Died a Thousand Times", opening today at the Capitol Theatre for its first distinct showing.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was taking a Saturday walk with pop, and Lucky Leroy Shoostwent past, and I said, Darn that guy, he's so lucky he cant hardly get out of his house without finding money. He found a dime this morning, and yesterday on the street he picked up a pocket knife and tried in the corner of a hankerchiff that nobody else even had enough sense to pick up.

Did you ever hear the story about the bluebird of happiness? pop said. A certain boy looked everywhere for it, and it was on his own doorstep all the time. Well, you are that boy, because you've got the bluebird of happiness without knowing it, he said, and I said, How have it?

Because the only happy people are the ones that have to work for what they get, pop said. The men that are born with a silver spoon in their mouths generally break all their frunt teeth before they are out of their teens. The only reason you appreciate is the money you ern. Picking it up out of the street only gives you lumbago, he said, and I said, Well how about millionaires, are they happy? Only up to their first million, because that's the one they made themselves, pop said. After that their money is all made for them by captial and labor. Did you ever notice a millionaire's face after he's made his first million? he said, and I said, No sir.

Well it's a pritty sad site, pop said, and I said, Well I'll promise you one thing. After I've made my first million I'll either keep right on working or else definitly retire and have fun.

Good, I hope I'll be around on the happy day, pop said.

Which I hope he is.

Your Horoscope

By Francis Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Monday, Jan. 16, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—This day should be well screened for such pitfalls as taking accomplishment for granted or failing too opinionated. It would be wise to listen to authority; learn from others' experience.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—A day for mature thinking, calm planning. You should reap fine rewards for your best efforts. Avoid worry and excesses in all things. Keep sense but busy.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Don't let your dual nature make you indecisive or harmfully restless now. Do things in order and without straining and you will attain. There's no need to rush; think of your health.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer)—With your insensitive mind at work you should find the going easier this busy day. Put your talents and ideas to work.

July 24 to August 21 (Leo)—You have a genius, wit and good nature to see you through trying as well as comfortable periods. Once again merge your best assets to gain benefits and subdue impatience, egotism. Good going!

August 22 to September 22—(Virgo)—There may be restrictions in the overall picture, but you need never be limited—especially in your aims. Return may take time but look for ultimate attainment.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Encouraging planetary vibrations should make for greater incentive; better execution of well-considered plans. Good returns are yours for sincere effort.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Closer attention suggested in confidential matters, affairs of a delicate nature, handling liquids, oils, minerals, all financial propositions.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—This day's vibrations will be encouraging and stimulating for merchandising, mental and laborious work, household tasks, all sincere efforts.

December 23 to January 20—(Capricorn)—If you cooperate, you can really achieve this day. Show initiative, perseverance—and expect just rewards. News can give you a big lift.

January 21 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Rays will not be entirely helpful for private affairs, interests that you may be concerned about. Be cautious in business, trades, handling moving things in work or family activities.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—You can turn some of the day's diversified vibrations to your good if you are clever and handle affairs adroitly. There are not too many complexities.

You born today are industrious, dependable, quite shrewd and sensible. It is said that industriousness makes a gallant man and is the parent of fortune. Industriousness also pays debts and leaves the future with less worry. You have, innately, the material with which you can achieve and succeed in any honorable field of endeavor you choose, and for which you train; are tops as an organizer; can be a skilled mechanic, able architect, engineer-physician. Curb any tendency to brood or be too serious. Give free play to your humor more rein. Birthdate: Richard Savage, noted poet.

James Bay Indians, mostly Crees and Ojibways, are still receiving their favorite "Christmas" visitor, Rt. Rev. Neville Clarke, Anglican bishop of the area, right. He makes two trips a year to his 30,000-square-mile parish, travelling by air, snowmobile, snowshoe and canoe, and, on his Christmas trip which extends almost until February, he is sure to have presents for children as well as a sermon for the adults in their own language. Here he admires the baby boy of Mrs. Barbara Baxter at Webequa, an isolated Ojibway village.

Two of the four ordained Indian assistants of Bishop Clarke are Simon Jacob and Edward Spence, who give nightly sermons in the various Indian communities. Archbishop Walter Barfoot, primate of all Canada, will visit the area next July. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

Sidney Twp. Council

Sidney township council held their inaugural meeting of the year on January 9th when councillors took their declaration of office.

Byron L. Harder is reeve, Harleigh A. Hamilton, deputy reeve, and Basil Brooks, James Campbell and Glenn Daugherty, councillors.

The board ruled that due to an error in the description of the land to be annexed, it would be necessary for the town of Trenton to make a further application for a hearing before the Ontario Municipal Board.

The township council will complete their business for the month at a further meeting to be held Monday, January 16th.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was looking at the pictures in her new, Fastidious Feminine magazine, and she said to pop, I suppose you can hardly wait till Spring for the baseball season to start, can you, William?

I'm having a little difficulty, but I guess I can stick it out, pop said, and ma said, Well I have news for you. I'm going to study up on the rules so we can watch the games together. Then there won't be any more discussions about what television programs to turn on, at least during the baseball season.

Are you serprized, William? she said.

I'm thunder struck, pop said, and ma said, I wish you'd give me a good erly start, William. Explain a few of the fundamentals to me right now, she said.

All right, put your magazine down, pop said, and ma said, Oh, I'm just flipping over the pages, I can listen perfectly.

Well, there are 2 teems of 9 men each, pop said, and ma said, Imagine, 18 men with nothing on their minds except hitting a ball.

Only 9 have that thought, pop said. The other 9 are thinking of catching it, he said, and ma said, Which is the most important? Oh I see there's a story in here by Agnes Greenleaf, she said.

Read it to me, pop said, and ma said, Now William, go on and explain, I told you I was listening.

Eleven Indicted In Brinks Case By Grand Jury

BOSTON (AP) — Eleven ex-convicts have been indicted—ten in absentia and one posthumously —for participation in the $1,219,000 Brink's robbery, the 1950 "theft of the century."

A county grand jury returned the indictments — 66 in all — after listening to Joseph (Specs) O'Keefe tell, describe Friday the fantastic planning that went into the largest cash haul in criminal history.

The FBI listed the case as "solved" Thursday with the arrest of six of the group. Two already were in jail for other crimes, another died of natural causes a year ago and two more were sought in the get-rounded.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover aided public aid in apprehending the two suspects still at large—James Ignathus Faherty, 44, of Boston and Thomas Francis Richardson, 48, of Weymouth, Mass.

HIS STORY DID IT

The story told by O'Keefe, himself an oft-named suspect in the Brink's robbery, resulted in the indictments —containing 142 counts and 30 alleged offences—against:

Stanley Gusciora, 36, now in Pittsburgh jail; Joseph S. Banfield, 45, now dead; Anthony Pino, 48; Michael Geagan, 47; Vincent J. Costa, 41; Joseph F. McGinnis, 37; Adolph Maffie, 44; Henry Baker, 49; Richardson; Faherty; and O'Keefe himself, who was brought from a Springfield jail to testify.

O'Keefe said he decided to talk because he didn't get his share of the loot. But some newspapers hint that there were other reasons why he decided to tell all to the authorities.

FEARED FOR LIFE

The newspapers quote unidentified sources as saying O'Keefe feared for his life at the hands of his underworld friends after he was released from county jail in Springfield, where he was due for freedom next month after serving time on an old gun - carrying charge.

O'Keefe was the target of at least one attempt on his life, in June, 1954, a machine-gun was turned on him, Police believe the gun was wielded by Elmer (Trigger) Burke, a New York killer-for-hire now under death sentence for murder in New York.

Meanwhile, those indicted and captured were held in high bail—$120,000 for McGinnis; $110,000 for the others—as Suffolk county district attorney Garrett H. Byrne said he plans to arraign them next week and bring them to trial within a couple of months.

Officials, meanwhile, took strict security measures at two jails to guard seven of the 11 men indicted.

U.S. Satellite Launching Site To Be in Florida

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. Navy and Air Force announced Fri. that the launching site for the earth satellite project will be at Patrick air force base, Cocoa, Fla.

The base has a firing range for rocket and missile tests which extends southeastward over the Atlantic.

The satellite plan, to be part of the International Geophysical Year in 1957-58, was announced by President Eisenhower last July.

Under the programme, several satellites are to be fired into the lower fringes of space. It is anticipated that they will orbit around the earth at altitudes of several hundred miles for several days or weeks.

Think Red China Will Continue To Use Diplomacy

By WARREN ROGERS Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP) —American officials expect Red China to continue to use diplomacy rather than force in seeking its foreign policy goals—despite a steady military buildup opposite Formosa.

But officials reporting this do not make clear how long they look for this words-not-guns policy to prevail.

Speculation has arisen lately that Red China might tire of such diplomatic attempts as its talks with the United States at Geneva, and might launch military action in the Formosa area this spring. The Geneva talks apparently haven't been getting anywhere.

The U.S. has been trying to get Red China to swear off the use of force. But the Reds so far have refused to do so, except in what they call "international" disputes. Thus, they have left themselves free to carry out their threat to conquer Formosa, where Chinese Nationalists are entrenched. The Reds insist this is a "domestic" affair.

The U.S. is pledged by treaty to defend Formosa. Congress has authorized President Eisenhower to decide what Communist actions might pose enough of a threat to ment.

Wants to Kill Few Million Says Professor

LONDON (AP)—An archaeologist shocked British television viewers Thursday night by telling them he'd like to murder a few million of them.

A spokesman for the BBC hastily explained that the professor, Dr. Glyn Daniel, 41, of Cambridge University, had influenza and was feeling "pretty ill under the studio lights."

Dr. Daniel, voted one of Britain's top TV personalities last year, was presiding over the highbrow quiz game "Animal, Vegetable, Mineral?"

The object is for three experts to identify and give the origin of archaeological specimens. Showing a sheaf of poisoned arrows—identified correctly by the experts—Dr. Daniel remarked in a cold voice: "There are a few million people I would like to kill—mostly viewers."

Formosa to invoke this treaty.

Officials studying the whole picture of U.S. relations with the reigning regime said the Chinese Communists have made clear they are interested in the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu only as stepping stones to Formosa. Some officials said the Red Chinese are well aware that an attack on Nationalist-held Quemoy and Matsu might bring down the full force of American defence forces on the invaders.

Furthermore, the diplomatic officials said the Red Chinese knew that sober behavior, without force, would rally more friends for their foreign policy goals.

Primarily, these goals are lifting the West's trade embargo against the China mainland, seating of Red China in the United Nations and acceptance of the Peiping regime as the legitimate Chinese government.

Oshawa Bandits Obtain $6,000 In Street Holdup

Rob Two of Federal Funds For Payments to Jobless

OSHAWA (CP) — Two armed, masked bandits escaped with federal government funds of $6,000 in cash today after a street holdup of two men returning from a bank.

Norman Peppiatt and Douglas Reynolds, both 28, said they had left a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada and were returning to the local national employment office with unemployment insurance payments money when the robbery occurred.

Police said the two 'bandits pulled up beside Peppiatt and Reynolds in a car about 9:15 a. m. Both masked men pointed guns and ordered the messengers to toss the satchel containing the money into the car.

Peppiatt said he dropped the bag on the sidewalk. One of the gunmen brandished his gun and shouted at him to pick up the satchel and put it in the car.

Then they drove off and the car raced off.

Reynolds said they have all available men hunting for the car. City and Ontario Provincial Police threw up roadblocks to check cars leaving the city.

CAR RECOVERED

The get-away car was recovered on Highway 401 in the Oshawa district. Provincial police said the car was stolen from Niagara Falls, Ont., and added they have reason to believe a second car, stolen from Bowmanville, was used in the robbers' flight.

Toronto Police Sure Strangler Now in Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto police said today a man suspected of being the strangler-slayer of two Toronto women during the autumn of 1954 is a patient in the Ontario Hospital for the criminally insane at Penetanguishene.

A senior official, who asked that his name be withheld, said the man, in all probability, will never be released from the institution nor ever stand trial.

He said police have questioned the man and feel certain he is the man who strangled Mrs. Mary Lipowecky, 46, Sept. 24 and throttled and raped 29-year-old Mrs. Olga Zacharko Oct. 19.

The two killings, which occurred three weeks apart in the same west-central area of Toronto, subsequently were linked with a later series of attacks on women in various parts of the city.

The strangler and the later attacks led to several arrests but no one was ever charged or prosecuted in the death of either Mrs. Lipowecky or Mrs. Zacharko.

Police said the man was arrested in Toronto two months after the second strangling. He had been taken into custody after a house-wife complained she was assaulted by a man who wielded scissors and tried to cut off her hair.

No immediate connection was found between the attack and the earlier stranglings, police said. The man subsequently was found mentally unfit for trial and committed to the Ontario Hospital at Whitby.

He was removed to Penetanguishene Dec. 15/1954, after further police investigation aroused suspicion he may have been connected with the two stranglings.

Youth Questioned But Not Suspected In Cadieux Case

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Police today sought new clues in the death of five-year-old Susan Cadieux after all but eliminating as a suspect a youth they questioned during the week-end.

Police said Sunday night that on the basis of their investigations to date they did not believe that Reginald Edwards, 19, had any connection with the case. He was being held here as a mental defective, pending action by the Ontario Mental Hospital Act.

He was picked up on a vagrancy charge Saturday and Stratford police said he claimed that he was guilty of the murder-assault on Susan, who was found dead in a snow-covered lumber yard here Jan. 7. She had died of internal hemorrhage and left to die of exposure.

Crown Attorney Claude C. Savage said Edwards would appear in court today on the mental defective charge. A magistrate's warrant would be necessary to remand Edwards to the custody of the Ontario Hospital here, he said, but the youth "may also be remanded in custody in jail in the event he is wanted for further questioning in the Cadieux case.

Today's Chuckle

"I think I should have named my boy Flannel," said Mrs. Blinks.

"Why?" asked Miss Jinks.

"Because, every time Blinks, he shrinks from washing."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO.—(CP) — Synopsis: Ontario enjoyed ideal January weather during the weekend. Skies were sunny, winds were light and afternoon temperatures ranged from around 10 to 20 degrees in northern Ontario up to near 60 degrees around the lower lakes. Cloudiness will increase in southern Ontario today, and colder air will move into northern regions today and Tuesday, but little or no precipitation is forecast for all sections of the province for both days.

Warn Hamilton Women Not To Walk Alone

HAMILTON (CP) — Police today warned all women not to walk alone on the streets after dark, because of five attacks on women during the last month.

Police said two women reported they have been assaulted in the weekend. They said they are sure one of them was the victim of the same pair who earlier raped three women in separate attacks.

A 30-year-old married woman Saturday told police she was dragged into a lane and sexually assaulted after she walked along a street, driven to a lonely spot in the city's west end, raped by both men and then taken back into the city and released.

Police described the attackers as "a young, dangerous pair" and have circulated artificial sketches of the two, based on descriptions given by the victims.

An 18-year-old girl told police she was beaten by two men Saturday night and taken to a motel at nearby Flamoro where she was raped by one of the men before being turned loose. Police said they do not believe she was a victim of the pair who attacked the earlier victims.

The pair have struck in almost every section of the city. They accosted one woman after she got off a street with her husband, knocked the husband unconscious and dragged the woman to their car and took her outside the city and raped her.

The other victims were teen-age girls.

Rival Brooklyn Clergymen Endeavor To Conduct Services at Same Time

NEW YORK (AP)—A long-standing church feud brought two clergymen into open competition Sunday before the altars of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity in Brooklyn.

Both of the clergymen was the Rev. William Howard Melish, actor rector of the church for seven years and recently removed from that job by a vote of the vestry.

The other was Melish's son, Bishop and the vestry's efforts to lock him out of the church, Mr. Melish was determined to conduct Sunday services as usual.

Early, at the altar was the Rev. Robert Thomas, appointed by the Bishop of Long Island to conduct services at the church until a newly nominated rector has been installed.

Mr. Melish had already started the early morning communion service, slightly ahead of schedule, when Mr. Thomas arrived. The two clergymen, officiating at separate altars, conducted separate services for two small groups of parishioners.

Then, at 11 a.m., they encountered one another before the main altar. Both men read opening portions of the service. After several minutes, Mr. Thomas was heard saying, "We're out of order, Mr. Melish."

Confusion threatened when the two ministers announced different hymns to be sung by members of the clergyman and congregation.

At this point Mr. Melish announced, "I refuse to make a mockery of this church and retire from the service." He walked down the aisle. About 50 persons from the congregation of approximately 250 followed him out of the church.

The controversy over Mr. Melish began in 1949 when his alleged left-wing activities caused the removal of his father, Dr. John Howard Melish, as rector of Holy Trinity. The son was serving as his father's assistant at the time. He had been named chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

TECHNICIANS SEE 50,000,000 LBS. BUTTER SURPLUS

Less Consumption, Rise In Oleo Sales Cause

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP) — Canada will have a butter surplus of more than 50,000,000 pounds next May as the result of a drop in consumption and a rise in margarine sales, the Dairy Technicians Association of Quebec said today.

Association director J. Peter Nadeau said the drop in butter consumption and increase in margarine consumption over the past year has dropped six pounds since 1948 to 20.7 pounds a year and that this decline is due entirely to the production and sale of margarine.

The practical result of this trend in view of our production and consumption means that in Canada on May 1, at the beginning of our next flush production season, we will have more than 50,000 pounds of butter in excess of domestic requirements."

CAUSE OF THE FIRST

Mr. Nadeau was one of the first witnesses to appear before the five-man Canadian Dairy Industry hearings in this provincial capital.

Established by Agriculture Minister Gordon of Toronto, the commission was established to study the federal government's role to predict the future of Canadian economy over the next five years. The hearings, which opened in Montreal Wednesday and in Toronto on Monday. Some 170 organizations will be heard in the six weeks of public sessions before the commission sits down to write its report.

Mr. Nadeau said the proportion of Canada's total milk supply produced in Quebec is increasing. The future of the dairy industry rested mostly on domestic markets, foreign markets were valuable but shaky.

"Every effort to reduce the price differential between butter and substitutes must be explored and no effort should be made which would tend to lower returns to producers," he said.

Maritimers Are Cleaning Up Storm Damage

HALIFAX (CP) — Maritimers continued their mop-up of damage amounting to millions of dollars during the weekend despite forecasts of continued unsettled weather for the storm-battered Atlantic provinces for the 13th day.

Telephone, telegraph and power company linemen worked in shifts to clear tangled wires and broken poles snapped by ice-storms and floods. Their numbers were bolstered by hundreds of civilians in repairmen and personnel from army communications units.

Gracious began moving back into their homes in water-ravaged Nova Scotia Sunday as waters drove 1,100 persons to higher ground. The province's hardest hit by swollen rivers and lakes, is believed to have suffered damage in the vicinity of $3,500,000.

Washed-out bridges, ruined roads, downed telephone lines, overturn highways and business losses are expected to reach at least $10,000,000 in the three provinces.

GM and Union Face Choice Of Settlement or Stalemate

TORONTO (CP)—Company and union negotiators, their positions reinforced by closed weekend conferences, meet Monday in search of a new attack on a contract dispute that triggered a walkout of almost 000 members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) idle since last September.

If not, a union source conceded, it could slide back into a stalemate with the outcome depending on which side could hold out longer.

"I wouldn't want to create the impression that it will be settled tomorrow," a union official said Sunday. "But we think we have made enough change that if GM is interested we should get some forward movement."

His statement followed a four-day session of the union's negotiating team which saw a full reappraisal of its stand on the score of issues still unsettled. Before giving details, he said the UAW had changed its position on some major items but remained firm on others.

A General Motors spokesman said: "We think it's their move. We put our offer on the table Jan. 16 (the day before the strike started)."

The negotiations are still at odds over union demands that GM push its wage level high enough to make it a leader in the automotive industry, pay full costs of a health plan and agree to a system of promotion by seniority.

The walkout by GM at a time when it was just tooling up for new models and a UAW delegate said the union now feels the time is

Russia Announces 'All-Out' Drive to Overtake West

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia Sunday announced an all-out drive to "overtake and surpass" the capitalist West in industrial, atomic and agricultural development.

The challenge came in a new five-year plan issued by the Soviet Communist party covering the years 1956-1960 inclusive. The plan, sixth in the series launched by Stalin in 1928, provides for:

1. A 65-per-cent increase in industrial output by 1960, combined with speed up mechanization and the "automation" of industrial processes on a "wide scale."

2. A big new impetus to tap atomic energy for electricity, defence, and atomic energy for transport purposes and a plan to build an atom-powered icebreaker. Well-informed sources here believe the plan shows Russia's determination to beat the Americans and British in harnessing nuclear power for peaceful purposes.

3. A 70-per-cent increase in steel, 68,000,000 tons, and coal, 593,000,000 tons, by 1960. The steel target is set by Premier Bulganin in a speech in the party central committee last July as 60,000,000 tons and 500,000,000 tons respectively.

4. Fifty per cent more technical colleges and specialists—interpreted as a serious challenge to the West.

5. A 10-per-cent increase in heavy industry, wage increases of 30 per cent for Soviet workers and only twice as many houses as under the 1951-55 plan.

6. More intensive schooling for all Soviet children.

7. A trebled fleet of freighters and tankers and an almost fourfold expansion of the Soviet fishing fleet.

8. A major development of television, including color transmissions.

The plan takes the form of a series of directives to be submitted for approval to the 20th Communist party congress opening in Moscow Feb. 14. Technically, however, the plan came into force on Jan. 1.

It declares that Russia now has within her means to become the world's mightiest industrial nation, that she could "in peaceful economic competition, in historically the shortest time," overtake and surpass, on a per capita basis, the most developed capitalist countries.

For the first time the plan gives absolute figures for production increases, instead of the percentage increases usually given by Soviet statisticians.

Western observers said it shows heavy industry will continue to play a dominant role, signifying complete victory for the contention of Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev that the branch of industry must have priority over the production of consumer goods.

U.S. Will Spend 42 Million on Seaway Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Army will spend an estimated $42,750,000 in the year beginning July 1 for further construction of the U.S. seaway canal way, President Eisenhower said today.

No appropriations are involved because the St. Lawrence Development Corp., in charge of building and operating the U. S. portion of the project, is authorized to issue up to $105,000,000 in treasury-financed revenue bonds.

The 27-foot deep seaway, which will give about 75 per cent of the world's shipping direct access to the Great Lakes from the Atlantic, is scheduled to be completed in 1959. Eisenhower said earlier this week it now is about nine per cent completed.

Eisenhower, in submitting his budget message to Congress, said the cost of the seaway to the U. S. now is estimated at $87,000,000. On Jan. 15, 1957, he said, a total of $79,371,800 will have been spent for work performed or contracts for work to be performed after that date. Value of such later work, he said, approximates $20,000,000.

Fire Claims Six Lives in Tenement Blaze

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Fire that burst upward through the stair-well of a four-story building killed six dozens of screaming residents in their rooms, chilled a city and even Sunday in a tenement within a block of Milwaukee's city hall.

Firemen using aerial ladders and scrambling through areaways in a desperate effort to save victims carried out 22 of the 54 tenants present in the 39-unit brick building. Damage was estimated at more than $75,000.

An unstated number of others leaped to safety in rescue nets.

EGYPTIAN SHIP SAILING WITH MYSTERY CARGO

Presumably Carrying Naval Guns, Trucks

By DON HOTT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — The Egyptian freighter Star of Assuan was scheduled to slip her moorings today and sail for Mediterranean ports with a mystery cargo in her hold.

The green and white flag of Egypt will flutter at her stern as she moves downstream, presumably carrying 32 naval-type guns and possibly 38 to 40 army trucks.

Longshoremen would like Sunday slowing the heavy-calibre guns in a forward hold. Crates partly covering them were addressed to Turkey and stencilled markings indicated they were part of a NATO mutual aid shipment from the Canadian Navy.

Two stern holds were tightly sealed by tarpaulins. Longshoremen and reporters were quoted by the Saint John, N.B., Telegraph Journal as saying they suspected army-type trucks loaded for Egypt before she sailed from Saint John late Friday.

"LOT OF FOOLISHNESS"

Captain E. G. Harvey, who took over the ship after a change shift of command before she left Saint John, said reporters' reports were "a lot of foolishness."

He described the cargo as "general—apples and flour."

A dockworker here said the guns, taken to the pier aboard two Canadian National Railways flatcars, were camouflaged by "all the necessary equipment."

A naval source said any announcement regarding the ship's disposition must be made by headquarters in Ottawa. He said nothing was known of the shipment here.

Captain Harvey told reporters he "was not even supposed to be aboard." He added that he had been given command of the Star of Assuan in Saint John to give Captain Henry Burgess "a leave."

Lieut.-Col. Richard President of Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, which handles sales of the reported trucks that some of the company's clients might have sold them to Egypt said: "Our trucks are sold directly to a Mediterranean nation in "years."

Eisenhower Asks Billion And Half More For Defence

Would Almost Double Aid Given to Foreign Countries

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Eisenhower sent his first balanced budget to Congress today.

(1) It calls for an increase in military spending of almost a billion and a half dollars because of Russia's failure to agree to a workable disarmament program.

(2) It almost doubles new foreign aid money which, the president said, is needed to fight international communism in Asia and the Middle East and provide the Atlantic alliance with new weapons and equipment.

It was a no-tax-cut budget. As long as times continue good, he said, Congress must first consider reducing the national debt before slashing taxes.

SURPLUS INDICATED

The president listed spending for the financial year beginning next July 1 at $65,865,000,000, an increase of more than $1,500,000,000 compared with the current financial year ending June 30. The increase is mainly for defence.

Meeting the upward swing in spending, he said, would mean a net increase of $1,800,000,000 in revenues to $66,000,000,000.

This foreshadowed a surplus of $135,000,000 in the new year.

The president also predicted the government would wind up the current year with revenues in the black. He said spending of $64,-365,000,000 — almost equal to previous estimates, and $326,000,000 higher than planned spending. The new appropriations requested for the first in three years to be bigger than spending, and exceeded financial 1956 appropriations by $4,-500,000,000.

The budget proposes an increase next year of virtually $1,000,000,000 in direct defence spending, for a total of $35,547,000,000, plus an increase in spending for atomic energy development and control of $230,000,000, to $1,945,000,000.

Eisenhower also asked for conventional weapons and for stockpiling would actually be decreased in 1956-57. The increased military expenditure resulted from new emphasis on air atomic power, guided missiles, research and development, continued defence and the re-equipping of the forces of the U.S. and its allies with new types of weapons.

Eisenhower asked for new foreign aid appropriations amounting to $4,950,000,000, almost double the $2,700,000,000 approved last year.

The proposed expenditures included funds for defence support for countries who otherwise could not afford to maintain forces raised to meet their needs for international security, for the economic development of backward areas and for technical aid programs.

Gordon Economic Commission Gets Cold Shoulder from Quebec's Govt.

QUEBEC (CP)—The Gordon economic commission got the cold shoulder treatment today from the Quebec government.

Neither Premier Duplessis nor any of his officials turned up when the five-man federal body opened its hearings in city hall.

This is the first time the commission has been ignored by a provincial government. Previous commission previously held hearings in eight other provinces—all but Quebec and Ontario—and received presentation from all provincial premiers.

It was learned later that the commission charged with the job of forecasting the shape of the Canadian economy over the next 25 years, had been told the government sometime ago and received no reply.

The commission, now in the final stage of cross-country hearings, has power to subpoena witnesses and force them to produce documents but there is no doubt that such a power would not be used against Mr. Duplessis.

Such a step would cause an explosion in federal-Quebec relations. It would seem to have little power over somewhat by the federal government's constitutional responsibility under which the Quebec administration would get between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000 annually in equalization payments.

Mr. Duplessis' decision not to appear before the commission may make it a little more difficult for the federal body to round out its forecast of Quebec's economic future. But commission chairman Gordon said he is confident he can get all the information he requires even without Quebec's help.

Eisenhower Would Confer With Bulganin

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the need to supply modern weapons to the North Atlantic allies and to give increased aid to the Middle and Far East requires almost a doubling of new foreign aid money.

Eisenhower asked Congress to provide new foreign aid appropriations for the financial year starting July 1 of $4,950,000,000—almost double the $2,700,000,000 approved last year. A number of Congress members on both parties have said the request will be sharply cut.

He also sought an increase for the U. S. information agency—$135,000,000 as compared with $87,-700,000 this year.

Something of a surprise was his request for an appropriation of $239,000,000 for the state department, an increase of $89,000,000 compared with the current fiscal year.

"The department of state," Eisenhower said in his budget message to Congress, "is not now adequately equipped with either the staff or facilities which are required if it is to provide the kind of support for our coordinated policy guidance which is vital to the success of our total international effort."

HELP FOR ALLIES

Eisenhower asked again for authority to use funds to permit the administration to pledge continuing foreign aid to friendly nations for more than one fiscal year. While details have not been spelled out, the assumption has been the administration would ask for authority to make commitments for a 10-year period.

Eisenhower said one reason for his asking $4,950,000,000 in new foreign aid funds is a need to support aircraft carriers, vessels and electronics systems similar to NATO allies in Europe.

Eisenhower disclosed that more than $1,000,000,000 of the money is to be used in the new financial year "will be earmarked for Korea, Pakistan, Taiwan (Formosa) and Vietnam."

These countries are anchors in the network of alliances which the United States has been trying to strengthen as a counter to Russian and Red Chinese power in Asia and the Middle East.

The new money asked by Eisenhower is not the amount which will actually be spent in the next fiscal year. Actual spending for aid expenditures in financial 1957 probably will amount to $4,787,000,000 as compared with an estimated $4,190,000,000 this year.

Union Pledges To Hospital Fund Fulfilled

Members of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Union, Local 219, at Point Anne, have fulfilled their pledges to the Belleville General Hospital Building Fund, it has been announced by E. DeLeeuw, union president.

Original plant subscriptions to the fund in 1953 totalled $7,286.24. Cancellations resulting from workers moving away totalled $208.30, but subscriptions from new employees amounted to $188.88, making a total of $7,2772.92 which has been completely paid.

Firemen Busy With Grass Fire

A mid-January grass fire, which, fanned by a brisk breeze, spread over an area of about ten acres endangering several buildings, caused city firemen a busy time Sunday afternoon before it was brought under control.

Children playing with matches were believed to have been the cause of the mid-winter grass fire in the Gilbert Street area north of College Street. Firemen answered the call for help with one truck and then when the blaze threatened to get out of hand a second truck was called out.

Firemen reported no damage with the blaze being brought under control before it reached nearby buildings.

Car Plunges Through Bay Ice, Two Narrowly Escape Drowning

Two young Belleville ice fishermen had a narrow escape from drowning late Saturday afternoon when their car plunged through the ice of the Bay of Quinte.

As the car dropped through the hole in the ice Jack Garvin, 21, of 39 Crienlarne Ave., and Arthur Newman, Charles street, scrambled out through the right front door, escaping injury.

A two-wheeled trailer attached to the back of the car prevented the auto from dropping out of sight into 20 feet of water. The trailer jackknifed in the hole and held the car. Only the tail lights of the car disappeared into the ice. The car, a 1954 model was owned by Ted Aikens, R.R. 3 Belleville.

The two men had taken a fishing shanty to the bay ice two miles west of Belleville and were returning for another when their car went through the ice. Garvin, driver of the car, applied the brakes when he saw the open water but the car skidded into the crack. Three other men who had been in the car remained behind at the fish shanties.

The accident occurred 100 yards off the south shore of the bay opposite the Dr. E. G. Kennedy home.

The car was hauled from the water by a crane. A 350-foot steel cable was attached to the car and the crane, parked on the shore, hauled it free. On the first pull the cable broke, but the vehicle was hauled free on the second pull.

Two Planes From Trenton Used in Search

A twin-rotor Piasecki helicopter and a ski-equipped Otter observation plane from the RCAF Search and Rescue squadron at Trenton joined a search Saturday for a USAF reserve pilot whose F-80 fighter plane crashed in Lake Ontario.

Air Force Capt. Willard Eisenhardt, 25, of Kenawanda, N. Y., near Buffalo, crashed into the lake about 15 miles north of Rochester. Search planes from the U.S. Search and Rescue squadron in Maine joined RCAF and Coast Guard units in the hunt for the missing flier. Search planes reported an oil slick in the lake but there was no sign of the plane or pilot.

Eisenhardt, a reserve officer, was in a four-plane flight on a weekend exercise.

Pilots Attempt Trans-Canada Speed Record

Two RCAF pilots from Trenton left Vancouver International Airport at 10.49 a.m. E.S.T. today in an attempt to fly to Halifax in five hours or less.

Freezing rain and overcast at Halifax delayed takeoff almost two hours as the pilots hoped for better weather. The two, circling on a strong wind to increase ground speed, said conditions were not good minutes before takeoff.

There was little or no wind and weather was bad in Vancouver and Halifax.

Sqdn.-Ldr. Lou Hill and Flt.-Lt. Alex Bowman, examiners at the RCAF's Central Flying School, flew to Vancouver last Friday to prepare for the record-making attempt. The men are flying a Mark 111 T-33 jet trainer with a cruising speed of 450 miles per hour.

The pilots will make a 20-minute stop for fuel at Fort William on its trans-Canada crossing. If the attempt is successful it will establish a new speed mark for this type of aircraft. There are faster aircraft in service, the CF-100 for example, but training aircraft has no CF-100's.

OVER NORTH BAY

Take-off time was scheduled for 7.30 p.m. E.S.T. The flight path over Ontario will be from the Lakehead over North Bay and Ottawa. The plan was to be flying at 42,000 feet across Ontario and will be in touch with the tower at North Bay.

The original schedule called for an Ontario crossing between 10 and 11 p.m. E.S.T. with touchdown at Halifax not later than 12.30 a.m.

Estimated time from Vancouver to Fort William was two hours and seven minutes by Sqdn.-Ldr. Hill at takeoff. This would mean the time would be 9.37 p.m. E.S.T. sometime between 1.30 and 2.00 p.m. Halifax arrival. This entailed two hours after departure from Fort William.

Flight Engineer the two men will fly to Trenton. The Halifax-Trenton hop is expected to take about one hour and 10 minutes.

Sqdn.-Ldr. Hill has been head of Aviation Medicine at Trenton's teaml for four years.

Purpose of the flight is to determine operational characteristics of the T-33 aircraft sustained high speed and high altitude.

If continued bad weather prevents a flight to Halifax men will try for a Vancouver-Trenton record.

No Traffic Fatality in City In Past Year

The city of Belleville chalked up an enviable traffic record during 1955 when not a single fatality being recorded during the year, it was noted today by Police Chief Ross Robert.

"We are keeping our fingers crossed hoping for another fatality-free year in 1956," he said.

The last traffic death recorded in the city was in 1954 when there was one fatality. The year 1953 also saw but one traffic death, the chief noted.

Old Sol Made Sunday Day To Get Out in Fresh Air

To paraphrase a well known quote: "One touch of sunshine makes the whole world spring."

That's the way it was on Sunday. Ole Sol blazed down brilliantly from a cloudless sky and temperatures rose sharply to the point where many people had visions of robins, dandelions and bees.

It affected people in different ways. To the young at heart it brought visions of moonlit nights, "leap year," new heart throbs and spring-time.

To household heads, many of whom stood countless out of oil and coal-heated houses and apprehensive in the spirit-giving air and sunshine, it suggested reduced fuel bills.

But the loveliness of the day, a rare one indeed, appealed mostly to the sports-minded.

A frustrated robin at Middleton Park went on a fruitless worm hunt. Nut-hunting squirrels, in full force, were disappointed, but settled for food strictly for the birds.

The dormant golf bug came to life if only temporarily. A number of golfers were noted having a friendly game on the Bay of Quinte Country Club course.

Out in fish shanties, winter anglers forsook the comfort of heated stoves and sat around in the sunshine while pickerel nibbled at their bait.

ICE BOATS SEEN ON BAY

A winter sports rarity in these parts came to life. Ice-boats were noted on the bay west of the bridge, cavorting on a surface that was almost perfect for this kind of exhilarating pastime.

Motorboat and yachting enthusiasts merely sat by ice-locked boathouses and wished.

While swimming was out of the question, a few hardy souls nearly forced the issue.

Enroute to a fishing shanty on the bay off the Redneersville road they narrowly escaped a dunking when their car slipped into a wide crack, and had to be extricated via a strong cable.

Open-air skating, another rare occurrence in modern times, came in for its quota of enthusiasts, ice surfaces on the bay and river were near-perfect for this exhilarating exercise.

While no lawn mowers nor potato planters were seen, one Belleville business man took the "spring bull by the horns." Probably visualizing buds, blooms, pussy-willows, seed catalogues and the smell of freshly-turned earth, he suited his action to the mood and was seen driving his garden tractor along the highway toward his Trent Road home.

A car containing four youths was seen driving quite rapidly along Highway No. 2 in the late hours of the evening, closely followed by another carrying a quartet of pretty gals. No motive was assigned, but after all, it's Leap Year.

Spring in winter, ain't it wonderful!

2 Unknown Men Save Father Of Three from Watery Grave

TRENTON (Special) — A winter game on the ice off Senator Fraser Park Saturday almost ended in tragedy.

Two young men, whose names are not known, kept their heads and managed to save a man shoulder deep in icy water, his fingers closed vise-like on the edge of the roof of his sinking car.

Leo Dube, 45, with his wife and three daughters at Carrying Place Road, went skating on the bay. During the course of the outing Mr. Dube attached ropes to the back of the car to pull his family over the icy surface. He was making a turn to give them their first tow, when suddenly the ice gave way and the car with him in it started to sink in deep water. His wife, who saw what was happening grabbed a stick out of another skater's hand and made for her husband clinging to the half submerged car up to his waist in freezing water. She tried several times to get close enough but the stick was too short.

Finally she became so hysterical that a young man who helped in the rescue, had to restrain her. All the time their father gripped the roof of the car and seemed frozen there with fright, his three daughters, Sharon, 11; Muriel, 9, and Mary, 13, looked on. The oldest daughter still suffers from shock today.

Mr. Dube, shocked and shivering, was pulled to safety and with his family driven home. The car kept partly afloat on a large chunk of ice was recovered and towed to shore by Graham's service truck.

Mrs. Dube said she thought her husband was in the water for hours, although she was told later it was only a matter of minutes. Her husband, back at work today, cannot remember anything that happened while he was in the predicament. He hopes his rescuers come forward so he can show them appreciation for their quick-thinking and heroic effort.

Annual Meeting of Shareholders
The Royal Bank of Canada

James Muir warns against pace of consumer buying and tightness of markets in commodities and labour

Canada can ill afford luxury of group or sectional parochialism. Diverse climates, cultures and economic interests present opportunities as well as problems in achieving national unity.

Some of the more pressing problems confronting Canada in 1956 were reviewed by James Muir, Chairman and President of The Royal Bank of Canada, in his annual address at the Annual Meeting of Shareholders held on Jan. 12 at Head Office. One of the more important of these he felt was the pace at which consumers built up during the boom which characterized 1955. While admitting there may be some difference of opinion on the seriousness of the threat posed by the boom, he believed there "are definite danger signs, not as much in prices as in the frantic pace of consumer buying, instalment expansion, and the general tightness of markets in both commodities and labor.

No immediate cure will stem the efficacy of wise central bank policy in curbing inflation," he said. "Indeed, it is generally held that monetary policy is more effective when applied to man against deflation. But there are dangers. As I have already pointed out, the policy may go too far. It may also be unselective, curbing healthy as well as unhealthy or excessive bank credit. In addition, different types of credit, and those by no means the least inflationary, lie almost entirely outside the chartered banking system. I should like to nominate two candidates and possibly three for the attention of those charged with creating and administering credit control on a selective basis: consumercredit, bank loans to brokers and (with caution) mortgage credit.

PROBLEMS OF CREDIT

"Consumer credit, or 'buying on time' is an essential part of our modern economy. But, like all good things, it can be carried to extremes. For the individual, to live on unearned credit is to live in bondage; and the burden of debt is particularly hard for those who can afford it least: vis, those who are lured or are attracted by 'no down payment' offers. For the economy as a whole, consumer credit results in higher production and sale of durable goods (a form of long-term investment by the consumer) without at the same time a corresponding act of saving. There need be no harm in this provided the consumer loan is itself financed out of savings—the consumer then borrows in order to spread his own saving over time. But if a great rise in consumer loans is financed through bank credit expansion we have an expansion not of short term, self-liquidating credit but of long-term loan paid back only over a long period, and a consequent expansion of the money supply.

"Term loans by banks to corporations are for the purchase by banks of corporate serial bond issues are similar in effect to an expansion of bank-financed consumer credit, and may be more serious in that the repayment period may be longer.

"Mortgage loans by banks are a departure from traditional short-term bank financing. Long-term investment, this time in a home, is financed without a corresponding act of saving. As a device for expanding home owning during a period of relatively slack trade, the NHA program had many virtues. But with a return to normal conditions, and later with a resumption of inflationary pressure, continued mortgage lending by banks, together with the other inflationary forces, undoubtedly made a contribution to instability in the economy.

Mr. Muir noted that the three varieties of credit over-expansion might soon become serious because to natural causes and to the effects of rules now in force. Home building and construction in general tend to be affected by seasonal factors; term loans by banks and the purchase of corporate securities now by banks constitute a considerable under present monetary policy. Mortgage lending by banks did does not lie primarily in the field of banking. War and peace war experience—have shown that the only two most effectively handled by regulation are the retail level, with good will and cooperation between those who extend the credit and the control authorities. Mortgage lending, therefore, in these three varieties is a case—extension that a little commonsense and co-operation cannot quickly remedy."

CANADIAN UNITY

While sound economic policy was a factor in achieving national unity and well being, said Mr. Muir, the "basic strength of our international outlook and the avoidance of sectional and cultural parochialism were also of paramount importance. The very diversity of our national climates, cultures and sectional interests in Canada that create some of the problems our problem makes unity an even richer prize than would otherwise be the case," he concluded. "Ours will be a unity in diversity, with the attendant opportunities to take advantage of the division of labor, the flexibility of diversity of culture, in individual talent and skill, and of resources. We have, I firmly believe that this difficult task can be accomplished."

NEW 'BUILT-IN STABILIZER' FOR FUTURE BUDGETS

"In all the excitement over the switch to deficit financing" said Mr. Muir, "one extremely important decision in the realm of fiscal policy was virtually unnoticed by the general public. This decision is all the more important because, unless or until reversed, it will presumably determine the overall pattern of federal budgeting for years to come.

"In his budget speech of April 5, 1955, the Minister of Finance said:

"I propose to recommend to the house a tax policy and a tax structure that would produce a balance of revenue under conditions which represent a high level of output and employment.'

"The high level of output and employment is reflected in the figure that measures the gross value of our national production over the year. The new tax policy and tax structure referred to by the Minister of Finance is gross national product in such a year as the average gross national product in any year but produces falls below a certain level there will be an automatic budget deficit. When gross national product rises above this level, there will be a budget surplus. And the ideal level of gross national product is apparently defined as that which would have obtained had employment and the rate of growth of the economy been normal" since the average since the base year 1953. It may be open to question whether this kind of built-in stabilizer will prove sufficiently strong to produce the desired effect. It may prove too passive to meet the prime task that is always with us, namely that the automatic principle of budgeting should be one to assure that fiscal policy would at least not make things worse; but it would be of very great practical factor in the short run. Meanwhile, policy makers with its greatly superior flexibility could be relied upon to take care of short swings in business activity and employment, leaving long run problems of economic development and growth to the more gradual, slower adjustments through annual revisions of the budget."

Total Deposits have now passed $3 billion mark

K. M. Sedgewick, General Manager, noted that not only had the assets of the Royal Bank reached the imposing total of $3,284,143,-985 but total deposits had passed the $3 billion mark, a new high point in Canadian banking history. Total deposits of our opposite were $1,938,757,074 approximately 59% of assets. This figures, whereas then our depositors numbered 1,-555,534 as compared with 2,000,000 at the present time." The bank's liquid position, he noted, continued strong with assets such as cash of $1,918,749,579 representing 58% of deposit liabilities to the public. "Our Rest Account has been increased to $108,000,000 which with paid-up Capital, of $42,000,000 and the undivided profit balance of $918,000 odd means that the bank now has at use Capital funds of close to $151,000,000. This is a very strong position indeed."

Mr. Sedgewick noted that NHA Mortgage Loans, made by the Royal Bank during 1955 totalled $100,885,-965 as compared with $22,672,390 the year before. "Other current loans also have shown expansion in line with the higher general business activity and the total at $1,158,559,855 shows an increase of more than $200,000,000 in the twelve-month period under review. We are now, in common with the other banks, co-operating with the Government and the Bank of Canada in carrying out policy of credit restriction designed to curb inflationary pressures. It is important that the timing of this variation in such a policy should coincide accurately with changing conditions within the economy."

Mr. Sedgewick also discussed the bank's extensive new branch renovation program. In addition to 15 entirely new premises in Rio de Janeiro shortly and consideration is being given to further expansion in the Caribbean area. Since the bank began operations in Brazil nearly 50 years ago said Mr. Sedgewick, the local staff has been increasingly drawn from senior positions and this, he felt, had been a contributing factor in the success of the bank's foreign operations. There was, he said, a need for trained officers in the bank's foreign service and as a consequence increased facilities were created in the Royal Bank's foreign branches for the training young man interested in a satisfying and successful career in international banking. The bank had paid a high tribute to the bank's staff, which now numbered well over 14,500. "We are very pleased indeed to see a steadily increasing of young men join our staff and feel that they have attractive opportunities ahead," said Mr. Sedgewick.

"A Matter of Importance"...

Most people are aware of the advantages of saving money . . . and most people do save money. Some save for a short-term purpose like the purchase of a car, or a vacation, or clothes for the children. Others save for a long-term purpose like the purchase of a house, or in preparation for retirement, or for an unforeseen emergency.

Short-term savings usually are kept in cash against the day when there will be enough to make the desired purchase. Very often the purchase is made ahead of time, and the savings go out in instalment payments.

Long-term savings, however, very often become invested in sound Canadian securities. And that's where we can help. We have had long experience in designing investment programmes both for the experienced investor with a sizeable accumulation of savings and for the new long-term investor who wants to acquire a measure of financial independence. The services and counsel of capable people in our organization are available . . . whether you are an experienced buyer of securities, or a beginner. Come in to any of our offices, or, if more convenient, drop us a line.

By the way ::: we have taken our title from a 16-minute movie ::: "A Matter of Importance" ::: recently produced by The Investment Dealers' Association of Canada. Through an interesting story it points up the essentials needed in getting a planned investment programme started. The film is available to any responsible club or group whose members might like to know more about this business of investing. If you are a member of such a group and interested, drop us a line ::: we will make the arrangements for you.

A DEPLORABLE STATE OF AFFAIRS

Dr. W. A. Cardwell, superintendent at the Ontario Hospital for criminally insane in Penetanguishene, says that on an average one mental patient a week is released from the criminally insane section and no further check is made of the patient's subsequent behavior.

If this does not arouse considerable public indignation and subsequent action by the Ontario Government, there is something wrong with the public conscience or the common sense of the authorities.

What gives particular point to Dr. Cardwell's revelation is that he was commenting on the case of Robert K. Martin. Martin was an inmate in the hospital for 11 years. He was released. Wednesday he was found unfit to stand trial for murder in the slaying of Dr. Rex Hylton, a Workmen's Compensation Board physician who was treating him at a Hamilton hospital.

Dr. Cardwell says that Martin, while confined to the criminally insane section of the hospital, had never been charged with any offence. Apparently he was placed there as not released, he said, and Martin now will be confined for life.

This is just a little late to help Dr. Hylton.

Regardless of whether or not Martin was charged, the fact remains that he was committed to the institution as the result of an act of violence, an attack on a Hamilton lawyer in 1938. He was released in 1949.

We do not propose to argue that an offence like an attack on a man is grave enough to warrant committing an insane man to an institution for life, even if he responds to treatment. An insane person is mentally ill and mental illnesses respond to treatment in much the same way that physical illnesses do. A man can often be cured—and cured at times for no sound reason why he should not be released.

At the same time there is at least as much reason why he should receive the benefit of periodical check-ups as there is for following a similar policy in the cases of those who, for instance, have had T.B.

Added to Martin's criminal behavior might not have resulted in officials discovering the mistake they had made in releasing him. However, in view of the fact that Dr. Charles Tennant, a former head of the hospital, told the court in this case that he would not release Martin if he were still in charge of the hospital, a subsequent check on his behavior could easily have resulted in him being returned to the institution before, instead of after, slaying a man. In any event, periodical checks on released inmates would at least assure the public that they were being given some protection from the danger of being attacked by a criminally insane person. By Dr. Cardwell's own testimony, 52 former criminally insane persons are released every year and no effort is made to discover whether or not they suffer relapses.

MR. IGNORANT OF 1956

"Mr. Ignorant" of 1956 is an Italian peasant who last year "graduated" from elementary school at the age of 85.

He won the world title when the runner-up, a cart driver who translated Dante's "Divine Comedy" into a local dialect, was ruled not legally competent for the prize.

The club bestowing this unusual distinction is composed of residents of La Spezia, Italy, who call themselves "The Ignorants."

"The Ignorants," obviously, are a very clever group of people. How else could the attainment of an elementary school graduation diploma bring on a spate of world-wide publicity? When a group of Dante's "Divine Comedy" earns runner-up rating in a "Mr. Ignorant" contest, what brain power is possessed by other members of the group?

"The wise man knows that he knows not" is an old saw. And humility is a virtue.

Attainment of elementary school diploma is an important academic achievement. Many of our great men have done wonders with less formal instruction and without benefit of certificate. Is the attainment of this degree such meritorious because the student is eighty-five? Is it not praiseworthy that an octogenarian, his life and work behind him, should display such intellectual curiosity and vigor as to submit to elementary school instruction for the improvement of his mind? Is not this insatiable curiosity exactly what we want for ourselves throughout life?

Why then should this splendid fellow, really an example to us all, be rewarded for his labor with the title of "Mr. Ignorant?" Possibly such emphasis is just what most of us need now and it is to remind us that education is a continuing process that depends upon ourselves and not on others. Having some cherished intellectual accolade bestowed with the title of "Ignorant," while unexpected, is likely to be very good for one's perspective.

"The Ignorants" of La Spezia, Italy, are to be congratulated for their novel approach to the common problem of head shrinking.

LAUGHTER

Human laughter, at its best, at its most musical, we are often told, "chimes". Or it "peals." A beautiful woman's laughter, as the novelists insist, must be "bell-like." A fine man's "rings" through the hall.. "Silvery" laughter, we take it, has the sheen of silver bells in it.—(Christian Science Monitor.)

NO COMPLAINER

M grumbling made it easier to idle through the day,
I'd grumble when woman folks and drive them all away.
I'd issue every order in ill
  temper's rasping voice,
But I'd still be sitting idle, for I have no other choice.

If whimpering could do it, I'd have tasty food to eat;
But they've put me on a diet which allows me nothing sweet.

So, although I've cause to whimper, they will pay no
  heed to me
The self-same tasteless dishes on my supper tray will be.

Could I change the situation,
  then how sorry for myself,
Or sigh a plate of cookies from the kitchen pantry shelf.
I would do some heavy sighing;
  but they've made it plain to me
Just the way the doctor ordered is the way it has to be.

Excavations At Mycenae

(BBC SUMMARY)

When Heinrich Schliemann, the German archaeologist, began to excavate at the Greek hilltop city of Mycenae in the Argolid, he was strongly influenced by what he had read, for both Homer and Pausanias, the Roman historian who wrote in the 2nd century A.D., had described Mycenae. In 1876, after many months of digging, he was rewarded by the discovery of a treasure so rich and great that many books have been written describing it. He found royal shaft graves of varying depth and in them the bodies of the ancient people; on the men's faces were golden masks, golden breastplates lay on their chests, and there were also swords, daggers, jewellery, drinking cups, and many things beside. But the real significance of Mycenae, and the made accordingly after at nearby Tiryns, was that it showed a high civilization more than one thousand years older than the classical Greece had existed there; a civilization not confined only to this city for in most of the places which Homer had described as having outstanding sets to the Trojan war remains of Mycenaean settlements were also discovered.

The first leader to Sir Arthur Evan's great excavations at Knossos on the island of Crete, where a palace of vast size and splendour was even older than the shaft graves at Mycenae was found in a recent BBC programme called "Mycenae's Second Glory" described the way in which excavation at Knossos has connected these two great centres of ancient civilization.

"Linear B" script first found at Knossos has at last been partially deciphered by a young architect, Michael Ventris, and in 1952 Professor Blegen of the University of Cincinnati, excavating a Mycenaean palace on the mainland, found tablets with Linear B script described with the Linear B script of Knossos. At the same time in the same year Professor Wace, a British archaeologist excavating just outside the citadel of Mycenae, let tablets with Linear B script in a previously unexplored house in the area longed to prosperous merchants.

Seventy-five years after Schliemann Dr. Alan Wace returned, while repairing one of the big "beehive" tombs at Mycenae, which for one thousand years, found by accident another grave circle lying outside Mycenae's famous Lion Gate which guards the entrance to the city. Working on behalf of the Greek Archaeological Service he has so far excavated nineteen graves, almost complete and immeasurably rich, in this circle and there may be more to find in future seasons, and he described some of his findings in the BBC broadcast. There were individual gifts with nearly all the skeletons, swords, daggers, gold cups, alabaster vases, gold cups, diadems and jewellery and in one grave a gold skeleton belonged to a royal Greek tribe which had established itself at Mycenae and ruled the whole state at an earlier period than that in which the Trojan war is said to belong. One grave which contained the body of a child held also a great quantity of miniature beautiful jewellery, gold diadems, earrings, gold pendants, and in the hand a gold baby's rattle. But in the last days of the excavations of 1953 came the most exciting discovery, the richest of all the many lovely finds, a large, beautiful piece of rock crystal in the shape of a duck, having the head with gracefully curved neck and beak as the lid as the lip. It was the most perfect piece of rock crystal ever discovered, lately worked, and nothing similar had ever been found on the Greek mainland. Bronze pins and rings, the heads, necklaces of precious stone, rare clips, embossed golden diadems and brooches all indicated that this was the grave of a princess.

Excavations are still going on at the Mycenae palace and the hilltop city in the centre of a bowl of mountains from which the rich Argolid plain can be surveyed and where, perhaps, the whole fighting army of sightseers has departed, quiet and sheep bell tinkle, cock-crow and call, and peace descends once more on the ancient city, the now empty graves, and on who knows how many kings, queens and high personages whose remains may yet be discovered.

The Miracle Of Pine Seed

(Dept. of Lands and Forests Pamphlet)

A seed falls to the ground in the autumn, is covered with leaves and soil and a tree is born. The seed is a thing to marvel at.

Pick up a pine seed and crack it open. The kernel, called megaspore is packed with starches, sugars, proteins.

Spring arrives, the soil gets warm moisture is abundant and the embryo tree awakens from its sleep and begins to grow. The circumstances surrounding this awakening are not fully known, and what is known is indeed complicated.

The embryo grows fast, the seed shell splits and the newly born stem emerges above the ground. The shoot grows straight up and the roots extend into the soil. The root has an organ job. It not only provides the tree with water and nutrients from the soil, but it also anchors it permanently to its place of birth, for better or for worse.

Just as the stem tips provide for the trees growth in height, the cambium layer provides for its increase in girth. This layer is found between the wood and the bark, and has that peculiar property of producing wood to the tree inside and bark cells to the outside.

The bark which forms the spring consists of light-coloured, thin-walled cells, and toward the end of the growing season, dark-coloured, thick-walled and darker cells are formed. These are known as spring wood and summer wood respectively, and this alternative gives the concentric appearance to the tree trunk known as annual rings. By counting these annual rings one can determine fairly closely the age of the tree. When growing conditions are favourable, and when unfavorable, growth is slowed down, and the rings are narrower. By reading these cross-sections one can determine growth conditions during past years.

Comparisons In Salaries

(New York Times)

A busboy at the El Morocco Restaurant in New York City gets $60 a week for carrying dishes from the kitchen and back, or fetching table. A teacher in the public schools of Yonkers, in well-to-do Westchester County, gets a starting salary of $61.50 a week, after having spent four to five years acquiring a college education.

These statistics, from two news where he has access to them, have made us wonder a bit about the American scale of values. Of course there will always exist, unpoorly paid by comparison with some other nearby communities. Why, in the city of New York, the worst-paid teacher starts at $72, which is almost as well as the busboy gets. And the latter can easily do much better as a bricklayer, a painter, or a carpenter, who might get $125 to $150 a week for such labours. But if the teacher in New York City, which pays about, if not quite, as well as any other school system in the country, sticks with the job, she may be will get $7,600 a year, or $146 a week. There he is up in the plumber's bracket, but he must have had considerable to do it. Do these figures have anything to do with the shortage of teachers?

Wild West Canuck Style

(Montreal Gazette)

Hollywood moviemakers are always disappointed when they try to find, in Canadian history, stereotypes of the "Wild West" to match their own tumultuous Western history. It just didn't happen that same way.

In the United States, the pioneers went out first, prompted by the lack of unsettled land in the East, in the hope of gold or simple adventure. Some, such as the first Treasury secretary, Albert Gallatin, of their own, independent of the Union. After the Louisiana Purchase the trapper came the railways and the law.

In Canada, with land-hungry Americans swarming into the West, it was imperative that legal claims be made to the Canadian West as soon as possible, without waiting for settlers to fill the great gaps. So the North West Mounted Police followed. The settlers followed them. Law first, then transport, then settlement.

In the "Old Timers' Column" of the excellent RCMP Quarterly, there are always glimpses of this difference in approach. Here is an excerpt from the current issue; a paragraph from the Saskatchewan Herald dated Battleford, N. W. T., February 28, 1881:

"The Police returned from Frog Lake, on the 27th, with the Indian prisoner for whom they went up. He was anxious to be assured of his right to tell his side of the story in Court, and on being told that he would be allowed every opportunity of doing so, said he would go with them with pleasure."

This is hardly in the American Wild West tradition. But neither is another item from the same issue, which tells of a bag of flour found by a group of Indians, the group including Chief Mosquito's sco. The son, with much argument, persuaded the others that the bag belonged to the local farm instructor, and should be returned to him

"Mosquito," says the report, "points to the lad with pride as the future Chief."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is becoming slightly funny to watch Krushchev and the other more conspicuous members of the Russian proletariat completely become like us. They have developed a sense of humor. Russians are funny. They have developed a vanity. The reason they are funny is that they have no sense of humor whatever, and never did have one. It is the basic characteristic of Russians, and it will not go away. I sat at them a crew of politicians who have as complete a lack of humor as the Russians, the complete present state of the world is likely to end with the whole human species laughing last.

Russians laugh, of course. But it is a belly laugh. Anybody who has read Russian literature, anyone who has seen Russian films knows as many of us have, understand the Russian sense of humor, which is not funny. They have a great many virtues, any number of endearing qualities. But they have no humor among them is irony. And it is irony, humor works both ways. Irony goes only out. It never turns back.

The most unforgettable example of this, and it is hardly believable how quickly most of us have forgotten it is the epic demand of the Russian people during the last war, for a second front.

There they were, with their backs to the wall, fighting desperately at the gates of Moscow and of Stalingrad, and the Russians, who have always a vast doseack choir, with a sound of pealing church organs, with a sense of humor so developed that entering their impassioned demand for the opening of a second front.

I'll tell you who found that funny. It was the Britain who found it funny. I'll tell you who looked on those dispason tones from Russia with a sense of the utmost hilarity bard to express. It was all those of us who had been destroyed, decorated and humiliated by depths from which she has not yet recovered. It was all those of us who had been smashed and blasted, all the sweet streets of Europe, all the world's big trash, and a noble nation broken to its knees.

Where was a second front then? Where, might we ask, was Russia? Nothing personal, of course.

Any nation, any race, that can follow for a second front under those circumstances cannot be taken seriously. Grins as big and fat as Krushchevs,

Those White Lines Around The Gills

The significance of white parasites around the mouth of the feverish, restless, nervous child with upset stomach, furred tongue and heavy sweet breath is indefinite. The doctor knows these symptoms as well as the grinding of the teeth at night, are more frequently due to other causes than to worms.

If the parent or guardian is of limited intelligence the neighborhood Saleygamp may ply the child with "worm medicine."

Just what significance may you attach to white lines around the gills, if they don't spell worms, is a medical question, and this is a health column.

Round worms (technically called Ascaris lumbricoides) resemble ordinary earthworms.

Thread worms, seat worms, pin worms (technically called Oxyuris vermicularis) resemble bits of white thread perhaps 1-8th of an inch long.

Tapeworms (technically called Taenia saginata) vary from three to thirty feet in length and resemble linen tape measures.

Medicines taken internally aid in expelling round worms or tapeworms, but only enemas or irrigations of the colon can eradicate pinworms.

Tapeworm probably causes less trouble than either pinworm or roundworm infestation.

In any case, the actual finding of worms or segments of them (proglottids) or microscopic examination of their eggs by microscopic examination (fin roundworm infestation) is essential for a positive diagnosis.

Pinworm infestation is a family affliction, as the worms are easily transmitted to other members of the family. The microscopic eggs of pinworms develop into larvae in the bowel, but the eggs do not hatch outside of the body until they are taken by anus-finger contact through contaminated water, food, fruits, or vegetables, or on the fine dust blown through contaminated fingers, or by other children, nurses, teachers etc. The first hand is likewise contaminated with the microscopic eggs when he or she scratches.

Pets, especially dogs, convey worm eggs from one child to another. Since children are other persons who pat or play with dogs should carefully wash their hands immediately afterward. This is one reason why everyone should wash his hands before eating.

JUST FOR TODAY

A reader from Savannah, Georgia, has sent me the following and suggested it as an article for the day. I pass it on with gratitude to this unknown friend:

"Just for today I will try to live through this day only, and not tackle my whole life problem at once. I can do something for 12 hours that would appall me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

"Just for today I will be happy. This assumes to be true what Abraham Lincoln said: "Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be."

"Just for today I will try to strengthen my mind. I will learn something useful. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

"Just for today I will exercise me."

"Just for today I will look as well as I can, dress becomingly, talk low, act courteously, criticize not one bit, not find fault with things or regulate anybody except myself.

"Just for today I will have a quiet hour all by myself for meditation and relaxation. During this half-hour I will try to get a better perspective on my life.

"Just for today I will be unafraid. In particular I will not be afraid to enjoy what is beautiful and to believe that, as I give to the world, so the world will give to

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE FORWARD STEP

Now that we are in a new year it is well that we take inventory—mentally and spiritually—and chart our course ahead. We read about the "Forward Look." Let us add to that the Forward Step! For action that is the father of aspiration.

In this connection I can think of nothing more helpful than to quote from Thomas A. Edison's last public statement. He said: "Be curious! I have lived a long time. I have seen many repent things, again and again. I have seen many depressions in business. Always America has come out stronger and more prosperous. Be as brave as your fathers before you. Have faith! Go forward."

Edison might also may sometimes be an experimental one, but that is the one Edison always took. He never let himself be worried by many attempts he learned of experiments that would not work, or kept nearer and nearer to the attempts that did work! It was always the Forward Step.

There is no room for wobbly minds in a country that is full of health, will and purpose. Why do so such people start talking a depression when all facts prove that we have simply gone forward? Why should we not go forward and be better off with new methods and new knowledge? When people stand still they begin to slip!

Free Countries Limit Liberty Of Newspapers

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—The International Press Institute said in a report published Sunday that in the vast majority of free countries government pressures on newspapers limit their liberty significantly.

An IPI statement accompanying its 130-page survey, entitled 'Government pressures on the press,' declared:

'Only four out of 40 non-totalitarian governments do not restrict freedom of the press in one way or another.'

Neither the statement nor the report itself specified the four.

The IPI statement also said 'press freedom has been on the decline since the end of the Second World War.' Among the factors in this development it added, are the cold war and such special issues as racialism in South Africa.

SECURITY AS PRETEXT

The report, which deals only with non-authoritarian governments during the last five years, said the most widespread current tendency toward control of the press 'derives from the needs of national security.'

'Governments make exaggerated use of this argument,' the report went on. The tendency to do so is an aftermath of the Second World War and has been increased by the cold war. In a number of countries laws relating to national security in fact represent the most present danger to the freedom of the press.'

The IPI said that in some countries government news is deliberately withheld from opposition organs. In others they get only a meagre share of government-controlled newsprint imports. Apart from outright subsidies, some governments distribute official advertisements — but only to 'friendly' newspapers.

In a few countries, the report said, journalists are subject to arbitrary arrest. Government-induced mob attacks on newspaper plants also take place. In other countries with a traditionally free press, newspaper men lay be intimidated by administrative measures directed against communist subversion.

The IPI described a number of different techniques of non-authoritarian regimes during the last five years in efforts to influence the news.

First Reporter To Fly Over Pole Tells Story

By SAUL PETT

SOUTH POLE (Delayed) (AP)—It is now 7:38 p.m., New Zealand time. A minute ago we were flying south. Without changing course we now are flying north.

Eighteen hundred feet below us lies the precise bottom of the world from which all directions are north. This is the magical 90-degree-south latitude—one of the two most exclusive navigational positions on earth. This is the South pole for which men have died in the reaching.

We have just completed a circle of five miles in diameter. Thus we have flown around the world in five minutes.

There are 10 of us aboard the plane—some base fliers of Operation Deepfreeze and one bug-eyed correspondent. Their boredom is understandable since, for most of the crew of the four-engined Skymaster, this is their second flight over the pole in 11 days. The excitement of this correspondent is equally understandable.

Fewer than 40 men have been here before us. This is only the fifth flight in history over the pole and I, they tell me, am the first reporter to fly over it. The flight was carried out by a plane attached to the U.S. antarctic expedition.

Now what does a good reporter do in such an exclusive spot? He reaches into his book of adjectives for a ringing description on the epic level. This will now be done in one broken-hearted line:

All I can see below, above and to the left and right of our orange-tipped wings, is a dirty white blur.

Pearson Asked To Visit Egypt And Israel

TORONTO (CP) — A CCF member of Parliament on Sunday called on External Affairs Minister Pearson to visit Israel and Egypt in an attempt to avert further trouble in the Middle East.

"Let's be the honest broker and see what can be done," said Allistair Stewart, member for Winnipeg North, at a meeting in support of a fund-raising campaign by the Israeli labor federation Histradut.

Mr. Stewart referred to a statement he made last week that he had been reliably informed the Canadian Car and Foundry Co. of Montreal had shipped 35 Harvard training plans to Egypt.

"Mr. Pearson denies Canadian aircraft are going to Egypt. Everyone denies it except Canadian Car and Foundry. It is very difficult to worm the truth out of these people in Ottawa."

Isaac Hamlin, national secretary of the Histradut campaign, said Israel "is surrounded by enemies and its only allies are the Jews in Canada and U.S."

Adjudicator Pamela Stirling of London also said Ian Thorne's direction of the Russian purge of 1937 drama was the best of the festival.

Geoffrey Theobald of the White Rock, B.C., Players' Club was named best actor for his witty and whimsical performances as Audrocles in Shaw's 'Androcles and the Lion."

Best actress chosen was Verlie Cooter of The Vagabonds, New Westminster, who portrayed "Juno in Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock."

Quebec Press In Line of Fire Says Editorial

QUEBEC (CP)—Le Soleil, Quebec City Independent Liberal daily newspaper, in an editorial Saturday said control of production, distribution and sale of newsprint in Quebec province could jeopardize the existence or freedom of newspapers.

The editorial was commenting on a bill tabled in the legislature Thursday by Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale government which would set up a four-man control board to regulate the newsprint-manufacturing industry within the province.

Le Soleil said:

"Through no fault of its own, the Quebec press is caught in the line of fire of the regrettable, deteriorating conflict between the government and the newsprint manufacturers of the province of Quebec. . . .

"Without taking a stand on the principle and the problems at issue, publishers cannot be indifferent to something of such widespread importance.

"Dailies, weeklies and periodicals alike must equally fear the fate that could be in store for them at the hands of an over-ambitious monopoly and an excessively arbitrary political authority. It was to protect them (the newspapers) against the harshness of their suppliers that the present authority objected, in the first place, to an unjust increase in the price of newsprint.

"This time, however, the measure introduced in the legislature to bring the manufacturers back to a sense of proportion contains clauses and provisions which, unless amended, would compromise the freedom of the press. Probably it will be sufficient only to show this in order to obtain revision and correction. . . .

"Meanwhile, it is necessary for newspapers interested in their own future to speak out. . . ."

In Montreal, the independent daily Le Devoir, in a leading editorial by Editor Gerard Filion, said the regulations would give the board "discretionary powers over newspapers."

Weddings

GREEN—WOODCOX

St. Paul's United church, Bancroft, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, December 31, at 2:30 p.m., when the Rev. S. Snowden united in marriage Muriel Ayleen Woodcox, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Woodcox of Hybla, and Joseph Hubert M. Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Green of Scotsdale, Ontario. The church was tastefully decorated with baskets of white 'mums, pink azaleas and evergreens.

Music was provided by Mrs. D. C. Stencill and Mrs. Ray Watson of Bancroft, soloist sang "I Promise Me," before the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You," during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in a floor-length gown of white satin and chrysanthemum lace over white satin with inset lace panels, a bolero with long sleeves and Peter Pan collar trimmed with iridescent beads and baby seed pearls. Her fingertip veil of nylon tulle was held by a bullet headdress encrusted with sequins and seed pearls. She carried a nosegay of pink roses with satin streamers.

Miss Barbara Green, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Peashe McCormack, were bridesmaids, attired in waltz-length gowns of pink and blue net with Chantilly lace over satin with matching headdresses. They carried nosegays of yellow and white 'mums with satin streamers.

Mr. Harman Vickers, Meaford, was groomsman. Mr. Elden Woodcox, brother of the bride, and Mr. Douglas Green, Collingwood, Ont., brother of the groom, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a dinner was served to over 90 guests in the Legion Hall, which was decorated with streamers of white and pink and white bells.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a dress of dusty rose satin back acetate with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother wearing a dress of navy net over pink satin with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The bride's gifts to her attendants, pianist and soloist were five-strand pearl chokers decorated with tiny rhinestones.

The bridegroom's gift to the groomsman and ushers were leather gloves.

For travelling the bride chose an all-wool blue dress with matching accessories and white gardenia corsage.

They will reside in Bancroft.

Guests were present from Thornbury, Meaford, Heathcote, Collingwood, Toronto, Picton, Belleville Concecon, Odessa and Stirling.

On their return, the young couple were tendered a kitchen shower with Mrs. D. C. Stencill and Mrs. Norman Mitchell as hostesses.

PREYED ON BEREAVED

CHICAGO (AP)—Post office inspectors Friday arrested a man who they said preyed on bereaved families by sending them c.o.d. bibles addressed to the deceased. Robert W. McCarthy, 31, officers said, studied lists of death notices published in newspapers and mailed some 100 $1 books at $3 c.o.d. in the name of the deceased. Survivors assumed the deceased had ordered the books and paid for them.

BEAUTY "MUSTS" FOR THE WINTER VACATIONIST

Skiing enthusiasts should guard complexions carefully.

So you've decided to take your two weeks with play during the winter this year? Well, that's fine. It will give you a chance to soak up some sun just when you need it most; and, if you'll learn to relax so as to lose tension lines in your face and get in some exercise that will take up the slack in your posture and the sag in your figure, you can come back looking radiant and younger—literally a changed woman.

But you'll have to use good sense about it all. If you spend the other 50 weeks of the year indoors, perhaps at a desk, if is silly to think of yourself as an outdoor girl simply because you suddenly have the leisure to be out of doors. So don't plan a strenuous program of exercise. Instead, concentrate on a determinedly mild course of action. If you're going south, don't try to crowd a whole season's sunning, swimming, golf, tennis, or what-have-you into one 16-day period and, if you're going north to ski, try to remember that you're not training for the Olympics. Take it easy!

And, speaking of going north, try to remember, too, that overexposure to sun and wind can be just as unpleasant in frigid climes as it is in the tropics. In fact, it can be even worse where beauty is concerned since wintry weather may result in flaky, itchy skin, in chafed, roughened spots and skin pulled taut by the change in climate. Don't let this happen to you, for use it lavishly if you want to come back looking prettier than you did when you went away. Happy vacation!

Protect your skin no matter where you're going. Whether at the beach or on the ski slopes, keep it from drying with one of the numerous lotions, oils, creams or "sticks" you can find at your cosmetics counter. You may find that your all-purpose lotion does best by you, or you may have discovered a special oil which not only protects your skin and keeps it soft and pliable, but allows more leeway in your acquisition of a beautiful tan. Or you may want to try a special wind and weather lotion which contains silicone and hexachlorophene, both fine safeguards against chapping. There is a wide choice and you can please yourself. But whatever cream or lotion you choose, be sure to smooth it on generously before you step outside. Your skin is one of the chief attributes of a beautiful woman. And you surely want to look your loveliest while on vacation, don't you?

New Nutrition Knowledge Changes Cooking Habits

By Mary Moore

"Dear Mrs. Moore: After reading your article Casual Cookie Recipes minus white flour . . . I just had to tell you of my experience with whole wheat flour. . . . I've been using whole wheat flour for baking, etc. for over a year now and my family enjoys it all. I even use whole-wheat flour for pie pastry and again used the whole wheat flour and brown sugar for your 1855 Fruit cake. The pastry has a delicious flavor and is never tough. The fruit cake is a huge success. Brown sugar and honey are the only sweeteners used in this house. I always substitute whole wheat flour and brown sugar in any recipe I use . . . for example in your chocolate nut recipe and your date pinwheels . . . someone said "I would be afraid to change a recipe like the fruit cake," but I have lots of nerve. So . . . mothers with growing children should not be afraid to bake with whole wheat flour and brown sugar or honey, for mine, if have six, think it's "tops"—Katherine G."

Thank you Katherine, for taking up the torch.

While I know there are plenty of knowing, probing nutritionseeking cooks in our audience there are many more who are too timid to try the coming-more-as-the-sun-rises nutritional recipes. I want you to be able to say in the future "Mary Moore was giving us those years ago."

Here are some more recipes minus white flour and white sugar.

COTTAGE CHEESE PANCAKES
(No white flour)

One cup moist cottage cheese, 2 well-beaten eggs, 1-3 tablespoons honey or dark brown sugar, 1-2 cup whole wheat flour, 1-2 teaspoon each baking powder and salt, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, dash of nutmeg. Sift together dry ingredients, tipping little bran flakes left in sifter into mix too. Add the well-beaten eggs to which have been added the cheese, rind, nutmeg and honey. Mix well. Bake on hot greased griddle, turning over when top is full of bubbles. Serve with a teaspoon of sour cream or a little honey.

CORNMEAL DUMPLINGS

One cup cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 1-3 cups boiling water, 1-2 teaspoon grated onion, 1 or 2 teaspoons chopped parsley, 2 eggs slightly beaten, 1-4 cup sifted whole wheat flour. Combine cornmeal and salt and stir slowly into rapidly boiling water. Remove from heat and cool until smooth. Add remaining ingredients except flour. Mix well. Sprinkle the flour on wax paper. Drop the batter by small spoonfuls into it and roll them around in it to form balls and pick up the flour. Drop into boiling meat or chicken stew. Cover tightly, and cook ten minutes.

HONEY CUSTARD

To 2 cups scalded milk add 4 tablespoons honey and stir these into 2 beaten eggs or 4 beaten egg yolks. Strain into individual custard cups. Stand in pan of hot water and bake at 325 deg. F. 30 minutes or until set. Cool quickly. Serve cold. If baked in large dish 2 whole eggs or 6 yolks must be used.

ARREST PERON AIDE

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Government sources Friday said Vittorio Felipe Radeglia, self-styled private secretary of Juan D. Peron, was arrested Wednesday while trying to enter Argentina from Paraguay. The Argentine press called Radeglia the ringleader of a Peronista campaign to harass the provisional Argentine government.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

GIVE YOUR CHILDREN A CHANCE TO FACE REALITY

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

When our children were small—our daughter is now nearly 15 and our son 17—my husband and I always tried to use the fairy tale method of telling them the facts about life and marriage. As a result, they have grown older believing that everyone, some day, meets their "prince" or "princess," then marries and lives "happily ever after."

Fortunately, they have grown up in a happy home where father and mother were devoted to each other, and most of their friends have the same kind of homes. So they have always taken it for granted that when people marry they really do love each other for keeps, and that everything they can to make each other happy.

But now, after 15 years of marriage, my husband's brother walked out on his wife and three children because he wanted to marry another woman, with whom, it then came out, he had been living for three previous years. The children know there is trouble of some kind in that home, and are giving us a hard time with questions.

So far, we have given them evasive answers, but I don't think we can go on that way indefinitely. Yet we are afraid their whole outlook on life may be affected if they learn the truth.

Is there any way we can protect them form the disillusionment of discovering that not all married people live up to the high standards in which they have been taught to believe? — Mrs. W.

Dear Mrs. W.:

Whether it will be a comfort or a shock to you, I can't say, of course, but I doubt very much if those two young people of yours are, by this time, quite as innocent—or should I say ignorant?—as you imagine. It would be almost impossible for a modern girl or a modern boy could reach the ages of 15 and 17 respectively and still believe "fairy tales." Don't these young people look at newspapers, listen to radio, watch TV, talk with other teenagers who may not have been brought up in quite so sheltered a manner?

All that aside, however, you have a choice , now, but to tell the children the truth about this situation that has arisen in your family. Sooner or later, they are bound to discover just what has happened, and then—if we are to assume they are innocent as you believe—they will have not only the hard facts of life itself to face, but the disillusionment of finding out that you withheld the facts from them.

What you and your husband should do next time questions are asked, is to sit down with your son and daughter and tell them you feel it is only fair that they should be told of the tragic unhappiness that has come to their uncle's family; that you prefer them to hear it from your, rather than from outsiders.

Then you can explain that your own happy marriage is the way the love of a man and woman should normally turn out, and it will do so if each of them has the right attitude toward the other and toward the responsibilities of life in general. Then add that when either husband or wife fails in these respects, there can be no happy marriage; that the door is left open for tragedy to come in.

If you do this in the right way, it cannot possibly harm the young people. Rather, it can result only in good by giving them a more sane and sensible viewpoint toward the realities of life, and by showing them the vital importance of developing in themselves the qualities that will make them happy and successful marital partners.

DONATE BLOOD

MONTREAL (CP) — The Red Cross announced Friday night that prisoners in St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary had donated 903 pints of blood in four days.

Mother's Helper

THOSE holiday cards you saved from last year can be dug out now to serve a brand new purpose. Let your children make gift tags from them, by cutting out appropriate designs and "sentiments." They'll like selecting special pictures for certain special packages, too.

COCKTAIL FORK PLACED AT RIGHT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last week I went to a luncheon where the first course was a shrimp cocktail, and the small cocktail fork was at the extreme right of the plate. I had always thought that all forks should be placed at the left of the plate. Was my hostess right, or am I? — R.M.

Your hostess was right. The small cocktail fork is placed at the extreme right of the plate that is, to the right of the spoons and knives. This small cocktail fork is the only exception to the rule that forks are placed at the left of the plate.

PERMISSIBLE ATTIRE FOR MEN IN WEDDING PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is planning to be married next month, and we would like to know the correct attire for him to wear. This is to be an early morning church wedding. A small wedding, and not formal. The bride is to wear a white wedding dress and bridal veil. — F.O.

For this type of wedding the groom and men of the wedding party may properly wear dark blue suits, even when the bride wears a wedding dress and veil. (Of course, the groom wishes, the men in the wedding party may wear semi-formal day attire: short Oxford jacket, striped trousers, and appropriate accessories.)

A DISCOURTESY TO THEIR HOSTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

About a month ago my husband and I gave a small informal dinner. Our guests were two married couples who did not know one another. We were delighted to see that the two couples were very much attracted to each other, and we all had a wonderful time. But yesterday I heard that one of the couples, a man and wife we'd met last summer while we were on our vacation, had invited the other couple to dinner at their house. I must confess that I was deeply hurt that they hadn't invited us, and really I consider this most discourteous to us, since they had met through us. My husband maintains I'm too "fussy" about this, and think there was no reason why they should have invited us. What do you think, Mrs. Beeckman? — Reader

I completely agree with your point of view about the social procedure of these guests of yours, and I completely disagree with your husband's point of view. In my judgment it is a distinct discourtesy to invite a new acquaintance without including also the person or persons in whose house the acquaintance was made. A guest who has a proper sense of courtesy always respects this social obligation, and you are quite right to expect that your guests should have included you and your husband in their first invitation to the couple they met at your house. (This social rule applies, of course, to the first invitation after the making-of-the-acquaintanceship.)

Alec Guinness Is Greatest Box Office Draw in America

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—On the list of Britain's most valuable exports the name of Alec Guinness must rank somewhere between scotch whisky and Harris tweed.

The star of such delightfully British comedies as "The Lavender Hill Mob" and "The Man in the White Suit" has earned for Britain some $20,000 in United States currency. Some theatre then say he is the greatest foreign box office draw ever to hit North America.

The calibre of his comedy is so high that he often has been hailed as the modern Chaplin. Yet he is well known for his "Hamlet" and "Richard III" and other serious work.

Every major Hollywood studio has been trying for years to lure Guinness, especially since that $20,000,000 gross was mostly accomplished via United audiences in big-city art theatres. Now he is here—making "The Swan" with Grace Kelly.

MEATY COMEDY

"The Swan" is a romantic comedy based on Ferenc Molnar's play. In it, Guinness plays a worldweary prince in search of a wife. It has some meaty Guinness comedy sequences.

Guinness was born in London in 1914 and was a schoolboy in Eastbourne when the acting virus infected him. He tried out for a part in a school play but was told by his teacher: "You wouldn't be any good at acting, Guinness!"

But Guinness after leaving school moved into an attic, ate beans and drank weak tea to pay his tuition in a drama school.

His first job prophetically called for him to play a Chinese coolie in act one: a French pirate in act two and a British sailor in act three.

After his wartime years as commander of an escort ship he wrote a screen adaptation of Dickens' "Great Expectations." He starred in that to make his screen debut in 1946. Next came Fagin in "Oliver Twist."

After the two Dickens' roles came "Kind Hearts and Coronets." made in 1948. This was the picture that established Guinness' amazing versatility and made him an international celebrity. It was a British satire on murder in which the murderer did away with all the heirs, all of whom looked like Guinness. In fact, they were all Guinness. He played eight different roles in the film, both male and female.

Although "Kind Hearts and Coronets" brought him international stardom, it is not his favorite picture. "The Man in the White suit," a spoof about the inventor of a white cloth that wouldn't get dirty, rates best with him.

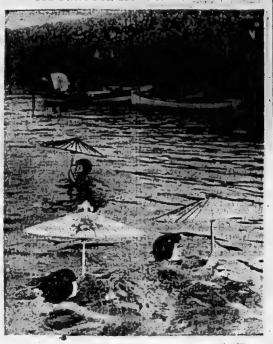
Those comedy hits, plus "The Lavender Hill Mob," were so successful that Guinness got himself in what he calls a comedy rut. Being versatile, he doesn't want to stay in any rut longer than he can help.

His latest picture is "The Prisoner," a thinly veiled account of the imprisonment of Cardinal Mindzenty. Guinness plays the cardinal.

"This is quite grim," he confesses.

Guinness will do lots more comedy. In fact, "The Swan" is sophisticated Guinness comedy at its best, if a showing of rushes is any indication. But he will do serious work too, probably more Shakespeare.

Welles Turns Two Bad Ankles Into Triumph



NEW YORK (AP)—Orson Welles turned two bad ankles into a triumph Saturday night. He all but convinced an audience that chromium wheel chairs were commonplace in ancient Britain.

Welles broke his ankle at a preview of a new production of "King Lear" at the New York City Center and played the opening night performance Thursday with the ankle in a plaster cast.

After that performance, he stumbled and sprained the other ankle. Friday night ticketholders were given their choice of getting their money back or staying to hear Welles, on a bare stage, recite passages from the play. Only a few hundred out of 2,000 left the theatre.

At curtain-time a well - filled house heard Welles speak from the dark stage, telling of Lear, "an old man full of troubles," and explaining that this particular Lear had added a few more, His resounding portrayal of the grieving and maddened old king soon overshadowed the wheelchair.

ICY SWIM FOR SPIRITUAL TRAINING

Parasol-holding Japanese youngsters put on a ballet-like performance while swimming with one hand during the traditional mid-winter swim in Tokyo for "spiritual and physical training." Thousands of persons lined the banks of the Nakagawa canal to watch some 40 persons including a 74-year-old man dive into the icy waters. The swim was abandoned during the war years and was resumed in 1952. — Central Press Canadian.

LOWESTOFT, England (AP)—Britain delivered Friday the first ship built for the Soviet Union since the war. It is the 190-foot Arctic Pioneer built at the Brooke Marine Ltd. yard as one of 20 on a contract amounting to $16,800,000. It accommodates 44 officers and men.

Little Benny's Notebook

I went to the market for ma, and there was 8 cents change, and I asked ma if I could keep it without actually expecting her to say I could.

Which she didn't saying, Have you forgotten the rule about giving ma my change promply and cheerfully without any useless conversation on the subject?

No maam, I said, and she said, Then dont you think it's extreemely silly to ask a question when you are perfectly well aware what the answer will be?

Well G, ma, that dont prevent me from inJoying the question just the same, I said. How can I tell when a miracle is going to happen? I said, and ma said, The poorhouse is full of people still sitting around in rags expecting miracles. This constant and continuous asking for the change is simply a habit, nothing but a conformed habit, she said.

Well then gosh, ma, how do you know it's not just a habit with you to say No every time? I said. Jiminies, ma, you might suddinly get the habit of saying Yes instead, and that would be a kind of a miracle, I said, and she said, It certainly would.

Then let's keep on experimenting, ma and if it actually really happens, you'll believe in miracles too, I said, and ma said, No, a hundred times no. There, I've said No for the next hundred times in advance, she said.

Aw ma, that's no fair, I said. Take it back, ma, just make it mean No for this one time, I said, and she said, Well all right, but only on the condition that you hand over my change without another word and then immeedilly make yourself conspicuous by your absents, she said.

Which I did feeling partly lucky.

Dutchies Leave for Cortini 'Good Team, Sure Can Win'

Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen left on their transatlantic plane hop Sunday quietly confident they will retain the Olympics hockey championship for Canada.

Just before the big Super Constellation TCA liner rose from Montreal airport at 3:28 p.m., the Dutchies' little French-Canadian goalie summed up the feeling of his teammates.

"We have a good team and I am sure we can win," said Montrealer Denis Brodeur. "We have a great bunch of forwards."

That was pretty much the opinion, too, of coach Bobby Bauer, one-time star with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

"I think we have a good club," said Bauer. "We have always stressed fundamentals with the boys, especially a good defence. Up front we are a passing team and we do plenty of forechecking. I think that's the style of play that can best any team we meet in the Olympics."

NOT TOO WORRIED

Bauer indicated he wasn't overly worried about the loss of six games by his players before they turned back Windsor 5-2 Saturday night in a scheduled Ontario Hockey Association game.

He figured his boys had been thinking plenty about this Olympics trip to Cortina, Italy, where the winter Games open late this month, and making sure they didn't get injured. Who would want to be hurt and left behind?

A motorcade of 100 or more automobiles accompanied the team from Kitchener earlier Sunday to Malton airport near Toronto. There was a pipe band to enliven the send-off.

When the plane reached Montreal at 1:04 p.m., there was a welcoming delegation on hand. It included councillor Charles Mayer, representing Mayor Jean Drapeau, officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, Ken Farmer, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, and A. Sidney Dawes, past president of the COA.

INCLUDED OFFICIALS

Flying with the Dutchies from Toronto were W.B. (Baldy) George of Kemptville, Ont., past president of the CAHA, and Jimmy Dunn of Winnipeg, current CAHA president. Dunn will accompany the team overseas.

Bob LeBel of Montreal, who will succeed Dunn in 1957, was on hand to represent the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association.

There were scores of others, including a few members of the players' families, friends and well-wishers.

Immediately after their arrival the players were entertained at luncheon, with representatives of the press, radio and television on Montreal as hosts.

The luncheon was a gala affair, at which centre Bob White of the Dutchmen led his mates in a sing song. White had left his ukelele behind but a substitute was supplied by TCA.

During the short stay in Montreal coach Bauer was the busiest man of the party, kept busy with TV, radio and newspaper men. Bauer singled out one player on whom he is particularly high. He said that defenceman Bill McKenzie could make any team in the NHL. He's a teacher at Preston high school.

"There's a player who has one of the hardest shots of anyone I've ever seen," said Bauer. "He's tops."

Basketball

VERDUN, Que. (CP)—University of Toronto Blues, cashing in on a pair of goals each by Ken Linssman and Brian Anderson, defeated the University of Montreal Carabins 6-3 in a senior Intercollegiate Hockey League game Saturday night.

QUEBEC (CP)—Bob Lafreniere scored two goals and helped get two others to lead Laval University to a 5-2 triumph over McGill University Redmen Sunday in the senior Intercollegiate Hockey League.

HAMILTON (CP) — Assumption College Purple Raiders defeated McMaster University Marauders 69-59 Saturday in McMaster's opening game of the intercollegiate basketball schedule.

Assumption's B squad Crusaders made it a double victory for the Windsor college by lashing McMaster Buccaneers 74-54 in a preliminary contest.

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Northtown 98's walloped Windsor Assumption College Purple Raiders 94-72 Sunday in the first of two home-and-home exhibition games.

Northtown, led by forward George Stulac, outran and outscored Windsor, leading the Raiders 37-29 at the end of the first half and adding 57 points in the second. Stulac, top sniper for the Torontonians, scored 25 points—12 in the first half and 13 in the last half.

MONTREAL (CP) — Forward Chris Ellis and centre Ray Mondou notched 49 points between them Saturday night to lead the University of Western Ontario Mustangs to a comfortable 83-48 senior intercollegiate Basketball League victory over McGill Redmen.

LAUNCH SURVEY

OTTAWA (CP)—A national survey of Canadian coaches and sports facilities was launched Saturday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Sports Advisory Council.

East All-Stars Edge West 31-30

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The magnificent running of Ollie Matson, topped by a 81-yard runback of a kickoff, proved the difference as the East defeated the West 31-30 in a rousing Pro Bowl football game Sunday.

This was professional football at its finest and wildest, unrecked be fore. SLIDE—fans, in the sixth annual post-season all-star game, featuring the top players in the National Football League.

Halfback Jack Christiansen of Detroit Lions set the tone of what was to come when he took the opening kickoff for the West and raced back 103 yards for a touchdown.

Thrills mounted as the tide of the game shifted from one team to the other but the amazing breakaway ability of Matson, the 210-pound Chicago Cardinal running star, dominated the outcome.

Matson fought his way 12 yards for another touchdown, and his 30-yard runback of a punt set up what proved to be the winning touchdown. The field goal specialists also had their place. Lou (The Toe) Groza of the champion Cleveland Browns kicked one for 20 yards and Bert Rechichar of Baltimore Colts contributed one of 46 yards.

Dutchies Arrive In Scotland

PRESTWICK, Scotland (CP)—Canada's Olympic hockey team, Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, arrived here today on the first leg of the journey to Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy.

The 40-person party, including 17 supporters, will remain overnight in Scotland, where the Dutchmen will play Paisley Pirates in an exhibition match. The Canadians leave Tuesday for Prague, for exhibition games against the Czechs.

Sarnia Imps Lose Sponsor

SARNIA (CP)—Sarnia Imperial Athletic Association announced Sunday night it is dropping its sponsorship of Sarnia Imperials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

The announcement by Cliff Parsons, association manager, said the step was taken after the ORFU annual meeting in Toronto Friday and Saturday. Unless somebody else picks up the franchise, the Imps' withdrawal will leave only Toronto Beaches and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen remaining in the loop.

It was reported to the Saturday meeting that St. Catharines and Peterborough were interested in joining the league and a Feb. 25 deadline was set to consider applications. The Imperials' statement said the decision to quit was made "after due consideration in respect to the fact there were no representatives of additional clubs at the ORFU annual meeting."

Minor Hockey

Tight scores featured the bantam hockey games on Saturday morning with the Bruins defeating the Canadiens 4-2, Maple Leafs edging the Black Hawks 4-3 while the Red Wings squeezed by the Rangers 3-1.

Bucky Ethier and Zahos each fired one goal in the Red Wings triumph with assists for Hull, G. Scott and Duggan. Bob Fullwell tallied the lone Ranger goal, an unassisted marker.

McKenzie and Hiller accounted for all the Bruin goals, two each. Hallam and Boulger claimed assists. Montford and Harvey were the Canadiens scorers while Weston and Mavety drew assists.

Wilson led the Leafs to victory with two goals and one assist while Latimer helped on a pair. The other scorers were Larry Rowbotham, and N. Johnstone with Phillips assisting on one. Boulter had a goal and assist in defeat with Moore and J. Sborvidan also scoring.

The bantam all-stars will not practise this week but will hold their next workout on Tuesday, January 24 from 4.15 to 5.15 p.m.

WINS SQUASH TITLE

MONTREAL (CP)—Roshan Khan of Pakistan Sunday won the first Canadian open squash championship, defeating Diehl Mateer of Philadelphia 9-15, 15-8, 18-15 and 15-3.

Khan's ability to cover all sections of the court and make well-placed returns from any position, proved too much for Mateer.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

SENIOR "B" HOCKEY

The top teams in the senior "B" group showed no inclination to allow the upstarts from the lower bracket to muscle in on their territory Saturday night. Goodyears crashed a four-game losing streak at the expense of our side, defeating the TPT's 7-3, while up Whitby way the Dunlops taught the cocky Brockville Maggies a punk lesson with an 11-8 drubbing. It was the Maggies' first defeat in five starts and worth four points to the hitherto-sticking Goodyears.

Bellringer carolled the goal-getting chimes with an outstanding scoring-hitting performance for the Goodies, crashing the TPT's citadel no less than four times. Hub Macey, who used to bump 'em for Belleville, turned on his old pals from an up-front position and rapped in two goals and assisted on four others. 2,500 saw the fray which was a typical hard-fought Belleville-Kingston battle. The Treps entertain the Brockville Maggies on Friday night and that should be a must for fandom. The Treps had better start counting wins from here in for they have only 15 games to go, less than the other teams with the possible exception of the Dunlops.

Penalties and injuries did not help the cause of the Coxmen. Three of the Goodies goals were scored when the Treps man-shy, two of them coming when two were in the hoosegow. Tony Parisi suffered a painful gash in the mouth midway through the game and was replaced in the nets by Turk Barclay.

WEEKEND HODGE PODGE

The new five-team Bay of Quinte intermediate basketball league gets under actional way tonight with Trenton meeting RCAF at the latter's court . . . Mac Dolan's pipe-smoking Belleville entry and hopes to have a strong representative squad. The city team stages its inaugural against RCAF here tomorrow night . . . Secretary Ken Yorke of the Belleville District Fish and Game Association has readied a fine program for the association annual meeting scheduled for the YMCA tomorrow night. There will be an hour's showing of film depicting sport and other highlights of Newfoundland. Among other items on the agenda is the election of officers. All sportsmen, members and others are requested to be on hand. Starts eight o'clock . . . Columbian Hose have gone into print stating that his Whitby Dunlops will ask the OHA if it is interested in the Dunnies going senior "A" next year. A formal application hinges on the association's revision of the intermediate schedule with the northern "A" teams, which OHA president Frank Buckland said will be in order next year, gave the Dunnies something to think about. . . . Costs money to travel and eat meals and provide more than this . . . Whitby will be being rated one of the "finds of the season" up around Guelph way. Gerry is piling up quite a point-scoring record and like brother Vern is developing into a "Mr. Pulaco" around the enemy nets. He has something like 16 goals and more assists thus far since starting his junior "A" career with the Biltmores . . . Coach "Bosher" Lloyd says there will be no practice for his bantam All Stars this week, but wants all the lads at the arena a week Tuesday, January 24th . . . Kingston's Don Murray has drawn up even at the top of the senior "B" scoring race, with Bobby Attersley of the Whitby Dunlops . . . That was of last Friday. Attersley may have pulled into the lead again after Saturday night's Whitby 11-2 drubbing of the Brockville Magedomas. . . . The Duncan twins appear to have come into their scoring own. Erwin has been hitting the hemp regularly and has pulled himself into a top ten berth . . . Belleville's Vern Goyer is a point below the charmed circle . . . The Cornwall sports editor does not go along with the management's idea of turning the Colts into a senior "A" squad. Said he after the results of the meeting last week: "After the high-sticking duels and ear-chewing episodes among other things, it's a wonder the OHA brass did not put the senior "B" loop into a lower category instead of advising it to remain what it is." . . . Due to an error of information the Goodies' Don Murray was reported being on even terms with Bobby Attersley for the senior "B" scoring lead. Macey should have been credited with a goal instead of Murray, who trails Attersley 47-48.

Dutchies 'the Team to Beat' Admits Russian Hockey Coach

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—The coach of the Russian Olympic hockey team expects Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen to be "the team to beat" in the Games.

"However," A. Chernykov added Sunday, "the United States, Czechoslovakia and Sweden also have strong teams. About ourselves, we will know more after our game with Canada."

Chernykov spoke after working out his team in a fast-shooting session. The Russians played hard for two hours, showing great speed and precision and shooting with power seldom seen here.

Dutchmen aren't on hand yet, but they're on their way.

The way the weather is acting, the hockey players, who have the advantage of artificially frozen ice, are about the only athletes with a fair chance of working into proper condition.

With just 10 days to go before the Games open here, the 15-inch snow cover is melting and there isn't enough ice on the bob run to move a sled an inch.

The bobsledders are grounded and the skiers are close to it.

The natives all are saying:

"This is unseasonable, most unseasonable."

But natives of Lake Placid, N.Y.; Garmisch - Partenkirchen, Germany; St. Moritz, Switzerland, and Oslo, Norway, said the same thing when "unseasonable" weather put the crimps in practice plans for previous Olympics.

"This thaw is just what you can expect," smiled Avery Brundage, the U.S. bobsled coach. "I call this Olympic weather. In 1932 at Lake Placid, the schedule was interrupted by warm weather. In 1936, in Germany, we had warm weather.

"In 1948 at St. Moritz, there was a thaw something like this one. In Norway four years ago, there wasn't enough snow for some of the ski events."

Canada and the U.S. invariably are the bully boys of Olympic hockey. They body check and play rougher than most Europeans.

The Russians play the European system, but Chernykov refused to be drawn into a debate about body checking.

"We prefer to call body checking tough, not rough," he observed.

The Russians have the same team—except for three men—which lost to Canada's Penticton Vs last year in the world championships. Since picking the three newcomers, the Russians have won 14 and lost 1.

TWO IN A ROW

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Tony Trabert defeated Pancho Gonzales, 6-0, 9-11, 6-3, Sunday, making it two in a row over his fellow professional tourist for the first time. Gonzales now leads the tour, 12 matches to six.

Detroit, Bruins Zero Leaders In Sensational Goalie Upset; Wings Keep Pace With 2 Wins;

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An untried rookie stepped into an exciting new role and engineered the biggest upset of the National Hockey League season during the weekend. He did it against the team for which he is a practice goaltender.

Claude Pronovost, 20-year-old second-string defenceman for Montreal Royals of the Quebec Hockey League and practice goalie for Montreal Canadiens, was pressed into action Saturday for the tail-end Boston Bruins. He shut out the leading Canadiens 2-0 at Montreal.

Another rookie, Glenn Hall of Detroit Red Wings, continued his home-ice mastery over the Habs Sunday by spoiling Dominique Provost's feat as Wings handed Montreal a second straight 2-0 loss.

New York Rangers took two wins over the weekend to slash Habs' lead to seven points. Saturday at Toronto, they hung on in the final minute to nip Maple Leafs 6-5. Harry Worsley registered his fourth shutout of the term Sunday as New York defeated Black Hawks 2-0 at Chicago.

In other weekend games, Detroit beat Hawks 3-1 Saturday at St. Louis and Leafs won their second road game of the season Sunday with a 4-1 win at Boston before 4,958 fans.

Pronovost, a brother to Marcel Pronovost of Detroit, ended up in the Bruins' nets when regular goalie Jim Henderson, called up from Hershey Bears of the American League to replace the injured Terry Sawchuk on the Boston goalie, couldn't play because his equipment was being used in New York and nothing could be turned up that would fit the lanky Henderson.

Pronovost was the emergency goaltender Friday night, a designation required under NHL rules in case of injury or other mishap to the regular goalie of either competing team.

Montreal coach Toe Blake said Sunday night:

"You should have seen the look on Claude's face when he found out what he was going to do—play against us.

MADE HIM SHAKY

"He's our practice goalie and was in our dressing room when we told him he would have to play Saturday night. He looked at me and asked: 'What's wrong with Jacques (Plante)? I told him nothing; that 'e (Pronovost) was going to play for Boston. He was stunned and got shaky. I guess he was afraid what Montreal fans might do, but as it turned out he didn't have a thing to worry about."

Jean Beliveau of Montreal, tied with Detroit's Gordie Howe for the NHL scoring lead, said of young Pronovost:

"He played it real smart all the way. He had some tough saves and handled every one of them right."

While Pronovost was displaying his ability before an amazed crowd of 13,503, with 31 saves, defenceman Leo Boivin and forward Lorne Ferguson scored to snap Bruins out of an 11-game winless streak in which they had lost their last eight games.

HALL'S NINTH

Hall worked his ninth shutout of the season Sunday and his second straight 2-0 blanking over Canadiens at Detroit Olympia, where a crowd of 14,988 fans saw third-period Wings draw to within 10 points of the league-leaders. Canadiens have 67 points, Rangers 50 and Wings 47.

Earl (Dutch) Reibel scored both goals in the third period, his ninth and 10th of the campaign. His first, at 1:52, was a goal-mouth deflection of Doug Kelly's 40-foot blast while Bernie Geoffrion was serving a misconduct penalty. Reibel's second marker was at 11:51.

Toronto Maple Leafs scored three goals within 56 seconds late in the final period Saturday to cut Rangers' lead to 6-5. They couldn't get the equalizer although goaltender Harry Lumley was benched in favor of an extra forward over the final two minutes.

Dean Prentice fired two Ranger goals and singles went to Ron Murphy, Bill Gadsby, Dave Creighton and Broncos Horvath. Billy Harris, Gordie Hannigan and Tod Sloan scored the other Toronto goals.

In the Sunday game at Chicago, Worsley, who had been warned by the Ranger brass last Friday that if his play didn't improve he would be sent to the minors, handled 30 shots. Hank Bassen, rookie Black Hawk netminder, made 23.

Pete Conacher took a pass from Murray Hogg to send the New Yorkers into the lead midway through the first period. Creighton teamed with Andy Hebenton for the second goal at the nine-minute mark of the second frame.

A crowd of 10,780 turned up to welcome Hawks back from a month long road trip.

Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay, united briefly Saturday night, clicked for the goal that broke a 1-1 tie late in the third period as Wings snapped Chicago's winstreak at two games.

They were broken up earlier in the season to give better balance to the Wings' attack. Lindsay passed to Howe as Detroit put on the pressure to break the deadlock. It was Howe's 22nd goal.

Norm Ullman gave Wings a 1-0 lead in the second period before Johnny Wilson tied it on a rebound at 1:45 of the final stanza. Marcel Pronovost added a Detroit insurance tally at 19:24 when he slid through the unguarded net after Bassen had been benched for an extra forward.

Stan Mikita made the league's goal-scoring lead Sunday as he banged in his 24th marker of the season. He has one more than Beliveau.

Dick Duff, Ron Stewart and Rudy Migay scored the other Leaf goals while Don McKenney gave Boston a temporary 1-1 tie in the first period.

Middlecoff Wins 'Bing' Tourney On Muddy Course

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Dr. Cary Middlecoff is one of the greatest mudders in golfing history.

The lean Tennesseean slopped over Pebble Beach's 6,701 rain-drenched yards in a spectacular four-under-par 68 Sunday to win the second straight Bing Crosby Pro-Amateur golf tournament with a record-shattering 202 for the 54 holes.

"It was one of the greatest, yes, probably the greatest game I ever played," Middlecoff said. "I don't think I made a bad shot all day."

His card proved he was about as right as he could be. He had six birdies and only two one over pars. Even many of the greens specialist's inch-deep puddles and most of the fairways were ankle deep in low spots.

Middlecoff's 202 was worth top prize money of $2,500 and gave him a good start toward honors for the year on the pro circuit.

WON IT A YEAR AGO

A year ago he won the tournament in combination equality as had but his score was a not-so-exciting 209.

The 202 was 14 strokes under par.

Trailing the Memphis dentist was Mike Souchak, with a par 72 for a total of 207, Bob Rosburg of San Francisco, who went into the final 18 holes tied with Middlecoff, blew to a 77 for a 211 which earned him a tie for third with Dutt Ogden of Chicago.

Al Balding of Toronto tied for 11th place with three other golfers, at 216, shooting a 75 to go with his 69-71-72 scores.

Vancouver finished at 70-74-75—219 and Gerry Kesseling of Kitchener, Ont., carded a 74-71-72—221.

Other Canadians were eliminated before the final round.

Ben Hogan, who came out of retirement to pair with Bing Crosby in the Pro-Amateur, tumbled to 81 for a 223. He and Crosby tied for 10th in the Pro-Am with 196.

Teeps, Canucks Swap Junior Top Marlies Whip Bilts, Take Over Fourth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Teepees took over sole possession of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League during the weekend—but only for a few hours.

Teepees defeated Toronto St. Michael's Majors 5-3 Saturday night to break a deadlock with Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks but the Canucks climbed back into the tie Sunday when they took a 7-6 thriller from Marlies.

In the first game of the weekly Sunday doubleheader at Toronto, before a crowd of 6,003 fans, Toronto Marlboros defeated Guelph Biltmores 8-4 to go into fourth place.

Canucks, who have played one game less than Teepees, and St. Catharines have 35 points each, three more than St. Michael's, Marlboros have 31 points, followed by Guelph with 29, Barrie Flyers with 25 and last-place Hamilton Cubs with 23.

The line of Ab McDonald, Art Stratton and Bob Carter fired four of Teepees goals as 3,672 fans watched St. Catharines take a 4-0 lead by the middle of the first period and hold a 4-1 margin when the stanza ended. Teepees scored the only goal of the second while Majors tallied twice in the third.

Stratton scored two goals and set up another. McDonald and Carter each had one goal with McDonald getting three assists and Carter two. Elmer Vasko was the other marksman for the winners. Dick Foster, Gino Ubriaco and Bob Watt counted for St. Michael's.

Referee Hugh Barlow of Hamilton handed out 10 minor penalties and 10 majors. Eight of the majors came in the third period when a free-for-all broke out.

Centre Stan Baluik picked up six scoring points—two goals and four assists—Sunday to lead Canucks to their win. Baluik's production put him in a tie with McDonald for the lead in the individual scoring race, each with 58 points.

Kingston Strengthens 2nd Place; Defeats TPTs 7-3; Brockville Beaten

Break 4-Game Losing Streak As Goodfellow, Macey Star; Whitby Drubs Magedomas

KINGSTON (Special) — Don Bellringer and "Tiny" Macey shared top honors in Kingston Goodyears' 7 to 3 conquest of the Belleville Flyers in the Community Memorial Centre on Saturday night. Aligned with George MacGregor, who went pointless, Bellringer surpassed the "hat trick" with four goals, the while the elusive Macey, ex Belleville defenceman, became a playmaker de luxe with four assists and two tallies. The result tightened the champions' hold on second place as Brockville was thumped 11-3 by Whitby.

Macey, Bellringer and George MacGregor, Kingston's second string line for the night, struck quickly after making their initial appearance and in a space of 4 seconds Bellringer and Macey assisting shot the locals into a two-goal advantage. But in the six-minute mark a lift shot by Jake Wade cut Bellringer's face so severely that the shifty left winger received a six stitch gash.

Following resumption of play the visitors took command and grasped dividends when Wade aided by Chum Fryia scored at 6.25 and Mac White at 9.27. Penalties to Bob Londry, Sammy Mulholland, Wade and Bill McMaster followed and the two last named were still away when Macey, assisted by Bob Senior and Ted Nicholson, lifted the locals into a 3 to 2 lead.

Near the close of the session Joe Levandoski and Bob Wilson collided with Bellringer and the former absorbed a head injury that required six stitches. The Belles, exhibiting plenty of desire, boutshot the tilleholders in that round 11 to 8.

Bob Senior, instead of Don Murray, was at centre between Ted Toppazzini and George Samolenko when the second period began. Big Vernon Goyer opened the tallying and forced a 3-3 deadlock at the three minute mark after Mac White engineered the attack. At that stage the outcome appeared to be in doubt and the status quo was not disturbed until another goal by Bellringer at 9.33 and the injury that forced "Tony" Parisi out of the game at 10.15 hit the Coxmen two telling blows.

Don Barclay, former junior B star, replaced Parisi and made many saves in a losing cause. He was beaten three times but had many more shots to handle than had Parisi. The visitors, weakening under sustained pressure had little sting in their attack and, a la the old soldiers, they just faded away after Bellringer notched his fourth goal at 11.37 with Bill McMaster serving a penalty.

The 2,501 fans in attendance saw some exciting action early in the final period when the locals kept hammering at the scoring door before Macey did some adroit stickhandling and beat Barclay at 1.05. That first string line, however, was jolted when Bellringer limped away after hurting an ailing knee.

At 11.07 Tommy Goodfellow drew a penalty for holding the puck in the goal crease and at 12.48 Levandoski joined him following a bit of interference at the expense of Gus Leonard. Pete Jones was banished for holding at 13.55 but neither team mustered a payoff attack until Samolenko with the dipsy doodling Macey assisting, conducted the tallying at 18.28.

Belleville's most effective forward line composed of Vernon Goyer at centre and Keith Macdonald and Mac White on the wings, collected goals and three assists whereas the Peterborough brigade made up of Gus Leonard, "Toodle" Greenlaw and "Chum" Fryia, was restricted to an assist collected by Fryia.

The shots on goal show Kingston superiority 42 to 24. Only stellar cage work prevented the locals from achieving double figures. Bert Brooks made some fine stops but in comparison to Parisi and Barclay he wasn't tested too often. The reversals in form were surprising in that only last Tuesday the Belles whipped the visiting champions by 12 to 7 and at one stage led by 9 to 1.

The hectic battle for second place in the Quebec Hockey League continued in weekend action with both Montreal Royals and the challenging Chicoutimi Sagueneens scoring victories.

Chicoutimi stayed four points behind the Royals by trouncing the league-leading Shawinigan Falls Cataracts 6-2 at Chicoutimi Sunday while the Royals cut down last-place Trois-Rivieres Lions 3-0 at Montreal behind the stellar goalkeeping of Gerry McNeil.

NBA Will Back Smashing of Boxing Guild

CHICAGO (AP)—The executive committee of the National Boxing Association Sunday voted to back Julius Helfand's smashing of the New York Boxing Managers' Guild but took no stand on that group's parent organization, the International Boxing Guild.

The action in a regularly scheduled meeting of 14 representatives from commissions in nine states promised "full support" of the New York state commission's activity, although that group is not an NBA member.

In a three-part resolution, the executive committee took measures to prevent any inroads to another state by a boxing figure denied a New York licence and agreed to uphold "all suspensions and revocations" by any NBA member "or any state in the country."

NBA president Lou Redzienda said there was no consideration given the International Boxing Guild's status and its members would be given licences on the basis of qualification.

Indians Drub Dogs, Take Over Second Dutchies Win Before Record Crowd

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stratford Indians took over second place during the weekend in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League.

Indians broke a tie between themselves and Windsor Bulldogs Sunday at Windsor with an 8-4 drubbing of the Bulldogs.

In other weekend games Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen defeated Windsor 3-2 Saturday before the season's largest crowd, 7,261, at Kitchener while Chatham Maroons and Owen Sound Mercurys played to a 2-2 tie at Owen Sound.

Dutchmen's Saturday game was their last before they left Sunday for Cortina, Italy, to represent Canada in the Olympic hockey tournament. They have played 41 games of their 48-game schedule. The next Dutchmen game in the OHA is scheduled for Feb. 12 at Windsor.

Dutchmen have 48 points, 12 more than Stratford and 14 ahead of third-place Windsor. Owen Sound is in fourth with 32 points, four ahead of last-place Chatham.

Centre Tommy Walker paced Indians to their 8-4 win with three goals, two of them in the second period when Stratford counted five times to erase a 3-0 lead Bulldogs held after the first.

Mickey Roth scored a pair while singles went to Herve deCarly, Harry Frutka and George Aitken. George Gee fired two for Windsor and Jack Armstrong and Ted O'Connor got one each.

Dutchmen shook a losing slump in which they lost seven of eight games and produced a sparkling effort as they outscored Windsor 2-1 in each of the first two periods and counted the lone goal of the third.

Bob Masterson Calgary Stamps New Manager

CALGARY (CP)—Officials of the Calgary Stampeders Football Club announced Sunday night the signing of Bob Masterson, coach of the Toronto Varsity Blues for the last seven years, as manager of the club.

He succeeds Bob Robinett, who held the post for the last three years and whose resignation is effective Feb. 15.

The name of Masterson was mentioned for the job and believe me we were pleasantly surprised when he agreed to come to Calgary for an interview," said Eddie LaBorde, spokesman for the new group directing Stampeder activities.

"He met with us Saturday and it wasn't long before we realized he was our man. He will run the show. He will be over everybody including (coach) Jack Hennemeier."

LANDY STARTLES

MELBOURNE (AP) — John Landy hinted Saturday he will be shooting at his world record 4:02.8 mile again in the early spring, with expectations of matching or beating it.

A pseudo squeeze means a false squeeze. It is a case where a player is not actually squeezed. But he thinks he is. Or is uncertain as to what card to hold until which card to throw away.

You have probably been caught in such a situation more than once. So, you can sympathize with the victim in the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠A 5 4
♥A K 9 2

♣Q 8

South was declarer at a grand slam contract reached on no-trump. North had bid hearts and south had bid clubs before the final bid took them to seven no-trump. So, west was reluctant to lead either. Opening lead from west was the diamond jack, hoping it would do no harm. Or at least less harm than some other lead. Declarer took a look at dummy and you can see what his worries were.

He has eight solid tricks in the minors, two top hearts, and one definite trick in diamonds. What he needs are two more tricks, one of which he can try for with a finesse of the spade queen.

However, there was still a 13th trick to get. Only if opponents make a mistake is it likely. So, he decided to give them a chance to do wrong by serving up the bait.

Dummy was entered with a heart to the king. A finesse of the spade queen was successful. The ten on dummy's diamonds were cashed and so were three clubs, landing in the south hand.

South now led his fourth club and shifted to dummy's spade. Each hand was now down to four cards, east holding two spades and two hearts. South now led the fifth club and sluffed a dummy heart.

Put yourself in east's place. Does south have spade ace and nine or spade ace and heart jack with another? Should east give up the lead in the spades or guard his heart queen?

Not knowing which, east threw his spade and let declarer make the grand slam. We would not have done this. Or would we?

Industrial Hockey

By virtue of a 4-1 victory over Meada, the Ontario Intelligencer pulled into first place over the weekend, one point ahead of Bakelite, Point Anne and Avon. Bakelite leaders are seven points on three wins, one tie and one loss.

Two other games were played with Bakelite whipping Avon 5-1 while Point Anne edged the Odds 4-3 in a tight battle. Point Anne and Bakelite each have two games left to play while the Intelli has only one remaining fixture.

The Intelligencer's victory was a costly one with goal tender Don Dolan receiving a 15-stitch gash over his eye from a flying puck while forward Frank Cox has three stitches from a stick. Bob Brooks finished the game in the nets when Dolan was rushed to the hospital.

Cameron McKenna and Gord St. Louis each fired two goals for the winners while Harvey Stoliker tallied with Meada's marker.

Bakelite scorers were George Crabb with a pair and Mickey Lunn, Jack Hughes, and Spider Allen with one each. Bill Yull fired the last marker.

Pat Maracle netted two of Point Anne's goals with one each for Lorne Maracle and Gord Green, Shaker Baker had two for Odds with Jack O'Brien getting the odd one.

The referees were J. Bone and H. Ford.

JUNIOR MOVES UP

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League may have a new forward in their lineup next Sunday when the team plays host to Cleveland.

McLean played junior hockey in 1953-54 with the Memorial Cup champion St. Catharines Teepees.

AT THE BELLE — Gene Tierney plays a mission nurse and Humphrey Bogart, a flyer downed in China, must confess the deception of his disguise as a mission priest in "The Left Hand of God", showing today and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre. Big Four Union Non-Committal on East-West Sked

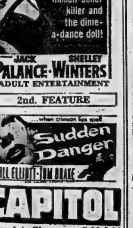
TORONTO (CP)— The Big Four Football Union looked at the interlocking schedule from many angles Saturday but didn't make up its mind because too many questions remained unanswered — most of them financial.

Instead, the league took three different schedules under advisement in attempt to find out which one appeared the most solid financial proposition. Ralph W. Cooper, Big Four president, said a full interlocking schedule, a limited one and a straight 16-game Big Four schedule are under consideration.

The meeting was called to consider proposals to be presented to the Western Interprovincial Football Union when the two leagues meet in Winnipeg Friday in attempts to work out some kind of joint program.

Final decisions, Cooper said, won't be made until another meeting in Winnipeg Thursday night before the joint session. He said agreement was reached on a number of matters but did not specify what they were.

The Big Four has shown a falling-off in enthusiasm since the intersectional ides was put forth at an east-west parley Nov. 23 in Vancouver. It was discussed further by the Big Four here Dec. 4.



The limited interlocking schedule drew one non-financial objection—the difficulty of drawing up a program suitable to all teams with a strong possibility that a powerful squad might draw a weak opponent two times in the other league's more powerful teams.

Cooper said the league had decided not to disclose its views on the other matters and the discussion until they are presented to the WIFU.

These include the proposal to form a Canadian football league with Big Four and WIFU divisions, adoption of a joint draft list of Canadian college players, a joint import negotiation list, split gates and the appointment of a nine-man ruling body with separate commissioners for each league.

The two conferences will meet Friday and Saturday today to work out details of any merger. Saturday and Sunday will be taken up with their separate annual meetings.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — The things you seek or like best may not be exactly right for you, so if you do not achieve all, blame no one, but start again with renewed vim. And thus strengthen character and patience.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Trying to do too much at one time can dull the mind and body, unfit you for the big things you should be doing gradually, and always. Intermittently through life recheck for errors.

Curb gloom, don't think others are not appreciating if you do not hear words expressed. You aren't anxious for praise, but wish to know that those you love you love you. We all must take the bitter with the sweety we all dole out the bitter, do not forget. Whenever you can, seek music, high-type reading, children's company for relaxation. Your industriousness and affability are stepping stones to the top. Pray, thus strengthen assets, assure lasting attainment. Birthdate of: Ric Hatfield, Pope Pius V, Benj. One Canadian In 10 Disabled By Heart Disease

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Martin noted today that one Canadian in every 10 is disabled by heart disease and suggested a national body be set up to promote public interest in the problem

He made the suggestion to heart specialists and public health officials attending a one-day conference on the heart disease problem of Canada's number one killer.

National surveys indicate "there are an estimated 180,000 Canadians who suffer disability from heart disease, of whom two-thirds, or 120,000, are severely or totally disabled," he said.

PRAISES ASSOCIATION

Mr. Martin praised the work of the Canadian Heart Foundation, formed in 1946, but added: "I understand that the association, however, is essentially a professional body and perhaps the time has come to consider the possibility of forming an organization of somewhat broader aims with a view to co-ordinating research activities, public education and fund raising."

He said formation of the National Cancer Institute and the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society had followed similar national conferences.

One subject to be discussed at the meeting is whether enough money now is available to fight heart disease and if not how to provide more. The federal government has furnished about $150,000 for research in hospitals and universities and five provincially-administered programs.

CHEAT DEATH IN TWO-PLANE CRASH

Veteran RCAF officials are still amazed that all four fliers involved in a two-plane collision in mid-air near Ottawa escaped unharmed. F/O Peter Green, left, Grand Manan Island, N.B., and Douglas Wilson, right, navigator, of Toronto, were two of the airmen who cheated death. After crashing with another CF-100 jet fighter plane, Green managed to fly his plane back to Upland's airport although most of its tail assembly was missing. The other two fliers used ejector-seat equipment to escape from their burning plane. (Central Press Canadian).

IDLEWILD HAS NEW LIGHTING SYSTEM

This is how the new lighting system will look to a pilot bringing in a plane for landing at the International Airport, Idlewild, N.Y. The Sylvania system consists of 20 light units in a single 2,000-foot row. Each unit produces an ultra-brilliant beam of more than 30,000,000 candlepower and flashes twice every second giving the effect of an arrow pointing at the runway. The system will be of particular value during periods of limited visibility. (Central Press Canadian).

STUDENTS RE-ENACT U.N. SESSIONS

Indian Saris lend an authentic and colorful touch to the model United Nations Assembly staged by over 400 Toronto high school students in parliament buildings, Toronto. "Indian" delegates Frances Ray, Joan Ledger and Margaret Keems are shown with chief delegate Valentina Bernas. In a heated debate on the admission of Red China to the U.N., the youthful speakers faithfully mirrored the technique of the parent U.N. body in New York. (Central Press Canadian).

PC VICTORY

RENFREW, Ont. — James Maloney has been elected Progressive-Conservative member of the Ontario legislature in a Renfrew South by-election. He held the biggest Progressive Conservative majority since the late James Dempsey won the seat from the Liberals 10 years ago. Mr. Dempsey held the seat as an Independent Progressive Conservative at his death last November. He lost support of the party following a controversy over unreported campaign contributions. Boston Bruins, Detroit Wings Swap Players

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Bruins, firmly anchored in the National Hockey League cellar, today acquired forwards Real Chevrefils and Jerry Toppazini from Detroit for Leo Labine, Jack Gordon and Ted Ferguson and Murray Costello.

Lynn Patrick, Boston general manager, said Chevrefils and Toppazini, who played in Detroit against Montreal Sunday night, will remain in Detroit, joining the Bruins there Thursday night.

Chevrefils and Toppazini will leave immediately for Detroit.

Chevrefils and Toppazini began their major league hockey careers with the Bruins four seasons ago. Chevrefils, 21, from Timmins, Ont., went to Detroit last May in a nine-player deal which brought the Bruins goalie Terry Sawchuk and forwards Marcel Bonin and Vic Stasiuk. He had 19 goals three years ago then missed a season with a broken leg. Last year he potted 11 goals.

REJOINS OLD LINE

He will be immediately added to a line with Leo Labine and Don McKenney which, as a unit, tallied 64 goals two seasons ago for Boston.

Toppazini, 24, from Copper Cliff, Ont., is a versatile player who was traded by the Bruins to Chicago in 1954, Chicago sent him along to Detroit last summer.

Bruins coach Milt Schmidt expressed regret at trading Ferguson and Costello but said: "We had to trade and I think this is a good one."

PLANE CRASH KILLS FOUR

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A pleasant Sunday afternoon flight ended in death for four persons when their plane stalled while coming in for a landing, crashed and burned. Witnesses said the Beechcraft Bonanza's pilot, Earl E. Comer, 64, a one-legged First World War flier, veered sharply at treetop level to avoid another plane. The engine stalled and the plane dropped into a schoolyard.

14-Year-Old Boy Wins $50,000 On TV Quiz Show

NEW YORK (AP)—A 14-year-old boy Saturday night spouted information on baseball, astronomy and music to win $50,000 on a TV quiz show. He'll have a chance at $100,000 next week.

The youth is George L. Wright III of New York. Fed a potpourri of unrelated questions on the "The Big Surprise," young Wright knew that:

Babe Ruth's pitching (he won three games) made him a hero of the 1916 and 1918 World Series.

Copernicus was the 16th century Polish astronomer who came up with the idea that the earth travels around the sun.

Carl and Alexander Hermann were two famous magician brothers of the 19th century.

Bach's mass in B minor, perhaps his greatest composition, was begun as a short piece and expanded later into a full work for the Roman Catholic Church. Then the youth named the work's five parts as Kyrie, Gloria, Credo, Sanctus and Agnus Dei and went on to recite, in Latin and English, a section of each.

GENOA, Italy (AP)—Joe Adonis arrived Sunday in Italy, where he chose voluntary exile to beat a prison rap in the United States. Adonis, who was a kingpin of gamblers on the U. S. east coast, said he would like to meet Charles (Lucky) Luciano, his onetime underworld associate. Luciano, former vice king of New York, was deported to Italy nine years ago.

LABOR LEADER DIES

CHICAGO (AP) — Patrick J Flannery, veteran labor leader, died Friday at the age of 85. He was an associate of the late Samuel Gompers, a founder and longtime president of the American Federation of Labor. As a general organizer for railroad unions, Flannery founded and was first president of the railway clerks and freight handlers union.

Northern Electric Hockey League

The Barons earned their way into the league finals over the week-end by blanking the Hornets 2-0 to win their semi-final series two games to none. In the other half of the semi-finals, Flyers downed the Indians 5-3 to tie their series at a game each. They play the deciding game next weekend at 11.00 a.m.

Martin led the Barons to victory, gunning home two goals while Kobeuka added another. Lynch helped with two assists while one each went to Barclay and Kirkconnell.

Bob Hatfield sparked the Flyers in tying their series, potting a brace of goals and assisting on another. Gregory also scored twice with Pukanic getting one and one and Barrett assisting on one. Welhelrall tallied two for the Indians with Bob Little also scoring. Assists went to J. Semark, Rosatte and York.

Referees were Ted Hurst and Dave Jones.

NOSE WHEEL BUCKLES

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A crew of four and 66 passengers escaped injury Sunday when the nose wheel of a United Air Lines plane collapsed seconds after the DC - 6 made an emergency landing at Stapleton air field. The plane tilted forward at a sharp angle shortly after taxiing to a stop. The 70 aboard had to scramble out emergency exits. An inspection showed a pin had been sheared off in the nose wheel.

Dutch Veteran, Eurasian Wife Reach Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Johan Haster and his Dutch-Eurasian wife reached their chosen country today.

Mr. Haster, 25, a Netherlands navy veteran, his wife and two-year-old daughter arrived in Toronto Sunday night and were met at Union Station by a flock of relatives, cameramen and reporters.

"I guess everyone we're really here," laughed Johan.

The couple had been trying to emigrate to Canada since 1952. Johan was granted a visa but his wife, Mary, was turned down by Canadian officials in Holland. Later, Mrs. Haster's visa was granted by the federal cabinet through order-in-council.

"REAL DEMOCRACY"

The family arrived in Montreal from Amsterdam by a Royal Dutch Airlines plane Sunday and proceeded to Toronto by train.

"The color bar cannot have been true; it was all just a mistake," Johan said on their arrival. "Canada is a real democracy."

Immigration officials restrict the admission of Asians to the wife, husband or unmarried children under 21 of Canadian citizens living in Canada.

Mr. Haster who stopped his English lessons in Holland when his wife's visa was refused, began using the language as soon as he arrived at the home here of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerardus Haster. His parents and two brothers, Albert and John, were earlier immigrants.

A $70,000,000 strategic air command jet bomber base is under construction outside Plattsburgh.

Will Set Price For Ford Stock At Conference

NEW YORK (AP)—The price at which Ford Motor Company stock will be sold is to be set today.

Unless there's a leak, however, you won't know until Tuesday morning what that price will be. The stock goes on sale Wednesday morning.

What happens today is that the seven investment firms managing the underwriting of the 10,200,000 shares offering will meet with the Ford Foundation to agree upon a price.

The Ford Foundation is involved because it is selling the shares and will get the proceeds. The 10,200,000 shares represent about 22 per cent of its holdings of Ford stock.

IN BIG DEMAND

Tuesday morning, the securities and exchange commission will be advised of the price. At 9:30 a. m., representatives of the 722 firms which will participate in the underwriting will start signing contracts covering the sale at the offices of Blyth and Co., co-managers of the group. The contracts will state the number of shares each underwriter will get.

Few persons will get all the Ford stock they want, because demand promises to be far greater than the supply. Nor will the entire 10,200,000 shares be available for public purchase. Informed quarters say about 1,000,000 shares will be reserved for purchase by Ford dealers and employees, close to 10 per cent will be set aside for group sales to investment trusts and the rest, something less than 10 per cent will be made available to investors in Canada and Europe.

German Shepherd Saves Family, Dies in Fire

WILTON, Conn. (AP) — A 10-month-old German shepherd dog named Fingal, who had been trained never to bark in the house, woke up on the night of Dec. 26 to find the house on fire, and his master and nine other people asleep. Fingal belonged to one of the six children of John K. Jessup, chief editorial writer for Life magazine.

He trotted to the bedroom of Mrs. Jessup, stubbornly pulled at her covers until she woke up, and followed her as she roused her husband, the children, Jessup's mother and a guest.

The people got out safely, but Fingal died in the fire.

TO SAVE THE CAT

He got out of the house but went back in, whether because he thought one of the children was still in the house, or to save the family cat, no one knew. He was found later, the body of the cat between his paws.

So Sunday, in a five-minute ceremony in a home loaned to the Jessups by friends, Fingal's master, Nathaniel, 13, received the Medal of Honor and Certificate of Merit for Fingal.

The award was made by a member of the board of managers of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, John W. Cross Jr., of Wilton.

Foreign Policy Seen as Issue In Campaign

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign policy appeared today to be assuming such proportions as a political issue that State Secretary Dulles may be induced to take to the campaign stump in this U.S presidential election year.

Dulles has said he has no present intentions of making campaign speeches, but he may change his mind in the light of a furore over his latest defence of the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign affairs.

A Life magazine article last week quoted him as having said the United States has looked war in the face in Asia three times and avoided it. The article fired into flame criticism that was only smouldering previously.

Dulles was roundly criticized by a number of Democrats and by some British newspapers for his quoted statement that "the ability to get to the verge without getting into war is the necessary art."

JOIN IN DEBATE

Vice-President Nixon, Adlai E. Stevenson and Harold E. Stassen joined during the weekend in the debate swirling around Dulles' words.

Stevenson, again seeking the Democratic presidential nomination which he won in 1952, accused Dulles of being "willing to play Russian roulette with the life of our nation."

"Deliberate distortion," replied Stassen. Eisenhower's special assistant on disarmament problems.

Accusing Stevenson of having "partisan political ends," Stassen said in a statement that "the Eisenhower-Dulles foreign policy cannot fairly be labelled by any thoughtful and responsible American as recklessly playing Russian roulette, and to so label it is harmful to the United States."

Nixon termed criticism of Dulles' remarks a "tempest in a teapot," and told reporters that avoidance of war in crises cited by Dulles is to the eternal credit of the president and the secretary of state."

The magazine article said Dulles maintains that by making known to the Communists a U.S. readiness to fight, the administration averted renewed conflict in Korea and involvement in war in Indochina and the Formosa area.

Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem. Tenn.), in an NBC radio-television debate with Senator Styles Bridges (Rep. N.H.), said "We don't want to have a foreign policy that is always going to let us be on the brink of war—some of these days they might fail to get us back."

Bridges replied that if by the delicate handling of our policy we avoided a great crisis and a war, we should be commended for it rather than be condemned."

Stevenson, in his statement, had suggested that Congress examine "the facts and circumstances of these extraordinary" statements attributed to Dulles. In that, he got the backing of Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.), who is supporting Stevenson for the party presidential nomination.

Next Election, New Leaders, Tory Topics at Meeting

OTTAWA (CP)—Two chief concerns—party organization for the next federal election and choice of a new leader—will be dished that affort are before the country's Progressive Conservatives at three days of meetings opening today.

The closed-doors meeting of the National Progressive Conservative Association Tuesday and Wednesday is expected by be the last before a federal election, likely in 1957.

Party organization will be the main topic at a panel discussion Tuesday headed by six party members of the commons—five of whom have won by-elections since the last election in 1953.

On Wednesday the association will elect a president. George Hees, president since March, 1954, has said he will not stand for re-election. Most of the speculation on a successor has centred on Leon Balcer, 38-year-old Commons member for Trois-Rivieres.

NOT AT STAKE

Party leadership itself is not at stake—and, by custom, the association's first act on Tuesday is expected to be adoption of a vote of confidence in Hon. George Drew, party leader since 1948.

Two separate party organizations are meeting today: The Young Progressive Conservatives and the Women's Association.

A record attendance of some 800 —about 150 more than the last association meeting in March, 1954 —is expected at the general meeting.

Mr. Hees, 45-year-old Commons member for Toronto Broadview, made known in December his decision not to seek re-election as president in a letter to the association executive. There have been reports of pressure on him to change his mind but he said at a recent press interview that he won't alter his decision.

Mr. Balcer is the party's organizer in Quebec province and a former president of the Young Progressive Conservatives. Another possible candidate is Gordon Churchill, 57-year-old member for Winnipeg South-Centre, in view of the fact that he was a candidate in 1954 when Mr. Hees was elected.

PERHAPS NEXT YEAR

The government is expected to call an election in 1957, although one this year is not ruled out of the question, and Mr. Hees said association meetings are not held in election years.

He said the main purpose of this meeting is to 'get the grass-roots views" of delegates from across the country.

"The idea is to learn from those who come what is needed in policy, organization and publicity."

Party organization is the chief interest and it will be discussed Tuesday in a panel group.

The meeting may also discuss a party split which developed in British Columbia after the association last met.

But Mr. Hees said the association has "great hopes of harmony being restored" and that progress is being made toward settling differences.

MUSSOLINI IN JAIL

ROME (Reuters)—A nephew of Mussolini was sent to prison Friday for three months for publishing an article considered by the court "insulting to the partisans" who fought on the Allied side during the last months of the war in Italy. The article was published last February in the neo-Fascist weekly magazine Asso Di Bastoni, edited by the nephew, Vanni Theodorani.

Employees Accept Contract Turned Down 108 Days Ago

TORONTO (CP)—Employees of Canada Wire and Cable Co., return to work today after a 108-day strike that started when they turned down the same contract they voted Sunday to accept.

Main company concession in the new contract is a general 6½-cent hourly increase. But the 1,220 employees of the suburban Leaside plant give up their daily 10-minute coffee break and the payroll checkoff of union dues.

The employees, members of Local 321 United Electrical Workers (Canada) (Ind.) struck Sept. 30 to back demands for a 12-cent hourly pay increase and a paid medical plan. The company agreed to pay half the cost of the plan.

Basic minimum wage to the strike was $1.42.

A conciliation board, appointed after negotiations broke down, recommended by a majority report that the employees accept a 6½-cent increase in return for giving up their coffee break. This report, accepted by the company, was turned down by the union members a ship which voted 94 per cent in favor of strike action. The meeting Sunday of more than 700 employees voted 80 in favor of accepting the contract.

A company - sponsored back - to work movement began in November and company officials said Sunday more than 200 employees had returned to work at the new rate of pay. The union said the figure was about 300.

Violence broke out several times during the picketing and earlier this month two non - striking workers laid charges of common assault against a striker. Court action is pending.

Following a fracas Nov. 30 a court injunction was issued limiting the number of picketers to four at each gate.

Sunday night a company spokesman said the men had 'voted to return to work on conditions and rates of pay offered at the time the strike was called and at rates which 120 other employees already are enjoying."

Ross Russell, director of organization for the union, said:

17 Die Violently In East Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two boys who were drowned in Ontario and three young children who were burned to death in their home in Edmundston, N.B., were among 17 violent deaths counted in eastern Canada during the weekend.

Eight of the deaths were in Ontario, three each in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Quebec.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Friday to mid-night Sunday shows nine traffic fatalities, two drownings, the three fire deaths and three deaths due to miscellaneous causes.

A nine-year-old boy was drowned at Huntonville near Brampton, in an attempt to rescue a companion who fell through the ice. The other boy was later rescued by two boys after he was carried 25 yards under the river ice to an opening. Another boy, seven, was drowned at the Sault.

Five of the traffic deaths occurred in Ontario, two in Nova Scotia and two in Quebec.

Two Are Killed, Pilot Missing, In Quebec Crash

Injured Stewardess Found Under Wreck 5 Hours Later

SEPT-ILES, Que. (CP) — Two persons were killed, a third is missing and two were injured Monday night when a Quebecair DC-3 plane carrying 13 passengers and a crew of three crashed in rugged bush country 68 miles north of this iron-ore port city.

A Quebecair company spokesman here said the co-pilot and a passenger were killed in the crash. The pilot was listed as missing and the spokesman said he may have been drowned in the lake on which the plane put down.

The pilot was identified as Gerard Belanger of Sherbrooke, Que., and the co-pilot as Gerard Sicard, formerly of Montreal and of Montjoli, Que.

Critically injured was stewardess Denise Jobidon, 23, of Quebec City. She was found pinned under the wreckage of the plane about five hours after the crash. Passenger Joseph Dominique, an Indian from Sept-Iles, suffered a broken arm.

Reports reaching a Quebecair headquarters in Mont Joli confirmed in some ways what information available here.

A Quebecair official in Mont Joli said he understood the pilot had been killed and that the co-pilot was missing. He said there was some speculation that the co-pilot had left the scene of the crash to obtain help. However, no trace of him could be found.

The official said, however, that communications between Mont Joli, Knob lake and Sept-Iles were very poor as a result of recent storms and it was difficult to obtain a clear picture of what had occurred.

The twin-engine plane was on scheduled flight from Knob lake, in the Ungava region, about 350 miles north of Sept-Iles.

NO DISTRESS CALL

The crash occurred at Oreway lake, a terminal point on the Labrador North Shore and Labrador Railway which runs from Sept-Iles to Knob lake.

There was no distress message received from the pilot prior to the crash. Eye-witnesses at Oreway lake said the craft circled the area three times before crashing, before crashing. They added one of the plane's engines appeared to be on fire.

The witnesses said they heard an explosion after the plane crashed but there was no fire.

A doctor and medical supplies were dispatched to the scene by train from here. Another doctor set out today by helicopter from Knob lake and was believed now to be at the scene.

RELEASE BALLOONS

TOKYO (Reuters) — The United States Navy released near here today the first of 20 giant weather balloons expected to carry 600 pounds of recording and transmitting instruments into the stratosphere in the upper atmosphere. An hour after the first 26-foot balloon went up it was sending scientific data signals from an altitude of 28,000 feet.

Little Optimism As Union Awaits Answer by GM

TORONTO (CP)—Union negotiators today awaited with little optimism company reaction to their new proposals in the General Motors of Canada strike, now in its 121st day.

Representatives of the United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL) Monday presented company negotiators with the union's position on almost all contract issues in dispute. Louis G. Seaton, GM's labor-relations officer, was expected to reply today.

A union spokesman said, however:

"There has been no significant movement by the union in any of the major issues in dispute. Certain demands have been defined more clearly for the first time and a few new ones injected in the negotiations."

NEW PROPOSALS

The union, it was understood, made a new wage proposal to the company; indicated that it was willing to negotiate a system of job transfers by seniority on the basis of a company offer and stated it would consider a 10-per-cent increase in the annual improvement factor.

The union's demand for a 10-per-cent increase in the annual improvement factor now is one of the five cents offered by General Motors.

It was said in the new proposals also an immediate wage increase of an additional four cents. These increases, totalling 10 cents an hour, would be retroactive to last June 12 and the next six-cent increase would become effective next June 12.

Company officials were quoted as saying this proposal meant a 16-cent wage increase in six months although the union's original demand was for a 15-cent increase.

About 17,000 workers at GM plants in Oshawa, Ont., Cathcart, Toronto, London and Windsor left their jobs last Sept. 19.

Mother and Two Children Badly Burned in Fire

TORONTO (CP) — A young mother and her eight children were badly burned today when fire broke out in their Tracy street home while all were sleeping, firemen said. Six of the children were rescued as the family was not identified.

The mother ran to the street with her clothes afire.

The house, one of a long row of connected homes was badly damaged, neighbors said.

Temperatures will be from 5 to 15 above tonight in the south and about 5 below zero in the north. Light snow falling in southern Ontario this morning with end this afternoon in central areas and by evening in the southeast of the province.

N.B. FRESHMAN IN MAIDEN TALK IRKS LIBERALS

J. C. Van Horne Rips Into Government

OTTAWA (CP)—Commons freshmen are supposed to be quiet and unobtrusive, if not actually terror-stricken, in making their maiden speeches. Traditionally, hardily anybody listens.

But J. C. Van Horne, new Progressive Conservative member for the New Brunswick riding of Restigouche-Madawaska, left that tradition scattered in small pieces on the floor of the chamber Monday night.

The burly young Maritimer, speaking in the throne speech debate, ripped into the government, threw cracks at cabinet ministers, made a stir of the CNR and heaped scorn on the Liberals in general. Some examples:

"YOU NEED A COFFIN"

He disabled persons allowances: "You have to be unconscious to get it in the first place . . . and walk around with your coffin under your arm to keep collecting it."

The Maritime economy: "The history of the last 20 years in the Maritime provinces is one of complete neglect by the federal government of our economic problems. It is the kind of neglect which years we have had in the Maritime provinces compared. Dormant, like the provincial Liberal governments."

On the CNR: "Donald Gordon (CNR president) has indicated in effect that he is out to wreck the Maritime economy and he is doing just exactly that."

Bruises, Cuts Found on Child Say Pathologist

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Four severe bruises and numerous cuts and scratches found on the body of an 11-month-old boy were described Monday by a pathologist at the murder trial of the boy's father.

Testifying at the Supreme Court of Ontario trial of Fernand Desbiens, 28, Dr. Peter Hills said Roland Desbiens died from a ruptured liver. He said the injury appeared to have been inflicted several hours earlier "by a blunt type of force."

Dr. Hills said he found the bruises, one on the forehead, several parts of the face and body and there also was a kidney injury. He said the boy also had an arm fracture and an unhealed fracture which appeared older than the other injuries.

Dr. Theodor Kovacsy said he examined the child when he was taken to Hotel Dieu Hospital Sept. 12, 1955, and told the father the boy was dead.

Have Breakfast, Dinner and Supper In Vancouver, Halifax and Trenton

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—Two RCAF pilots Monday had carry meal in Vancouver, the next one in Halifax and then headed home to Trenton, Ont., for the third.

Sqdn. Ldr. Eno Hill of Kitchener, Ont., and Flt. Lt. Al Bowerman of Trenton, Ont. and Glasgow, Scotland, were in the air 12 hours and 52 minutes but they dropped 30 minutes at Fort Williams, Ont., for refuelling.

"The flight could have been made in one hop but we wanted to" able tail winds," Sqdn. Ldr. Hill said.

The men, who made the flight as part of their training, were disappointed in their time but they have the consolation of being the first to make the 2,710-mile trip in a jet.

Two hours after they landed here they took off for Trenton, Ont., where they are pilot instructors at the RCAF flying school.

They had no difficulty on the trip, made at 40,000 feet.

"The temperature ranged from 40 to 50 degrees below zero at that altitude, but we were comfortable," said Sqdn. Ldr. Hill.

"Trouble is you can't let yourself get too warm in case something happened and you suddenly found yourself thrust into the cold. That's the only uncomfortable part that we only actually saw the ground for about 200 miles over the Rockies," he said.

Both pilots were equipped for survival in case of a forced landing. Flt. Lt. Bowman said: "I even have my shark repellent with me." He was wearing a "Mae West" life jacket.

Sqdn. Ldr. Hill said they took off in "darkness and pouring rain." They circled the Shearwater naval station field twice before turning down in darkness and rain.

"The snakes for a short day," Sqdn. Ldr. Hill said.

Habit and Prejudice Seen Causing Winter Unemployment

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prejudice, habit and misunderstanding are the main obstacles to greater winter employment in Canada, in the view of Labor Minister Gregg.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian Construction Association Monday night, he said: "It is technically possible to have much higher levels of winter-time employment in Canada than we have at present. It is economically efficient to have more winter employment. It is socially desirable."

The construction industry, Mr. Gregg said, had already made good progress in evening out the peaks and valleys of employment.

From 1924 to 1928 the amplitude of seasonal employment variations was approximately 66 per cent. From 1947 to 1951 it was approximately 36 per cent while in the last five years it was 37 per cent.

Average weekly earnings for workers in the nine major industries at Oct. 1 were $61.94. This represented a substantial increase in real purchasing power, as consumer prices had remained stable.

In addition to improvements in earnings, the construction industry had moved ahead with shorter hours, easier work weeks, vacations with pay and the extension of other fringe benefits. Such advances resulted largely from collective bargaining.

A preliminary estimate by the labor department showed that only 32,000 man-working hours were lost through strikes and lockouts in the construction industry in 1955. This was by far the lowest figure since 1950 and was an achievement of which employers and unions could well be proud.

Last summer the government had issued a directive to all federal departments and agencies, instructing them to do everything possible to create a maximum amount of winter employment in implementing governmental expenditure programs.

The directive indicated that government departments were to arrange their plans, specifications, tender calls and contract awards so that the various stages of actual construction would create the maximum of winter work.

Keep as Far Away from War As Is Possible With Honor
--Sen. Walter George

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—A leading Democratic senator says American foreign policy should be to "go as far away as we can in justice and honor from any danger of involvement in war."

Senator Walter George of Georgia, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee and chief congressional spokesman for the Democratic administration in such matters, thus has taken indirect issue with the "brinks of war" statements ascribed to State Secretary Dulles.

Democrats, including House speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, have called "disgraceful" the statements attributed to Dulles in a Life magazine article. The Republican state secretary was quoted as saying that the ability to go to the verge of war and yet avoid conflict is a "necessary art" of diplomacy, and has since verified the accuracy of the quotes in their substance.

The magazine article was greeted with strong criticisms and expressions of dismay in the British press.

And today the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda was quoted by Moscow radio as declaring the article shows Dulles wants to maintain "international tension on the brink of war."

George told reporters in advance of the conference that he was not concerned primarily about the statements in the article because he might be expected to "qualify" caution or modification."

Because of the controversial international reaction, he said, he intends to state his views to the Senate.

Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem., Mont.) said he is against interview he would like to know Dulles' purpose in approving publication at this time of an article in which he was represented as saying that the United States three times had faced war in Asia and had avoided it by his and President Eisenhower's efforts.

"If the secretary wants bipartisanship on foreign policy—and I am sure he does—I can't see why he approves an article of this kind," Mansfield said.

INSTALMENT BUYING CURB IS ADVOCATED

Quebec Credit Unions Fearful of Inflation

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt has called on the federal government to impose steep curbs against instalment buying.

The Quebec Liberal, federation manager for the Caisses Populaires — Quebec's fast-growing credit unions—said Monday the rise in on-the-cuff buying contains an inflationary threat.

It is the government's duty to correct abuses, he said before the Quebec provincial commission, as he proposed a federal law to enforce a 50-per-cent down-payment on such "non-essential" purchases as radios and television sets. Down-payment on a $100 item would be $50.

The veteran senator, 64 today, told the commission instalment buying should not be imposed against such "essential" purchases as sewing machines, refrigerators, stoves and refrigerators.

MOVE TO MONTREAL

The federal commission, charged with the huge job of predicting the shape of the economy in the next quarter-century, moves on to Montreal for three days of hearings opening Wednesday.

In a shortened one-day hearing here Monday it got the view of the credit unions, Quebec City and Montreal, on future development, but nary a word from the public. The commissioners wanted to hear from most—enigmatic Premier Duplessis.

Four Battle Desperately With 100 Giant Rats

ARBAS, France (Reuters) — A farmer and three of his sons were badly bitten in a desperate hour-long battle with 100 giant rats in a barn at Bolsmont near here.

The fight began when farmer Jules Michieux was moving bales of straw in his barn. A rat leaped onto his shoulder and bit his cheek. Another attacked his legs.

Others surged forward, attacking him, and his wife fled in his retreat. He fought back and shouted for help. The rats dragged him to the floor, leaving 63 dead.

"If my men had not come I would have been eaten alive," Michieux said. "I have never seen rats so big."

Duke of Gloucester Will Unveil Memorial to Commonwealth Dead

OTTAWA (CP)—A memorial to 1,103 Commonwealth army officers and men who fell during the 1944-45 advance from the Seine into Germany will be unveiled by the Duke of Gloucester at the Groesbeek Canadian war cemetery in The Netherlands.

The Imperial War Graves Commission announced here today that the Duke of Gloucester, commission president, will unveil the memorial which stands at the entrance of the war cemetery near Nijmegen.

The Groesbeek memorial will commemorate the lives of those men—among them 204 Canadians —who have no known graves.

In the cemetery individual headstones mark the graves of 1,956 battle comrades. With the erection of the memorial, the lives of 2,932 men, including 2,443 Canadian soldiers and airmen, will be commemorated.

Next-of-kin of the men commemorated on the new memorial and buried in the cemetery will be invited to the unveiling ceremony.

The Groesbeek memorial stands on high ground and commands a wide view over country which was the scene of heavy fighting to clear the west bank of the Rhine.

Designed by English architect Philip Hepworth, the memorial consists of two cloisters in brick and stone with the Stone of Remembrance between. The names are on stone panels inside the cloisters. Side by side with the names are these words:

"These walls bear the names of the soldiers of the British Commonwealth and Empire who fell in the advance from the Seine through the Low Countries and Germany but to whom the fortune of war denied a known and honored grave."

And the dates — 30th August 1944 -5th May 1945.

Outside on the friezes above the columns are carved two inscriptions: "Pro amicis mortui amicis vivimus", ("we live in the hearts of friends for whom we died") and "Here on the west bank of the river marking the progress of the campaign, "Seine Scheldt Maas Rhine Elbe".

Three Training Planes Aboard 'Star of Assuan'

Govt. Approved Export Before Near East Crisis

OTTAWA (CP)—Three Harvard training planes are being shipped from Canada to Egypt aboard the Egyptian freighter Star of Assuan, External Affairs Minister Pearson today informed the Commons.

The three Harvards are part of an order of 15 for Egypt, he said.

He said the government agreed by last summer to issue a permit for export of 15 reconditioned Harvards of Second World War vintage to Egypt.

This transaction took place before recent crisis between Egypt and Israel and before Egypt began accepting arms from Communist Czechoslovakia.

ARMS FOR ALLIES

Mr. Pearson said the planes are non-combatant aircraft.

The Star of Assuan, which sailed from Halifax Monday for the Mediterranean, also carried arms for Turkey, Greece and Portugal, all members of Canada and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The merchantman carried no Armoured trucks for Egypt as had been reported from Halifax and Saint John, N.B.

Disclosure of the Harvard shipments to Egypt came out after questioning in the commons by Alistair Stewart (CCF — Winnipeg North).

He had asked whether any Canadian aircraft had been shipped recently to Egypt. He later told The Canadian Press in an interview that he had been reliably informed that 25 Harvards were being exported to Egypt.

NO LATE ORDERS

Mr. Pearson said today that if Mr. Stewart meant by "recently" the last few months when the "disturbing" situation in the Middle East, there had been no orders from Egypt.

The Canadian government, however, had agreed on Bill an order for Harvards "early last summer."

Explaining the government's policy on arms shipments, Mr. Pearson said permission to export military equipment is considered by the external, trade and defence departments. Sales had been on a "very strict basis."

Shipments to areas where there is actual conflict are refused or limited and permitted only after the "closest scrutiny" and if they don't constitute a threat.

SOLDIERS CHARGED

BARRIE (CP) — Two soldiers from army Camp Borden were charged Monday with the $300 robbery of a camp canteen. Pte. John Patrick Nugent, 19, and Pte. Richard Rae, 24, are charged with the robbery with violence. Military police said two men entered the Royal Canadian School of Infantry canteen Sunday night, bound and gagged a steward with an empty beer bottle and made off with $300.

Reward Posted In Effort to Catch Attackers

HAMILTON (CP)—A $500 reward was posted by police today in an effort to catch two men believed responsible for raping four Hamilton women during the last month.

Police today reported a sixth attack, this time on a 55-year-old woman who said she was raped Monday night in a car by two men. She complained of the attack after a police constable stopped a car in which she was riding in suburban Saltfleet township.

The driver of the car was arrested and police said he would be placed in a lineup later today.

There was no indication, however, that police believe the suspect had anything to do with the first four attacks.

A fifth attack, reported Sunday by a woman who said two men dragged her into their car, drove her to a downtown motel and raped her, was not committed by the two sought previously, police said.

Chief Leonard C. Lawrence said: 1,000 circulars bearing an artist's sketches of the two men, their descriptions and the reward announcement would be circulated.

Chief Lawrence also warned women to stay off the streets at night.

Magistrate Beamer W. Hopkins, a member of the police commission, which offered the reward, said he hopes the reward will encourage citizens to volunteer information.

"The thing has stirred up a great deal of anger among our citizens," he said.

St. Joseph's Hospital has cancelled late passes for student nurses and girls will be allowed out alone during the evenings.

Many parents are accompanying their daughters when they go out in the evening.

POLICE SEEK INCREASE

WATERLOO (CP) — The Waterloo Police Association Monday asked the police commission for a reduction in the work week from 48 to 40 hours and an increase in salary for police under the maximum force of $150 a year. As an alternative the association asked for a reduction in the work week to 44 hours and an increase of $300 a year.

Salk Vaccine To Be Released Early in March

Salk polio vaccine will be made available to Ontario Boards of Health again this year with emphasis on distribution to elementary school children.

Dr. J. T. Phair, deputy minister of health for Ontario, made the announcement in a circular letter dated Jan. 12th.

Vaccine will be released in some quantity in mid-March. Because the quantity available for release is not known as yet there will a priority on distribution.

As many elementary school children as possible will be given one dose before the onset of the 1956 polio season. It is also hoped that sufficient vaccine will be available to give one dose of pre-school children one year of age and over.

Dr. McColl Metcalfe, medical officer of health for Belleville said that parents will be notified as to the dates on which they may register their pre-school children. Registration will be carried out at City Hall.

Reorganization of Parks Board Approved by City Council

Only routine business was conducted by city council at their first regular meeting of the year Monday evening. The meeting was the first for Mayor Jane Forrester.

Seven new parks board members, who will serve that body for one year were named by council. Included are Jack Devine and Harry Smith of last year's parks board along with citizens Hugh Murray, Max Curnew and Orland Pinkston, former secretary treasurer of the board and Aldermen Frank Grandeme and Arthur Keegan.

The two members of council on the board will place before that body a nine-point program recommended by Mayor Jane Forrester and passed on by council. Included in the nine point program was a suggestion that the Parks board meet with the recreation commission to see if the two organizations could be combined and the appointment of a citizens' committee to act in an advisory capacity. Another point in the suggested program was the elimination of the position of a paid secretary.

Council approved the purchase of a new low pressure oil burner from Moira-Schuster for the police station. Alderman Tice as chairman of property said the stoker for the coal burning furnace had failed and that his experience in an oil burner would be more satisfactory. The price of $506 includes complete installation of the conversion unit, along with two 200 gallon oil tanks.

The alderman said that if a new police station was constructed, the present boiler and the oil burner could be used in the new building.

APPROVE NEW SYSTEM

Council also approved of the installation of a telephone system for city hall, which would eliminate the present manually operated switchboard. Cost of the new system which would allow inter-office communication would be $162 per month as compared with the present $129 per month for the manual switchboard system.

Alderman J. John Stock as chairman of Welfare noted that Miss Ila Hogle, present switchboard operator and welfare committee secretary, would be needed full time in the welfare department. He pointed out that under the suggested telephone system no switchboard operator was required.

Alderman Tice said incoming calls could be channelled into the city clerk's office where the staff members could transfer calls without interference to their regular duties.

A bill from consulting engineers, Proctor, Redfern and McLaughlin of Toronto, for $3,781.10 for a survey of storm sewer requirements in the Parkwood Heights area, was considerable discussion before it was referred to the city solicitor for report on the city's liability to pay.

The fee amounted to one per cent of the work recommended in the report which would cost an estimated $380,000, and would be deducted from the 6 per cent fee for supervision if the work was carried out.

Alderman Bill Argue objected to the bill stating that he did not recall council's authorization of the survey or of committing itself to such a large fee. The council minutes of the last April 19th were read showing that the Toronto firm had been retained to make the survey.

APPROVE APPLICATIONS

Council agreed that applications for approval of changes in the city zoning by-law be made to the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and the Ontario Municipal Board.

The changes sought would allow commercial construction in certain areas zoned as residential and re-classifying west side of South Front Street south of the tracks to commercial from industrial.

A letter from J. N. Vanover, chairman of the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors was read, announcing that the Belleville hospital was now fully accredited.

Commenting on the announcement, Mayor Jane Forrester noted that Belleville should feel proud that its hospital had now received full accreditation. She said the accreditation covered all aspects of hospital operation and was given only after a complete examination.

Council passed a recommendation expressing the thanks of members for the work of the hospital board.

Highly Valuable Collection Of Antiques Presented to City Awaits Action by Council

Antique furniture, oil paintings, good jewellery and silverware, together with hundreds of valuable books, items, weighing over six tons, are lying in storage in a local transport company warehouse awaiting action by city council on what it is going to do with the collection.

The collection of antiques is the gift of Mrs. A. B. Salaman of the Isle of Wight who presented the articles to the city for display as museum pieces.

Mrs. Salaman is the former Anne Dexter of this city, who early in life married William Salaman. She is the sister of the late Bert Dexter of this city and Joseph Dexter of New York City.

The gift also includes sufficient money to construct a suitable building to house the antique treasures, although it is understood there has been no city action transferring the money to Canada.

CITY ACCEPTED GIFT

First notification of the intended gift to the city was received by city council last year and since then negotiations had been carried on by last year's mayor John Roblin, who officially accepted the gift on behalf of the city.

The articles were shipped last November and, contained in two large crates, one over 15 feet in length, weigh a total of 12,580 pounds and were shipped to Canada by Cunard Liner and then by boxcar to Belleville. The cases are now stored in the Grier Motors area and are now in storage in the basement.

City council is now pondering what to do with the shipment of antique valuables presented by Mrs. Salaman.

Nothing is being felt over the proper care for possible oil paintings and other articles which require regulated temperatures. No official word has been received by the city regarding what monies will be available with which to construct a suitable building for display of the antiques.

And in the meantime the problem of proper storage is a concern of council.

APPEAL FOR ASSISTANCE

At last night's meeting of city council, Mayor Jane Forrester noted that Mr. Mr. Jarvis, curator of the National Museum at Ottawa, had volunteered to come to the city to examine the collection and place a proper value on the antiques. Other local persons interested in antiques have also volunteered to assist.

City council has an official list of the articles contained in the shipment but the customs office which cleared the shipment has a detailed list consisting half a dozen or more closely typewritten pages listing the antiques.

As the articles were imported for exhibition purposes there was no duty on the shipment. Local customs collector, Gordon Miller put a covering value of $5,000 on the shipment, but customs inspectors who inspected the shipment said it was worth "several fortunes."

100 OIL PAINTINGS

Among the articles listed in the shipment are over 100 oil paintings as well as approximately 35 to 40 "pictures."

Also included are many pieces of period furniture, chests, Chippendale style and French chairs, an American piano and a Canadian piano. A violin and a 1678 Bible are also listed.

In a crate listed as jewellery and silverware, are several sets of George III silverware, period chinaware and hundreds of other sundry items.

Mayor Forrester, said efforts would be made as soon as possible to place a proper valuation on the articles so they could be insured.

And in the meantime the city is awaiting word regarding what funds will be available from Mrs. Salaman with which to construct a suitable building to house the antiques and until this is learned, to find a suitable place in which to store the collection.

Soroptomists Give Hearing Aids To OSD Students

Thanks to welfare work on the part of members of the Belleville Soroptimist Club, two students at the Ontario School for the Deaf today have latest model hearing aids.

At the regular monthly dinner meeting of the club held last night at Latimer's, Wayne Goulet, 7, and Harold Bradley, 15, were presented with the hearing aids. The presentations were made by Mrs. Laura McLaughlin, club president, and Mrs. Lazietta Stirland, chairman of last year's welfare committee. Mrs. Tilley Maser, the 1956 president of the club.

The two young students and Mr. J. G. Demeza, superintendent at O.S.D., were guests of the club at the dinner meeting. Following the presentation Mr. Demeza demonstrated the hearing aids and expressed his appreciation to the Soroptimist Club members.

Police Blotter

A traffic light standard at the corner of Front and Bridge Sts. was knocked down today when a hit-and-run driver operated red truck crashed into the light and demolished it.

Damage to the light and standard was estimated at $200.

Police Constable Parker witnessed the accident shortly after the truck and car had driven by the truck drive away without stopping. The officer managed to see the name on the truck and later police questioned William W. Lucas, R.R. 1, Bloomfield, who is said to have admitted damaging the traffic light. He will be charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Otherwise police activity was on the quiet side with no more than routine matters reported.

This morning in city magistrate's court before Magistrate F. Y. Wills, Clyde Barrett, 20, of Newtoundland, pleaded guilty to trumpet breaking and entering at a Front Street clothing store, and was remanded for sentence.

James Reid of Trenton, convicted of theft, who was to appear this morning for sentence was further remanded, while Basil Lucas Jr. of Belleville charged with threatening and pointing a gun was also remanded.

Field Engineer On Hydro Project Guest of Club

Guest speaker at last night's regular meeting of Belleville's branch of The Engineering Institute of Canada was W. M. Hogg, field project engineer in charge of Ontario Hydro's St. Lawrence power project.

Mr. Hogg held the interest of the assembly with a discourse outlining the technicalities of the vast power scheme now being jointly undertaken by Canada and the U.S. on the St. Lawrence.

To illustrate his talk Mr. Hogg used color slides, showing the progress of work on the undertaking.

Engineering technicalities of the project also were explained with the aid of graphs.

Of general interest was the resettlement program being carried out by Hydro for residents in the area which eventually will be flooded.

An average of five homes a week now are being relocated in new sites by Hydro. In this respect, Mr. Hogg said, it is possible to move a house intact at eight a.m., and have its residents settled in their new location by lunchtime. Mr. Hogg also pointed out that the project also may have a bolstering effect on the local economy of the district.

"Generally," he said, "it has been a depressed area and the undertaking may be the spark that will set the district again."

Mr. Hogg was introduced by Ernie Curnett.

Young People Enjoy Stirling Skating Party

Nearly 200 young skaters from the south Hastings district buckled on their equipment recently to take part in the annual skating party at the Stirling arena.

The Hastings District Council for over two hours before the participants repaired to St. Paul's United Church hall to close the evening with a social get-together.

President of the church union, Bryce Philp, and Ralph Swan, president of South Hastings district executive, welcomed the assembly.

A sing-song was led by Monty Moorcroft, accompanied by Evelyn Emerson at the piano. Refreshments were served to close the evening.

INSTALMENT

It opens sittings in Toronto next Monday and commission chairman Walter L. Gordon says he has been informed Premier Frost will head the Ontario government delegation at the hearings.

Butter, cheese and milk all ranged in dairy industry forecasts by J. Peter Nadeau of Granby, director of Quebec's Dairy Technicians Association.

He said federal subsidies on concentrated milk mustn't be met competition from subsidized Netherlands cream, would reduce Canada's butter surplus estimated at total more than 50,000,000 pounds by the start of the new butter season next May.

INSTANTLY SOLUBLE

He disclosed also that Macdonald College scientists have succeeded in making whole milk powder containing two - per - cent butterfat instantly soluble in water. It now is a question of whether the experimental success can be transferred economically to the manufacturer's plant.

The packaged powder, instantly soluble, will give bottled milk a lot of competition, Mr. Nadeau said.

News Report Brings Names Of Rescuers

TRENTON (Special) — Yesterday's edition of The Ontario Intelligencer was in seven stands in Trenton only a few minutes before the two airmen who rescued Leo Dube and remained anonymous, phoned this correspondent. Cpl. Ken Powers, 33, of Henry Street, Trenton, and Cpl. Pete McCaffrey, 31, of Dufferin Ave., Trenton, went to Mr. Dube's aid without thought of their own safety. They went even further, driving the shocked and soaked man and his family home on the Carrying Place Road in their car. Until last night their identity was unknown.

Cpl. Powers, spokesman for the pair, made no comment on the fact their prompt and cool-headed action averted a serious tragedy.

Mr. Dube, clinging to his sinking car, was apparently overjoyed with fright, was pulled to safety as he stood shoulder high in the freezing water.

The air force corporals, who went down to the waterfront "to do a bit of fishing through the ice," and saw Dube's car break through, dashed to the driver's assistance.

SIXTH DEER KILLED

Recently a Toronto motorist killed a fine buck deer crossing No. 2 highway west of Brighton. It made the sixth deer killed at the same spot since the hunting season opened last fall.

Obviously the highway cuts through a natural deer run, ranging from north in Northumberland county to Lake Ontario.

In all cases the deer have come off second best, still the local motorists with smashed cars has been high.

Coroner Decides Against Inquest In Baby's Death

TRENTON (Special) — Coroner Dr. J. V. Byrne reported last night there would be no need for an inquest into the death of baby Joan Craddock who suffocated in her carriage on the porch in front of the family home here yesterday.

A horrified mother and six children found her 2½ month old daughter dead. The infant had been sleeping earlier and all was well when the baby was discovered at the bottom of the carriage, apparently strangled on something that caught in her baby throat.

Family doctor J. W. Farley and Dr. D. E. Campbell were called but could not revive the baby. Firemen utilizing the local department's resuscitator failed also.

Mrs. Craddock was a war bride, married overseas to Kenneth Craddock who served with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Mr. Craddock is employed at the local post office.

Mining Companies Planning New Townsite Near Bancroft

BANCROFT—Government purchase contracts totalling $65 million worth of uranium concentrates from two potential producing properties in the Bancroft mining area have touched off several important hush-hush expansion programs.

Some of them, revealed yesterday by a cabinet member, are: Nine hundred acres near Blond Uranium Mines acquired in November for the development of a townsite to accommodate from 3,000 to 5,000 people.

The current survey of a new east-west highway that will eventually open up the mining district from Paudash Lake to Wilberforce, work to start in the spring.

Plans by the Village of Bancroft to acquire considerable acreage and incorporate it into the municipality on which 500 new homes may be built.

The townsite area is situated in a sandy valley east of Bicroft Mines, 600 acres in Cardiff Township, Haliburton and 300 in Faraday Township, Hastings County. It was surveyed in November by engineers of participating mining companies. Seven hundred acres of marginal farm land were purchased for settlers for $30 an acre; the balance was Crown land.

MANY PROBLEMS

Location of the townsite presented many problems. It had to be situated a "decent" short driving distance of both Bicroft and Faraday and other promising properties.

The chosen site is understandably unpopular with the Village of Bancroft, 12 miles to the northeast. Village fathers could see no reason why a townsite area could not have been developed services in Bancroft at the present time, Reeve Jack Brown says that plans are being made for such a development.

SURVEY BEING MADE

In addition, a delegation from the Department of Planning and Development will conduct a survey this week to decide how and where the village could expand. At soon as new territory is taken into the corporation, work may go ahead on a 500-home development.

If an improvement district is established by the Provincial Government to develop the proposed townsite near Bicroft, a board of trustees, consisting of officials of participating mines, will be approved by an order-in-council.

True Bills Returned Against Three Youths

True bills against three local youths charged with raping a 17-year-old Belleville girl on a side-road near the city last fall, were returned this morning by a Hastings county grand jury.

The case went before the grand jury Monday afternoon at the beginning of the Spring Assizes being held before Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Charged with rape are Rodney Sharpe, 17; Gary Marriott, 18, and Guiseppe Ferraro, 22. All three youths are charged jointly on the indictment although on the preliminary hearing, Sharpe and Marriott were committed on rape and Ferraro on a charge of attempted rape.

This morning following return of true bills against the three youths, the petit jury to sit on the case was sworn out by Mr. Justice McLennan while defence counsel argued on the wording of the indictment, with Ronald Cass, appearing for Ferraro, pointing out that his client had been committed on a charge of attempted rape.

Don Templeman is appearing for Rodney Sharpe and Kenneth G. M. Ross for Gary Marriott.

To a question from Mr. Justice McLennan, Assistant Crown Attorney S. Clifford Robertson said he was prepared to proceed with the present wording of the indictment.

At the noon hour court was released for ten minutes with Mr. Justice McLennan expected to make a ruling on the indictment at the resumption of court.

Justice McLennan at adjournment for luncheon dismissed the jury until Wednesday morning. This afternoon session His Honor will hear argument by counsel respecting separate trials for the accused.

Ford Stock Price Fixed at $64.50 a Share

WASHINGTON (AP)—A price of $64.50 a share was placed today on a vast public offering of Ford Motor Company stock.

The Ford Foundation, Inc., will reap $642,600,000 from the biggest corporate equity financing in history.

The price was reported to the securities and exchange commission as the final legal step required before the 16,200,000 common shares are offered Wednesday morning.

The investment writers—some 722 securities firms across the country—had reported almost unprecedented interest in the issue which admits the public into ownership with the heirs of the company founder, the late Henry Ford.

TECHNICOLOR SIDEWALKS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Sidewalks here are going Hollywood. Plans to install brightly colored, glittering sidewalks on parts of Hollywood Boulevard and Vine street were approved Monday by the Los Angeles board of public works.

Oliver Plane Retires After 14 Years Service

Yesterday afternoon, at the Canadian National Railway Stores, 14 years of service with the railroad was marked by the presentation of a wallet containing crisp, new five dollar bills to Cecil Plane, who retired on Monday. Maurice B. Button, storekeeper, made the presentation.

Mr. Plane, who was born in Madoc, on January 17, 1891, was engaged in farming and other odd jobs previous to his association with the railroad which took place on May 12, 1942.

Mr. Plane is a member of Calvary Temple (Pentecostal), and his one hobby is gardening at which he shows the gift of the "Green Thumb."

He is married, and has one son, Thomas Plane, of this city, a carpenter and contractor. There are two grandchildren.

Mr. Plane and his wife are planning to visit relatives in Sacramento, and Los Angeles, California, at the beginning of next month, thus enjoying his new found leisure.

The board would hold the powers of a municipal council under supervision of the Department of Municipal Affairs.

The board would have the authority to raise financing for the installation of services and the building of houses, commercial areas, churches and schools. It would continue to manage townsite affairs until a local council was elected to take over, generally from three to five years.

Queen's Football Coach Guest Of Rotary Club

Belleville Rotary Club yesterday had as its guest speaker, Frank Tyndall, Queen's University football coach.

Given a special welcome to the luncheon was Mr. Tyndall's guest—Queen's half-back Garry Schrieder.

Mr. Tyndall was introduced by Austin Walters and thanked by Harold Mott.

RESTORE JUSTICE TO THE LAW

Frank Tumpane, columnist in the Toronto Telegram, is staging a crusade against "ridiculously light sentences for serious offences."

We do not suppose he will object if we join him in the campaign. It is not a private war. Nor, to be truthful, are we late comers to the fray. We have had several short editorials dealing with specific sentences over a period of several months. Our only grief is that our sword is not as sharp, nor our arm as strong as those of the redoubtable Mr. Tumpane. For what it is worth, though, we should like to continue to wield our stiletto.

Currently there is much ado about the problem of sex deviates. It is a serious problem, but it will not be easily solved. Mr. Tumpane, in one of his most recent forays, laid around him vigorously after a man who pleaded guilty to indecently assaulting two small girls in the St. Catharines district, and received a two-year suspended sentence and placed on probation. We agree with the columnist that "if this fellow went to jail for two years he mightn't emerge cured. But at least he wouldn't be in a position to assault any more little girls for two years."

Light sentences for sex offenders are commonplace. The other Canadian Cadieux in London, after she had been criminally assaulted by a man as yet unknown, is sure to stir the public to loud protest against such sentences. But the manner in which the courts deal with sex offenders is but part, and perhaps the smaller part, of this problem.

Again we quote Mr. Tumpane:—

"The public reads about stiff sentences handed out by the courts for offences like burglary and shophreaking. And then the public reads about cream puff sentences handed out for offences like the brutal beating of children and indecent assault on children."

It is not alone in dealing with sex offenders that the courts have of late been showing a leniency which we consider indefensible.

Dr. J. D. M. Griffin, director of the Canadian Medical Association, quotes a New York survey which showed that only nine per cent of convicted sex deviates had previous sex convictions, compared to 65 to 70 per cent repeaters in other types of crimes. So, on the ground of the danger of criminal repeating his crime, it might be argued that it is even more imperative that the sadist be put behind bars and kept there than it is that the ordinary criminal be deprived of his freedom.

Frankly, though, we have some doubts about the value of the statistics quoted by Dr. Griffin regarding the rate of repetition amongst sex offenders. In too many instances these cases are not brought to the attention of the courts. The most that can be concluded from these statistics, unsupported by further study, is that we need, in the words of the Peterborough Examiner, to "take a long, calm look at the problem behind them (sex crimes), and make some intelligent moves to meet that problem."

Even after the conviction of all sex deviates, in prisons or in hospitals, is understandable that we have not possessed the institutions to accommodate all these deviates: it is extremely doubtful that we should be close to solving our problem. As Dr. Griffin's statistics show, it is not that there are many, many people amongst us who will later commit sex offences but whom nobody now suspects of being deviates.

The immediate problem facing us, though, is not the control of sex deviates, nor even the prevention of cruel treatment of children, vitally important though these objectives might be.

Rather it is the preservation—perhaps we should say the restoration—of respect for the law.

As the present time many offences, as the result of light sentences imposed by some courts for crimes against the person, are losing respect for the law. Their number will grow if the present tendency to impose light sentences continues.

There was a time when crimes against property, the mere theft of a sheep, for instance, were punished by death. Gradually this punishment has been modified, and the imbalance between sentences for crimes against property and crimes against the person has been restored, by the comparatively light sentences imposed by the courts for crimes of the latter class. This imbalance must not be corrected by lightening sentences for crimes against property. Rather it is imperative that all courts once again treat crimes against the person as serious offences.

"In the present state of public opinion in some communities in Ontario, the sentences which have been heard," says the Toronto Telegram in an editorial, "responsible citizens will do all they can to discourage such talk, and the authorities should recognize the danger of violence occurring if public passions are aroused as the result of a feeling that law enforcement is not good enough where sex perversion involves children."

When a stage is reached where justice has been seemingly divorced from law, a duty descends on the shoulders of the individual Christian to demand that evil doers get their proper punishment.

The law is not yet divorced from justice in Ontario, but reading some recent sentences one might be pardoned for thinking that there had been a legal separation. It is time to end it.

PROBLEM SETTLED

"Suppose," his father said, "you had
A dissident little kid
And I were he, the father you.
To punish me what would you do?
Would you say spanked I ought to be?"
"No. That I wouldn't say," said he. I.

"Remember now, I've disobeyed.
Should my allowance still be paid
Or would you sternly take away
For punishment a full week's pay?"
"No, dad," said he. "If I were you That's something I would never do."

"Were you the father, I the son,
And you knew something must be done,
Would you refuse three nights to dine
With the latch television set?"
"No, no," he said, and twirled his hat.
"I wouldn't be as mean as that."

"Remember, now, you're the troubled dad.
Your little boy was very bad,
And he has been sent in to you.
In such a case what would you do?"
He answered, with an upward glance:
"I'd give the boy another chance."

Heating with wood at the county buildings. If the remainder of the winter is not too severe, approximately 300 cords will have to be wood, which is obtained in Hastings County, will be needed this season to heat the various county buildings; this is the estimate of J. Cecil Stevenson, K. C. French. In an average winter the number of cords required is between 225 and 350; two years ago, however, when record low temperatures were registered a total of 400 cords were used. Formerly coal was used, but Hastings County Council members in their efforts to supply work for county residents signed the bill authorizing wood as the fuel for the new jail at Stirling was selected auditor.

Love Affairs With Cities

(Christian Science Monitor)

"Nobody," the Londoner avers, "loves London." But thousands of New Yorkers proclaim their love for New York.

The fame of Edinburgh love their city with a fierce Scottish affection. Muscovheers seem attached to Moscow. Paris, Rome, Venice adore the very pavement they walk on.

Bostonians "like"—if you press them for an answer—their city and as do Parisians, find it hard to think of a reason for being anywhere else.

San Franciscans love their gem-encrusted town, while visitors "fall in love" with it— which is not quite the same thing.

The list of cities and the variations in regard for them could be endless. What is the secret of the regard?

It seems that cities with a single "personality," cities that cohere and can be quickly comprehended, command affection easily. They must not be too small or they may lack interest. When they get too big they lose unity as a rule.

Cities such as Dublin, or those German towns that used to be artificial capitals, are often small enough, and are vibrant with cultural overtones, historic graces and artistic associations. Whoever forgets the river running down the centre of Dusseldorf's main street? Gaslighted with its poplars and real, and reflected, it makes one think of the Seine, and doubtless among other adornments and elegances helped win for Dusseldorf its title of "Little Paris."

But London — wonderful, majestic, pulsing, human London — unloved? By no means. It is indeed loved, if not by all, at least in pieces. It is not only that London is so big but that there are so many Londons. Londoners love Kensington, or Chelsea, and some love St. John's Wood. There are a hundred Londons.

There are fewer New Yorks. But New Yorkers have not had a thousand years in which to divide themselves into races.

The near-by Brooklynese may have already achieved a distinct nationality, a language and a ferocious municipal patriotism, however, everybody knows Brooklyn is unique; to it no rules apply.

Tells Why Cats Are Hard to Kill

(BBC Letter)

Does a cat have nine lives? Not according to Miss Camilla Ley, broadcasting in the BBC's "In Town Tonight" programme. Cats she has a high nervous vitality, said Miss Ley, and it is this which enables it to survive disasters which would kill other animals. She cited the case of her own cats as an example. Two years ago she heard that a kitten had been up a tree for four days and nights in freezing weather with thick snow. She managed to climb the tree and bring the animal down safely and with fix ribs kicked in. An hour after she had brought it down it dragged itself towards her, a horrid little bundle that was unrecognizable as a cat, yet after a few weeks it had completely recovered and is now a fine, fluffy ginger specimen.

Miss Ley, a leading member of the British Feline League of Slough which has just been holding an exhibition in London, has six cats, all strays, and lives in North London shelter which her League runs two hundred more are brought in every week. She would still go to the clinic at Slough and on a return journey discovered unwanted pets are kept for a week until homes are found for them and the cats are then painlessly killed. Cats wander off, Miss Lay said, because they are not treated properly and because of habit in so many have of putting their pets out at night. Cats are creatures of habits and one of the things displayed at the exhibition was a hinged flap to fit the kitchen door which enables pussy to go either in or out when he feels like it. This gadget is for the cat's convenience but other things on show were designed for his guidance, for cats like humans, love playing. Miss Lay, an actress by profession, thinks it a shame that cats are not also for long periods and has many times taken them to her dressing room at the theatre when there was nobody at home to look after them. She thinks, however, that they have a disconcerting habit of stealing the show if ever they manage to get on the stage.

Witch-Doctor Aids RCMP

(Ottawa Journal)

Our imagination staggers at the thought of the Mounties' horses sulking witches in "this airplane age, but then our imagination has taken a great many tailspins of recent years and we turn shakily to the RCMP Gazette for account of how the Portage la Prarie, Man., detachment found the body of an Indian boy in the Assiniboine river.

The lad was lost in fist water and dragging operations carried on for three days were unsuccessful in locating the body. The police, distressed by their failure, were advised to consult Louie Prince, an Indian "medicine man" who is said to have the power to find the bodies of those who have been drowned. Prince, doubting, consented. The police consulted, and four Indians to accompany him in a boat to the spot in the middle of the river where, as the witch-doctor said, they would find a clump of trees growing to the water's edge. There, beneath the trees as promised, was the sad object of their search.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A PORTRAIT

She used to take my hand and we would walk together. She lived in town, and she would tell me about the time when she was a little girl, what she did, and the things she thought about.

As I grew older and learned to do things about the house and in the yard, I had less time to walk with her, but she did. It seemed that she never rested for a single moment or ever completely finished a piece of work.

Her spirit followed me to school the first day, and stayed with me until that larger school of life was reached and I was on my own. She blazed me goodbye at the door of the big city. It was then but a brief period in which I was to hear from me forever, leaving me very much alone. How well I remember that last day. Had the most priceless pearls been placed about her throat they would not have enhanced her beauty. Her shoulders were slightly bowed with the years, but her face held serenity. The broad brow was full of furrows—more lovely than the path of the stars.

You could feel the gold in her heart as she moved. Her hands were work hands and had warmed her seven babies. Whatever she did, and whatever she might be, she did for someone else. She was selfless, perhaps, to herself. If she imagined that I, or anyone, somewhere was hungry she could not eat.

She had a fine sense of humor. She loved books, especially good books, and gave painting lessons to girls and boys in our small town all free. We talked of the great, the near great, and the never-to-be-forgotten. She used to read the poems of Thomas Moore together and sometimes sang them to me, my mother. All this is but an inadequate portrait that I have sketched.

I thought of this wonderful mother this morning as I awoke, and listened to the songs and chatter of the birds outside my bedroom window. She was dead, and had been buried and had such gentle ways. I never knew my mother to be idle—there was always so much to do!

10 Medical Milestones

(New York Science Digest)

A list of "Ten Greatest" in any field is certain to be disputed, but Dr. Louis H. Roddis, retired captain in the Medical Corps of the U.S. Navy believes this one in medicine will bring widespread agreement.

1. The discovery that bacteria or other living organisms are the type of infectious agents in fevers. It has had a profound affect on all branches of medicine this is probably the greatest single advance.

2. Discovery of smallpox vaccination. It established the method of disease prevention by inoculation with material that would induce immunity. Now we have inoculations against typhoid, tetanus, diphtheria, cholera, yellow fever, and recently pollomyelitis.

3. Discovery of the circulation of the blood. This accomplished in 1628 by an English physician William C. Harvey, a discovery new world in medical science.

4. Discovery of anesthesia. In 1842, a country doctor in Georgia, Crawford Long, performed a minor surgical operation on a negro boy without pain. Without knowing of this work, Dr. William T. G. Morton, a dentist, used it to extract teeth. He called it to the attention of C. Warren, a surgeon, who in 1846 removed a tumor of the jaw without the patient feeling any pain. Discovery of chloroform and other general anesthetics followed.

5. Discovery of X-Rays. This discovery by Wilhelm Konrad Von Roentgen, German physicist.

6. Decovery of the transmission of diseases by insects, parasites, etc. Malaria, for example, was proved of insect involvement came in 1879 by Dr. Patrick Manson, British physician, whose work was quite carried the hairlike worms from mosquitoes.

7. Use of ligature to control hemorrhage. A French military surgeon of the 16th century, Ambroise Pare, introduced the idea of tying a thread around a blood vessel to check the blood flow.

8. The conquest of scurvy. A British naval physician, James Lind, showed in 1747 that a daily ration of an ounce of lemon juice would prevent scurvy The disease, it is estimated, took the lives of more than a million British sailors between 1600 and 1800. The work also established the concept of vitamin deficiency disease due to lack of vitamins and other food factors.

9. Discovery of the stethoscope Accomplished in 1819, it laid the foundation for modern knowledge of chest diseases.

10. Discovery of the sulfa drugs, and antibiotics. In 1910, Dr. Paul Ehrlich produced the first synthetic drug for a specific disease. Known as salvarsan, it had a direct effect on the organisms that caused syphilis. This opened the way to the sulfa drugs and later penicillin and other antibiotics that are straight to the germs that cause diseases.

Wrong Idea Of Peasants

(Atlantic Monthly)

Everybody in the west has a mental picture of the peasant of India. It is a picture of misery.

The Indian peasant is, according to this picture, an unfortunate being who is either starving, living on that picturesque addition to the Indian menu, sculptor's measures, "a handful of rice".

Or he is diseased. He will show that this picture is purely literary. A starving man cannot till fields with plow and hoe, or of buffalo nor can he do a hard day's work under a broiling sun on "a handful of rice".

Sometimes, it is true, he starves, which there is a famine. But, in mind, like strikes and epidemics of the west, are fortunately not the normal state of affairs.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Nineteenth-Century Institute With 1955 Prices

"We live in a town where the hospital, built in 1912, has a nineteenth-century maternity department with 1956 prices and all the doctors refuse to deliver babies at home. We'll have to accept this handicap until we can get a doctor who is willing to attend confinement cases at home . . ."(Mr. and Mrs. D. J. P.)

In a town of 9,000 population, this situation seems ridiculous, at first, but I'm stormy to say I have received the same complaint from readers in a dozen towns of less than 10,000 population.

It reminds me that the only difference between city and village practice today is that the city practitioners can get away with, and patients who come in from the villages are more easily exploited than they would be at home.

I mean to imply that there's something about going away from home, passing up the doctors around here, to the presumably eminent specialist in the city far from home, or to the best advertised "clinic" if you don't know one who practices under his own name, that makes some people say, "Time for operation, let's have the works," when they go to the city, where back home they would say "But, Doctor, that'll be pretty expensive, won't it? Can't you give me a spinal tonic or a shot . . . ?"

The growing tendency of doctors to refuse to childbirth at home foreshadows the steady growth of midwifery in America. Even now an impressive proportion of childbirths in metropolitan areas are attended by midwives, usually among the poor who generally can't pay a modest doctor bill which, to a working man with a family, constitutes a major crisis.

In a devised tentative fee schedule submitted to a medical society recently the fee for attending confinement was $400, appendectomy $150, tonsillectomy $75, first office consultation $12.50, subsequent office visits $5—everybody'll want to say "Well, I'm here I am again, Doctor."

Reading the proposed fee schedule I am amazed at the vast strides medicine has made since Topsy was a colt. The usual fee for attending a confinement was $10 to $15, including all prenatal care and three or four visits after confinement.

Truly I don't know what is happening to medicine to you folks, but I am getting pessimisting—I've been that way for several years. What do you say?

—I'm pessimistic about it, for, as it seems to me, the best is yet to be coming more and more a business. And you poor geeks with income from more than children should handle are fond of passing it our "those doctors around here" and going straight to the trick specialists and "clinic" racketeers with your ailments.

Strength for The Day

USE A BROOM

At a church meeting a member once arose and declared that he had a dream in which he and his fellow Christians had assembled in the meeting house to attend to the business of the church. Then suddenly he noticed around the seat which he and his family occupied, the meeting house would need a thorough cleaning.

When Nehemiah started to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, he laid upon each worker the duty of building before his own door. Nehemiah nearest his own house; and so we all may do a great deal more than is accomplished.

In the church let us sweep well before our own pews. In the home, let us reorder the impulses of our wayward hearts. Let Christ and His Influence go out in community to nation, and finally to the ends of the earth.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The automotive industry, pride of our age and generation, finds itself in a rather embarrassing fix. With every atom of its energy and intelligence, it wants to continue producing ever faster, more powerful, nimbler cars. And every month it produces every year, the death, destruction, disablement, crippling and damage due to the motor car increases inexorably.

So what does the automotive industry do? Bow, bright as a button, Bright as a billion dollars! It starts to lobby hells to the cars. It installs soft rubber cushions under the instrument boards, collapsible wheels, collapsible steering posts, new and steadily mounting list of devices which it says will make for standard equipment, I suppose, on all cars. In other words, it is so hopelessly in the grip of the old nightmare of our goods as normal, and keep him die safely if he must.

It must be quite a problem in high level automotive circles. It is a problem involving both economics and philosophy. If cars were made smaller, cheaper, would the death toll subside? How slow would cars have to go to reduce the death rate to a bearable statistic? How many horses can the average citizen be trusted with? In rural districts, where temperance, space-busting, speed-scorning as it is thinkable that the mass of motorists would be safe if cars were made to consider death, cripple-making with rule? Can we nurture our little boys on space ships, and then give them a roller skate when they are ready to roller skate?

Well, in the Air Force, don't forget, there was that famous test pilot, navigators and engineers, it was a question of developing ejection seats. Per cent of our lovely youth who came up for training would be lost in the process.

It begins to look as if we must accept, as part of our way of mid-twentieth century life, a calculable and increasing risk of death and destruction. And the best the industry can do is employ its imaginative and engineering skills to develop every mechanical aid to make the inevitable skids, rollovers a as comfortable as possible while permitting us to go faster, faster, faster and crasher.

Retired Officer Wins Battle With Tax Board

TORONTO (CP)—A retired Edmonton policeman who kept his savings in a glass jar from 1914 to 1950, has won a battle against paying tax on the money, it was reported Monday.

William Alexander Smith testified at an income tax board hearing he drew his savings from a bank at the outbreak of the First World War because he feared his foreign origin might lead to confiscation of his assets. Between 1950 and 1952 he deposited $25,000, arousing the curiosity of income tax authorities.

A judgment handed down recently by Cecil L. Snyder, assistant chairman of the income tax appeal board, rules that the money came into Mr. Smith's possession before the income tax law came into effect in 1917 and therefore cannot be taxed.

Mr. Smith, who was born in the Russian part of Poland in 1889, immigrated to Canada in 1906. Through savings and several real estate deals, he accumulated $25,000.

Woman Did Not Board Plane For Europe

TORONTO (CP)—British Overseas Airways Corporation said Monday night no passenger answering the description of a young woman who disappeared from a Toronto hospital five days after giving birth to a child had boarded any European flight from Montreal.

The woman, who gave her age as 27, told East General Hospital officials before her disappearance Friday she had a ticket on a BOAC plane scheduled to leave Montreal Monday for Germany. She was married to a Navy serviceman and another child lives in Germany.

A hospital spokesman said she was in a private patient's room and must have dressed quietly and left.

"She was emotionally upset and very nervous and gave us several conflicting stories," the spokesman said.

She did not intend to keep her child. The baby girl has been placed in the care of a Children's Aid Society according to arrangements made before the woman's disappearance.

BOAC said there were no flights from Montreal Monday and no such passenger was aboard either of two weekend flights, nor had any such person made reservations.

Know Nothing Of Atomic Power Plant for North

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence department officials said Monday they know nothing of a reported project for building an atomic power station in the Arctic.

They were commenting on a story in The Pas, Man., weekly Northern Mail that official consideration is being given to constructing within a few months of an atomic power station on an Arctic island to generate power for signals between northern radar chains.

Officials here noted that there is provision in a Canada-United States agreement for construction of the DEW (Distant Early Warning) radar line in the Canadian Arctic for the U.S. to install atomic power plants if desired.

Six Mounties Fired, Fined For Being Married

CALGARY (CP) —The Calgary Herald says six RCMP constables, all in their early 20s and with three or more years experience, were fired in the last two weeks for being married.

"Six RCMP constables have been discharged from the force and fined more than $100, as a result of marriage ring," believed to be one of the biggest in Canada, was smashed in December by top officials," the story said.

The report said four men were fired last week, a fifth the week before and a sixth has been told he will go when a court case, at which he must testify, is completed.

RCMP rules are that before a man can marry he must have five years service, $1,200 in assets and be 24 years old.

RCMP in Calgary refused to comment on the firings.

Harpist Reinstated By Calgary Union

CALGARY (CP) —Mrs. S. G. Farquharson, a harpist who was expelled from the Calgary Musicians Protective Association after she aired a grievance through local newspapers, was reinstated by the union Sunday.

"I wasn't at the meeting. I didn't get the regular meeting notice. This is all a surprise to me," said Mrs. Farquharson Monday.

J. R. Hurrell, union president, said members had decided Sunday, Mrs. Farquharson still is a member.

She was suspended after controversy about her right to show her collection of antique ear rings and perfume bottles on a television program. Following a breakdown in negotiations with Calgary station CHCT-TV, the union ruled none of its members could appear on television. Mrs. Farquharson was not to have played a musical instrument, but she cancelled her appearance.

Steel and Auto Companies in U.S. Plan Expansion

NEW YORK (AP)—Leading steel and automobile firms have announced plans for huge dollar-size expansions in this booming era.

The steel industry plans to spend about $3,000,000,000 over the next three years to expand productive capacity by 25,000,000 tons, an industry survey shows.

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the Iron and Steel Institute, announced the survey results Monday and said they forecast the biggest three-year expansion program in the industry's history.

Fairless estimated that the additional capacity would cost $200 a ton, bringing the total cost of the program to about the three-billion mark.

For the last 10 years American steel companies have been expanding at the rate of about 3,500,000 tons a year and have spent $7,000,000,000 on expansion and modernization, Fairless said. The survey figures show this expansion rate will be increased for the next three years by an average of 1,500,000 tons.

The steel expansion plans were announced a short time after General Motors Corp. disclosed that it intends to spend $1,000,000,000 on expansion and improvements this year.

It would be GM's biggest capital expenditures program in its history. Accompanying the announcement was a prediction of a production and sales year second only to the record set in 1955.

Will Spend Million On Niagara Falls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was asked by President Eisenhower Monday to appropriate $1,000,000 for continuing work to preserve and enhance the beauty of Niagara Falls.

The money would be for use in the year beginning July 1. Congress, between 1954 and 1956, appropriated a total of $5,500,000 for the U. S. share of the project in which Canada is a participant. The major portion of the work has been concerned with preventing further erosions and collapses at the falls' crin.

Of the new money requested, Eisenhower said, $932,650 would be used for the purchase of lands and structures which he did not identify.

Miss E. Janzen Is President Of PC Women

OTTAWA (CP)—The new president of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association of Canada is Elizabeth Janzen, 36-year-old Kitchener, Ont., business woman who received her political baptism in the unsuccessful attempts for election to the Commons.

She now plans to travel across Canada to spark organization of her party's feminine forces for the next federal election.

Election of Miss Janzen, made unanimously Sunday night at a meeting of the women's association executive, was announced Monday. Also elected was Mrs. Grace Sparkes of St. John's, Nfld., national secretary.

Miss Janzen, a real estate manager, is a past president of the Western Ontario Conservative Women's Association and chairman of the women's advisory committee for Ontario.

DEFEATED TWICE

Mrs. Sparkes, president of the Women's Association in Newfoundland, is women's editor of the St. John's Daily News.

Miss Janzen, a slender brunette, entered active politics in a federal by-election in Waterloo South in May, 1952, and again in the 1953 general election. Both times she was defeated by N. O. Schneider, a Liberal.

She said in an interview Monday she does not intend to be a party candidate in the next federal election, expected next year.

She said she will continue her real estate business while acting as association president.

"I can't do three jobs," she said. "I feel I can do more in this position. I want to do my best in this job."

Miss Janzen succeeds Mrs. E. W. Sansom of Fredericton as head of an organization which Mrs. Sansom said numbers "in the tens of thousands and is growing all the time."

The association met Monday in its annual meeting, which precedes the two-day annual meeting starting Tuesday of the parent Progressive Conservative Association of Canada.

PC National Association Plans for Next General Election

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservatives from across Canada today open a two-day meeting of their national association to plan the attack for the next federal election.

They will hear reports on the party's present condition and future hopes from party leader George Drew and the retiring association president, George Hees, and then hold an intensive forum on organization at the closed-doors meeting.

Election of a new president will be held Wednesday and it appears almost certain the post will go to Leon Balcer, Commons member for Trois-Rivieres and 38-year-old party organizer in Quebec.

Mr. Hees has said he will not run for re-election.

A HIGH ENTRETE

The association's meetings open on a note of apparent optimism which developed at annual meetings Monday of the party's women's association and the young Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Drew told the young Conservatives Monday night that provincial elections will be held in Nova Scotia and Manitoba soon and added: "I think the chances are excellent."

Thomas Bell, 33-year-old Commons member for St. John-Albert and newly-elected president of the young Conservatives, said young party members are determined to do something for Canada.

M. Grattan O'Leary, vice-president of the Ottawa Journal, advised the young Conservatives at their annual dinner to concentrate on "the job of beating the Liberal government out of office."

He said the calibre has become disunited and has lost boldness, initiative, enthusiasm and any desire to have power in this period.

Meanwhile, Monday, there were indications that private discussions began a week ago will achieve their purpose to dispose which split the party in British Columbia two years ago.

The national executive met Monday night and a high-ranking official said afterwards that differences are being settled.

OPPOSED TO DREW

In 1954 the B.C. association voted non-confidence in Mr. Drew and a separate organization to direct federal party affairs was set up in the province.

The new president of the Conservative Women's Association is Elizabeth Janzen, 36 - year - old Kitchener real estate manager. She said Monday she plans to travel extensively to strengthen local party organizations for the next election, expected next year. At a luncheon the women's association was told there is "considerable public lethargy" on political affairs in Canada.

The speaker was Byrne Hope Sanders of Toronto, a director of Member Critical Of Plan to Spy On Employees

OTTAWA (CP)—A plan to install television cameras on viewers in the Peterborough post office to keep a watch on its employees was criticized Monday in the Commons as infringement of privacy.

Gordon K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough) said in the throne speech debate that only a dictatorship would think of such a thing as television cameras to exercise surveillance of postal workers.

"This is the last straw," he said, expressing the hope that all postal employees and Canadian citizens would protest the post office department's plan.

The cameras "are nothing but another step by this government to try to take away the rights and privacy of private citizens."

If the plan went through it probably would be adopted in other post offices across the country.

"One won't be allowed to go to the toilet without having a television camera on one," Mr. Fraser said. "The next thing they'll do will be to add a loudspeaker to the camera that will say 'peek-a-boo.'"

TO WATCH WORKERS

He said 18 cameras or viewers, including some "dummy" cameras, are to be installed in the Peterborough post office. Apparently they would work on a closed circuit used by postal inspectors to watch workers.

Mr. Fraser said postal employees do not object to the present system of "peep holes" used by postal inspectors to watch workers who might be suspected of wrongdoing. But employees objected to the new system, it was not the kind of device needed to keep citizens honest.

He asked how Postmaster-General Lapointe would like to have a camera spotted on his desk in his office and in the House of Commons, to be watched in everything he did. He guessed Mr. Lapointe would not like it. "The minister was not in the Commons at the time.)

Mr. Fraser said every member of the Commons would object if the government planned to put TV cameras in the chamber to watch what members did.

TV cameras are not allowed in the Commons to record proceedings. They have been permitted in the Senate, but only on the opening day of the 1955 and 1956 sessions to record the reading of the speech from the throne by Governor-General Massey.)

Hotel Owners Discuss TV At Convention

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's hotel owners say television appears to be moving out of the bars and into the bedrooms.

J. N. Yanover, proprietor of the new Queen's Hotel in Belleville, told the Ontario Hotel Association convention Monday that the novelty of TV in beverage rooms and bars has worn off.

"I don't think we really need television in the beverage rooms anymore. Our experience is that our customers aren't particularly interested in TV, except for the fights and a few other sports events."

Ross Fischer, manager of the Wentworth Arms in Hamilton, disagreed:

"Recently I was sitting in our cocktail lounge talking to a friend. The television set was interrupting us, so I told a waiter to turn it off. A few minutes later several people came over to our table and told me they wouldn't be back because the set had been turned off. You against it (TV), but what can you do?"

Other speakers agreed that TV-equipped bedrooms are becoming almost a necessity to the successful hotel.

W.G. Enjoys Talk on 'Shutting Gates'

The regular meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held on Thursday in the Manor, 39 Highland Ave. The president, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, presided.

Annual reports were received from the treasurer, secretary and the convenors of the different committees.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. C. Hyde and was a message from Women's Day. Mrs. Hyde read first a portion of the first chapter of Genesis and then an article on "The Importance of Shutting Gates". As one enters the door, one should shut the gates on the fears, disappointments and hurts of the past, and strive to make a success of the year ahead. One should never shut the door on duty, but should forget oneself in efforts to help others. Happy people are those who work for further worthy projects.

The program for the afternoon was furnished by Mr. T. K. Franklin, bursar and business administrator of Albert College. He showed on a screen set-up in the living room of the Manor, a number of fine colored pictures, most of which he had taken at Albert College. Some were of the buildings; others showed the students engaged in their various activities; still others were taken at school gatherings and there were some beautiful sunset effects over the bay. The pictures were much enjoyed.

Mrs. Finkle thanked Mr. Franklin for the pleasure he had given the members of the Guild.

The meeting then closed and tea was served.

Laurel Lodge Sponsors Euchre, Bridge Party

STIRLING. — Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211, Stirling, sponsored a euchre and bridge party, under the direction of the Noble Grand, Mrs. Erma Clancy, in Stirling Community Hall on Thursday evening.

There were 18 tables of euchre convened by sisters, Mrs. Marion Heath and Mrs. Della Carlisle and the winners were: ladies' high, Mrs. Harold Bird; low, Mrs. Keith Clancy; men's high, Douglas Clancy; low, Lloyd Dafoe.

Four tables of bridge were convened by Sisters Mrs. Mabel Wells and Mrs. Isobel Good. The winners were: ladies' high, Mrs. Carl Potter; low, Mrs. R. B. Duffin; men's high, Mrs. R. Burgess, (playing as a man); low, Joe Whitehead, (playing as a man).

Following the play, bountiful refreshments of sandwiches, light and dark cake and a variety of tarts were served by the lunch conveners and their assistants.

Large Attendance at Meeting Encourages Guide Association

Last evening members of the Girl Guide and Brownie Association at their meeting were greatly encouraged by the large attendance of mothers and guests. Last week an appeal was made in the press for more workers to carry on this important work and if this failed fear was expressed that Girl Guide activities in the city would have to stop. The fine response Monday night to the appeal make it possible for the association to plan for the future with confidence.

Mrs. G. A. Bradford, president, welcomed the members and guests and Mrs. Meagher and Mrs. D. Steward read the secretary's and treasurer's reports.

Mrs. A. A. Mathews co-convener of badge work, announced that a mother is needed on the West Hill for testing, and hoped anyone interested would call her.

The annual association tea is to be held at Bridge Street Sunday school early in February and Guides and Brownies are now selling tickets. The tea is the only money raising project sponsored by the Association and the convener this year is Mrs. Court Miller with Mrs. D. Drysdale as co-convener. Mrs. A. A. Mathews has charge of tickets.

A skating party will be given by the association late in February for all Brownies and Guides.

A leadership training course, sponsored by the Provincial Guide headquarters in Toronto is to be held in Belleville next month and should be of great help to all Guiders and anyone interested in Guide and Brownie work.

There are now five hundred Guides and Brownies in Belleville—eleven Brownie Packs and seven Guides companies. This includes the recently formed Pack and Company at the O.S.D. Help with finances and Guide work is always needed and all who can do so are urged to avail themselves of the opportunities of the leadership training course.

Mrs. Bradford gave a brief account of the history of the association and Guiding since its formation in the year 1922 to the present day. More active interest and support of the local association was stressed because the association has the responsibility of supervising and encouraging Guiding and Brownie work within its district and promoting a spirit of friendly interest, co-operation and helpfulness among the various companies and packs of the city.

Volunteers for vacant positions on the association executive were asked for, and the following ladies volunteered, and were voted into office: Mrs. J. E. McArthur, recording secretary; Mrs. Court Miller, social convener; executive members, Mrs. Rob Collins, Mrs. J. E. Dyble.

A skating party will be given by the association late in February for all Brownies and Guides.

Korean Red Cross Praised By Canadian

By OLI DAUM
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The South Korean Red Cross, a Canadian Red Cross nurse said Monday, is making great strides in contributing to the reconstruction of that war-ravaged country.

Helen McArthur, 44, who has returned from an International Red Cross - sponsored visit to South Korea, told a press conference, however, that tuberculosis is a grave social work there.

"TB is one of the greatest killers there now," she said, "because they cannot isolate children from their tubercular parents."

Tall, blonde Miss McArthur, formerly director of nursing services for the Canadian Red Cross, was sent to Seoul 18 months ago to help the Korean association work within its budget.

In 1953 the Canadian Red Cross began contributing $15,000 annually and its Junior Red Cross $20,000 to help the Korean society. With the funds, Miss McArthur said, they rebuilt and equipped hospitals, built an agricultural community near Seoul for 250 war orphans, and equipped schools with sewing machines and fabrics which students used to make clothing for orphans.

Encouraged by the results, 11 per cent of South Korea's 23,000,000 people began supporting their Red Cross, Miss McArthur said, and the country attained membership in the league of Red Cross Societies last September. It is Korea's first full-fledged voting membership in any international organization, she said.

National Ballet Opens Run In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—The National Ballet of Canada Monday night opened a two-week run at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, prelude to a tour of 30 Canadian and United States cities. It previously had "warmed up" for the event with performances in Belleville, Kingston, Ottawa and Montreal.

Monday night's program was given over to a full-length presentation of Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker" to a choreography by premiere ballerina Celia Franca, company director, Miss Franca, formerly of London's Sadler's Wells Ballet, founded the company five years ago.

It opened a season which will see performed what Toronto critics have called the company's largest and most formidable repertory.

Besides "Nutcracker," which had its premiere in Ottawa, it will offer other recent additions to its list: "Dark Elegies," with choreography by Antony Tudor to Gustav Mahler's song-cycle "Songs on The Death of Children" and "Lady From The Sea," inspired by Ibsen's play of that name and with choreography by Elizabeth Lesser.

TRADE BALANCE WORSE

DUBLIN (Reuters) — The Irish republic had its worst adverse trade balance ever last year—the equivalent of almost $262,200,000 compared with $182,000,000 in 1954, the central office of statistics said today.

The first person to make a call was Mr. Bert Bellerville. Christmas cards were received from Deputy Grand Regt. Elva Stephens, Otter Path, Orillia; Bird, co-workers Lillian Osborne and Joyce McPherson.

Youth for Christ Meets in Baptist Church

The first Youth for Christ rally of the new year was held on Saturday night in Victoria Avenue Baptist church, with a large number in attendance.

Mr. Jim Blackwood, area director, from Bowmanville, gave a special welcome to first nighters and teen-agers, after which Mr. Carl Green led in an inspirational song service.

Mr. Glen Brooks, assistant director, led in prayer.

Announcement time came next and of particular interest to the local Y.F.C., was the coming first birthday party, which will take the form of a turkey dinner to be held February 28 in Plainfield Orange Hall.

Selections rendered by the guest soloist, Mr. Carl Green, were "I Sing Because I'm Happy" and "For I Was That One Lost Sheep," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Bev. Foster.

Feature of the evening was the presentation of the Gospel film, "Big Brother", the story of Sammy Jones whose car was stolen by a juvenile delinquent, and which portrayed the fact that "a man doesn't stand so straight that he can't stoop down to help a child."

This picture graphically illustrated the fact that, even without crime, it must be confessed that "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." (Romans 3:23.)

Twelve persons responded to the call to consecrate their lives to the calming of young people in Jesus Christ.

The rally closed with prayer by the Rev. J. C. Spearman.

The Muskegan Boys' Camp, Michigan, where the picture was filmed, is owned by Youth for Christ and operated for the benefit of juvenile delinquents who are sponsored by interested Christians.

Of special interest to the congregation, was the appearance in the choir of the famous Paterno Brothers, who visited Belleville Y.F.C. recently.

is to be held in two weeks.

The Child Care and Publicity chairman is convening a mother and daughter banquet at the next meeting. Any member having a daughter, regardless of age, is allowed to bring her to the banquet.

After the meeting, a euchre was held the winners were, Mr. Joice, Irene Spalke, Nellie Shandro and Beatrice Wilson.

Refreshments were served to Pro-tem Child Care chairman and her committee.

Congregational Meeting

EGGLETON UNITED CHURCH

There was a fair representation of the various societies, the Sunday school and officers and members of the congregation.

Mr. Chapman opened the meeting with hymn "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah"; for the Scripture Lesson he read Ephesians 6:1-10.

After the invocation he addressed the gathering, reviewing the work of the church that had been accomplished during the year.

Minutes of 1955 congregational meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Bert Reide and approved.

The various reports were then given:

The Sunday School report by Mrs. Warren Harlow showed a nice balance on hand.

Mrs. Carl Bridges treasurer of Eggleton Woman's Missionary Society, reported, that in the year's work of WMS, Mission Band and Baby Band, the allotment had been reached.

Mrs. Hilton, treasurer of Eggleton Women's Association, reported a substantial balance in the bank.

The church treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Bert Reide.

The Missionary and Maintenance treasurer, Mr. Carl Bridger, reported the allocation had been exceeded.

Mr. Chapman gave a report on "Temperance Sunday" and the amount subscribed.

Most of the officers continued in office or 1956.

The names were suggested for stewards and they are to be interviewed to find out if they will act as additional stewards to the present board of stewards.

Secretary, treasurer for 1956, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reide.

Church trustees, Clarence Pilchett, Carl Bridges and Ferde Stapley.

Officers and teachers in the Sunday school were returned to office for 1956.

The reports were all gratifying and show another successful year.

Mr. Chapman closed the meeting.

POST-HOLIDAY COMPLEXION PROBLEMS

GROOM'S MOTHER RESENTS "REPLY CARD"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is my face red! I've always considered it the low in tad taste for the bride's parents to include in a wedding invitation a "reply card" with a stamped, addressed envelope to be returned to them stating whether or not one is accepting. I've never received one of these monstrosities—have just seen them advertised. But today, alas, my husband and I received one of these reply cards—complete with addressed, stamped envelope—from the parents of the girl our son is to marry. We're completely devoted to our son's bride-to-be, and she and her mother have kept us fully informed about the plans for the wedding. We haven't met the family, for they live at a great distance from here. Since they of course know that we are planning to come to the wedding, should we have been sent an invitation? And would we be expected to pay any attention to that strange "reply card"?—Puzzled Mother of Groom

I realize how you feel about those "reply cards"! However, in this case that so closely concerns you, I am quite sure the invitation complete with enclosed cards, was sent to you because the bride-to-be and her mother took it for granted that you and your husband, the guests of honor at the wedding, would be very personally interested in seeing the invitations for The Great Day. You would not be expected to send a reply, either using the enclosed reply card or in the correct customary third - person note form—but you should, I advise, write a gracious note to thank for having been sent the invitation at the same time writing about your plans for coming and your anticipation of The Wedding Day (I'm sure you won't make your son or anyone else unhappy by making any comments concerning "reply cards"—reply cards in general and that reply card in particular).

CORRECT FOR THEM TO ACCEPT THIS KIND INVITATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter has been going out with a very attractive and fine young man since last June, when she met him on a cruise. They are not engaged, just very good friends. She has never met his parents, and neither have we met them. They live in the large city nearby. The young man told our daughter that his parents were soon going to celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary but made no further mention of it. So today we were very much surprised (and delighted) to receive an invitation to the reception they are giving. Would it be correct for us to accept the invitation? We'd love to go, and frankly we'd like to see what they are like! If you approve of our accepting the invitation, would it be the proper thing for us to give a present, either to send one or to take one? M.T.

Since you have received an invitation and would like to accept, why not do just that? I think you should! As you don't know the young man's parents, I think you shouldn't send one of the usual presents, but I would suggest you send flowers to arrive on the morning of the reception.

SPICED FRUITS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When spiced fruits are passed at dinner, should they be put on one's bread-and-butter plate or the dinner plate? — D.D.

On the dinner plate.

Witch hazel, used after thorough cleansing, aids in refining the texture of oily skin.

It was a lot of fun, wasn't it? Practically two whole weeks of parties, dances and other joyous get - togethers. And now that the hectic days are over, how's your skin? "Post-holiday blues" have a shocking way of being reflected in disturbed and peevish skin, spoiling all the glittering memories. Especially if you're a teenager and exposed to rich foods, excitement and late hours.

Well, even if it's happened to you, relax. There's no need to fret and stew, or to go into temporary social retirement. Life must go on. And damage can be repaired by excellent daily care.

The primary requisite of a clear, shining complexion is thorough cleanliness. Soap and water must be used faithfully every morning and at night before retiring. It is so important that every trace of make-up be removed, as well as the usual collection of oil, perspiration and soil. If you have normal or oily skin, you will not need to use any cream after your thorough soap-and-water cleansing. But you must lather well and rinse several times as a little trace of soap is removed from your skin. If, however, your skin is inclined to be dry, a good cleansing cream should supplement your sudsing.

It should be applied first at the base of your throat, using upward and outward strokes; then, up under the chin, across and up over the cheeks, upward on the temples, across the forehead, down on the nose, and gently around and under the eyes. After cream-washing the skin, tissue delicately off, using the same upward and outward motions.

The creaming should be followed by the application of a skin lotion or witch hazel to remove any last traces of cream or soil, as well as to stimulate the skin locally and aid in refining its appearance.

If blackheads or pimples have added to your post-holiday skin troubles, use a medicated lotion. One of the best you can find at your drugstore contains hexachlorophene, the antiseptic agent which effectively reduces and inhibits surface skin bacteria. It soothes and helps conceal and dry unsightly blemishes.

Take the time to care for your skin, and do it regularly. Perk up your spirits and cancel out those "post-holiday blues." Keep only the bright memories.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOUR BOY FRIEND DOESN'T KNOW HIS OWN MIND—OR MAYBE HE DOES

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 16, and have been going with a boy of 20 for two years. While he was in the army, and we were writing to each other, he wrote and asked me to marry him and I said yes.

Well, he got home about five weeks ago, and in all that time I have only seen him six or seven times. I asked him why he doesn't come over more often, and he just says he hasn't got time But he still says he wants to go with me and that he loves me.

Do you think he is just fooling me? Please tell me what to do, because I love him very much.—L.C.S.

What I think is that your boy friend doesn't know his own mind, and what I think further is that it is just as well. At 16, it is not very likely that you really know your own mind, either, and it-is all to the good that this young man is not trying to rush you into marriage.

When a young man is away from home, especially perhaps, when he is in the army and so cut off from the life and friends he is used to do, he is often quite lonely. As a result, it can happen that he believes he is more interested in some girl back home than he really is. Then, after he gets back home again, he isn't quite so sure about it, and so he may act just as your young man is acting. Or, he may even know definitely that you're not the girl for him, and be trying to let you down easy, hop lin and soil. If you have normal or oily skin, you will not need to use any cream after your thorough soap-and-water cleansing. But you must lather well and rinse several times as a little trace of soap is removed from your skin. If, however, your skin is inclined to be dry, a good cleansing cream should supplement your sudsing.

It should be applied first at the base of your throat, using upward and outward strokes; then, up under the chin, across and up over the cheeks, upward on the temples, across the forehead, down on the nose, and gently around and under the eyes. After cream-washing the skin, tissue delicately off, using the same upward and outward motions.

The creaming should be followed by the application of a skin lotion or witch hazel to remove any last traces of cream or soil, as well as to stimulate the skin locally and aid in refining its appearance.

If blackheads or pimples have added to your post-holiday skin troubles, use a medicated lotion. One of the best you can find at your drugstore contains hexachlorophene, the antiseptic agent which effectively reduces and inhibits surface skin bacteria. It soothes and helps conceal and dry unsightly blemishes.

Take the time to care for your skin, and do it regularly. Perk up your spirits and cancel out those "post-holiday blues." Keep only the bright memories.

Demonstration Of Cake Icing Staged for W.I.

The Bay of Quinte Institute held its January meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Trent Road, Belleville, on Wednesday evening with 30 ladies attending.

The president, Mrs. John Reid, brought the gathering to order. Mrs. Reid read a New Year's poem.

Mrs. Holmes showed her grandmother's wedding certificate and read her grandmother's "permission to marry," a paper that was necessary to have in those days in Quebec in 1852 before one could get a marriage certificate. It was quite a lengthy affair, Mrs. Ted Hogle said she had her grandmother's wedding certificate too.

In naming those things that grandma did not have the use of, one lady said she thought the washing machine was the most important, for she could remember how her grandmother used to scrub the clothes by hand and what an ordeal it was. Some said electricity, telephone and all the other different things ladies have in these days.

A letter from Mrs. McPhatter was read, and a vote of thanks for flowers received. The ladies thanked the institute for a plant and a card received while sick.

It was decided to have a family party for the Institute members in February,—the place not yet selected.

Mrs. Fred Wilson, the convener of historical research, read a New Year's poem. Miss Harriett Stevens of CJBQ, who had consented to speak to the W.I., had been taken ill and was not able to be present, but would avail herself of the opportunity at a later date.

All mentioned a fence raised to bring a picture of themselves when they were babies. These pictures were numbered and passed around so that the members could guess whose picture it was. The prize was won by Mrs. Fred Tweed of Trenton (a fancy cake.)

An old fashioned spelling bee was also held with Mrs. C. Holmes and Mrs. John Reid choosing up sides. The ladies were so good that to get some of them down Mrs. Wilson had to make them spell words backwards and at the end of that time there were ladies still on the side and one on the other side.

CAKE ICING DEMONSTRATED

A demonstration of fancy iced cakes was held by Mrs. Lyle Jones, who efficiently wielded the tubes, saying "there just isn't anything to it."

As it was the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones on Tuesday, the day after the Institute, the anniversary cake was donated to them. Mrs. Lyle Jones was also given one because she had put on the demonstration. Mrs. John Reid, being the youngest grandmother, received a fancy cake.

Mrs. Cleary Kitchen moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Holmes for the use of her home, and to Mrs. L. Jones for putting on the demonstration, and all who helped to make the evening a success.

The hostess and conveners served refreshments, closing a most joyous evening.

So if you'll just try and be patient, and give both your boy friend and yourself plenty of time to find out the true status of your friendship, you'll be very much better off in the end than if you try to press matters to any conclusion right now.

Let your boy friend take his time and do as he pleases. Don't pester him with questions about why he doesn't do this or doesn't do that. Just be smart enough to let him alone for awhile, until he gets adjusted again, and let time show you the right solution to your problem. It will, if you'll just be willing to let it.

Icebox Cleanup

By Mary Moore

My friend Garny often delivers herself of some sage sayings. When I think of her in her kitchen in Watertown, Michigan, I can see her peering into the refrigerator over her glasses perched halfway down her nose, planning what she will do with what she calls "scraps and Dabs."

She maintains that a good leftover cook is a good starter cook for all good.

The way she tackles cleaning up the refrigerator is to stand all of its contents out on the counter. She then fills the ice trays with hot water to speed up defrosting and places them back in the freezing department so that the food doesn't warm up before defrosting is complete.

You people who have automatic defrosting in your machines do not have to worry about that.

Then she washes the crisper drawers or hydrators and walls and shelves with hot sudsy water.

Next step is to return food to its proper storage space that does not need to be dealt with. From there in she copes with the leftovers and one of her creations is what she grandly calls.

CHEF'S CROQUETTES

One tablespoon melted butter or bacon fat, one cup biscuits rolled very finely, 1-2 cup chopped cooked meat, 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1 cup drained corn, 1 cup finely diced ham or other leftover meat, 1 beaten egg, 2 tablespoons milk, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1-4 cup of the crumbs with the fat. Combine the remaining crumbs. Mix all remaining ingredients and mix well. Chill. Shape into six cylinders. Roll in remaining crumbs. Place on greased shallow baking dish and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 35 to 40 minutes. If desired this may be served with a tomato sauce or sliced tomtoes.

MEAT SCALLOP

This is a leftover specialty of my friend Barb.—another Icebox expert. Make a sauce by mixing together over low heat 2 tablespoons each butter and flour and stirring in 2 cups tomato juice until thick, then 1 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon pepper. (Or use 1 can condensed tomato soup to which add 1-4 cup hot water.) Have ready 2 cups diced meat of any kind—but the choicer the better the finished product is— ham, beef, veal, chicken are all good. Place a layer of meat in greased casserole, then pour half the sauce over the meat, repeat, finishing with sauce. Sprinkle top with 1-2 cup buttered crumbs. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 25 minutes. This is very good with fluffy boiled rice and shredded green beans. If you would like a recipe for the best shepherd's pie I know write to me.

WEALTHIEST INDIANS

Once a free-wheeling band of raiding, hunting and fighting Indians, the Bloods of southwestern Alberta now are rated as Canada's wealthiest Indians. The Bloods retain many of their ancient traditions but they earn large sums of money leasing out reservation land to white farmers and ranchers, selling petroleum and natural gas rights. Here Horace Gladstone (left), a Blood farm instructor, and Harry Mathews, white farm headquarters supervisor, stand before a seed-cleaning plant on the reservation near Cardston. Nearby almost 1,000,000 bushels of wheat and coarse grains are stored. (CP Photo).

Blood Indians in Alberta Now a Peaceful Group and Rated Wealthiest in Country

By DAVID CANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CARDSTON, Alta. (CP) — Canada's Blood Indians, who live on the country's largest reservation in southwestern Alberta, no longer count their wealth by the size of their herds of horses. Slowly, reluctantly they have adopted more realistic yardsticks.

The hero of Indian youth today may not be the skilled horseman, expert buffalo hunter or fearless warrior. He has been replaced by the western cowpoke.

This band once roamed at will across the Prairies in search of buffalo herds, used dogs and travois to transport their household goods and frequently raided neighboring tribes to steal horses and women. Now they are a peaceful group, rated as the wealthiest in the country.

LEASES LAND

The band earns large sums of money by leasing out reservation land to white farmers and ranchers, selling petroleum and natural gas rights and selling gravel.

It spends this money on pensions, housing, farming and ranching programs and doles out small monthly payments to every man, woman and child during the winter months.

Despite the changed outlook, government officials and welfare workers are concerned about the future of the Indians. Easy money they are afraid will be detrimental and an encouragement to laziness.

Behind the old Blood's inscrutable face the memory of the past lives on. The Bloods still cling tenaciously to customs, traditions and tribal rites.

This is manifested openly in the sun dance held on the reserve every summer. This is an eight-hour prance in honor of the supernatural influence of the mythical godhead of sun, moon and morning star.

The Bloods have also become famous for their Kainai chieftainship, an honorary tribal fellowship designed "to foster and propagate a policy of future Canadian citizenship."

HONORED MEMBERS

The membership of the Kainai, which is limited to 35 persons, includes the Duke of Windsor, Governor - General Vincent Massey, Earl Alexander, Trade Minister Howe, Agriculture Minister Gardiner, Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, Premier Manning of Alberta and even Hollywood cowboy Rod Cameron.

Despite the Bloods' colorful past, most teachers and missionaries in the area feel the Indians would be better off if they scrapped some traditions and planned for the future.

"This is the worst place I have ever seen for Indians wanting to keep their old traditions and traditions at all costs," said one missionary who has worked among Indians for 15 years.

It was a painful evolution that brought the band to its present state from the free-wheeling days of raiding, hunting and fighting.

Sixty - year - old Chief Jim Hind Bull, a band councillor, remembers the days after the band moved on to the reserve.

MONTHLY RATIONS

"Times were really tough then for the Bloods. The government supported them — gave them monthly rations of meat, flour, beans, rice, tea and bacon. There was some grumbling but not enough."

For decades the Bloods would sooner have starved than have parted with their horses. They regarded the suggestion that they sell their horses and start raising cattle.

Teachers, missionaries and federal government officials worked to change conditions and during the 1930s the bands of horses declined. But some Bloods still have as many as 100 finely bred animals.

Although the Indians now are better off than ever before, many serious problems still remain.

"Moccasin," a conglomeration of tiny one-room shacks and tents on the outskirts of Cardston, is a thorn in the side of those concerned about the welfare of the Indians.

BACKWARD STEP

The village was started to provide adequate housing close to town for older Indians. But white families moved in.

Rev. M. LaFrance, an Oblate missionary and principal of a residential school, described the building of "Moccasin" as a backward step.

"As many as 12 persons sleep in the tiny shacks. Every night mattresses are strewn all over the floor. Men, women and children all sleep in one big heap. It is very unsanitary—the cabins usually have only one window, sometimes two, and these can't be opened."

Liquor is a serious problem and from it springs the allied problems of juvenile delinquency and degenerating moral standards. It's illegal for a Canadian Indian to buy or consume alcoholic beverages.

"Indians can get all the liquor they want, either from bootleggers in this area or by going into the United States," said Larry Hunter, Indian affairs branch superintendent for the Blood reserve.

Indians in the U.S. are permitted to enter bars and to drink alcoholic beverages. Canadian Indians have no difficulty crossing the international border. And there, no distinction is made between them and their southern brothers.

CLERGYMEN'S VIEWS

The situation was described as "a mess" by Rev. J. E. DeWolf, principal of St. Paul's Anglican Residential School. He said:

"The government has no policy and the churches have no policy. The Indian band councils are working in the dark and the democratic principle followed in the administration of the bands works against them.

"Chiefs are usually elected councillors because they have a parochial and reserve view which will ensure they will continue to press for maintenance of the status quo for the Indians."

He added that most of the Bloods show a lack of breadth in viewpoint and that vision must be developed through education, movies, television and radio.

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican warned Roman Catholics Saturday against a new big smile campaign by the Communists. The warning was sounded amid an intensive Communist campaign in Italy to influence Catholics. The Communist press has been devoting more space to Vatican news than does the Italian press in general.

N.B. FRESHMAN

At one point, Mr. Van Horne got the Liberals so irked that Northern Affairs Minister Lesage kept interrupting and Deputy Speaker W. A. Robinson had to call for order.

Mr. Van Horne, who broke a 12-year Liberal hold on his seat when he was elected in a September by-election to replace the late J. G. Boucher, spoke fluently in both English and French—and loudly—from his back-row position.

"Lay it on," an opposition member cried as the freshman said the Maritimes are sick and tired of living in perpetual depression while the rest of Canada prospers.

He presented a long list of demands ranging from cheaper and better transportation facilities to national health insurance.

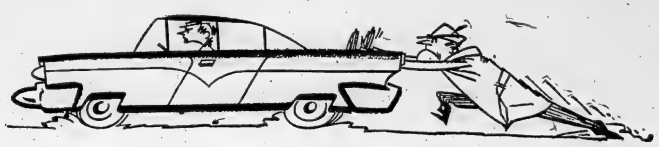
For the most part, the day's debate dealt with the government's agricultural policies, with Trade Minister Howe defending the administration's position.

On the agriculture front, Mr. Howe predicted that Canada's wheat exports in the current crop year which opened Aug. 1 will equal those of the 1954-55 year by March. He had never in his long experience seen buying as active and steady as it had been since Nov. 1.

Rejecting opposition criticisms of the government's grain policies, he said:

"I think it can be fairly said that the attitude of the opposition is that they want strength and progress through scarcity; as long as there is scarcity they are quite satisfied and everything is fine.

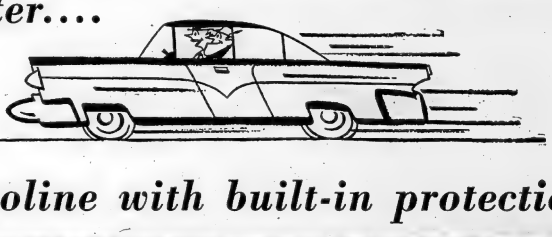
"The attitude of the government is that it wants strength and progress through sufficiency. Even if planning for long-range sufficiency involves building up temporary subsidies, we shall take the onus for that."



Mr. Howe said the government is happy there are some surpluses, especially at a time when some acute shortages hold the seeds of inflation.

John Lorne MacDougall (L—Vancouver Burrard) was the lone speaker to find fault with the government's plan to pay storage costs on all wheat over 178,000,000 bushels carried over at the start of a new crop year.

"You will never cure the economic ills of any country by charity," said Mr. MacDougall, a former Prairie farmer. The plan might cost the government $90,000,000.



Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) said the government should either raise the one-cent-a-pound tariff on imported cheese or limit New Zealand shipments to Canada.

J. A. Smith (SC—Battle River-Camrose) urged floor prices for all agricultural products and cash advances to western farmers on farm-stored grain.

A GOOD JOB!

Thanks to the untiring efforts of Lorne Cook, vice-president of the Ontario Hockey Association, this part of Eastern Ontario appears headed for a fine season of hockey under the intermediate "C" aegis of the parent body.

Since the OHA decided to adopt a new policy designed for the administration of hockey in all centres of 1,000 and over population, Mr. Cook, whose territory includes practically everything east of Toronto with the exception of the Lindsay area, covered his area thoroughly and came up with as neat an intermediate "C" loop as exists in the province.

Two compact divisions form the circuit which has been dubbed the "Northumberland, Hastings and Addington League." The name, however, means little, and is seldom used.

In the northern division are Bancroft, Madoc, Marmora, and Campbellford, while the southern section includes Wellington, Trenton, Napanee and Frankford.

The new league has taken over the territories which formerly sited clubs in the now defunct North Hastings League, and the Trent Valley League, which has suspended operations for the time being.

Mr. Cook worked tirelessly in his successful efforts at organization of the new set-up. He drove hundreds of miles over rough north country roads and the highways of the southern part of the district, calling meetings, interviewing representatives and in general conducting the entire administrative job.

The league is now well under way with teams in both divisions coming up with outstanding efforts. The scores indicate well-balanced clubs, and nothing of a lopsided nature has been reported as yet.

Mr. Cook started off on the right foot when he intervened in a northern club's effort to get two players from the southern zone. However, there was no intent shown as the difference in distance between the players' residence and their town nearest skiing was negligible. The OHA, however, ruled on the matter which was one of the main factors of dissatisfaction in the Trent Valley League's operations for the past two years.

Ontario Hockey Association president Frank Buckland told the writer at the senior "B" group meeting held here a few days ago, that the association's new policy of administrating to centres of 1,000 population and over is meeting with unusual success.

As in this part of Ontario the policy is proving highly successful in the western part of the province where centres of this nature are more numerous and more closely knit together.

"We have some 28 teams now operating in the new intermediate "C" series," Frank said. "These with some 16 of a year ago marks a pronounced expansion of the association's work in the province."

One feather in the cap of the newly-formed league is the entrance of Napanee into the hockey fold. The eastern town is blessed with a brand new Community Centre complete with artificial ice and the return of the popular sport is meeting with outstanding success. Not only has Gibbardville" an intermediate "C" club but industrial and minor leagues of the town and district are flourishing.

Walt Grow, Jr., former Belleville and Kingston hockey star, is also playing coach of the Napanee intermediates, with Ken Murphy, another famous name in district hockey, staging a comeback. Alf Plumley, who starred with Belleville junior "B" and senior clubs is back in the nets for the Gibbardville crew.

NOW, ALL TOGETHER!

Kingston Goodgears have at least two famous fans who are as loyal to the Goodies as any of the makers of the species. In fact a little more so since they garnish their heckling of enemy forces when the Casterton crew are in home action, with witty barbs and a little musical accompaniment.

While not fanatical, these Kingston gals are not going to let any puck-chasing upstarts from Belleville (especially), Whitby, Cornwall or Brockville get the better of their beloved Goodies, local support of any sort.

Whether they have a race-track background, or are followers of the ponies we do not know, but in their selections of noms-de-ice for enemy stalwarts they show a decided yen for names of well-known bangtails.

Fristance when "Sammy the Man" Mulholland comes up the ice under a full head of steam, the gals cheerio gleefully, "Look at Citation come," then more gleefully if the crew-cut is turned back, "Look at Citation go."

Bill McMaster they have termed "Exterminator," which as far as we can fathom, has no bearing on Bill's meat-eating characteristics. Whats big Vern Goyer chaps down the ice, the gals stand and warble "Step the Bulldozer." If Peter Jones makes a successful sashay near the Goodyear's net, they croon "Hit that carrot-top."

When Keith MacDonald zips up with one of-his cross-net forays, the gals then turn fellinis and in the best growth possible from feminine tonsils "grate" out "Hold that tiger."

A Belleville power play is the cue for some musical background. When the Teeps flash around the Goodies net unsuccessfully, the gals go into a duet, "I Hear You Knockin' But You Can't Get In."

Or so one of our newspaper gal fans informs us.

Penalties Hamper Canadians Off Stride Following Trip; Lesson Important Says Coach

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PAISLEY, Scotland (CP)—Canada's Olympic hockey team received their first lesson in European playing rules Monday as they won an exhibition game only hours after stepping off a plane from Montreal.

"The lesson was more important than the victory," said coach Bob Bauer after his Allan Cup champion Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen took out a 6-5 win over Paisley Braves, a team of expatriate Canadians well-versed in the continental interpretation of hockey regulations.

The Dutchmen, hampered by penalties, against their Scottish League hosts a 3-2 margin at the end of the first period and needed a third-period tie-breaker by Jim Logan for the win.

The game "taught us a good lesson and one we won't forget," commented Bauer.

The coach said a rule prohibiting bodychecking beyond the opponent's line was "really threw us off our stride."

A CHEAP LESSON

"Our usual play is for one man to take out the opposing puck carrier and for a second man to grab the goods. But we paid heavy penalties—a cheap price for the lesson learned."

Unfamiliarity with this bodychecking regulation accounted for Hargitay the first goal by the Dutchmen in the penalty box—13 minutes in the first period and 20 minutes for the whole game. Paisley was penalized only 10 minutes.

Bauer called the ice usually smooth-skating green - and - white uniformed Dutchmen were put off in the opening period by Paisley's holding tactics.

"In our league at home (the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A group) we usually have a referee for the whole game for holding like that," he said. "But we're not going to start the holding and hooking style which we feel spoils the game."

The Dutchmen's difficulties Monday were nothing new for Canadian teams visiting Europe. In last year's world cup tournament in Germany the champion Penticton Vs were the most penalized team—most of the infractions following visible body or stick movements—while many European teams used holding tactics that never would pass in Canada. The Vs found that boarding in any form was strictly barred while many other infractions were allowed.

After Monday's game, the 5,000-strong capacity Paisley crowd, which had occasionally booed the Canadians' hefty playing style, gave the Dutchmen a rousing cheer.

Fans who watched the Czech Olympic team here in Paisley 5-2 six weeks ago thought the Canadians would have to do better to retain their Olympic crown as Corlina d'Ampezzo, Italy. But team officials said the 6-5 slap at the long flight from Canada had slowed the team down from their accustomed pace.

"We weren't up to standard but Paisley would have been tough any time," said centre Bob White. "However, I think we'll do all right once we get used to the rules over here."

The Dutchmen clinched the victory at 5:40 of the third period when Logan picked up a rebound from Bill Gold and drove a 5-5 tie with his second goal of the night. Gold then it had been a see-saw battle.

Jerry Theberge also scored twice for Kitchener - Waterloo, while captain Jack McKenzie and Ken Laufman got a goal apiece. Two Wilson of Kincardine, N.B., led the Paisley attack with two goals and Bert Orr of Wingham, Ont., native of Waterloo and Tom Lemon of Kirkland Lake got single tallies.

Skiers Gloomy Sledders Happy At Cortini

By STERLING SLAPPEY

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—This little resort town, site of the 1956 winter Olympics, was in a state of confusion today.

Some of the athletes who came to train for the games, which open Jan. 26, were leaving town to hunt for better snow.

Some ski teams were setting back their arrival dates in hopes the weather would improve and snow would fall.

The local citizenry was wringing its hands in despair.

But for the bobsledders, all this was fine.

The temperature dropped late Monday and the 8 bob teams were set to get back in action. Water was poured on the treacherous 16-curve run and by this morning it was hard and fast.

"It looks to me as though it will hold up for practice," said Donna Fox of Lancaster, N.Y., veteran racer and an official here, "We're going to coach two-man sled from the 13 countries entered over the skiers were a gloomy lot.

CANADIANS ARRIVE

The outlook for practice was unpromising as six Canadian skiers arrived Monday to begin training. Heading the contingent was Lucille Wheeler of St. Jovite, Que., who finished second in the women's downhill at Kitzbuhel, Austria, last week.

Other arrivals were Anne Heggtveit of Ottawa, Ginette Seguin of Quebec, Carleton Kidd of Sauveur, Que., Art Tommy of Ottawa and Andree Bertrand of Quebec.

They joined seven Canadian figure and speed skaters who arrived Sunday.

Nelson Bennett of Sun Valley, Idaho, manager of the U.S. Alpine team, came in to make final arrangements for his outfit, and said he planned to keep them in Austria, where they are training, until Friday.

"They want to work out and practice by themselves," he said "And besides, the snow is very good there."

SIGNS WITH INDIANS

CLEVELAND (AP)—Third baseman Al Rosen, who had the most disappointing of all full seasons with the Cleveland Indians when he hit only .244 last summer, signed his 1956 contract Monday.

No salary figures were mentioned, but it is a safe assumption Rosen did his earning power no good with his home run output of 21 and his 81 runs batted in during 1955. In five previous years he had finished with 100 RBI or more.

Rosen said a finger injury which handicapped him last year has healed.

Sonshine Tactics Under Fire By Coaches

CALGARY (CP)—The player-recruiting tactics of Harry Sonshine of the Big Four Toronto Argonauts were criticized Monday by head coach Jack Hennemier of Calgary Stampeders. Hennemier returned during th weekend from a U.S. scouting trip on behalf of his Western Interprovincial Union team.

"He's really messing things up down there," reported the Calgary coach. "He's offering fabulous salaries."

Hennemier said Sonshine has made offers to dozens of players.

"For instance if he knows he's going to keep only two import ends and that he has a budget of say $24,000 for those ends, he'll offer five or six ends $12,000 each. But four of those players will be cut and therefore won't be paid."

Answering similar criticism on Jan. 12 from Don Mackenzie, British Columbia Lions coach, and Bill Bolvin, Winnipeg Blue Bombers coach, Sonshine said:

"I don't know why squawkers can't attend to their own business. We don't feel when we lose players, we look for more."

"You've got to keep looking and talking," he said. "You might have to contact 10 (players) to get one."

Baluk Ties MacDonald for Junior A Lead

TORONTO (CP)—A six-point out burst by Don Baluik of Kitchener-Waterloo Canadian Dunlops sent him into a tie with Ab McDonald of the Toronto Marlboros for the lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League scoring race.

Figures released by the OHA Monday show Baluik and McDonald with 34 points each. Baluik scored two goals and assisted on four others against Toronto St. Michael's Majors to move into the deadlock.

The centre has 18 goals and 40 assists, compared with 34 goals and 24 assists by McDonald. Baluik's assist total and McDonald's goal-scoring production are tops in the league.

Walt Bradley, a linemate of Baluik's, moved up to third place with 34 points, 31 goals and 25 assists.

Jim Crockett of Toronto Marlboros has the best goaltender's average. He has allowed 61 goals in 25 games for a 2.18 average.

Seven-Point Margin

Blues, Red Wings Close Gap As Canadiens Go Into Slump

MONTREAL (CP)—For the first time since the beginning of the 1955-56 season, Montreal Canadiens' domination of the individual scoring race in the National Hockey League has been broken.

The Canadiens went into a slump last week, losing all three games they played and scoring only one goal. While Montreal floundered, third-place Detroit and second-place Boston Bruins moved in the opportunity to close the gap on the front-running Canadiens.

The Rangers won three out of four to move to within seven points of Montreal, while Detroit won all three of its games and now trails the Canadiens by 10 points. New York has two games in hand on Montreal and Detroit one.

Gordie Howe rode the crest of the Detroit drive to move into a tie with Jean Beliveau of Montreal for the scoring leadership. Howe picked up three goals and two assists to boost his total to 46. Beliveau was held scoreless.

STILL IN TOP SPOT

The Montreal centre still is given first-place ranking, however, because his goal production is greater than Howe's. Beliveau has 21, Howe 18.

Beliveau also had his goal-scoring lead in doubt from him as Ted Sloan of Toronto scored a pair of weekend markers to boost his total to 24. Andy Bathgate of New York took over from another Canadien, Bert Olmstead, in the playmaking department. Baithgate boosted his assists to 32, one more than Olmstead.

Bathgate also stayed within easy reach of the scoring leaders with 44 points, two less than Howe and Beliveau. Behind him came Maurice Richard of Montreal with 43. Olmstead with 39 and Sloan with 38.

Dave Creighton of New York holds down seventh place with 37 points, followed by Red Kelly of Detroit with 35. Alex Delvecchio and Earl Reibel of the Red Wings round out the top 10 with 34 points apiece.

Glenn Hall, Detroit's rookie netminder, racked up his eighth and ninth shutouts of the season and moved in on Jacques Plante of Montreal in the battle for the Vezina Trophy.

Hall lowered his goals-against average to 2.02 from 2.15, while Plante's went up to 1.81 from 1.79.

Leaping Louie Fontitato, pride of the New York fans, took over as league badman, running his penalty total to two hours and 21 minutes.

Favor Saddler Over Elorde

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Although he has one decision against him and will be giving away 10 years in age, Sandy Saddler is a solid favorite to defend his featherweight crown against Flash Elorde of Manila Wednesday night.

Elorde, who won a decision from Sandy in a non-title 10-round bout last July 20 in Manila, will be the eighth champion from a foreign land that Saddler has met in defence of his title.

Pre-fight publicity has made much of the Flash's left-handed stance, which admittedly bothered Saddler in the first fight, and the deadly seriousness with which he has trained for the bout.

Saddler never has lost more than one fight to any of his 150 professional opponents. Saddler lost once to Elorde, boxing men say, and this time he'll have his own answer to the southpaw challenger.

ALS SIGN HALFBACK

MONTREAL (CP) — Signing of halfback Bob Moss of the University of West Virginia was announced Monday by Montreal Alouettes.

A spokesman for the Big Four club said that Dave (Fireball) Walker checked in by telephone from Miami, Fla., with news about the six-foot, 185-pound back, who he said he thought would make the fans "forget Alex Webster."

Webster played with Montreal two seasons and returned to the United States to play with New York Giants as a hard-running backfielder.

Alouettes also announced the signing of Canadian Gerry Apostolatos, who has played with Verdun Stampeders of the QMFU intermediate series for the last two seasons.

Boxing 'Guilt' Finally 'Kilt' All Licensed Managers Resign

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—The Boxing Guild of New York went on the "hoopenin'" list today as the resignation of every important licensed manager piled on the desk of Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York state athletic commission.

Helfand signalled the final step of his victory over the guild Monday when he announced "for all practical purposes it is inoperative." He said all licensed managers "with the possible exception of one or two" had quit the broken guild. He had set a Jan. 16 deadline for all to resign or lose their licences.

He had to say "except possibly one or two" because the commission wasn't positive whether some of the 75 men carried on the guild list actually belonged. The list was turned over to the commission under subpoena.

Helfand reported 57 resignations Monday night and said he had word a few more were on the way. Almost all of the remaining 18 do not hold New York licences. In several cases, the licences were revoked or suspended during the nine-month inquiry.

Charlie Johnston, president of the International Boxing Guild, of which the New York guild is an affiliate, wired his resignation from San Francisco.

Bill Daly, secretary - treasurer of the IBG, and a member of the New York local, did not resign. He is the manager of welterweight Vince Martinez but his licence was suspended and he did not apply for a renewal when it expired last summer.

Carl d'Amato, acting president of the New York guild in the illness of president Max Waxman, resigned as an officer, member and director. Andy Niederreiter, the local's recording secretary, resigned but Charley Bauer, secretary-treasurer did not step down. Bauer's licence was revoked for refusing to testify during the inquiry.

Helfand said the weekend action by the National Boxing Association in backing up his "cleanup campaign" was "very gratifying." He praised the resolution, offered by Jim Farley, chairman of the Pennsylvania commission, "requiring a boxer or manager to hold a licence in the state where he resides.

"It's all very well for other states to honor our suspensions and revocations," said Helfand, "But often a manager or boxer has been denied a licence in his own state. Why should he be able to go to another state and get a licence, just because he isn't carried on the suspended list?"

WORK STEPPED UP

MELBOURNE (AP)—A dispute which threatened to delay completion of the Olympic Games stadium has been settled. The field will be ready in mid-July—four months before the Games' opening day.

The Melbourne Cricket Club has agreed to pay an extra 20,000 pounds ($45,000) to speed up the project which has been lagging because of a labor and money shortage.

Pro Football Had Good Season In United States

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Professional football in the United States had a most successful season in 1955 and the men who run the game look for even better results this year.

So it seemed today as the owners of the 12 clubs in the National Football League reconvened in their first meeting west of Chicago.

Commissioner Bert Bell said the NFL hopes to bring more pro football to TV fans next fall.

As an example, he said the league hopes to bring Los Angeles and San Francisco 14 TV games the next season—out-of-town, of course —including their six games away during the regular season.

In playing rules, the owners unanimously voted to accept one to cut down piling on a ballcarrier. From now on, a player Strikes has made contact with a runner and brought him to earth, the play is over.

If he slips and falls he can get up and continue. This is contrary to college rules.

The pro also ruled that whenever a lineman assumes a three-point stance at the line of scrimmage, if he removes a knee muscle it will be called illegal motion and his team loses five yards.

This was their answer to the fake start, the so-called sucker shift. Heretofore, an illegal move had to draw the opposition offside before it merited an offside penalty, and often the penalty went to the wrong team.

Another new regulation: A player traded or sold to another club cannot be returned to the original team for two years unless he has been sold or traded to another team or reacquired via the waiver route.

Fight Features Teepees' Win Over Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—St. Catharines Teepees defeated Hamilton Cubs 6-4 Monday night in a fight-filled Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game attended by 1,450.

Don Carter, Bob Butler, Bob Hull, Gary Eatough and Art Stratton with two goals were the high Teepee marksmen. Cummie Burton scored twice, Bob Robinson and Lloyd Haddon one each for Cubs.

The victory over the last place Cubs allowed Teepees into sole possession of first place in league standings.

In the second period Cub Gord Thompson and Bob Butler of Teepees tangled in a fist fight on the ice and when Pat Kelly of St. Catharines motioned at Thompson with his stick Hamilton coach Ducky Skinner grabbed Kelly's stick. After an exchange of words Skinner chased Kelly and had to be pried away from the Teepee bench by ushers and police. The crowd gathered around the action.

Officials added the last 10 seconds of the second period to the third period because the ice was covered with debris and fans.

Habs, Red Wings Players Form Mid-Season All-Star Squad

MONTREAL (CP)—Four members of the Montreal Canadiens have won mid-season berths on the National Hockey League first all-star team, the NHL announced today.

Jacques Plante of the Canadiens was voted the top netminder for the first half of the season, while Doug Harvey was picked on defence, Jean Beliveau at centre and Maurice Richard at right wing. The two other members of the first squad were Detroit Red Wings —Red Kelly on defence and Ted Lindsay at left wing.

Sports writers and broadcasters will vote again at the end of the season and the results of both ballots will be combined to determine the members of the first squad, who will receive $1,000 each from league headquarters. Five points are given for a first-place choice, three for second and one for third.

Lorne Worsley of the Rangers was picked second-team goalie, with Bill Gadsby of New York and Tom Johnson of Montreal on defence, Ted Sloan of Toronto at centre, Gordie Howe of Detroit on right wing and Bert Olmstead of Montreal on left wing.

Beliveau was the only unanimous choice, receiving the maximum 90 points. Harvey picked up 89.

Wants to Move Up With Game Says Masterson

TORONTO (CP)—Bob Masterson says he feels there is "a tremendous future" in Canadian football and would like to go with it.

That's why he is leaving as coach of University of Toronto Blues to become general manager of Calgary Stampeders in the Western Interprovincial Football Union. His appointment was announced Saturday.

The 41-year-old Masterson has coached Blues for the last eight seasons in the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union.

"The job offers me a wonderful opportunity," Masterson said Monday. "It was so good I couldn't turn it down.

"It will be hard to give up coaching but the scouting and signing of players should prove interesting and challenging."

Masterson's first job with Calgary will be this week when he flies to Winnipeg for the East-West football meeting Jan. 19-21. He will then go to Calgary and set up residence early in February.

Masterson's Varsity record was impressive. He coached Blues to the Vanier Cup in 1951 and repeated in 1948. Blues won two more championships under Masterson's guidance.

A graduate of the University of Miami, Masterson played professional football for seven years with Washington Redskins in the National Football League and was assistant-coach with New York Yankees before heading to Canada in 1947.

RACES OLYMPIC TENNIS

VERONA, Italy (AP) — Tennis may return as an Olympic sport for the 1960 games in Rome, says Dr. Giorgio de Stefani, president of the International Law Tennis Federation and member of the Italian Olympic committee.

He told the Italian Tennis Federation Sunday he had recommended the inclusion of tennis in the 1960 Olympics, and added, "but even if this does not happen, tennis will be held simultaneously with the Games as a side sport."

Robinson Asks Postponement of Bobo Olson Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson has asked for a postponement of his return bout with ex-title-holder Carl (Bobo) Olson, tentatively set for Feb. 24 in San Francisco, the International Boxing Club said Monday.

The IBC announced that Truman Gibson, its secretary, would confer with Sid Flaherty, Olson's manager, in San Francisco, with a definite announcement about date and site expected in the next couple of days.

Robinson is reported not in favor of a San Francisco bout because it is Olson's home town. He knocked out Olson in the second round in Chicago Dec. 9 to regain the crown.

Fast Run Attack For Tiger-Cats

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats, strong on defence for years, come up with a fast running attack this season under new coach Jim Trimble.

Trimble, former Philadelphia Eagle coach, said TiCats probably will display a sweeping, wide-open attack with the flare of Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts.

Trimble, who arrived here Monday, unfolded his plans for the 1956 season after a luncheon.

Herman Wouk One of Most Successful Writers in Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"These are great times for writers," says Herman Wouk, who is one of the most successful writers of recent years. "The field is wide open."

Wouk is the onetime gag writer for Fred Allen who turned his hand to serious writing after the war. His first two novels, "Aurora Dawn" and "City Boy," were middling successes, as was a play, "The Traitor." But he busted loose with "The Caine Mutiny."

"The only real barometer of a book's success is the retail sales in book stores, excluding the book clubs," he remarked. "The publisher tells me that 'Caine' sold 400,000 copies in three years, and 'Marjorie' has sold 200,000 in three months. So she may well end up a bigger seller."

The dramatic rights will probably amount to more, too. This is despite the fact that Wouk's dramatization, "Caine Mutiny Court Martial," was a hit on Broadway and the road.

Also, the movie is one of the biggest grossers of all time—$8,700,000 in the United States and Canada alone, according to Variety. But Wouk (pronounced Wokl) realized only $50,000 for the rights. Curiously, this is the same amount paid Margaret Mitchell for the all-time top grosser, "Gone With The Wind."

"But I understand David Selznick paid her another $50,000 after it had 'made many, millions'," the author said. "I haven't heard from Columbia.

"Unfortunately I sold it before I realized it was going to be a hit. The reviews dismissed it as mere entertainment; it was the public who discovered the book. Also, the studios were worried that the navy wouldn't co-operate with the film. Only Stanley Kramer agreed to take the chance."

He stands to do much better on "Marjorie Morningstar." The author made a deal with producer Milton Sperling and Warners that could net him at least $1,000,000. He will be a 50-per cent partner in the film. It's an unprecedented deal for a writer.

Television Networks Believe Eight O'clock Spot Is Best

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — The high commands of the television networks long have had a fixed idea that what happens in their respective channels at 8 p. m. in New York determines their strength.

This is an old notion that began in radio and has carried over to television where it still flourishes. As Variety, the show business journal, points out, it's currently providing all the inter-network excitement these days. You know the hot spots: Ed Sullivan on CBS Sunday evenings vs. whatever NBC throws against him; Perry Como on NBC Saturday evenings vs. Jackie Gleason on CBS. And so it goes.

Well, I have a couple of questions. To me, the whole issue is an interesting example of categorical —or rigid morris—thinking. Maybe I should be selling apples.

At any rate, my first question is: 8 p. m. where? The networks', answer is 8 p. m. in the east and 5 p. m. on the west coast—via kinescope. This is the method employed on several live shows originating in New York.

BUT WHO CARES?

But what about the rest of the country? As an example, the Sullivan show, seen at 8 p. m. in the eastern time zone, is viewed at 7 p. m. central time and 6 p. m. mountain time—and 8 p. m. on the Pacific coast.

But why is it important that viewers on both coasts see it at 8 p. m. and unimportant whether middle and mountain audiences see it at 7 p. m. and 6 p. m.? Well, the New York experts patiently explain, there are more TV sets in the east and far west.

That still doesn't answer the question of WHY 8 p. m. is such a necessary hour in the lives of a majority of the public.

The answer, I submit, is that 8 p. m. is of little significance beyond shooting distance of network offices in New York and Hollywood. Perhaps the best way to demonstrate that is to list here the most widely viewed TV programs, as determined by the most recently available ratings. Here they are in order of popularity, with the hours they're shown in the eastern time zone:

TV PHENOMENON

The $64,000 Question, 10 p. m.; Ed Sullivan show, 8 p. m.; I Love Lucy, 9 p. m.; Jack Benny, 7:30 p. m.; Disneyland, 7:30 p. m.; December Bride, 9:30 p. m.; Dragnet, 9:30 p. m.; You Bet Your Life, 8 p. m.; The Millionaire, 9 p. m.

In short, two of these top shows appear in what most network and agency executives consider that 8 p. m. hot spot. The most popular appears at 10 p. m.

I've never heard of a book publisher bringing out a potential best-seller on the same day another publisher is launching a similar effort. It happens only on television.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, January 18, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Some projects that were none too auspicious may placed somewhat more invigorating, generous today. Sound investments, good buys, real estate, manufacturing, careful selling favored.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Matters having to do with the welfare of the public generally, activities and interests of personal value out front under beneficial influences. You can advance, on new lines.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Today may be unusually stimulating, tend to cause over-enthusiasm. So be careful and keep a level head and you will gain that which will be substantial, lasting and productive. Moderation!

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Dependability, resourcefulness and understanding are treasures and a legacy you innately possess. Build with them for a greater future for surer gains each day.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Heed advice to Gemini for today. Remember, too, that gentility and hospitality are treasures to own and they live long after riches and mundane possessions are forgotten. Fine possibilities.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Wise and more fruitful if you work with others, confer, and unburden your troubles with those who really care. But be sure about whom you trust. Fine influences for good management.

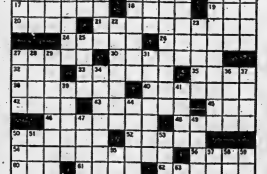
September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — One hour well employed will be more profitable than days of unproductive dabbling. Idleness could be a tempter, so you have none of it. You can gain, make this asset yes.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Similar tendencies to Leo and Gemini now. Aspects home or delicate and spiritual matters, especially. You are innately musical, highly talented. Give some time to developing your gifts now.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — A bright, engaging must; hold back some ardor for specified activities. Take care in spending exciting pleasures. Do all wisely and you can have accomplishment, healthy fun.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — A lot of drive and stimulus in the day's influences. This can be good if you don't permit it to become dominating. Move ahead with your endeavors but pause to heed others' ideas, too.

January 23 to February 20 (Aquarius) — The energy indicated now should stir you to step ahead briskly but not recklessly. Plan schedule smartly, attend quickly to essentials and you'll be pleased with results and have time for fun.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — There is nothing to fear about this or any day except the fear itself. With head high and belief in God's abiding love and faith we can go forward bravely, meet and conquer obstacles.

You born today are sensitive, ambitious, capable in the broad, general way. You never flinch at working for a desired goal, no matter how hard the work, though the obstacles. But you must be careful not to override others' rights and ideas along your progressive way. Enrich your store of knowledge by listening to those capable of giving the worth while. Don't hesitate to ask questions and to heed sound suggestions. And remember the strong and good are humble, often gentle. Prayer is your, my, everyone's bulwark against evil. Birthdate: Dan'l—Webster, statesman, orator; Austin Dobson, poet, man of letters; Olga Nethersole, actress; Cary Grant, actor.

GUNS, ARMY TRUCKS NOT SHIPPED TO EGYPT

The Egyptian freighter, Star of Assuan, was loaded at Halifax and is now on her way to the Mediterranean. According to her captain, E. G. Harvey, she carries "general cargo, apples and things," but according to persons who claim to have watched her being loaded, her cargo contains 32 heavy naval guns and 36 or more army trucks. It was believed the shipment was for Egypt but it is now revealed only three training planes are destined for that country. (Central Press Canadian.)

NEWS STORIES CHANGE IMMIGRATION RULING

For three years immigration officials refused entry for Mrs. John Haster to Canada. The reason given to her husband, a Dutch navy veteran, was that she was an East Indian. Then Canadian newspapers heard about the story and it became a topic of discussion across Canada. Result is that today, Mr. and Mrs. John Haster and daughter Yvonne, two, are together in Toronto. Mrs. Haster was granted permission to enter Canada by order-in-council. (Central Press Canadian).

Little Benny's Notebook

I went to the market with ma to help her carry things, and some lady came up to her, saying, Well, Mrs. Potts, well.

Being a lady with a round nose and pointy shoes, and ma said, Goodness, Mrs. Slippet, I haven't seen you since I dost know when, goodness. Do you remember Mrs. Slippet, Benny? she said, and I said, No mam.

Which I didn't, and Mrs. Slippet said, Well I remember you, Benny, although I never saw sutch a change in a boy. You're perfectly enormius, she said, and ma said, I must say you haven't changed, my dear.

Neither have you, my dear, Mrs. Slippet said. My I'd know you anywhere just like yesterday. Well, this is very pleasant, but I have hungry mouths to feed, she said, and ma said, I know just how you feel.

And they both kept on shopping in different directions, and I said, G ma, how is it I've changed so much and you haven't? Do people stop changing after they grow all the ways up? I said, and ma said, Goodness, how wondrful it they did. As a matter of fact poor Mrs. Slippet has sadly changed.

Well gosh, ma you told her she looked exactly the same, I said, and ma said, That was just diplomacy. I must say it's nice that she didn't notice any change in me, she said.

How do you know she didn't? I said, and ma said, You heard her say so, didn't you for land sakes?

Sure, ma, and she heard you say she hasn't changed either, I said, and ma said, That's entirely different.

Why is it, ma why? I said, and she said, Oh, I think we'd better change the subject.

Proving she probably didn't feel like thinking too long about it herself.

1955 'Crazy Mixed-up Year' Says Pres. of Fruit Growers

TORONTO (CP)—F. E. Reynolds, president of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association, said Monday 1955 was a "crazy mixed-up year" for growers.

He told the association's 97th annual convention agricultural prices continued to drop last year while the national economy and purchasing power rose.

Imported produce also appeared on the Canadian market at peculiar times. For instance, a boat-load of Egyptian onions arrived in Montreal while the biggest crop of Ontario set onions i history was being harvested.

Other examples: 22 freight cars of potatoes were imported each day during June, July and August; 5,000,000 pounds of cabbage were imported in June; and 2,000,000 pounds of tomatoes entered the country during July, while vocal produce was left on the vines.

Mr. Reynolds said:

IMPORTS UP

"Canada imported from the United States in eight months from January to the end of August, 1955, $80,000,000 of fruit and vegetables, this being an increase of $5,800,000 for the same period in 1954.

"During this same period our exports amounted to less than $7,000,000."

He said U.S. produce travels at a lower freight rate entering Canada and tariff schedules allow low rates for entering produce, while the same crop when exported from Canada suffers a heavy charge.

M. M. Robinson, association secretary-treasurer, said a levelling out process in Canadian agriculture, which started three years ago, has not run its course.

He said the causes of declining net income were: over-production, increased competition from imports and higher distribution costs.

PRODUCTION HIGHER

An association report showed fruit production surpassed 1954 figures last year in all crops except red cherries. Plums and prunes were 140 per cent of the 1954 total, peaches were 103 per cent and grapes 105 per cent. Red cherries were 83 per cent.

The association approved resolutions requesting reduction or removal of tariffs on lettuce, celery and onions, and government control of neglected or abandoned orchards to limit the spread of fruit diseases.

It also passed a resolution suggesting that assessment officers or real estate men from the county concerned set the value of farms for succession duty purposes.

A. W. Oughtred of Clarkson was elected association president and Charles Huffman of Harrow was elected vice-president.

Claims Lay-Off Due to Charge Union Dictatorial

AULTSVILLE (CP)—Melvin A. Rowat, who says he was laid off the St. Lawrence seaway power project last May 2 for charging that his union was dictatorial, says he has not violated any laws of the country or of the union.

Mr. Rowat, Social Credit candidate in Stormont riding in the 1953 Ontario election, gave a written statement to The Canadian Press questioning legality of a contract between the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario and his union, Local 793 of the International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL-CLC).

The statement said that Hydro had in its possession a grievance he submitted before official signing of the contract saying he doubted its legality "due to the fact there has not been a union meeting held for the members of Local 793 on the project to voice their desires."

A UNION ORDER

When Mr. Rowat reported Jan. 3 that he had been laid off, he said Hydro told him the union had ordered it to "defer employment" until he cleared himself with the union. Under the agreement with Hydro, no person can be employed on seaway construction without the union's approval. Aultsville is near the heart of the project, 40 miles east of Cornwall.

Herbert Ingham, business agent for Local 793, said in comment on Mr. Rowat's first charge that he was refused employment because "his actions were detrimental to his organization."

Mr. Rowat met with union officials in Toronto Monday night to discuss the case. After the hearing, Mr. Rowat said he was told he would be advised by letter of the union's decision.

URGES MORE HASTE

BONN (Reuter)— Chancellor Konrad Adenauer urged Friday that the building up of West Germany armed forces should go ahead more quickly. West Germany should make greater efforts to carry out her obligations to Western defence in the light of increased Communist activities after the failure of the Big Four foreign ministers' conference, he told the executive committee of his Christian Democratic party.

Neighbors Honor Ottawa Barber For Risking Life

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa barber who risked his life in rescue attempts during a fire last Thursday which took the lives of a mother and three children was presented with a purse of $141 by his Tweedsmuir avenue neighbors Sunday.

Ernest Hawley received the gift in an Ottawa hospital where he is recovering from severe burns and leg injuries.

During Thursday's fire which killed Mrs. Cyril Moynahan and three of her children, Mr. Hawley, a neighbor of the Moynahan's, carried 18-months-old Rickey Moynahan to safety from an upstairs verandah, Dianne Moynahan, 17, who handed Rickey to Mr. Hawley, also escaped from the burning building down the ladder, placed there by him.

In his second climb to the verandah to rescue other members of the family, Mr. Hawley was thrown 14 feet to a concrete walk by a blast of flames from the burning home.

Tanker Explodes In Gulf Port; 25 Are Missing

Cause of Blast Unknown; Ship Was Loading at Time

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—A Cities Service Oil Company tanker, with a full cargo of 130,000 barrels of gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil, exploded Tuesday night leaving an estimated 25 of its 41 crew members missing.

The explosion of the SS Salem, Maritime rocked the company's docks and set two of the loading stations afire. The vessel, scheduled to leave for Norfolk, Va., early today, was nearly full.

The exact number of men missing was unknown this morning because company officials said it would be difficult to estimate how many had been on leave.

AT LEAST 16 SAFE

Berlin H. Richerson, dock maintenance man for the ship, said that at least 16 of the 41 who signed on for the trip were reported safe.

The ship's captain, identified by crew members as John Rushing of Milton, Mass., was among those missing.

Spokesmen for the company said only three men went through the first aid department and only one of them was taken to hospital. All three were picked up in the cold Calcasieu river by a tug.

Seiler John Klepadlo, one of those rescued by the tug, said he was standing on the fantail of the ship with two other men, but was unable to give any account of them after the blast.

Klepadlo was quoted as saying: "Anybody who was on that ship after I left it just won't be around to talk about it."

HUNT FOR SURVIVORS

Tugs and other boats combed the river through the night for possible survivors. It was believed some might have gone over the side and sought refuge in the swamplands on the opposite bank of the river.

No cause was given for the explosion. The tanker, loading in three holds at the rate of 2,000 barrels an hour, had been loading for more than six hours and was almost full when the explosion tore the vessel asunder and left it a flaming hulk.

Murder Charge Against Lindsay Woman Dismissed

LINDSAY (CP) — A murder charge against Mrs. June Scriver was dismissed today by Magistrate R. I. Moore for lack of evidence.

Mrs. Scriver, 32, was charged with the Christmas Day shooting of her husband, Earl, 39, during a quarrel at their home near this town, 55 miles northeast of Toronto.

Scriver died in hospital from stomach wounds.

During the hearing, Constable John Williams of the Ontario provincial police testified that Scriver told him before he died that the shooting was an accident and that he did it himself.

Constable Williams said the .410 calibre shotgun from which the shot was fired could be discharged by brushing against clothing because of a defective trigger.

Magistrate Moore, in a written judgment, said he could not find any evidence that Mrs. Scriver had any intention of using the weapon as a gun.

"She had no intention of using it for any purpose as a gun. She picked it up as an object she might use to warn her husband to leave the children alone."

SEX OF THREATS

The magistrate said consideration had to be given to the evidence of Constable Williams that the weapon would discharge so easily. He said he was satisfied with the testimony of the Scriver children that their mother had not pointed the gun at her husband.

During the trial Scriver's stepchildren, Teddy 12, and Loretta 15, told of a week of threats by their father to make them leave home. Mrs. Scriver finally left with the children the week before Christmas and returned home Dec. 21.

Curtailment Of Bank Loans Requires Study

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Winters said today curtailment of bank lending on house construction mortgages will have to be studied before its effects on home building can be assessed.

The minister, in charge of housing for the federal government, said the government had nothing to do with the curtailment.

"We aim at a continued high level of housing and I would like to see all available steps taken to that end," he added in an interview.

Mr. Winters was commenting on a Toronto dispatch that the Royal Bank of Canada announced it will curtail house mortgage lending and that other banks also are expected to put on brakes.

SENATOR POULIOT AIMS REMARKS AT CBC IN TALK

Takes Exception to Ridicule of Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC has been accused of being exceedingly bold by a former Liberal Commons member in his first speech as a senator.

"They have no sense of responsibility," said Jean-Francois Pouliot Tuesday night as he moved the address in reply to the throne speech in the Senate. It lasted 95 minutes, probably the longest Senate speech in many sessions.

He aimed his remarks particularly at a new all-night English-language radio program which he said ridiculed the Senate and to "fairly blasphemous" poems read over the French-language CBC radio network.

The CBC could make jokes of individuals, but he could not conceive of it seeking to destroy the pillars of Canada.

NATURAL GAS

In the Commons throne speech debate, meanwhile, western agriculture got a big new save some ground to those of natural gas and demands for higher family allowances and increases in successive duty exemptions.

Senator Pouliot, for 31 years the Commons representative for Temiscouata, reviewed activities of the government departments and what he called a "non-political" policy that he took all his glowed to the CBC.

"Those at the head of the business would consider it a humiliation to admit somebody under them has done anything wrong," he said. Outside the Senate, he said he referred to a radio program called "Brain Tier of Lies" written by T.W. (Tommy) Tweed.

12,000 Cabs Off Street Due to Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—The International Brotherhood of Teamsters posted pickets today to put its one-day New York taxi strike into effect, seeking bargaining recognition.

The union predicted that the strike would keep three-quarters of the city's 12,000 cabs off the street.

Fleet owners said they intended to try to keep cabs operating, and predicted that many of their drivers would join them.

The stoppage was aimed at 7,000 fleet-owned cabs. The United Taxi Association, representing 2,000 independent owners, was also expected to co-operate. Not involved in the strike were 3,000 other independently owned taxis.

E. Germany's Volkskammer Votes To Establish 'People's Army'

BERLIN (AP)—Communist East Germany's Volkskammer (lower house of parliament) voted unanimously today to establish a "people's army."

The Communists claimed they need the army to stop an "imperialist" threat from the west. The West Germans now are receiving instruction from the U. S. Army in how to use weapons being supplied by the United States.

The Volkskammer voted shortly after deputy premier Willi Stoph told it the proposed "people's army" will have land, sea and air units.

Stoph said it will be well-trained and armed with "modern" equipment.

Stoph, 41, a former interior minister, is expected to be given certain choice to head a new defence ministry.

His appearance was an indication the well-drilled barracks police force (Kasernierte Volkspolizei) which was organized in 1949 by Soviet occupation officials, will be the new full-fledged armed force.

The East German parliament heard the announcement after a concerted three-day propaganda campaign on behalf of an army.

It was preceded by a speech by Premier Otto Grotewohl who attacked U. S. State Secretary Dulles for his recent "brink of war" interview in Life magazine.

Grotewohl said the interview had stirred a "wave of refulsion" throughout the world, and proved East and West Germany should get together on an agreement to have nothing to do with Western defence plans.

Stevenson Calls Dulles' Action Suicidal Folly

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Adlai Stevenson called on President Eisenhower today to repudiate the "brink of war" statement attributed to State Secretary Dulles or face the secretary. Stevenson termed Dulles' action "suicidal folly."

Stevenson referred to statements ascribed to Dulles in a Life magazine article and statements in the Saturday Evening Post by Gen. Matthew D. Ridgway, former chief of staff of the army.

Gen. Ridgway has declared that during his tenure defence department decisions were not based on clear-cut military needs but on budgetary considerations, on political considerations, on the advantage to be gained in the field of domestic politics by a drastic reduction in military expenditures," Stevenson said.

"Yet, Secretary of State Dulles has just told us that three times during the last three years he led the American people to the brink of war, with the president's approval—and boasts that such dangerous risks are a diplomatic 'art' of which he claims mastery.

"I need hardly point out that for this nation to walk to the verge of war three times in three years, while drastically reducing our military defences for domestic political advantage can only be counted suicidal folly."

Airliner Lands In Grain Field

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — A twin-engine North Central Airlines plane swept a successful belly landing in a stubble field three miles short of Austin Straubel field Tuesday. During any of the 10 passengers or crew members.

North Central officials at Green Bay said the pilot of the DC-3, making the line's flight 20 from Chicago at Escanaba, Mich., advised the Straubel field tower a few minutes earlier that he was losing power. The aircraft went into the frozen field with its gear retracted and came to a stop at a ditch.

Drew Says Tories Will Join With No Party to Beat Liberals

OTTAWA (CP) — The national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, calling for a return to the two-party system in Canadian politics, says Conservatives will not link with any other group in an attempt to defeat the Liberals at the polls.

"So far as we are concerned, there will be no loose coalitions of any kind to gain power," Hon. George Drew told the annual dinner of his party's national association.

"It is time for a change," he said repeatedly in a 30-minute speech.

The Conservative party was the only one able to bring about a change in government and that should be understood by everyone who wanted a change, CCF and Social Credit parties had no chance to elect more than a small group of members.

A record number of association members — nearly 800—attended the meeting heard Mr. Drew say Tuesday night that the results of recent by-elections show that with hard work, organization and good candidates the party can win in any constituency.

Conservatives had upset Liberal strongholds in Toronto Spadina and Restigouche-Madawaska and made "great gains" in other by-elections.

"It can be done," he said.

Mr. Drew said the growing power and influence of the Liberal government is a threat to complete freedom of Canadians.

"The sinuous threads of arbitrary power extend into every nook of our economy."

The government had large contracts with more than 1,800 companies—a fact with political consequences "we have never before experienced."

It was establishing increasing numbers of crown-owned companies and drawing them from parliamentary scrutiny. Government spending had increased 110 per cent in the five years from 1949 to 1954.

The world was divided into two great camps: Believers in state ownership and believers in democracy. Canadians should resist every attempt to extend the power of the state.

"If the present trend continues and the government acquires more and more direct and indirect influence over the lives of citizens —if we have a continuance of the one-party state too long—then we shall have to fight for a return beyond which it would be impossible to embrace our country."

Mr. Drew said Liberal propaganda asks how the Conservatives can form a government if they won election.

"For every department of government, we now have amongst our 53 (Commons) members men and women leaders of ability to hold those posts than the men who now are occupying them."

Liberal cabinet ministers had created an appalling mess in what mafkwing, a fiasco in butter and chaos in the immigration department.

"Who are these supermen of the present government? . . . This government is made up of men whose ears are so filled with the sycophantic voices that they can no longer hear the heartbeat of the nation."

LEON BALCER CONSERVATIVES' NEW PRESIDENT

Is Unanimous Choice To Succeed Geo. Hees

OTTAWA (CP)—Leon Balcer, 38-year-old Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Trois Rivieres, Que., today was unanimously elected president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada.

Mr. Balcer, the party's organizer in Quebec province, becomes the association's first president from Quebec and its youngest.

Mr. Balcer, who speaks English as fluently as French, succeeds George Hees, 45, Commons member for Toronto Broadview.

Mr. Hees retired from the presidency after service since March, 1954.

Mr. Balcer was president of the Young Progressive Conservatives of Canada for two years before 1954. Now a member of a Trois Rivieres law firm, he served four years in the Canadian Navy during the Second World War.

He first was elected to the Commons in the general election of 1949 and was re-elected in 1953. He is one of only four Commons members of the party from Quebec, out of 53 Progressive Conservatives in the House.

He is married and has two children.

The entire list of names for the national executive submitted by a nominations committee — including Mr. Hees' — was accepted with no other names suggested from the floor at the meeting.

Vice-presidents chosen were: 1st, Alex D. McKenzie, Toronto; 2nd Elizabeth Inman, Kitchener, vice president of the party women's association; 3rd, Prof. Heath Macquarrie, Brandon (Man.) College and Victoria, P. E. I.; 4th, Dewey Hilton, member of Parliament for Kamloops; 5th, Thomas Bell, member of Parliament for St. Johnsbert and new president of the Young Progressive Conservatives.

Mrs. Gordon Jones, 3 Sons And 3 Daughters Die When Fire Destroys Farm Home

Flames Balk Father in His Attempts To Rescue Family from Blazing Inferno

MARMORA (Staff) — A mother and her six children were burned to death in their farm home this morning four miles north of Marmora on the Cordova Road.

Mrs. Gordon Jones, 35, and three sons and three daughters died while Mr. Jones, critically burned, was rushed to Peterborough Civic Hospital, where he has been given a 50-50 chance to live.

The dead children are: Phyllis, 16; Elwood, 12; Harold, 9; Ernest, 7; Wanda, 3; and June, 15 months.

Cause of the blaze was not known immediately.

The two-storey frame home, still standing when neighbors first reached it about 6.50 a.m., collapsed into the basement. The debris was still burning at 10.45 a.m. as neighbors, police and firemen probed for bodies. Bodies of two of the victims had not been recovered at 11.30 a.m.

The Ontario fire marshal's office has been called in to investigate the blaze. Inspector Frank Gardiner of Belleville, and Gerald Taffler, of Toronto, a fire prevention division engineer, will investigate.

NEIGHBORS DETECT FIRE

The fire was first detected by neighbors at about 6.30 a.m.

Miss Grace Sheridan, who lives with her father, Arthur Sheridan, about one mile from the Jones home, noticed flames in the sky. She roused her father who immediately went for aid, and then gave the fire alarm on the rural telephone line.

Gordon Moffat, who lives on the farm next to Jones, heard the telephone alarm. He arrived at the Jones' home at 6.50.

Mr. Moffat said that when he arrived Wilbert Jones, a first cousin of Gordon, was at the scene supporting the nearly-hysterical father in the roadway about 100 ft. from the house.

Mr. Moffat said Jones was in his underwear, a pair of socks and a shirt. He said the shirt was scorched across the shoulders and "a lot of Jones' hair was burned."

"He was conscious when I saw him," said Moffat.

"He kept shouting, 'They are all in there,' Jessie is in there.' He kept calling his family by name," said Moffat.

HOUSE AN INFERNO

"The house was an inferno. I don't think anybody tried to go near it."

Moffat said the house was still standing when he arrived but it was "a mass of flames."

Dr. R. C. Shatford, Marmora physician, and the family's doctor, was called at his home at 6.45 a.m. He raced to the scene, put Gordon Jones and his cousin in his car and drove them to Peterborough Civic Hospital where the badly burned father underwent a three-hour operation.

In mid-morning an erroneous report reached Marmora that Mr. Jones had died in hospital at Peterborough.

Mrs. William Archer, of Marmora, mother of the deceased woman, said that the Jones family had lived all their married lives in the same home. The home was heated by wood stoves.

The Marmora fire brigade arrived at the scene at 8.30 a.m. after the house had collapsed. A fire truck from the Bethlehem Steel's Marmoraton Iron Mines Ltd. arrived at the scene at 10.45 a.m. to extinguish still-smouldering ruins.

Mrs. Jones, wife of Marmora's fire chief, said that her husband was not notified of the blaze until 8.00 a.m.

TOWNSHIP COUNCILLOR

Mr. Jones, a member of the Marmora and Lake township council for seven years was employed by the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co. Ltd.

Mrs. Jones was employed in Marmora by Dr. Shatford. She had returned to her home Tuesday night for a visit. Her body was found near a spot where one of the windows would have been.

Mrs. Jones is survived by her mother and by six sisters and one brother: Mrs. Clifford (Eleanor) Wannamaker of Peterbrough; Mrs. Orville (Joyce) McGarvey, Mrs. Gerald (Patricia) Fluke, Mrs. Otis (Lois) Fluke, Mrs. Jack (Enid) Fluke and Mrs. Ralph (Mona) Gillman, all of Marmora, and Alma of Peterborough.

Mr. Jones has five sisters and four brothers: Mrs. Bruce (Mary) Baker, Mrs. Herb (Verona) Young, Mrs. Roy (Debbie) Brown, all of Peterborough; Mrs. Bill (Ruth) Kelly and Mrs. George (Carrie) Fox, both of Malone; Arthur in the United States; Herbert and Bill in Peterborough, and Hugh of Springbrook.

Wilbert Jones, who found his cousin on the roadway in front of the house, said the house was a mass of flames when he arrived.

Using Only Compass and Flashlight Pilot Brings Big Airliner in Safely

NEW YORK (AP)—An airliner pilot, flying through snow and fog without radio or navigating instruments, brought his plane with 24 passengers aboard in a two-hour-late but safe landing at La Guardia field Tuesday night.

Pilot Robert Francis, 37, had only a compass to guide him and a flashlight to see it on a flight from Boston.

Behind him in the darkened cabin his passengers sat through the frightening ordeal in prayerful quiet. There was no panic.

The electrical system of the twin-engined Northeast Airlines Convair failed about seven minutes after it left Boston. The plane was plunged in darkness, and there was no way for it to contact ground stations or receive guiding signals.

Francis, a flier for nearly 20 years, watched the compass by the light of his co-pilot's flashlight. He landed with less than an hour's gasoline supply.

Francis said he had considered returning to Boston when the trouble developed, but decided against it because of heavy air traffic there. Fog and snowstorms then prevailed in New York and prevented him from making an emergency landing before reaching New York.

Reports that the plane was overdue touched off a wide search.

Asked if he had been lost, Francis explained:

"That's hard to say. We were lost insofar as we couldn't tell what town or city we were over because we were. But we knew our general area and where to head."

Ferrara Will Stand Trial At Next Court

Giuseppe Ferrara, 21, charged Tuesday with Rodney Sharpe, 17, and Gary Marriott, 18, of the rape of a young girl of 17, will stand trial at the next assizes on a charge to be determined.

Hon. Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan of the Ontario Supreme Court, indicted that Ferrara's trial would be separated from the trials of the other two youths during Tuesday afternoon's sitting of the court.

On January 5th, 1956, at a preliminary hearing, Ferrara was committed for trial on a charge of attempted rape. When the indictment was read at the opening of court today Ferrara was charged with rape in a joint indictment with Marriott and Sharpe.

Defence counsel Ronald Cass, acting for seventeen year old Ferrara's trial, stated Tuesday that he had come to court prepared to defend his client on the lesser charge.

He said that had he known his client would be charged with rape he would have contested a more detailed cross-examination of the complainant at the preliminary hearing and would have approached a different defence.

Kenneth G. Ross, counsel for Marriott and Donald Templeman, counsel for Sharpe, questioned the wording of the indictment against their clients. They claimed that the wording left room for doubt about the number of counts against the accused by the Crown, contending that the wording, which included the words "unlawfully assault" implied offences other than rape.

Both Mr. Ross and Mr. Templeman asked for severation of the trials of their clients on the ground that a joint trial would prejudice the defence by denying the accused the right to have his companion testify for him.

It was also held that a statement given by Marriott to the Crown, if introduced in a joint trial, might implicate the case of the other two.

At the conclusion of Tuesday's court Justice McLennan said he would decide Wednesday if the indictment against Marriott and Sharpe would stand. The indictment is subject to motions of dismissal from defence counsel on the ground that there is a duplicity in the charge not present at the preliminary hearing and on receipt for separate trials.

Mr. McLennan asked members of the grand jury to return to court Wednesday morning.

Members of the panel of petit jurors were dismissed Tuesday afternoon.

It was executed that the petit jury would be impanelled Wednesday morning. If the trial of Sharpe and Marriott goes forward first evidence was expected to be given Wednesday afternoon.

Karl Robinson's technicolor movie "Trieste and the Dalmatian Coast" will be shown Thursday in BCI auditorium as the fourth in the series under the staff of Kiwanis World Travel and Adventure pictures.

An area as old as ancient Greece and an integral part of the empires of Greece, Rome, Turkey, Napoleonic France and the Austro-Hungarian coalition will be the subject of this unusual picture.

Trieste is now part of Italy and the Dalmatian coast is part of Yugoslavia. The area is one of the world's beauty spots.

Mr. Robinson will narrate the film in person. Last year his delightful narration added much to the enjoyment of his films on Turkey.

P.M. Tim Little, Former Newsman In City, Retires

OTTAWA (CP)—A veteran Canadian newspaper man and an original member of the army's directorate of public relations Tuesday marked his 70th birthday and retired from the public relations post.

Percival McIntmer Little—known to Canadian newspaper men as "Tim"—joined the public relations directorate in 1941 at the personal request of Col. J. L. Ralston, then defence minister. He has served with the directorate ever since.

A native of Garden City, Ont., near Port Hope, Mr. Little came to the army public relations post from the Montreal Standard, which he joined in 1938 as news editor.

He began his newspaper career as a $3-a-week cub reporter on the Peterborough Examiner. From there he moved to the Brantford Expositor and in 1920 joined the editorial staff of the Ottawa Journal.

WORKED IN TORONTO

Between 1919 and 1924 he worked with the now defunct Toronto News, the Toronto Evening Telegram, the Regina Leader Post and the old Mail and Empire, since amalgamated with the Toronto Globe to become the Globe and Mail.

During the First World War, he was commissioned in the lieutenant with the 14th (Cobourg) Battery and served overseas until the end of the war with the 21st Battery.

He was wounded in action but remained on until 1919, when he returned to Canada to resume his newspaper career as managing editor of the Belleville Ontario, now the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer. He also was assistant news editor of the Montreal Star before joining the army.

Recommendations Made by Jury Are Presented

The Hastings County court buildings are gloomy.

To relieve the gloom a grand Jury recommended decoration of the entrance door, the law library and downstairs halls.

Other recommendations presented Hon. Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan Tuesday afternoon suggested that:

1) all entrance and exit doors open outwards;

2) a water fountain be installed on the second floor;

3) a leaky radiator on the first floor record room be fixed before dampness affects valuable books;

4) provision be made to prevent escape of gas fumes into the family and county court and provision of an exhaust fan in these rooms;

5) a fireproof vault be installed in the county's office to guard records and money.

No complaints were received by the jury from prisoners in the county jail. Jurors said the jail was clean and the staff efficient and commended the county officers for their efficiency.

Youths Charged Jointly With Serious Offence

Belleville youths Rodney Sharpes and Gary Marriott, indicted for rape of a 17-year-old girl, today pleaded not guilty to the charge at the opening of their trial here.

They went jointly on trial today before Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan of the Supreme Court of Ontario, at the Spring Assizes, after the bench ruled on a motion by defence counsel that both should be tried separately.

Both defence counsels told the court at the opening of the trial that there was intercourse in the case but it was with consent.

Don Templeman is appearing for the 17-year-old Sharpe and Kenneth G. M. Ross for Marriott, 18.

An amendment also was made in the wording of the charge against the two youths. At the suggestion of Acting Crown Attorney Gordon Robertson the word "assault" was removed from the charge.

Most of the morning session was taken up with the impanelling of the petit jury for the trial.

Mr. Justice McLennan cautioned the jury on the seriousness of the charge, adding: "Anything else is immaterial but the case is one or may have heard about it, you should banish from your minds. . . . You know how hopelessly inaccurate are the stories that get about," he said.

Crown Attorney Robertson then related the incident on the night of Nov. 7th, leading up to the charge.

Evidence was given by Dr. Robert Allore, Belleville obstetrician and surgeon, who examined the girl at Belleville General Hospital in the early hours of Nov. 8th.

The court also heard testimony from Mrs. Madeline Hookings, nurse on duty in the hospital at the time and from Dr. Alexander Stein, pathologist at the hospital.

Evidence from the girl herself also was being heard up to the luncheon adjournment.

Ford Co. Shares Jump 5 Dollars

NEW YORK (AP) — The thousands of persons who managed to get a portion of the new Ford Motor shares had an immediate profit today.

Even before managers of the huge underwriting had closed the books on the offering, the stock was selling at a premium of more than $5 a share. In the over-the-counter market here this morning, the shares were quoted at $70 bid, $72.50 asked.

Dealers said trading was fairly active.

Limited buying and selling of the stock started late Tuesday immediately after clearance by the securities and exchange commission of the 10,200,000-share offering at a price of $64.50 a share.

Trading in the shares began in Montreal and Toronto Tuesday, but dealings there today were described as on the quiet side. Approximately 200,000 shares were available in Canada.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of ¼ per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today, Tuesday's noon rate 99 27-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.80 7-16, up 3-16.

Vegetable Growers Told Future Perilous

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario fruit and vegetable growers Tuesday heard a warning that the immediate future is full of peril.

M. M. Robinson, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association, told the annual convention that a keen selling-out process is under way in Ontario agriculture because production is exceeding demand. He said:

"Warning signals began to fly three years ago. That they were given scant heed was only natural. Aware of the prosperous state of the national economy it has been difficult for fruit and vegetable growers to realize that a saturation point could be reached so quickly."

He said there would be trouble too if a Supreme Court of Canada ruling on the legality of compulsory marketing legislation, expected in April, should be in the negative.

WILL BE IN MESS

"Should the Supreme Court decision be against us and should that decision come down after Parliament has adjourned we will find ourselves in a mess—a chaotic mess. The truth of the matter is that the reference to the court could have been dealt with much sooner but for Manitoba and Saskatchewan farm interests seeking more time in which to prepare their presentations.

"So once again we find ourselves in jeopardy because of the West."

Mr. Robinson said an increasing economic pinch was caused by high post-war production with little consideration of changing markets, steadily increasing competition from foreign markets, "a hedge of out-moded tariffs" and startling increases in distribution costs.

The federal government, he said, had been slow to act on the industry's demands for tariff adjustments on imports.

Speaking in a panel discussion on the six-quart basket said a new bulk container for distance shipping of fruit and vegetables is being considered. Six-quart baskets

Press and Consumer Leagues Criticized by Council Members

Sharp criticism of the press and consumer leagues for their alleged "condemnation" of farm floor prices was levelled at the morning session of Hastings county council Wednesday morning.

Reeve Earl Sager, Madoc township, said that these prices are nothing but cost of support, and "peanut" compared to subsidies given to other branches of industry.

Reeve Sager's remarks stemmed from the presentation to council of a Grey county resolution requesting that more emphasis be placed on farm marketing prices, and reasonable floor levels be set to protect all farm products.

Later, after considerable discussion, council concurred in the resolution.

It voted "no action" on another resolution by the same county that the government be asked to assume total costs of calfhood vaccination against brucellosis.

Reeve Sager said that the press and consumer leagues never criticized unemployment insurance, which he termed a "subsidy to unemployment." He said 144 millions has been paid to it to 1944 and money paid to farm support prices would be "buy interest on this amount. "Gold bines, railroads and the coal industry all get subsidies," he said. The cost of farm support has been only twelve to fourteen millions since they started.

There also has been a strong condemnation of the butter situation, Reeve Sager said. "This is the backbone of Hastings county. It burns me up to see the press pick on the farm subsidies and say as a council should do something about it."

It was pointed out to Reeve Sager that employees paid one-third of unemployment insurance, employers another third, and the government the balance.

PASSING COSTS ALONG

"At that," he rejoined, "industry is passing along the costs to the farmer."

It was said, are often damaged in the stacking of shipments.

Mr. Robinson said the CNR terminal at Montreal is one of the weakest links in Canadian marketing. He said:

"It must be plain to all who are acquainted with the facts that the Canadian National Railways is largely responsible. In inner world, your railroad operates in a fashion detrimental to the sound distribution of Ontario produce."

Impose Curfew After Three Days Of Bombay Riots

BOMBAY (AP)—Police imposed a 24-hour curfew on Bombay's big industrial sector today after three days of violence protesting Prime Minister Nehru's plan to sever this west coast Indian metropolis from Bombay state.

So far, seven dead have been reported in the state. The rioters held virtual control of the factory area until police and special armed units drove them out Tuesday night with shots, tear gas and club charges.

The mob, which demanded inclusion of Bombay in a new Marathi-speaking state, felled trees to barricade highways and buried stones at passing trains, buses and cars. Leftist unions ordered a general strike and downtown Bombay was deserted today, with business virtually at a standstill. Shops which opened were looted.

Seeking to end the strike, police arrested S. A. Dange, leading Indian Communist.

REPORT ON THE AEROTRAIN

Railway history was made in the United States two weeks ago, when two of that nation's greatest railroads, the New York Central and Pennsylvania, staged test runs of the new Aerotrain, designed to recapture for the railways that passenger traffic on which they once held a virtual monopoly.

Since Belleville is a railway town, there may be many local residents interested in some observations made by Godfrey Sperling Jr., a staff correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, who was a passenger from Chicago to Detroit on the New York Central's test run.

Railroaders may not be overly surprised to learn that this miracle train test run proved something less than a complete success. True, the Aerotrain is fast and cheap to operate. But the ride was rough and noisy.

Sperling quotes a veteran financial writer as saying: "Frankly, it was a bumpy ride. . . . I was very disappointed. You know what you have, don't you, a bunch of GM buses tied together and pulled by a diesel engine. That's why it's rough when you are travelling at 85 to 93 miles an hour."

The noise, says Sperling, "was as loud as a noisy military airplane, louder than most commercial airplanes."

So our conventional trains, which have held a good share of passenger traffic through their combination of speed, comfort and safety, are not likely to disappear overnight. That does not mean that, eventually, the Aerotrain and its successors may not become standard equipment on all modern railroads. Harlow H. Curtice, president of General Motors, told the passengers on the New York Central test run that "development will continue in the months ahead," objectives being "the lowering of the noise level, further weight reduction and improvement of the ride."

Past successes of GM engineers suggest that, in all probability, the initial problems will be solved, with later models of the Aerotrain providing a more comfortable and as free from annoying noise as conventional trains, while still retaining the outstanding assets of high speed, low operating costs and low replacement costs.

RHEE WANTS ATOMIC CANNON

Things are never so bad that they could not get worse.

We are not sure whether the originator of that statement was an optimist or a pessimist. It can be interpreted two ways.

There is little doubt, though, that it is a true statement. If anybody doubts it, we refer him to a dispatch from Seoul, the capital of South Korea. Defence Minister Sohn Won Il said on Thursday that his country's army of 600,000 men was ready to renew its reserve "is now better than ever and it will be the world's third strongest army if equipped with more powerful weapons." The more powerful weapons he seeks are atomic cannon. He has been asking the U.S. for them, but, says the Seoul story, "the armistice forbids new weapons in Korea."

Think what a powerful force there would be if every little nation were equipped with atomic weapons. Every time Rhee thundered defiance of the Reds, the world would shake in fear that he might fire a few rounds of atomic shells, instead of the usual harmless ones. Or, if the Russian satellites were so equipped, there would always be the danger that some minor-league Red would take the "death to the imperialists" slogan seriously.

If it were only the terms of the Korean armistice which prevented the U.S. from arming the South Koreans with atomic weapons, we should have only a passing tremble. We are, however, fairly safe in going on the assumption that the armistice terms, if they play any role at all, are merely being used by U.S. officials as a convenient excuse for withholding the weapons. The reason is bad enough when the possession of atomic weapons is limited to a few major powers. If the day ever comes when every little nation possesses the power to unleash atomic death, we had all better don our space suits and take our chances on the next rocket ship soaring into the stratosphere. Only a madman would start an atomic war, but the records of history show that madmen recur at intervals which are too frequent for comfort. The law of averages alone is enough to warn us that the fewer nations which have atomic cannon the better.

SNUBBED

The Gordon economic commission, which has been given, the task of forecasting the future of the Canadian economy for the next 25 years, has been ignored by Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec and his government.

The commission is reported to be confident that it can obtain all the information it needs without the co-operation of the Quebec government.

Imagine, though, what Monsieur Duplessis would have said if the commission had ignored Quebec, rather than Quebec the commission!

WOLF BEHAVIOR

People who insist that timber wolves do not and will not attack man should examine two thoughts here after reading of the experience of two flyers in Minnesota.

Two flyers in a light plane skimmed low over two timber wolves crossing a frozen lake. As the plane crossed over the wolves one animal made a mighty leap into the air, hit one of the plane's skis and caused the craft to crash. The only really consistent, characteristic in the behavior of wild animals is inconsistency. (Brockville Recorder and Times.)

TIRED

I'm tired of pills and capsules red;
I'm tired of being all day in bed;
I'm tired of nurses' finger tips,
Thermometers between my lips,
And I'm tired so I can be
Of doctors coming over me.

I'm tired of getting all my hopes
In pressure pumps and stethoscopes.
In fret, the simple truth to tell,
I'm getting sick of getting well;
And though I'm told it's for the best,
I'm tired of being forced to rest.

I should be grateful and be glad
For every gift of health I've had.
I should not bitterly complain
Of this late about a twinge of pain,
But, as a cure, rest's bitter stuff;
And, doctor, I have had enough.

Little Girls Who Grow Up

(Baltimore Sun)

It is around 12 that little girls romp a little too much and grow a little less. About 12 is the time when father is viewed with sudden new reserve as more of a man and mother less of a mere kind but changeable parent type.

Twelve is the year in which a new figure in the voice is apt to be heard in comment on father's ties and hats and his habits and the application of leisure time.

Not that mother doesn't get her at 12 moves in. At 12 mother has to prove that Mother Knows Best. Sometimes she can't.

The ten years that elapse between 12 and 22 are apt to be wearing on sentimental parents. They want to do more and more and are permitted to do less and less. They know that water is wet, that fire burns, that a day of sleep leads to headaches and even sore throats. What they do not know, very often, is that experience is not transmissible — that the burned child avoids the fire, but only after he has burned a little.

And yet let parental sentimentality cheer up, because what Time destroys Time can mend.

One night the empty house fairly rattles as the front door flings open in a clatter that has not been used in years. It seems there is a modest ranch house available in the new development, but the down payment is a little steep and could father, maybe, manage a little, er, advice?

Or the phone rings and it turns out the company dance is in the offing, and could mother possibly handle a girl or two for the evening? After all, she used to be good with babies 30 years ago.

Harriman Gets Tagged

(Chicago News)

Whether the author was President Eisenhower, as some say, or less distinguished wit, the phrase is described by Walter Winchell as: Averell Harriman as a "Park Avenue country" seems to have stuck, and rather well. It serves to suggest that Mr. Harriman perfumes his effects, wears his hair too oiled and uses his wrist in the throw, but otherwise is functional, essentially that of the Missouri deadend kid.

Sometimes these sciddious labels can have devastating effect, although it may be doubted that this one is that good. When the late Wendell Willkie was called a "parrot Wall Street lawyer" and Thomas E. Dewey likened to "the bridegroom on the wedding cake," the guffaws swept across the country.

Gov. Harriman made an effort to popularize "Honest Ave" as the monicker by which he would be best known. It doesn't seem to have taken. Mr. Harriman, or perhaps he will have to settle for "Park Ave" Harriman.

Rare Bovine!

(Louisville Courier-Journal)

A farmer was compelled to place his mother in a home for the aged in the city. Each time he visited her, he brought delicacies from his farm. Always he included, on the advice of the family doctor, a container of milk into which he clipped a bit of brandy. The old lady was greatly pleased with her gifts, and invariably as she sipped the milk, she would say very earnestly: "Son don't sell that there cow."

Slips, Falls and Spills

(New York Times)

This is the season of the slip—a slip being defined here as an upset of balance, as of losing without upsetting consequences. Distinguished Sir or elegant Madame are as susceptible as is the dowdy-and-plain urchin. Shoe leather and ice are the ingredients that in combination bring about the slip. Shoe leather burning or moving too precipitously on ice-encrusted pavements or even suspected ice—brings on the event. There are high-kicking variations on this dance in the backward-sun-in-place, torso slanting backward, arms out and rotating.

This is the season of the fall. The last of the dance variations described above usually results in what are always leads to upsetting consequences. (Also, for the record, the latter—such, like most interesting things in life has a uniquenesse in its own right.) The essence of the falls is the all-four fall, in which the individual manages to get caught in the posture of a grizzly bear. A variation on this fall occurs when only the hands and feet are in ample time but they, too, slip and let the quivering centerpiece of chest, midchest and abdomen. There is, further, the right shoulder, the left shoulder and both shoulders, both dramatic and both uncomfortable. Those who escape all of the above variations walking, say, toward the south. flip suddenly to the east or west. The most dramatic of falls is the backward fall. The commonest "of the two in the category" finds the victim in a sitting position with a surprised look on his face. Only a little less dramatic is the backward send-flip fall, in which the victim's feet go forward and upward—and all but kicked a football with a

When I was a boy on Chapel St. in Canandigua (I was the custom to go down below the tracks, early in December, always in a closely packed bunch just in case any denizens of the flats ventured to start something, and make the rounds of the drug stores, all of them, viz., Simmons', Barker's and — it seems to me must have been a last one other, but I can't remember the name of it now.

We collected almanacs.

There was usually an assortment of them available in piles on the counter. Customers were welcome to help themselves.

Almanac collecting was a pleasant diversion because (1) It involved a venture into enemy-territory, (2) we got something for nothing, and (3) scattered strategically through each brochure were numerous jokes — and silly little tapes on familiar happenings but jokes with character and reputable acquaintance through long usage.

Besides the traditional humor the almanacs gave readers considerable misinformation in the fields of astrology, meteorology, bacteriology, physiology, hygiene, and pathology. Another popular misinformation prevalent today concerning health is was acquired through years of faithful study of the almanacs.

For instance, the morbid notion that some kind of poisoning of the blood or the "system" is inevitable if the bowels do not follow the schedule assigned by some well known (well-advertised) charlatan — such as some old-timer was almost by opined that the liver was sluggish or the latter-day sage who invented the auto-intoxicalism concession etc., etc. To insure against such a dreadful occurrence the poor geek must resort to one or another universal "aid" every day. Being a poor geek, he hasn't an inkling of what ill effects is to be bound. He suffers from such interference with the natural automatic regulation of entire functions and process of digestion.

The poor geeks may have learned from the almanac that there are 108, or is it 208 bones in the body, but it is safe to say he has never learned that the function of the bowel is controlled by the same autonomic or automatic mechanism that controls breathing and the beating of the heart. Undoubtedly the almanacs told little or nothing about respiration and circulation, and so hardly one poor geek in a thousand takes anything in "regularity" breathing or circulation. That one believes a daily dose of digitalis or nitroglycerine necessary to keep his heart beating from day to day. I feel great sympathy — if hardly boiled character can feel sympathy — for the poor geek who has this digitalis obsession.

Just Part Of Write-Off

(Toronto Globe and Mail) —

This is what one may call the machine age. When a part in the family car fails it can readily be replaced, and animals are treated the same way. The maximum is Bishop and a beast.

Judge J. A. S. Plouffe speaking at North Bay. Since we flatter ourselves we are civilized people it would be a good thing if we took his words to heart. Judge Plouffe had to deal with a case where 50 per cent of horses that are rented to lumbermen in his district are found in a single season that they are "fit only for the slaughter house when returned."

Nor is that new. SPCA reports believe it is a rare stable where horses shipped to Toronto, packed so tightly they had no room to lie down, were unable to walk on arrival. One had his back broken because the animal in front of twelve horses were found fit for work. In another "seventy-eight out of seventy-eight had to be given immediate veterinary treatment. A considerable number were stabled in a barn so low it could not stand up, in some cases the roof was only 5 feet 6 inches." "almost unbelievable".

Such history is not of the dark ages, but of the present time. The fact that the SPCA and other responsible foresters enforce humane treatment, makes no less horrifying the brutality which the SPCA still finds so widespread. But prison and police forces are not going to help tortured horses in the northern bush. What is needed is an aroused public opinion on this matter, to demand that the laws be enforced. If they are not adequate, that they be strengthened until they are.

Picks Prize Pun of 1955

(Toronto Saturday Night)

Still defiled and degraded by the third-rate comedians and inept masters of ceremonies, the pun has been restored to its high place in esteem, a poor relation of wit.

But as long as there are those who, like the middle-aged mid-fine art of punning will never be lost or whole-heartedly ignored. Nominated as Bennet Cerf, Groucho Marx and Louis Kronenberger judge the year's best pun, we have not, but our selection as the year's best is the quip of Judge Joseph Sedgewick Hall, Mowrer.

Judge Hall was reporting on conditions in Korea, and wondered how long that country could remain "half Communist and half Rhee".

Judge Plouffe praised the work of the probation officers but that is extended. The mockery in that, although none of his devising, was the fact that the case was brought up (and rejected an appeal) a magistrate had originally given a suspended sentence. In another case an offender was let off with "a hotel room." In the latter case, says, "a pair of horses can be bought for $300 and I would not just write them off at the end of the season." Perhaps the fines can be written off as a business loss.

The unconcerned, casual tolerance of brutality which is all too often so shocking as the barbarity itself. This is the machine age, says Judge Plouffe. So surely we have also the excuse of economic necessity for the job not to be done humanely with animals it is time to move in the machine. If it can be done profitably with machines, then surely common-sense and humanity can be compelled to team together in such matters.

HOW NATIONS GROW — AND MEN

Two centuries ago the vast continent on which we live was almost entirely a wilderness. Impenetrable forests covered a great deal of the area which is now the nation when we began felling the trees, Miller's axe rang echoed.

So in the life of everyone there has to be lots of cutting done. A lot of things have to be uprooted before we can ever start to live the kind of life we had thought we stop right here. They are satisfied with the kind of existence they lead. They count themselves successful if they can tear certain vices from their souls and cast them away.

This is indeed an accomplishment—but it is not enough. There must be new growth in its place. There must be education. There must be patriotic devotion. There must be personal love and worship.

Forests, stumps, stones — these are the things with which we have to deal. But the glory of a nation is its alabaster cities, its golden fields of grain, and the glad hearts of its people.

Strange Pride

(Charlottetown Guardian)

What next will rivals quarrel about? Down in Ashland, Ky., a 19-year-old man claimed he had established a record for being in trouble with the law. Since 1946 he has been arrested 161 times. Another man immediately disputed the claim and showed proof that he himself had been arrested 598 times since 1934 and paid fines totalling $3,410.

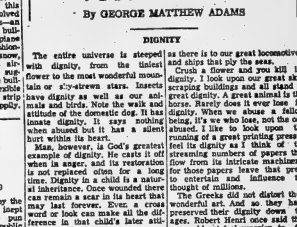
Reading for Idle Moments

There is a way to cut great locomotives and ships that ply the seas.

Do not let that cow you kill its dignity. I look upon our great skyscraping buildings and dams as of great dignity. A great animal is the horse. Rarely does it ever "go bad." However, when we abuse a fellow being, it's we who lose, not the one victimized. I like to look upon the running of a great printing press. I revel in the sight of the rows of streaming numbers of papers that flow from its intricate machinery, for those papers are of great print to entertain and influence the minds of multitudes.



The Greeks did not distort their wonderful art. And so they have immortalized their names in the ages. Robert Henri once said that nothing was more superior to the dignity of a child. In looking upon the work of this great artist you, too, feel the dignity that he put before us. One thing you can see in the photographs of Abraham Lincoln is his abiding dignity and greatness.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

From about now on, we Canadian men are going to look scruffier and scruffier until the end of March, when we put on our first spring suit for the first time.

Maybe in Vancouver and Victoria the men can look fairly presentable the whole winter through. But most Canadians are not. It is the one winter coat. It has to do for the office, car, bar and hotel room. A good winter coat goes to the cleaners. Many of them have a fur coat as well as a sturdy cloth coat good enough, with a heavier sheep underneath it, that there is no problem about keeping smart. But in most of Canada's cities, provinces can't take a chance on a mild spell and rush out big coats to the tailor. The minute we risk switching to the spring topcoat for a couple of days, down comes a blizzard. I am told the cleaning industry in Canada is making special efforts to popularize one-day cleaning, and let us hope it is for the benefit of the Canadian male in winter. On a recent visit to American cities as little south as St. Louis or Denver. I was impressed by the sense of appropriateness of the men in contrast to the Canadians I had just seen in their winter coats. Hatless and all bundled up, I was a hotel valet who cleared the matter up for me.

I sent for him to press my spare trousers. When he came in the door, I said, "I am all packed ready to go out, in my heavy horse blanket and rubber, winter hat and so forth."

"Golly" said the valet, who was a big-eyed colored man. "You look sleeping in the day coaches!"

I thought no more about it, but he knew I was a northerner.

"You northern gentleman," he said. "specially Canadians, always look like you been riding freights and feel like all the time."

So he persuaded me to stay indoors until lunch time, and I had been bundled and lunch, he had my hood horse blanket all refreshed and brushed and looking as pretty as November.

Maybe some day, Canadian ladies will allow us two winter coats too.

MECHANICAL BEACHCOMBER SALVAGES SCRAP FOR U.S.

This sprawling mass of olive-drab beams, wading about the ocean surf on gigantic rubber tires, promises to save the U.S. army transportation corps millions of dollars through reclaimed scrap. The machine, an intricate arrangement of hulls and wheels, can straddle and lift a 67-ton vessel from the water and carry it to deeper water or lift it on to shore.

The power to move the machine is built into the motorized wheels, which are 10 feet high and four feet wide, allowing flotation and traction in soft terrain. (Central Press Canadian.)

Increasing Population Would Be Greatest Economic Factor

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The spokesman for Canada's areas production said today that a growth in population would be the greatest single economic factor to benefit Canada's economic future.

But to achieve that growth, said the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association, there must be an expansion of job opportunities through increased development of secondary industries, like manufacturers of finished goods.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Bonnell, the association's executive vice-president, said in a submission before the Gordon economic commission that primary industries, the producers of raw materials, provide a lot of wealth but not a lot of job openings.

MAY OPEN CONTROVERSY

The association's viewpoint may open a great deal of controversy during the commission's three days of sittings in this metropolis. Spokesmen representing powerful segments of the economy plan to contest that view. The present argument that Canada should continue concentrating her main efforts in the production of raw materials.

Because of technical advances in arms production, the time between the outbreak of a war and the culmination of things economic in a war is greatly shortened, Gen. Bonnell said. Canada must be prepared to support a capital expenditure "on a scale that has not so far been envisaged."

Business, he said, should provide unrestricted grants to the field of the arts of force with governments the direct responsibility to ensure that the country is supplied with professional personnel.

He said universities will require additional support from both the federal and provincial governments.

Second behind the start of a war and the conclusion will become progressively less over the years, the submission said.

"Therefore all defence agencies, including defence production facilities, should be planned on a ready for immediate effective action."

The burden of keeping the economy ready for expanded arms production started with secondary industries, which must be encouraged to remain operable on a stop-and-go basis, because of planned retarded growth and loss of production facilities.

More attention had to be given to engineering education facilities. There was a big shortage of engineers. A continuing shortage would hamper economic expansion.

PIGEONS MOVE IN

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pigeons have a skirmish in their battle of Bunker Hill Tuesday. As soon as workmen finished laying a sidewalk in the reconstruction of Bunker Hill section, a flock of the birds swooped down on the wet cement, cheeped, skipped and jumped on the smooth surface. Workers continued and refinished the cement.

Calculated Risk Of War Is Part Of Dulles' Policy

WASHINGTON (CP)—John Foster Dulles said Tuesday a "calculated risk" of war is one of the precepts of his foreign policy.

The U. S. secretary of state said it is not enough merely to "want peace," and added that the U. S. must run this calculated risk of conflict by making it clear to potential aggressors that it will fight to defend its vital interests and moral values.

In his view, he said, the U. S. runs its "greatest risk of war when it fails to convince aggressors that they cannot attack with impunity.

That, Dulles explained to his weekly press conference, was what he meant by his controversial "brink-of-war" statement, published last week in a Life magazine interview which triggered a storm of criticism against Dulles both at home and abroad.

READY FOR QUESTIONS

Dulles stepped into the thronged conference room obviously prepared for the heavy barrage of questions about the article, which painted a glowing picture of the secretary of state as a man of diplomatic action who three times has saved the U. S.—and, by implication, the world—from global war in Korea, Indochina and Formosa.

The Life article, coming conveniently at the opening of the 1956 congressional election campaign, has generated fierce criticism among Dulles' political foes, who variously have characterized his reported statements in the interview as "dangerous," "voluntary" and "pitiful."

Reading from a prepared statement, Dulles told his press conference today he would first off to make it clear that he did not write the article, did not review or censor it and did not know of its title "How Dulles Averted War." He did concede that it had given him more credit than was his due but added, with a grin, that he was happy some people gave him credit for his actions.

Generally, he said, the statements attributed to him were quotations or close paraphrases of what he already had said elsewhere, but the secretary hedged so closely under questioning that reporters had difficulty pinning him down on just when and where they had been made.

He took issue with only one passage, that dealing with a saying "the ability to get to the verge of war) without going into war is the necessary art." This, he felt, did not make it clear the U. S. had been "brought" to the brink of war by the actions of others. And, he added, he never would have used the phrase "the necessary art."

Dulles several times refused sharply to discuss specific portions of the article, saying he was not going to comment on the "views of the author" but without indicating any dividing line between the author's views and those of the quoted Dulles.

In his prepared statement, Dulles said the U. S. should adopt every honorable course to avoid engagement in war but he added that he believes there are "basic moral values and vital interests, for which we stand, and that the surest way to avoid war is to let it be known in advance that we are prepared to defend those principals, if need be by life itself. . . ."

FAVOR STATE OF SEIGE

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The Chamber of Deputies voted 147 to 63 Tuesday night to approve a second 30-day extension in a state of siege for Brazil. The state of siege was proclaimed originally to prevent the Supreme Court from considering President Joao Cafe Filho's petition that he be returned to office.

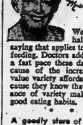
Says Business Must Invest In Education

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Sydney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, said Tuesday Canadian governments and businesses must invest greater sums of money in higher education to meet an unparalleled increase in university enrolment.

In an article in a special education supplement of the University of Toronto Quarterly, he said universities are faced especially with swollen enrolment.



The influx must be met head-on by governments and businesses prepared to support a capital expenditure "on a scale that has not so far been envisaged."

Business, he said, should provide unrestricted grants to the field of the arts of force with governments the direct responsibility to ensure that the country is supplied with professional personnel.

He said universities will require additional support from both the federal and provincial governments.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Ann Barker (Mother of 5)

Well begun . . . half done; an old saying that applies to modern baby feeding. Doctors add new foods at a fast pace these days, partly because of the increased nutritive value variety affords—but also because they know that early acceptance of variety makes for future good eating habits.

A goodly store of mealtime surprises for you, too can be found in Gerber's "Recipes for Toddlers". For your free copy, just write Dept. "B" Gerber-Ogilvie Baby Foods Limited, Dept. "B", Box 68, Toronto 18, Ont.

Roll call. Ever so often it's a good idea to review the grand choice of Gerber Baby Foods. There are 5 cereals and over 35 Strained and Junior Fruits, Vegetables, Dinners, Meats and Desserts—specially processed to preserve a high degree of wholesome food values and the tempting true flavors that make baby's mealtimes pleasurable pastimes.

Towel trick. An outsize bath towel can be easily transformed into a wonderfully absorbent baby bib using apron. Just attach cotton tapes for neck halter and waist ties.

Bright idea division. Brainstorm from a clever mother . . . after washing baby's sweater, place on a bath towel to dry. Roll towelin out with a rolling pin. When dry, sweaters are pressed into perfect shape.

Special meats are also added early in the infant diet. Gerber Strained Meats are prepared to suit the likes and needs of little ones. Selected, juicy cuts are carefully trimmed, then specially processed to preserve fine quality and precious vitamins and minerals. Most of the fat and fiber is removed so they're easy as milk to digest. Rich, too, is the complete protein that do so much for sturdy growth and the development of body structures. 100% meat, with just enough broth for a smooth consistency.

St. Michael's P.T.A. Holds Oratory Contest

St. Michael's high school Parent-Teacher Association got off to a fine start for 1956 with a record attendance at their first meeting of the New Year, held on Mon. Herbert Brown.

Mrs. J. Gallagher's secretarial report was followed by a most gratifying statement of finances from treasurer Harry O'Neill.

Committee reports were received and correspondence from the Kingston Archdiocesan Council was dealt with, in regard to the Leadership course contemplated by that body. The director of the association, the Very Rev. L. H. Garvin strongly advocated a course be launched locally with Mr. H. Brown and Mrs. Ben Burley to initiate action on this project.

Mrs. Burley stated that the film "Parliamentary Procedure" had been purchased by the council and was available to PTA Units on request, gratis.

P.S. CONTEST

As the conclusion of the business meeting, a most interesting public speaking contest was enjoyed by the parents. The Rev. Sister M. Lenore, principal of St. Michael's High School, acted as chairman of this portion of the meeting. Sister explained that the contestants included a boy and girl chosen as the best in their grades, from Grade 11 to Grade 13 and each one would give a prepared subject followed by a five minute impromptu speech on anyone of five topics. The contestants had the previous hour's study of what their topics might be.

The judges included Mr. Wilfred Foley, Mrs. A. Black and Mrs. H. Brown, who had a most difficult task and rendered a fair adjudication. The contestants were Grade 13—Margaret Ross and Dale Burley; Grade 12—Joan Duggan and Michael Rashotte; Grade 11—Anne McHenry and Wayne Johnson with the latter two Grade 13 pupils scoring off the honors.

The topics chosen included, "William Wordsworth"; "Civil Engineering", "Why I'm Glad I am a Canadian", "Blue Vervet"; "Catholic Seperate Schools"; "Communism, what is the Impact", topics suitable were "Marilyn Bell", "Robbie—Stamp Collecting", "Canada Entered the Olympics"; "Music — Jazz"; "Teaching as a Career" and "Young Experimenters."

PLAYLET ENJOYED

The playlet, which was much enjoyed by the assembly was selected, directed and extremely well executed solely by the Grade 13 pupils of St. Michael's. It was entitled "Stained Glass". Included in the cast were Mary Trudeau, Pauline Lally, Mary Agnes Donoghue, Donna Bellinger, Joan Duggan, Margo Poirier and Nellie Durkin with Anne McHenry directing.

Piano solos by Shirley Beaton, Mary-Jo Cannon and Joan Greenfield were most pleasing while the lovely new ballad "He", was sung by Marilyn Mulvihill.

Following this program, refreshments were served by Mrs. C. Ryan and her social committee.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Going shopping?

Today is the third Wednesday of 1956 and it is the third time we emphasize the terrific sales now in progress wherever you look in the Belleville shops. It is hardly too much to claim that whatever you may want from furniture to clothes you can find a bargain no matter what it is called - - - January sale, inventory sale, semi-annual sale etc. The old adage "a dollar saved is a dollar earned" bears repetition.

That reminded us housewives who like marmalade to bear in mind the timeliness of preparing marmalade in January. This thought bears repetition, too. Citrus fruits are at their economical best as well as at their top quality for juice and flavor.

A few tips came our way recently about what to look for when you were picking out good meat. They are helpful so we pass them on.

When we are buying ground meat, there is always a risk that we get too large a proportion of fat or gristle. The best plan is to ask for a cut of meat, then have it ground as we watch. If expensive cuts are being avoided, it is suggested that we ask for chuck beef which makes good lean beef.

Good lean beef should have a cherry red look with firm and fine-grained texture. Beef of good quality has creamy white, flaky fat. Avoid meat that has yellowish fat and meat that is soft. Pinkish bones belong to good meat.

If it is lamb we are looking for, avoid dull red meat because that has reached the mutton stage. Young lamb is pinkish looking.

Good quality veal is light pink and moist, the fat should be white and smooth without signs of marbling. However, just the opposite holds when buying pork.

Pork flesh should be marbled, as well as firm, and the color should be greyish pink. Remember though, there should be no pinkish tinge in cooked pork.

Did you know that now we can get bed pillows filled with one of the new synthetic fibres — terylene. It is soft, resilient, and low in price. It does not pack down with use and cannot escape through pillow ticking. This clean product does not mildew or harbor vermin and costs 14 to 2 cents, it is a boon to allergy sufferers.

"Know All Men By these presents that J. Henry Finkle of Ernestown in the County of Addington in the Midland district, province of Upper Canada, for and in consideration of the sum of seventy five pounds — Currency, Lawful Money of the province aforesaid, to me in hand and paid by Joseph Allan of Marysburgh in the County of Prince Edward in the Midland District and Province aforesaid at or before sealing and delivery of these presents the receipt whereof the said Henry Finkle do hereby acknowledge Have Granted, Bargained and sold and by these presents Do grant, Bargain and Sell unto the said Joseph Allan his Executors, Administrators and Assigns a female Negro Slave named "Mary" about five feet five inches high and Twenty-five years of age."

The above is a brief extract from a photostatic copy of an actual sale contract dated "at Kingston in Upper Canada aforesaid this Seventh Day of June Anno Domini One Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety-Eight in the thirty-eighth Year of His Majesty's Reign." It was signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of W. Robins, Esq. Hayward, Not. Public, and "the consideration" document is a long contract containing many more Whereas's, Aforesaids, Witnesseths and Assigns etc, but its authenticity marks it as a relic of another era in our own local Bay of Quinte district.

The glorious freedom of the beautiful Bay of Quinte community seems incongruous with the literal meaning of the word slavery.

The enslavement of our fellow human beings has been an accepted social status of every civilization known to man. Denmark was the first country to abolish the slave trade in all Danish possessions in 1803, or four years after "Mary" was sold as chattel here. I wonder if we are capable of assessing the significance of this fact and then go on to pass judgment with a completely pure objectivity. Wilberforce's great fight to have the slave trade abolished by Great Britain came to fruition in 1807. Abraham Lincoln had warned his country "I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free." In December, 1865, ninety years ago, slavery was abolished in the United States. There are pockets on this earth where slavery is still practised.

We have Mr. R. D. Finkle of Bellville to thank for his courtesy in showing us the copy (in his possession) of this historic contract. It was not so long ago since our ancestors accepted slavery as a way of life which had been a reality for many centuries.

Perhaps facing the west and he calls it "the revolution of rising expectations." We thank Mr. Finkle for letting us see Mary's contract of sale which helps us to realize we have come far and have far still to go.

It is reported from the headquarters of the Iberoamerican canal that the workers are proud because this year's results are the most encouraging ever, but, they are forced to concede that this area is one of the lowest in the province. We are hopeful that many who may have just forgotten will realize that the campaign is not closed and subscriptions are still very welcome to carry on this magnificent work.

NAMED DIRECTOR

LONDON (Reuters) — Maj.-Gen. Arthur Charles Shortt has been appointed director of public relations at the British war office in succession to the late Brig. Nigel Dugdale. Shortt, 53, will take up his new post in April when he relinquishes his present appointment as head of the United Kingdom service liaison staff and senior military adviser to the British high commissioner in Australia.

Pr. Edward Belleville Club Sees Travelogue

The January meeting of the Prince Edward-Belleville club was held at the YMCA with over 40 in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Wannamaker, presided, while Mrs. Lent led in the opening exercises.

Mrs. Parliament read a poem "A New Year's Message."

Full reports of the past year's activities were given by Mrs. Wannamaker, Mrs. Parliament and Mrs. Detlor, while Mrs. McCoy reported for cards and flowers sent and expressed sympathy to one of the members in the loss of her husband, Mr. Charles Ketcheson.

Mrs. Lent expressed the club's appreciation for the wonderful reports and moved the adoption of same.

The roll call was responded to by the paying of fees.

PROGRAM

The program was convened by Mrs. R. Fox's group with Mrs. M. Woose presiding.

The sentiment of the new year was brought by Mrs. T. F. Townsend in her solo "We Shall Not Pass Again This Way", with Mrs. E. Hubbs as accompanist.

Mrs. Townsend also gave a "Messags for the New Year", referring to the year ahead as an open door of opportunity and service—when "forgetting those things which lie behind—press forward to the great calling which is in Christ Jesus."

Several musical selections both sacred and popular, were given by Miss Dorothy Alexander of Hillier, who was chosen recently by the Rotarians of Picton, to appear on television over Rochester station in the Talent Scout program.

Dorothy plays guitar and mouth organ together and sings with guitar accompaniment.

The guest speaker was Mrs. A. H. Johnston of Highland Avenue, who brought a delightful travelogue of her travel through Ireland by conducted tour. This was most interesting with vivid descriptions of the beautiful scenery, the happy home life; the governmental problems. Mrs. Johnston interspersed her talk with stories depicting the wit and humor and boundless hospitality found everywhere.

Mrs. Sleeth graciously thanked all taking part in the program, extending to all a Happy New Year.

A social time was spent with Mrs. R. Fox and her group serving.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TOWNSMAN AS ANNIVERSARY GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In the past four or five years my daughter has spoken several times about wishing to have Townsmen. But she never got around to ordering them for herself, and, I'm sorry to say, I never got around to giving them to her, as a present. But now I think I have a really good idea—to give them to her as a present for their first wedding anniversary (paper), which will be in about two months. Do you think this would be a good plan?

(1) If you approve, should her name be engraved (for example) "Mrs. Henry James Smith"?

(2) They have quite recently moved into their new house. Would it be proper to include this new address on the Informals? If so, where? — Mother

(1) It is a splendid idea for you to give Informals as a present to your daughter who has so long wanted these very useful cards, however, if you give them as a present for "their" wedding anniversary, "their" names should be engraved on them . . . Mr. and Mrs. Henry James Smith. If you wish to have them engraved with her name only, I suggest you give them to her as a birthday present. I think it would be wise to ask her which she prefers ("Mrs." or "Mr. and Mrs."), which she would find more useful, and follow her preference.

The majority of women, I should find it more convenient to have Informals engraved with their names only, for more uses and occasions, and on the occasion when their husband's name is also to be included, write "Mr. and" before the "Mrs." on the front of the card. (For example, on invitations to the housewarming they may be giving for their new home.

(2) By all means have the new address engraved on these Informals. The address is engraved in the lower right corner, in letters smaller than those used in the name. For example: 123 Jackson Avenue. (Do not abbreviate "Avenue" or "Street.")

THIS ENGAGED GIRL DOESN'T WANT A BRIDAL SHOWER!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Cathy and I have been very dear and close friends all during our school days and ever since. In the past two or three years quite a few of our mutual friends have become engaged. Cathy has always gone to the showers given for them, taking very nice shower gifts, but always insisted that when she became engaged, she most definitely didn't want any showers given for her, for she didn't approve of the shower idea. Now she has become engaged, and she has asked me to be her maid of honor (also one of 3 sisters). In usual circumstances I would, of course, plan a shower for her. But should I plan to give her a shower when I know so well how she feels about them? — D.E.

No. Since your friend has made it so plain to you over the years that she doesn't want any showers given for her, doesn't at all approve of the shower idea, I'm sure she would be very sorry if you plan to have a shower for her. I suggest you give a late-afternoon party on her behalf, or, perhaps even more fun give a late-afternoon party on either Saturday or Sunday in honor of the engaged couple.

Puddings You Remember

By Mary Moore

Mr. Seale is a 6' 4" Englishman who yearns for a treacle pudding. After my return from England I met him on the street and his first question was "Did you eat treacle pudding in the Midlands?"

Travelling through the Midlands on a bus with treacle pudding three times women is not conducive to treacle pudding eating. We were lucky when we had a 15-minute stop for lunch.

Our conversation wound up with a promise from me to get him a recipe that his wife could make into treacle pudding. Because there are so many English patriots in this country I'm passing it on. Treacle is molasses and a substitute could be corn syrup. If you cannot find light molasses at your grocery store, use corn syrup—but no English cook would.

TREACLE ROLY POLY

Two cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-3 teaspoon baking powder 1 cup very finely chopped beef suet, 1-3 cup cold water, 1 cup treacle (light molasses), 1 cup raisins (preferably the large seeded type), 1 cup bread crumbs, juice of 1 lemon.

Sift the sifted measured flour with the salt and baking powder. Mix in the suet and work well. Gradually stir in the water using a fork to form a stiff dough. Roll out on lightly floured board to form a rectangle. Mix together treacle, raisins, bread crumbs and lemon juice. Spread this over the dough to within 1 inch of edges. Roll up like jelly roll, turning in sides and sealing edges by pressing a bit. Butter a tea towel well, sprinkle generously with flour and place roll on it. Tie ends tightly and plunge in rapidly boiling water and boil 1 1-2 hours, covered. Carefully remove from water onto platter and carefully unroll. Best served hot with hard sauce, cut in slices.

NOTE:

Other fillings such as jam, marmalade, chopped sweetened fresh fruits may be used instead of the above filling.

While we are on this old-fashioned pudding theme how would you like to change your bread pudding method? If you make this one be sure to fetture it—for it is not something for ordinary old week days.

RAISIN-ORANGE BREAD PUDDING

Cut 2-day-old bread into 1-2 inch cubes until you have 2 cups. In top of double boiler heat to scalding 2 1-2 cups milk, and add 1 cup seedless raisins, remove from heat and let stand 10 minutes. Add 1-4 teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons sugar, 4 teaspoons grated orange rind, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind, 2 1-2 tablespoons melted butter, and 2 beaten egg yolks. Add bread cubes and mix gently. Turn into buttered 1-2-qt. baking dish (which is presentable at the table), and bake at 325 deg. F.for 1 hour. Make a meringue by beating three remaining egg whites until foamy adding 6 tablespoons sugar and beating until stiff. Pile attractively on top. Garnish with tea or twelve drained membraneless orange sections. Bake 15 minutes longer, or until meringue with gold. Serve warm.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

BABY CAN BENEFIT BY MOTHER'S BEAUTY PROBLEMS

Paradoxical though it may seem, the infant whose mother is beset by skin and hair problems may have a better chance of going through life without these troubles than the one whose Mom comes by her lovely complexion and healthy scalp quite naturally. For, when Mother has to keep on her toes constantly to preserve her own beauty, she's apt to be much more conscious of the hazards to her baby's looks.

Take the matter of dry skin, for instance. Every mother loves to give her baby its bath. It's not only a dirt-chasing session, but it's fun, too. And when baby's been happily washed and patted dry, all mothers love to give the delicate skin a thorough going over with baby oil or baby lotion before powdering and dressing for bed. But the mother who's suffered from dry skin herself goes further than this. She's too well aware of what Jack Frost's ips and drying steam heat can do to rob her own skin of its soft, supple freshness, so she goes further in her baby's beauty care. Before every winter outing, she uses baby lotion to anoint arms, hands, elbows, cheeks and chin. Then used, after bath and before outdoor sessions, eliminates that.

Many mothers do remember to protect baby's face and hands but often neglect the arms and legs just because they're covered. But not the mother who has suffered from dry skin herself. She knows, or should know, that dry skin often becomes irritated from fabrics such as winter leggings. Baby lotion used after bath and before outdoor sessions, eliminates that.

The mother who suffers from dry scalp knows how important brushing and how oil shampoos are to her own hair, so she never neglects her baby's hair, either. Of course, she uses a special baby shampoo that won't burn if it gets into baby's eyes, but before she gives the shampoo, she moistens a cotton with warm olive oil and massages it gently into the little one's scalp and leaves it on for a while. After the hair has been washed and dried, it is brushed thoroughly. Such care from infancy on, will guarantee any little girl a minimum of beauty problems later in life.

Her bath's important, of course, but lubrication afterwards is necessary to prevent dry skin.
